Chapter 136

FARM CRISIS

The Farm Crisis spoken of in 1980 is now here. It is far more important than the Establishment Media has revealed. If this turns out to be the case, each one of us will be affected before this thing is put to rest.

Arthur Kirk Killed

On 23 October 1984 Arthur Kirk was killed on his own property by a SWAT team from the Nebraska State Patrol.

This killing followed an attempt by the Northwest National Bank of Grand Island to serve a complaint. The complaint contended that Kirk was in default in repayment of a loan.

As long as Arthur Kirk's friends stayed with him he was safe. From information available there was no effort made to contact Kirk for talk or negotiation. When his friends left to tend to their farm chores, the farm was sealed off. His wife was taken into custody and not allowed to phone him. A Nebraska State Patrol SWAT team crept in close to his house under the cover of darkness.

Arthur Kirk appeared in his doorway outlined in the light from his living room. He was shot and received two non-fatal wounds. According to reports, he was allowed to bleed to death.

Nebraska Farmers Remember

To those not involved this Nebraska killing was just an isolated event - but not to the Nebraska farmers. Nebraska farmers consider the SWAT team to be an agent of the bank's stockholders.

During the long winter nights they sit beside their fires and talk. They talk of the things that happened to their fathers and their grandfathers before them. They talk of how it's happening again - just as before. The Kirk killing was a "John Brown killing". There was a reason for it.

The Story Of The Kansas-Nebraska Farmers

There are workworn Kansas and Nebraska farmers who have blood as blue as that of the Queen of England.

In fact, there are more than a few to whom the queen could claim kin. In spite of their mortgages and worry lined faces, they are not just "poor farmers". Their forefathers were the warrior "old nobility" of Britain who came to this country in the 1600's to escape the executioner's ax. Before that they were Crusaders and Vikings. Penniless, they took up small farms in Virginia and New England.

In the 1770s, usury banking became established in New England. It was clearly a violation of the Law,[1] but was tolerated by the ministers of the Anglican Church because the King, the head of the Anglican Church, had been bought by the usurers with low interest loans. "The borrower is servant to the lender".

In the 1770s, usury banking became established in New England

The years rolled by:

1781 - Bank of North America opened in Philadelphia. (Absorbed into Pa. Co. for Ins 1923). Oldest bk in US. First usury bank formed in America.

1785 - Agricultural Depression. Massachusetts banks foreclose farms.

1786 - Shay's Rebellion. Capt. Daniel Shay led farmers to break up court hearings demanding a stop to farm foreclosures. The rebellion was put down and foreclosed farmers fled to the western Virginia counties of Ohio and Michigan. Christian ministers sided with the usury banks and offer farmers no help or guidance.

1834 - 1837. Bank credit increased. Bank loans zoomed from $76 million to $120 million. Land prices soar.

1834 - The number of banks grow to 450. They make extensive loans to farmers in Kentucky, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana.

1837 - Land values peak and start to fall disastrously as interest payments siphon money out of circulation. Commodity prices by 1843 decline 35%. A bill is introduced in Congress to prevent banks from issuing money.

1 LAW - usury; Prov 28:8, De 25:35-36, Ps 16:1 &6, Ex 22:25, De 23:19

Many states repudiate debts.

The children of many New England and Virginia farmers who moved to Ohio, Michigan and Indiana go broke. Bankers imprison farmers for non-payment of debts. Many frontier preachers were corrupted[2] and say and do nothing to protect their charges.

1837 May - Banks suspend specie payments. Federal Bankruptcy Law is passed. Farmers are freed from prisons. For the second time they or their children move on.

1841 - Bank Of The US fails. List of foreign stockholders made public shows that American banking had been under influence of European banking interests. American farmers had been dispossessed at the pleasure of foreigners. Detroit, Michigan defaults her bonds.

1845 - 1850. Bankrupt farmers from Ohio, Michigan, and Indiana take up farms in Kansas and Nebraska. Banks are again liberal with loans and terms. They are glad to lend $10 for $11 just as they had done to their fathers and grandfathers earlier in Ohio and Michigan, and before that in Massachusetts.

1851 - Money supply up +19%. Land values rise.

1852 - Money supply up +9%. Land values hold their own.

1853 - Money supply up +11%. Land values rise higher.

1855- Money supply drops -2%. Land values falter. Commodity prices drop slightly. Banks start foreclosing farms in Kansas and Nebraska. Farmers turn against bankers.

2 A "corrupted" minister is one who has received low interest loans from usurers to buy what he ordinarily could not afford, "The borrower is servant ..."

1856 - Farmers without slaves are told that it isn't the usury system's lending $10 for $11 that causes them to default, but cheap slave labor from the South.

Slave holders are told that the anti-slave people imported the slaves and sold them for a handsome profit to the South. They are the ones who want to free them without paying for them. Tensions develop.

- Eastern bankers find a terrorist, supply him with money, guns and munitions, and send him a thousand miles westward to Kansas. On the night of May 24/25th the terrorist and his gang ride to Dutch Henry's Crossing on the Pottawatomie Creek where they take five pro-slavery family men from their homes in the dead of night. Their arms are cut off and they are gutted. John Brown and his followers were accused. The case never came to trial.

Bank foreclosings continue but were forgotten as pro and anti slavery factions borrow money to arm for protection against each other.

1858 - Oct 16. John Brown raids Harpers Ferry in Virginia, kills several people, and calls for a massive slave revolt to kill all whites as had been done earlier in Santo Domingo. Bank controlled press and corrupted ministers applaud the event. Depression and bank foreclosures set in throughout the north. The South which is largely debt free remains prosperous.

1861 - War! Commodity and land prices soar as money is borrowed into existence faster than interest payments siphon it back into banks. Prices peak in 1864.

1865 - 1870 Usury payments reduce circulating money faster than it can be borrowed into existence. Prices decline. Farms are foreclosed wholesale across the nation.

1896 - commodity prices declined 76%. Farmers, as well as the rest of the country, are destitute. Many Kansas and Nebraska families are foreclosed for the 3rd time.

1896 - 1920 War Cycle. Good times! Money rapidly borrowed into existence to buy guns. Farm and commodity values rise.

1920-1932 War spending stops. Bank usury payments siphon money out of circulation. Commodity prices peak and then drop 58%. There is no frontier left with cheap farmland for bankrupt farmers to move to. As in Rome - there are only city slums to move to. Others hang on. Many Kansas and Nebraska families lose their farms to bank foreclosures for the 4th time.

1932-1980. War Cycle. War borrowing. Farm and commodity prices again move higher.

1980- Farm and commodity prices rise to fantastic heights - then drop as banks raise interest rates. Farm defaults start again. Some Kansas and Nebraska families lose their farms for the 5th time since the country has been founded. Corrupted ministers maintain silence.

-State SWAT teams and sheriffs departments representing bank stockholders begin a nationwide John Brown type reign of terror against farmers.

- July 31. Don McGrath of Emarado, ND was killed by sheriff's deputy while attempting to protect his farm equipment. Interest rates soar. Many farmers are unable to borrow $10 and repay $11 and still make a profit.

1984 October 23. Arthur Kirk was killed on his own farm by a SWAT team from the Nebraska State Patrol.

1985 November 15. Massive farm defaults start. 125 armed farmers gather in Georgia to fight back against bank foreclosure.

For the first time in America's history un-corrupted Christian ministers stand with Americans being dispossessed by usury loans. They took the risk of SWAT team bullets and held signs calling for "Jubilee" (Lev 25:9-13) and "7 year forgiveness of debts" (Deu 15:1-3).[3]

1986 January 25. The farmers of Nebraska will hold a mass meeting at Kearney, Nebraska to discuss grievances. Invited are the governor, legislators, sheriffs, SWAT team members, and farmers themselves.[4]

They want to call attention to the following points:

1) That they do not approve of the unlawful and fraudulent "theft" of their property by the use of "usury".And that they do not approve of the controlled manipulation of commodity and land values.

What can be done about it:

2) The state of Nebraska can easily establish interest free and debt free banks such as those employed by their ancestors, and which are presently employed by Arab nations. These banks will allow the purchase of farms without the use of either debt, interest, or the threat of foreclosure.

3 Conspicuous by their absence were the well known orthodox and electronic preachers of the land. A word of betrayal from them and their paper empires could vanish through foreclosure.

4 The rally is to be held in Kearney, NE on January 25. Call or write Mr. Paul Maruska, RR 3, GTC #32, Kearney, NE 68847. 1-308-234-1066 for information. The editor of HR has been invited to speak.

And that further:

3) The American Farmers should be commended for not retaliating against bank stockholders for sending SWAT teams to repeatedly terrorize and kill their members.

But:

4) This situation cannot continue ... that they do not approve of SWAT team "executions" for the purpose of illegal foreclosure.

If the governor of Nebraska does not appear, the opposition in the upcoming gubernatorial election, Pastor Everett Siliven of the Faith Baptist Church, Louisville, Nebraska will.

Pastor Siliven is the one who was preaching in his pulpit when the Nebraska State Patrol crashed into his church, pulled him out of his pulpit, grabbed the rest of the congregation, threw them in jail and padlocked the church.

Conclusion

The actions of America's farmers and America's ministers are telegraphing to the world that an era may be ending, that no longer will there be "business as usual".

There may be a deeper reason for today's fevered rush to convert IOUs into equity shares in America's corporations. Certain of America's businessmen may see things in the future that others do not see as yet. These frantic mergers and takeovers would make sense indeed if today's IOUs were to become tomorrow's "worthless paper".

UNFILTERED NEWS

The Sydney Morning Herald reports that usury banks that have lent money in Saudi Arabia are facing a mountain of bad debts because of Islam's interest free laws. Saudi courts will not back bank demands for interest, and often offset interest already paid against the principal. To further frustrate the usury banks, orders to seize assets are practically impossible to obtain. Usury bankers moan that the political climate is not right for fundamental changes in the law to allow banks to win judgments.

This is precisely what happened in Western courts a few centuries ago. In time, usury contracts will again be struck down when juries are educated as to what the Law requires them to do.

The French International Radio reported that the Afghan Freedom Fighters control 90% of the country. The USSR has lost 50,000 troops, 7500 tanks and over 500 helicopters. The Afghan people have lost one million men, women and children.

Most of the Afghans' losses are due to lack of US aid and support. US policy is to talk and rail against communism, but in practice refuse to prevent communist takeovers. After pushing independent nations such as Cuba, Angola, and S. Vietnam into communist clutches the US government offers only token aid to surviving freedom fighters.

A pastor in Tulsa, Oklahoma is serving a 6 mo. jail sentence for "contempt of court" because his church will not accept a government license to conduct the ministries of the church. Another in Colorado Springs, Colorado was fined $1000 and sentenced to 6 months for conducting Bible studies in his home without a government license. Another in Fort Worth, Texas faces jail because he will not apply for a government license. One in Corpus Christi, Texas faces jail for the same reason. (Temple Times - 2560 Sylvan Road, East Point, Georgia 30344.)

SCRIPT: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: How would a government determine how much money or scrip should be in circulation for the demands of industry and trade? G.M. - Missouri

RKH: Simple. A price index. If the PI goes up - import taxes go up and government expenditures stop. If the PI goes down - import taxes go down and more scrip is put in circulation.

COMMODITIES: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Why wouldn't it be a good idea to use commodities for money? One bushel of wheat for one wheat dollar? G. A. - Tennessee RKH: Good idea. Similar plans have been used in the past. Lynchburg "Tobacco Notes" for instance. One 800 lb bbl of prime dark-leaf tobacco for one note. Col. Harwood issued scrip based on a number of commodities. It would have put the usury bankers out of business. They ordered the government to stop it.

GOLD SCRIP: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Why can't we take gold and silver coins to a bank and get them to issue a 'warehouse receipt'? This 'receipt' can then be spent anywhere. Unlike the present Federal Reserve Note this would be backed by something tangible." A. U. - Missouri

RKH: The problem with the system you envision is that if one issuer controls most of the business he will also control the "system". A "Mr. Big" somewhere can inflate and deflate prices by controlling the issue of warehouse receipts - just as the Federal Reserve System does today.

SCRIP PAY: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I grew up during the depression. Our teachers received scrip for pay, but not until I read your "War Cycles / Peace Cycles" did I know what I was." W. I. Arkansas

Chapter 137

NEBRASKA FARM RALLY - I And Interposition

I was the first speaker. I told the farmers that in my opinion what was needed was:

1) Moratorium.
2) Elect a governor.
3) Interposition.

Moratorium

Farms are being taken over by the banks every day. Sixteen thousand are expected to be taken over in the next 90 days in Nebraska alone. Land values have dropped from $2,000 an acre to $600. Some have recently gone for as low as $200.

Farm machinery sells for 5¢ - 10¢ on the dollar. Very little is bought locally. A moratorium must be invoked to stop the pillage.

Elect A Governor

Nebraskans must have a governor who is not a pawn of the foreclosing banks. If they organize and outwork the Media they might elect their own man. If they do there may be a glimmer of light. Otherwise - disaster.

A governor can interpose the authority of the state between the oppressed citizens and the oppressors. It has been done many times before.

Interposing Cities

For example. At the present time the following "Sanctuary Cities" are interposing their authority between the Federal Government and illegal aliens to make it virtually impossible for the Federal government to apprehend illegals.

They are: Berkeley, Calif.; Burlington, VT; Cambridge, Mass; Chicago, Ill; Ithaca, NY; Los Angeles, Cal.; Madison, Wis; Olympia, Wash; Sacramento, CA; St. Paul, Minn; Takoma Park, MD. and West Hollywood, Calif. New York has joined by ordering city officials not to cooperate in the apprehension of illegals.

One does not have to approve. He must merely see that Interposition works.

Interposing States

There are many incidents of successful Interposition. In the 1830s Congress passed tariffs directed against South Carolina which would have virtually destroyed the merchants of that state. John C. Calhoun interposed the authority of South Carolina and refused to recognize the law. President Andy Jackson thundered, but South Carolina was prepared to fight. The taxes were reduced to virtually nothing. Interposition worked.

A key point in Interposition is the leader. He must be willing to lay down his life for his people if events so demand. If he does not have this dedication the matter is lost before it begins.

Any discussion of Interposition must include interposition's failures.

Virginia's Disgrace

In the 1950s the US government attempted to take over the school system of the State of Virginia. Judge Bill Ould of Chesterfield County said that it was unconstitutional and that the US government didn't have the authority. He stated that Virginia must interpose her authority to protect the people or the education system would be ruined.

James Kilpatrick of the Richmond Newsleader expounded on the topic and became its most vocal champion. Congressman J. Lindsay Almond, a candidate for office, vowed that if elected governor he would never betray his mother state Virginia.

I was a young officer in the Richmond Light Infantry Blues, one of the regiments that went across the slaughter fields at Gettysburg, and the one my great great great grandfather fought with at Yorktown during the Revolution. The Blues, one of the many regiments of the Virginia National Guard, stood ready to be called up once more to protect our state from invasion.

Our newly elected governor never did come by to visit us. The reason soon became apparent. We stood by and the Federal marshals were allowed to walk in and take over our schools. Governor Almond went before the legislature with a few words about doing the best he could. I was one of the many who cried at the humiliation of Virginia. Governor Almond received a Federal Judgeship.

Rhodesia's Destruction

The same thing happened to Rhodesia. Britain attempted to turn Rhodesia over to the blacks in direct violation of the Bible law which states:

> "Thou shalt ... set king over thee ... one from among thy brethren ... thou mayest not set a stranger (Heb: nokri - foreign, adulterous.) over thee, which is not thy brother." De. 17:15

Rhodesia interposed her authority and declared her independence. The USSR, China, Britain, and the US aided rebels in an attempt to bring down her government. Rhodesia raised a militia. Thousands of volunteers came from America to help. Ten years of war left Rhodesia stronger and with more trade than before.

Her leader, Ian Smith, without a referendum, met with the enemy and turned Rhodesia over to the blacks. He still has his large plantation in Rhodesia and receives favorable press in the West. Most of the other whites have been driven from their homes. Rhodesia is destroyed.

I don't know all the politicians running for Governor in Nebraska. I know Pastor Everett Sileven. He spent 5 months in jail rather than cave in to state demands to regulate his Church schools. He does understand Interposition. At the Farmers' Rally I recommended that they unite behind Sileven.[5]

Interposition

Section 8 of the US Constitution gives Congress the power to coin money. Congress has relinguished this power by giving it to private banks.

The 10th Amendment states that powers not given to the government belong to the states.

The US government has even borrowed money from private banks, which makes them, under the supreme law, slave to the lenders:

> "The borrower is servant (slave) to the lender." Prov. 22:7

This was not part of the contract between the states and the federal government. Since the Federal government has not exercised the power given it - this power reverts to the states who gave it in the first place.

The states have the right to issue money.

Practically

There is not a judge in the country who was put there to rule that the above argument is true. However, if a sovereign state interposes her authority and issues her own money it doesn't make any difference what he rules. It will force the government in Washington to continue to wear its golden slave chain or cast it away by beginning to issue money.

5 While his opponents receive free favorable publicity Sileven has to pay for advertisements to be heard.

Implementing Interposition

1) In 1940, Lambert Schuyler wrote his famous "Think Fast America". In it he outlined a simple plan of converting debt into equity.

If a man bought ten acres on a certain date for $1000 an acre, and $4000 of the money was his own, he would own 40%. The remaining debt of $6000 or 60% would be converted into equity. This 60% would be owned by the lender.

Any payments of principal and interest made since the purchase date would apply against the lender's portion based on the original purchase price of $1000 an acre. The original purchase price is the key to each transaction.

In this case the bank would gain $6000 - an amount equal to the "credit" they loaned in the first place.[6] A 100% profit is more than a fair profit on the transaction since the "credit" cost nothing.

They would not get the interest amounting to an additional $12,000. This would do the lender a service since usury is forbidden by the Christian religion. The punishment for usurers is the same given to whores and murderers. Surely no Christian would risk that for a couple of dollars.

The conversion of credit into equity would preclude foreclosure where the farmer loses everything.

6 Banks do not lend depositors' money. They merely lend "credit" instead. The only reason they keep depositors' money is to comply with rules set out by the nation's big banks. Again. Banks do not lend depositors' money - only "credit" or bookkeeping entries. Statements to the contrary are designed to mislead and confuse.

2) The State can use its sovereign power of eminent domain to take over and regulate the "credit" resource of the state, just as they can for air, water and roads.

3) A "sovereign" state must be made to act as a sovereign. It must be willing to back its decisions with all the force at its command.

This in substance was the talk I gave at the Farmers Rally in Nebraska.[7]

Who Was There

Pastor Everett Sileven - candidate for Governor, Ernie Chambers - black state senator and outspoken farm supporter, Larry Humphries - present at the Georgia protest and founder of Heritage Library, depository of Sen. Joseph McCarthy's papers, Carl Hollocheck and Earl Bailey - of the New Constitution Party, and Abe Austin - monetary reformist who next to Peter Cook is the oldest fighter for a sound monetary system in the country. Tommy Kersey - leader of the '78 and '79 motorcades to DC and another Georgia protester was sick and unable to attend. Jack Metcalf - state senator from Washington and fighter against the Federal Reserve - felt the heat from the same minority pressure group that is after the farmers and begged off.

7 The Nebraska Farm Convention was taped in its entirety by Mr. Paul Johnson, 100 Elm St., Red Oak, Iowa 51566. (712)-623-4138.

Observations On The Media

The media did an unsurpassed hatchet job on the farmers. It was something one really had to admire.

Upon landing in Omaha I was greeted with the announcement that according to the papers and TV the Farm Meeting was called off. Many of those planning to go canceled. After traveling 2000 miles I figured I might as well drive the 4 hours more to get to Kearney.

When there we found the announcement was false. The people of Kearney were looking forward to the meeting and the merchants were offering discounts to convention participants, but a pressure group called B'nai B'rith was on the radio and TV attacking the farmers meeting and demanding that Holiday Inn back out on their agreement to rent them their convention center.

The manager refused stating that nothing could be wrong with a group that had two senators and a preacher as speakers, but orders came down from headquarters and they were forced to comply. The next day's meeting was transferred to an unheated steel barn two miles out in the country. The weather was freezing. I saw no correction of the convention cancellation by the media but was told later that a few did. All this while the farmers were being painted as "extremists".

News Interview

That night there was a news conference. Batteries of cameras taped the meeting. All the questions were leading questions. The media didn't want to hear solutions designed to help the farmers. They wanted someone to say anything that could be twisted into another smear on the farm movement.

In this they failed, but that didn't stop them. Their evening TV news spots showed silent pictures of panel participants making statements. The speakers lips moved and the reporters used their own words to describe what the speaker said. Nothing that could possibly help the Nebraska farmers was allowed to get on the air.

Temper

The next day at the convention I lost my temper over the treatment these people were giving the farmers. I pointed at the television cameras and told the convention to vote AGAINST those the Media was for and FOR those the Media was against. This didn't get on the air either.

On the other hand, one has to remember if media newsmen don't present liberal bias they lose their jobs. However, this knowledge doesn't make them any less dangerous.

Recommendations In Dealing With The Media

My recommendation in dealing with the media is to give interviews only to those reporters and networks who have a "proven" record of being fair and objective and refuse all interviews that are not LIVE. Anything less is open invitation to being vilified and slandered. For instance. Based on my talk concerning Rhodesia the newspapers stated that the speaker from Virginia was "against blacks". That was almost the total extent of the media coverage. I wasn't talking about blacks - I was talking about Interposition. You get the picture. (During the years since this rally in 1986, I must say that I have never discovered an unbiased major media reporter. ALL have been left-wing liberals.)

The People

The opportunity was presented to talk to hundreds of farmers. Each conversation was interesting and so was the next one two feet away. What emerged in my mind was a hodge-podge. But the overall picture is crystal clear.

The Legal System

Almost all the farmers complain that lawyers won't take their cases. They say that if the lawyers do the banks won't give them business. Many present their own cases in court. When they say something wrong they get thrown out. The judges are hostile. They say its next to impossible to get a jury trial. It makes no difference what the law says - in the absence of a jury trial what the judge says is law.

Death Angel

There is fear. Not only the fear of foreclosure and being left with no job or trade with which to earn a living, but the fear of being killed if they protest too loudly. I was told the story about a Federal Marshal who has won the name "death angel". On 7 separate occasions he has been on the scene when a farmer has been killed.

TV Special

I met some of the farmers who were on the TV Special about America's farmers that stirred so much comment. They said that during the interviews the reporters were very friendly. But then they took a few sentences out of context and made them look like potential killers or fanatics. They said that they would never talk to reporters again.

Where The Action Is

This meeting was where the action was. However, there were no conservative newspaper or newsletter reporters present except yours truly. This graphically points out the inadequacy of Farmer communications. I have talked to several periodicals since then who said they wanted to be there but didn't know about it.

None of the big name TV evangelists were present either. It was either because they had not been invited; because they too are in debt and would make poor witnesses, or, they disapproved.

Kirks Killing

I talked to the man who examined Arthur Kirk's body and to Kirk's wife. This was first hand information. It is hard to escape the opinion that the farmer was shot down in cold blood. More on this at a later date.

Mortgages Sold

At long last the farmers have discovered that their mortgages were sold by local banks to the big banks in Chicago and New York. This is a revelation to them. The local banks are most times only collection agencies in exchange for a piece of the action. The big banks don't fool around.

Money Manipulation

The International Bankers met in NY and decided to stop the dollar's rise and force it lower. Many of the farmers are acutely aware of this. This sort of action drastically affects the price of land and commodities. It was these same bankers along with Federal and state authorities and local land grant colleges who encouraged the farmers to go into debt when land prices were $2000 and $3000 an acre. They said that if they didn't they were through.

Farmers didn't know they were supposed to be experts in international money manipulation. They ask why the bankers didn't tell them that they were going to force value of the dollar, land, and commodities up when land was at $600 an acre? The farmers could have bought at $600 and sold at $2000 an acre. A big difference!

They consider themselves victims of a manipulated international monetary con game that is supported by the politicians and newspapers. ... a game which was designed to ruin them from the beginning.

Enemies Of The Farmers

Besides the media and the courts, the only group actively attacking the farmers is an organization called B'nai B'rith.

Their representatives were instrumental in the cancellation of the Holiday Inn meeting place in Kearney and their representatives have harassed other farm meetings.

The farmers at the convention were asking why they were being attacked by this particular group and what their stake was in all this.

This question was answered when several members of the organization were identified by as being large bank stockholders. This B'nai B'rith is now rightly or wrongly labeled as a front for the international banks. It is believed that when the farmers bankrupt they get their share. If this is so it would account for their tremendous clout with the Media.

Conclusion

There were oilmen and small businessmen present at the meeting. Each group had almost the same grievances. The number of groups with grievances is growing.

There is a growing anger in these people at what they regard as unjust treatment by the media, by the courts, and by the politicians they regard as pawns of the banks.

They have not had their day in court and no one has heard their complaints. Being forced to stand in a cold barn for six hours did nothing to soften their resentments. America has had few political explosions before because the oppressed could always take their grievances before the nation. These people are being denied this opportunity. The pressure is building.

Next year much of America's farmland will be in the the hands of Wall Street. If corporate farming in America is as successful as collective farming is in the USSR, America may soon have monumental problems with its food supply.

UNFILTERED NEWS

The States of Jersey and Guernsey use their own money for business in addition to British notes. They print and spend their own debt free paper money and metal coins into circulation for public works and tax it out again. This dates back to 1816 through an agreement made with the British government. While British taxes skyrocket - Jersey and Guernsey pay almost nothing. Jersey and Guernseymen maintain that "only fools borrow money from banks when states can print it free."

The allies won WW II. Germany was required to pass inheritance taxes. Friedrich Karl Flick does not have the money to pay these taxes when he dies. He has been forced to sell his company. The international 'Deutsche Bank' bought Flick Company in November for $2 billion.

In January the company was instructed by its new owner to pay millions from its retained earnings to forced laborers of WW II. This is the new form of "tribute". In this manner almost all the large German companies have been taken over and milked by the international banks. After WW I they were forced to pay billions. Since WW II they have been forced to pay tens of billions.

If tribute is needed it should be paid by the owners of the large German companies, those who financed and got rich from both wars which killed nearly 100 million people - the international banks.

Chapter 138

NEBRASKA FARM RALLY - II & Kirk's Killing

Last month I told you I learned more about the Kirk killing.

The official story is that Kirk stormed out of his house cursing and shooting. The SWAT team shot him down in self-defense.

The unofficial story is that Kirk had been agitated and threatened. He made intemperate remarks that were recorded. These remarks became his death warrant.

The man Mrs. Kirk asked to examine her husband's body had been a corpsman in the service. He had lots of experience with gunshot wounds.

He commented that gunshot wounds that kill bleed very little. He observed that Kirk's body lay in the yard in a great pool of blood. It was his opinion that the only way a man could bleed that much through small bullet wounds was for him to be alive when placed on the ground. His belief is that he was shot and left to bleed to death.

Close examination revealed a gunshot wound under his right arm that penetrated only half an inch. Most modern bullets penetrate far deeper than that - unless they hit something first. The panel of the front door was missing - it had been taken by the SWAT team. The deduction was made that the bullet hit the door panel first before hitting Kirk. This would mean that Kirk was inside his own house when shot.

A great deal was made over this point. It seems that it is in violation of some Nebraska law to shoot a homeowner inside his house.

An Indian tracker, who accompanied the examining party, pointed to drag marks made by the toes of Kirk's shoes from the front porch to the place where his body lay. There was also the print of a man's knee in one of the flower beds on one side of the drag marks. The inference here was that one of the men who was dragging Kirk's body stumbled.

Rifle shells were found near the body. Ordinarily this would support the statement made that Kirk had come out of the house shooting. These shells, however, were found to the left rear of the body instead of the right rear as one would expect.

A paraffin test of Kirk's hand showed no residue of powder.

The conclusion of those in the room who had examined the scene was that the shallow bullet wound under Kirk's right arm and the missing panel in the door pointed to Kirk having been shot inside his own house with the bullet first passing through the door panel. The boot drag marks pointed to his having been carried outside. The large amount of blood pointed to his having been alive when deposited on the ground outside, and his having bled to death later.

The shells on the wrong side of the body smack of manufactured evidence, and the lack of powder on Kirk's hand casts suspicion on everything else that has to do with the case.

Mrs. Kirk's story

Mrs. Kirk told how her unarmed husband had driven his tractor unmolested over the country roads that day as was his wont. She had driven to town as usual. On her way home she saw a plane circling over the farm and shortly she ran into a roadblock and she and her daughter were taken into custody. No reason was given. She was prevented from calling home. None of her questions were answered. After several hours she was informed that her husband was dead.

Mrs. Deloris Kirk is a great little lady. You may want her to speak at a meeting and get her to tell you her story herself. She can be reached at P.O. Box 363, Cairo, Nebraska, 68824. (308) 485-4356.

Impressions

At the Kearney Farm Meeting one of the speakers asked "How many have money for seed for this season?" There were no hands raised.

Reporters

The reporters would take notes when Larry Humphrey was talking about the armed Georgia Farm Stand. When talking about solutions such as "Land Sabbath" and "no planting" their pencils were still and they looked bored.

Intimidation

State troopers passed through the parking lots taking down license numbers of those present in an attempt to intimidate those meeting there.

In Marcas, Iowa, another Farmers Meeting was locked out the week before after having paid a $50 deposit for a meeting hall.

A Preacher Testifies

Pastor Everett Sileven told me that when he was in court the judge told him that while in his court room he was not to "speak of the Constitution, the Bible, or your rights!"

Pastor's Association

Before the Kearney Farm Meeting the local pastors association met to try to prevent the farm meeting from taking place.

Those Who Showed Up

Those who did not get the news that the meeting had been called off came on anyway. There were 450 people there instead of the expected thousands. A good showing considering. The license plates were from Nebraska, Iowa, Oklahoma, Wyoming, Georgia, N. Dakota, S. Dakota, Wisconsin, etc. A good cross section.

Wayne Cryts

Wayne Cryts was there. He is the farmer who took his grain to an elevator for them to sell the day before the elevator declared bankruptcy. The courts held that such grain belongs to the creditors. Cryts got help from his friends and went and got his grain. This happened years ago and the case is still pending.

Soviet Banks In Our Midwest

There is talk that Soviets own many midwest banks. This was put down to "rumors". However, a release by the NY Times Service, in the "The News & Daily Advance", Lynchburg, Virginia, Feb. 16th reported that back in the mid 1970s the Soviet Union secretly tried to acquire three banks in northern California and an interest in a fourth. It is claimed that this plan did not violate any laws. Moscow Narodny Bank, which financed the attempt, insisted that it was strictly business.

It would be interesting to learn which of the two can dish out the harshest treatment to America's farmers - American usury banks or Soviet usury banks.

Mr. Paul Johnson, VHS/BETA VIDEO TAPES, 100 Elm St., Red Oak, Iowa 51566 (712) 623-4138 taped the whole convention. The video tapes are $25 each.

STAR WARS NO MATCH FOR RUSSIAN RUBLE

"If Russia begins to challenge the Star Wars program by escalating its arms build-up, its arms build-up will not drive the Soviet government into any internal public debt. The Gosbank, which is the de facto government of Russia, will finance the Russian arms expansion with Russian domestic rubles. These rubles will cost the government nothing more than some ruble-printing and accounting labor ...

"Because of the unique financing system of the Soviet government, Mr. Gorbachev was able to state: 'The budget of the (Soviet) state does not run a deficit.' (Reported on NBC News, October 1, 1985.)

"It is the Russian domestic ruble that is the greatest threat to our nation's prestige in the world. While the prestigious star wars' soft and hardware will be searching for the enemy missiles in the sky, the Russian domestic ruble will be financing and expanding their international trade by land and sea.

"As long as our public officials from the President down, do not recognize the parasitic forces residing in our bank money ... we will continue to be driven into ever-greater public and private indebtedness until our total economy is bankrupted. If we carry our concerns and fears far enough, we can see our bankrupt nation on the sheriff's auction block being purchased with debt free Russian rubles.

"Already the so-called under-developed debt-ridden nations are being wooed, enticed, seduced and won over by the Russian ruble through favorable indirect barter trade. The United States Government can not match this favorable trade with bankers' debt- generating dollars.

"It's time that we face the fact that we in the United States do not have a U. S. Treasury or U. S. Government money system. What we have is a commercial bankers' checkbook money system. It is run by the commercial bankers as a monopoly and governs our National Economy. ...

"The Gramm-Rudman Plan may work if imposed on a corporation but a 'national government in wisdom' should not be financed as are state, local governments and corporations. The Soviet government is not financed like a corporation, but is financed by an organic financing technique that should be adopted by every sovereign government that wants to survive and flourish without unemployment, debts and deficits, and wants to liberate itself out of the economic convulsions caused by the bankers, via the international currency exchange rates."[8]

BOTHA Of S. AFRICA

"Though Mr. Botha warns strongly: 'Don't speak to communists and those who support violence,' he himself is an old hand at it. ...

"The most glaring example is his Accord with communist Mozambique ... P. W. Botha's government prefers the term 'Marxist' which is increasingly replacing the term 'Communist." ...

"Mr. Botha's inordinate equivocation in the matter of the talks with the ANC ... took us back to 1974. ... Mr. Botha, then Minister of Defense, denounced Frelimo in Mozambique as 'communists, murderers and rapists,' and then shortly afterwards, when 'independence' was handed on a platter to communist Frelimo in Mozambique by the Portuguese Government, warned strongly that no Portuguese or South Africans would be allowed to form up on South African soil, thereby preventing them from helping the beleaguered and defenseless Whites in Mozambique.

8 Peter Cook, The Treasury Monetarist, P. O. Box 86, Wickliffe, OH 44092. (Soviets use finance for war. What they appear to do and what they do may be at variance.)

"After that came the forcing of the Rhodesian Government by the S. A. Government, in which Mr. Botha played a prominent part, to release detained communist ANC leaders from detention, and then to invite them to participate in a conference on the constitutional future of Rhodesia.

"Then came the disgraceful SA campaign in which Mr. Botha ... pressured Rhodesians and their government into accepting black majority rule ... by the likes of the Sitholes, Nkomoss, Mugabes and the other communist-inoculated black ANC leaders.

"This is the one and the same Mr. P. W. Botha who ... has opened wide the floodgates of black unrest and violence throughout the country, and for which our valiant but unfortunate Police and Defense Forces have to bear the full brunt. ...

"Mr. Botha's record of collaboration ... first Mozambique, then Angola, Rhodesia, South West Africa, and now South Africa - speaks for itself."[9] SCRIP: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I had never heard about municipalities issuing scrip in the '30s as you mentioned in your book. However, in our town the largest grocer had a packing plant. He bought cattle, hogs, eggs or most anything the farmers had to sell. When money got tight they issued their own scrip. The farmers could purchase most anything they wanted in town. They could spend it at the repair shop, barber shop, etc., because everyone knew they could buy groceries with that scrip.

LETTERS

I don't know but feel sure it was never used to pay taxes. Nevertheless that issue of scrip spared the people of my town hardship that they otherwise would have suffered. g. W. - Texas

MONEY: Dear Mr. Hoskins: You commented that Jack Kennedy issued treasury money. I thought Lincoln was alone with this distinction." B.P. - virginia

RKH: I have a $2 U.S. Note Series 1963. This is a U.S. money issue. It is not a Federal Reserve Note. Lincoln issued money similar to this and was shot. Kennedy did the same and he too was shot.

AMENDMENT: "Dear Richard: In one of your newsletters, you stated that the 16th Amendment was never ratifies. I believe it wa ratifies Feb 15, 1913." H.D. - Iowa

RKH: My understanding is that the Atty Gen. of the U.S. declared the 16th Amendment ratified even though only two of the required number of states had actually done so.

COLLEGE: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: If I had not borrowed money to finance the growth of this college it would not exist today. It's paid for. Real wisdom is knowing when to get in and out again." J.S. - Oregon RKH: I don't make the rules. You could have bought your college through a partnership with buyback agreements. You are one of the ones who swam into the usury net, ate your fill, and swam out again. The net is still there. If it missed you, it will get your children. "All men are right in their own eyes. If all men are right in their own eyes - where lies truth? It lies with the One who makes the rules.

LAND REST: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Three years ago I planted my wheat as usual. For various reasons I did not harvest it. Never before has my land produced more than 30 bushels. After resting for one year it produced 60 bushels. Maybe my case is unusual, but I believe there is something to this 'land Sabbath' the Georgia farmers are talking about."

TAXES: "Dear Dick: Our city property tax collector says that the reason it is so easy to collect taxes is that few people own their own homes. Almost all real estate taxes in this town are paid by mortgage companies - the true owners." H. W. - Washington

CLOSING THE CIRCLE

It is a documented fact that the Communist Revolution in Russia was financed by the New York banks.[10]

It is also a fact that except for the captive nations of Eastern Europe turned over to the Soviets by the US and her allies at the end of WW II, the Soviet Union has used force to invade and conquer only one free and independent country - Afghanistan.

In two more instances the USSR has used force to re-conquer breakaway countries already under her heel - and which were given to her by the US - Hungary and Czechoslovakia.

10 Wall Street & The Bolshevik Revolution, Antony G. Sutton, Arlington House, New Rochelle, NY. 1974.

This shows amazing restraint by the nation that has somehow, without really trying, managed to pull over half the world into the maw of communism.

By way of contrast, England in the last century would have fought several wars, invaded and annexed a half dozen nations in the same time frame.

Their amazing success is not due as much to their own inept and bungling efforts as it is to the efforts of the rulers of the United States to push these same unfortunate nations into the red net.

US Complicity

We are logical beings. If we have facts we can reason. We can put 2 and 2 together.

It was the United States that sent Trotsky and his revolutionists to the USSR and financed them. Thus, the US was instrumental in the creation of the USSR. It was the United States that insisted that Eastern Europe be turned over to the USSR at the end of WW II.

It was the United States that cut off aid to Chiang Kai-shek and stood back and allowed the communists to conquer China. It was the US that demanded reform in Cuba which put Castro's communists in power. It was the US that sabotaged the reconquest effort at the Bay of Pigs and allowed the Cuban anti-communists to be slaughtered.

It was the United States government that canned Gen. MacArthur when he tried to win the Korean War, and it was the US rulers who ordered the US Army to evacuate North Korea so that it could be turned over to communism. It was the US government that helped in the assassination of the ruler of Vietnam and then turned that unfortunate nation over to communism and its subsequent bloodbath.

It is the US government that has consistently refused to help any of the resistance elements free their nations from the communists who have taken them over.

It was the US that insisted that Europeans withdraw and turn their African colonies one at a time over to communist rule. It is the US that now insists that South Korea and South Africa "reform" knowing that in those nations the only reform movement is communist.

Two More Countries Lost Last Month

The US media is now loudly rejoicing that only this last month two more nations have taken the fatal step. Baby Doc's anti- communist nation of Jamaica is being "reformed" and the anti- communist nation of the Philippines is being "reformed". This last named country is the one referred to when Mr. Reagan said in his 1984 campaign that the "alternative" to Marcos was "a large communist movement to take over the Philippines".

It is the US government that now casts its benign eye on the reds who wish to topple Pakistan and South Korea into the red net. It will be the US government that will do its all to encourage these friendly nations to also "reform" - to take the reds into their governments - or turn their governments over to them.

Taxes

At the very same time the government of the United States speaks harshly against "Soviet aggression" it is doing everything in its power to promote world communism. How can it be that the native people of America can be violently anti-communist, as they are, and their government do the things that are not in the citizens' best interests?

The answer is simply - taxes!

In America's past, taxes were levied on foreign goods shipped into the US. There were also taxes on toll roads and bridges to make the people pay for the service they used. There was a sales tax.

The idea of a comprehensive income tax (or tribute) was considered unacceptable because the Christian religion frowns on such taxes;

> "Of whom do the kings of the earth take custom or tribute? of their own children, or of strangers? Peter saith unto him, Of strangers." (Gr: allotrios - foreign, not akin.) Math. 17:25-26

To take comprehensive income taxes or "tribute" from a people was to proclaim that the people were not the children of those ruling them.

Before the present income tax came into being the US government developed the habit of borrowing money from the international bankers instead of printing and spending it into existence. This triggered the law;

> The borrower is servant (slave) to the lender. Prov. 22:7

In obedience to the above law our government representatives became slaves to the international banks that insisted that an income tax law be passed. It was. This tax was soon followed by an inheritance tax.

This inheritance tax forced Americans who had accumulated any sort of sizable estate to set up "trusts" to avoid the taxes.

Bank trust departments advertised themselves as the ones best equipped to handle these "complicated" trusts.

Trust Control

The largest part of most sizable estates is made up of corporate stock. The beneficiaries of the trusts receive the income from these stocks. The banks receive only a small fee for the management of these trusts.

But the most unpublicized piece of information in the nation is that bank trust departments have the right to vote this stock.[11]

To gain a full understanding of the power that this gives the banks it must be realized that 45% of all corporate stock is held in trust at banks. A full thirty-five percent is held in New York banks.

In most cases only 10% is necessary for voting control. 45% voting power gives a 4 times overkill and allows the international banks almost absolute power over American corporations.

It also gives them absolute power over colleges and foundations which are dependent on these corporations for contributions. This answers the question so often asked why there are no "conservatives" in either corporate leadership or in colleges. "He who pays the piper calls the tune" and the tune is socialism (as it is called in this country) or communism (as we call it in other nations.)

11 Disclosure of Corporate Ownership, prepared by Subcommittees on intergovernmental relations and budgeting, management, and expenditures of the Committee on Government Operations US Senate. Dec 27, 1973. US Govt Print Office, 1973, Washington, DC 20402.

Electing Men To Government

As with all other businesses, the American media (radio, TV, newspapers, magazines, etc.) has been converted into stock companies to avoid taxes. A large part of this stock is held in trust in American banks. This stock is voted by the banks. This gives the banks control of the media without having to own a single share of stock.

The result is that the only items given exposure by the media are those things and persons approved by the banks who vote the media stock.

It is extremely important that Americans realize this. The media has the power to ignore or publicize - to build up or pull down.

A George Washington or Thomas Jefferson would go unrecognized if the media gave them no exposure. No one would ever hear of them.

On the contrary, a Benedict Arnold can be, and often is, given hours of media exposure. His name becomes a household word. He is made to appear as grand and as noble as Robert E. Lee. When he is elected to office we are given the vision of a noble patriot who makes blunders because of bad advice.

In actual fact, a scheming traitor may have been placed in an important strategic position to determine the future of our nation. Rest assured, he will do what he was put in office to do. The record of surrender, retreat, blunder, and sellouts by the government of the United States confirms this. "In government nothing happens by accident. All things are made to happen".

The Grand Plan

The world conquest by communism is developing exactly according to Lenin's plan.

What was Lenin's plan? It was to gradually take over the countries surrounding the United States. When this was done the United States would fall like overripe fruit.

Our leaders have borrowed - they are "slaves" to the lender. This gave "strangers" control of our money and banking.

These slaves further obey their masters and violate The Law by taxing their own people for these masters. This gives their masters additional control of business and media.

These masters are now in positions where they supervise the management of our media, corporations and government. They direct the US government. They instruct our government to aid the communist takeover of the "free world" and our government complies. It will soon be America's turn.

Summary

Our enemies make little mistakes all the time. In time they will make a big one. They will not do to us as they have done to the rest of the world. We have God's promise on this.

For those who have no plans, plans should be made. The survival preparations made by many ten years ago may be a good place to start. In so far as possible be prepared for eventualities that may range from famine to insurrection and overt government tyranny. Beware the cities. They are overflowing with hireling armies of our enemies. They are prone to violence and have been taught to hate us.

Each of us must live a day at a time. Put business affairs in order. Our investments must be prudent. The stock market rises - follow it. The market falls - T-bills or cash.

Remove yourselves from slavery by being debt free.

Study. Knowledge is power. The power of modern day Babylon that rules the world is frightful. The one thing greater is God's Law.

The Scriptures say that Babylon will fall and burn. It will. God speed the day!

ECONOMICS GEORGIA STYLE

I telephoned Tommy Kersey, one of the Georgia farm leaders. I asked him how the meetings went with the Governor of Georgia and with the Mayor of Atlanta when his committee asked them to set up interest free banks to help the farmers.

Tommy Kersey said that Governor Joe Frank Harris of Georgia did not offer the farmers any help at all. He did not appear to want to hear anything the farmers had to say.

Instead, he bragged that the state of Georgia was going to issue tax free bonds so that MASTOC, an international dairy corporation headquartered in Ireland, could set up 20,000 cow dairies in Georgia just as they have done in Saudi Arabia and other lands.

This was a slap in the face to the visiting farmers. At the very time American dairies are plagued with over-production, and thousands of Georgia farmers are being forced from their land because of plunging prices and overproduction, this governor is working to bring in additional foreign competition at tax-payers' expense.

It appears that the Establishment has the Governorship of Georgia in its pocket, and that the leadership of the state is headed for a confrontation with its own citizens.

After explaining the advantages of a debt free and interest free "Arab type" banking system to Andy Young, the black mayor of Atlanta, Mr. Young considered for a while and replied with a profound "We'll see". The farmers are still waiting for further action.

Tommy Kersey said that the ranks of the dispossessed are now growing weekly. He visited a friend who was an active, outgoing leader just a year ago. Since then the banks have taken his machinery. His phone has been disconnected. He has a small wood stove for heat, a few chickens, and a cow. There is no money for spring planting, no machinery to work the land, and no money for anything else. Tommy says there are thousands like this and the crowd of distressed is growing. The big increase is from people in other fields.

The last time we had government officials who refused to listen to the grievances of the citizens it caused a revolution.

JOSEPH PAUL FRANKLIN

The New York Times ran a story on February 9, 1986 which was blacked out in most of the rest of the nation.

A Joseph Paul Franklin is being held in Madison, Wisconsin "for the 1977 slaying of an interracial couple in a shopping mall parking lot ..."

"He has also been named as a suspect in the slaying of interracial couples in "Indianapolis, Oklahoma City, Cincinnati, Johnstown, Pa, Doraville, Ga. and Tomah, Wis. ...

"District Attorney Harold Harlowe of Dane County said he had decided to prosecute Mr. Franklin ... to prevent the possibility of his ever being released ...

"Mr. Franklin used a racial epithet in saying, 'I feel it is my duty as a servant of God ...'"

It would be interesting to learn just how many cases of interracial slayings the media is covering up. The above list may be partial. It is impressive as it is.

When I was growing up interracial marriages in the United States were so rare that they made front page headlines. It was absolutely unthinkable by most. The few who would were afraid to.

The slayers who commit these acts were feared by those who violated the taboo. They were faceless. They neither raped nor stole and they pointed to the Bible for the justification of their acts:

> "And the people began to commit whoredom with the daughters of Moab ... one of the children of Israel came and brought ... a Midianitish woman ... when Phinehas ... saw it, he rose up from among the congregation and took a javelin in his hand and he went after the man of Israel into the tent, and thrust both of them through ... and the Lord spake ... saying, Phinehas, the son of Aaron the priest, hath turned my wrath away from the children of Israel ... that I consumed not the children of Israel ... Behold, I give unto him my covenant of peace ... and his seed after him, even the covenant of an everlasting priesthood; because he was zealous for his God, and made atonement for the children of Israel." Numbers 25:1-13.

There may be interracial couples who will die in the future because the media did not report that other interracial couples died yesterday. This is not responsible reporting. It is quite unrealistic to suppose that Mr. Joseph Paul Franklin is the only one of his kind.

Chapter 140

ISLAM'S HOLY WAR

Islamic Claims

The Muslims say they have a grievance against America. They say that every Arab man woman and child that is killed is killed with American made planes, bombs, rockets, bullets, tanks, shells, or other American manufactured equipment of war. Without American war equipment the invasions of Egypt, Jordan, Syria, and Lebanon would not have been possible.

They say that refugee camps full of Arab women and children fleeing the terror in Palestine have been savagely attacked with American made carpet bombs, delivered by American made planes, flown by American trained pilots. Those who fly these planes, drive the tanks, and fire the guns, are paid with American aid. The Muslims say American intervention has cost them tens of thousands of Islamic lives.

Muslim Requests

Many times they have asked that when American war equipment is given to a country, and that country uses that war equipment against its neighbors, that American aid to the offending country be stopped.

America has ignored these requests. The Islamic world is unhappy with what they say is "America's irresponsibility".

The Islamic Mind

Islamic peoples don't look at things the way Western Christians do. They consider Muslims everywhere as belonging to one great nation - Islam.

This vast nation is broken up into smaller political subdivisions of relative unimportance. They have leaders that come and go.

The only important thing to the Moslem mind is the one vast nation of almost one billion people - ISLAM. To them, this single nation encompasses all that is important and eternal.

The rest of the world really does not exist to most Muslims. This is hard for us to imagine, but it is a fact. They know little and care less about the goings on beyond the borders of their own "Islam".

Even among the educated, their lack of knowledge of geography, nations, politics and peoples outside their lands is shocking. They really don't care!

The rest of the world assumes shape as it forcibly intrudes itself on the people of Islam with its music, dress, goods, ships, and more recently - bombs, machine guns, and napalm. The last time something attracted this much notice from them was the Crusades.

The Dual World

To Muslims the familiar world of Islam is the "zone of peace". In the "zone of peace" the laws of the Koran are respected. Everyone, even "infidels", goes his way with only the usual restrictions as laid down by their law.

Lands outside Islam are considered dark and evil. This is the "zone of war". These infidel lands are foreboding because they have not had the benefit of Islamic Law and the laws of Islam are not enforced.

The Green Flag

The Koran commands and commends the death of infidels. If the "green flag" has been raised, a "believer", when entering this "zone of war", may do whatever Allah leads him to do to its inhabitants. Historically, this has resulted in unspeakable acts of mutilation and sacrilege which Western histories relate in horrible detail. Today they attempt to enforce their will and defend their beliefs with machine guns and bombs.

In keeping with the Moslem concept of the two zones of peace and war, there are two kinds of wars.

There is the simple war between "brothers" such as is now being fought between Iraq and Iran, and between the PLO and the Jewish Israeli nation. (There are many Jews and PLO Arabs who were neighbors and friends for years in Palestine. Many still are.)

In these wars terrible things happen as in all wars, but prisoners are taken, and conventions recognized. There is always a great deal of verbal "bombast", but there are rules which are followed.

The "holy war" such as was fought with the Crusaders, and later with Russia for hundreds of years, is different. In "Holy Wars" there are seldom "rules" or prisoners. At all times and in every encounter the participants "go for broke". Many people die in "Holy Wars". Few languish in prison camps. There are few prisoners.

Holy War

The "Holy War" is proclaimed by the exhibition of a green flag or a green scarf.

Westerners can sit safely at home in their easy chairs and view a mob of screaming Libyans on TV. In that mob may be two or three who have green scarfs or who wave green flags.

Observe these people carefully. They have separated themselves from their companions. Each has decided in his capacity as a follower of Islam that he will henceforth recognize the "zone of war" and will act accordingly, for the glory and protection of "Islam".

America's Great Need

There is a great need in the West. The Muslims have little sympathy with it. It is the need of the West's banking system to have vast quantities of money borrowed into existence to avoid another 1929, or once in a 1929 to get out again.

According to Keynesian economics there are only three ways to efficiently put money into circulation in a usury society:

1. Tax cuts.
2. Monument building. (Roads, defense, government buildings, bridges, etc.)
3. War.

Keynesian economists are agreed that the last named method is considered best. It is the most used method.

Objections to borrowing money are overcome by patriotic fervor. If properly managed a war can insure "good times" for many many years. The Vietnam War is the textbook example used to show what a properly run war can do for the economy back home.

To have the next war's opponents ready when the economic need for them arises, care is taken to condition them in advance. The following is case in point.

America's Opponents

On December 19, 1980, PIA came out with issue number #65 entitled "Arab Oil / South African Gold or 1929". The entire issue presented the need for a future war and showed why the United States would have to go to war with either the Arab nations and/or South Africa. As events unfold it appears that both have been chosen for reasons that were valid and obvious back in 1980.

There is really nothing personal about the choice of Arabs and South Africans as America's future opponents. It just so happens that there aren't many other worthwhile opponents left.

The Usury System's continuing need for war to force expansion of the money supply explains the continued harassment of the Arabs and South Africans.

The thing that the war planners are counting on is that neither the Arabs nor the South Africans will submit and become slaves. Therefore, it is only a matter of time before the monetary system of the West gets the war that it so desperately needs.

Fallout

The international banking system is counting on America's advanced military technology to protect it while fighting limited wars. In the Korean and Vietnam Wars there was never a chance that the opponents could strike a telling blow against America's homeland.

These next planned wars against third rate nations are envisioned as being the same sort of long drawn out humdrum affairs. There will be the usual minor surprises planned, spiced with a few atrocities which are needed to keep public ratings up.

Conclusion

It is not by accident that munitions are being furnished to enemies of the Muslims.

It is not by accident that American armed forces are placed in vulnerable places, making targets easily available to "green flag" Muslims who have lost wives and children to American munitions.

It is not by accident that America's sophisticated bombing equipment managed to hit residential areas of Arab cities killing women and children.

It is not by accident that an air strike was made against Khadafy's home. The whole world knew that all of the Khadafy family lived there. The only accident is that only one child was killed. To the Arab world this killing symbolized America's intent more than anything else that could have been done. This is what it was supposed to do.

America will get the war its banking system so desperately needs. Both the Arabs and the South Africans will fight.

However, matters may take a different turn for any one of the following three reasons.

1. Our government in Washington, under direction of Wall Street lenders ("The borrower is servant to the lender"), has reduced America's industry so that at present 25% of America's steel is being imported, 30% of its autos, 80% of its electronics, 60% of its textiles, 50% of its beef, 50% of its dairy products, etc.

In a national emergency we may assume that America may be cut off from the rest of the world and shortages may result. These shortages will be of a critical nature that could prove fatal.

At the present time America cannot produce a tank, warship, or plane without imported parts. These parts may not be available if the coming war does not go as planned. America may not be able to rearm herself in a crisis.

2. Add to these - "backpackable" atomic bombs (65 pounds) carried by people who have chosen to die for their cause, and things take on a different complexion.

3. There may be more than Muslims and S. Africans that America will have to fight. In addition to the billion Muslims that America's rulers have antagonized, there is another billion Chinese who also hate us. This represents more than two thirds of the world's population.

Add to this a USSR armed to the teeth just waiting for an opportunity, and you have all the components for a catastrophe.

The trigger to all these catastrophic possibilities could most definitely be touched off if the coming war in the Near East and South Africa is planned not to go as planned. In other words - if someone wished to ruin this nation - now would be the chance.

It may be that America's incredible string of blunders in world affairs has not been accidental at all.

It may be that the REAL REASON for these blunders has been to weaken the nation.

It may be that the REAL OBJECTIVE the International Bankers have worked for all along is to unite and lead the billions of the world in one massive tidal wave of human flesh against America - to destroy it!

The coming war with the Middle East and South Africa will certainly present that opportunity. If so:

God Bless America!

DEVALUATION: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I planned to retire in Mexico and had sent my money there. Mexico devalued 50%. I lost half my money. What is to keep that from happening here? M.D. _ Pennsylvania

RKH: For practical purposes, there is only one currency in the world - the dollar. Mexico or almost anyone else can devalue any time they like and get away with it. If the US devalues, other countries can do the same the next day. We would gain little.

"The bankers, however, can manipulate the value of the dollar down. How low no one knows. This could amount to the same sort of devaluation you are speaking of.

POWER: Dear Mr. Hoskins: One of the basics of our civilization has been 'the balance of power'. Your projections do not include this. What do you see that makes you think that this safeguard has been scrapped?" B.R. - Florida

The master's hand has been revealed. Poll after poll has shown the wishes of the American people in regard to immigration, forced integration of schools, mandatory death penalty for rape and premeditated murder, and continued trade and build-up of communist nations. The American people may as well not have spoken.

We have watched the media of America turn violently against Nationalist China, S. Vietnam, S. Korea, S. Africa, the southern United States, Germany, the Arab Mid-East, etc. There is never two sides to any question. There is only one side - the master's side.

Regularly the media raises the same charges against communism. Obediently congress votes to borrow hundreds of billions from the international banks for a defense which becomes obsolete in 5 years, and does not include bomb shelters for its citizens or anti-missile weapons to protect it's cities.

Through it all the American government is careful not to do anything to damage the communist cause - except to beat the communists to death with talk. They do the same to us. Talk is cheap and never hurt anyone.

World-wide currencies are manipulated up or down in orchestration - ruining some nations and benefiting others.

Nations world-wide "spontaneously" come together against enemies "dangerous to world peace" such as little Rhodesia and S. Africa. Oppressive offenders against human rights such as the Soviet Union and Red China are verbally chastised and given factories, trade agreements, and the latest electronics.

Our President meets with leaders of anti-communist resistance movements. These leaders are publicly praised and sent on their way with nothing but "talk" with which to fight the communists.

"Balance of power?" There is no balance of power. The conquest of America has been accomplished without a shot being fired! There can be no "balance of power". The East and the West serve the same master.

CONFEDERATE SCRIP

"If I had the power I would arm ... every Negro in the South, and every devil in Hell, clothe them in the uniform of the Federal Army and turn them loose on the Rebels of the South and exterminate every man, woman and child south of Mason and Dixon's Line. I would like to see Negro troops, under the command of (U. S. General Benjamin F.) Butler, crowd every Rebel into the Gulf of Mexico and drown them ..." Rev. William G. Brownlow. Occupation Governor of Tennessee.[12]

There are mountains of books, pamphlets, tracts, and newspapers full of this sort of venom. Today's history books want their readers to forget that this was standard fare for the northern readers during and after the War Between The States. This conditioning brought about a hatred of the South that people today can scarcely comprehend.

This unending hate has concealed the real issues that brought on the conflict. Only now is the cover being gradually lifted to reveal the horror of this disgraceful period in America's history and the reason behind it.

After the war the rape of a white woman or the arson of a southern dwelling by blacks was a matter of complete indifference or even rejoicing by the establishment's controlled press.

Even today, more than 100 years after the war, it is only on rare occasions that Southerners are allowed to play their national anthem or display their old battle flag at public gatherings.

Our Sin

What did the South do that earned this hatred?

Was it slavery? No. President Lincoln owned slaves through his wife as he penned the words of the Emancipation Proclamation. When freed, formerly well cared for and well fed slaves were allowed to starve by their emancipators.

What WAS it then?

The Scenario

The South was threatened by war. Powerful fleets threatened her harbors and commerce. Giant invasion armies were poised on her borders.

She had no ships, no armies, no uniforms, no guns, no supplies, and no way to pay for these things that were desperately needed.

Overnight a monetary system was brought into existence. It was a "tally" system based on "scrip".

"Scrip" of any kind is never welcome beyond the borders of the issuing country. A mountain of cotton and a small supply of Southern gold was exchanged for war material obtained from Europe.

When this trade was stopped, high interest European loans were sought. The collateral for these loans has never been revealed in print. Rumor has it that by treaty the North guaranteed existing Southern loans if England and France refrained from selling the South any more war material.

A great deal of time and money had been spent by the bankers in instigating the war against the South.[13] The North immediately borrowed hundreds of millions from the international bankers to prosecute the war. The wealth of the nation started to roll into their coffers. There was joy in Babylon.

Southern Financing

The South's turn came to finance her share of the war. It was then that the international bankers received a nasty shock. The South refused. They refused to borrow any more money than they could help.

Instead, the South did as they had done one hundred years earlier in the Revolution. They printed their own currency and spent it into circulation.

It didn't cost a dime in interest and the scrip was freely accepted by everyone.

The flabbergasted bankers were left with their coffers only half full. With this "worthless paper" The Confederacy established arsenals, built shipyards, built and equipped iron clad rams and commerce raiders, cast thousands of cannon, armed and equipped and fielded the finest armies ever seen on the North American continent. All this was done almost completely without paying interest.

The South was so successful that Mr. Lincoln paid them the highest compliment possible. He copied what they were doing. He, himself, printed millions of dollars of "greenbacks" which brought about howls of anguish and protests from Northern bankers.

SCRIP was the sin of the South. The people who excluded usury money and issued scrip once might do it again. They are a permanent danger and are treated as the permanent enemy.[14]

The Threat

The Confederacy could not be allowed to win her war for independence. If she did the days of the international bankers would be numbered.

In England the establishment press raised cries of consternation at the "revolutionary" monetary system practiced in America. It was proclaimed that if it were allowed to continue unchecked that in time it would make the existing monetary system obsolete in Europe.

After having made such a to-do of being willing to trade with both sides, and in spite of the people of both France and England overwhelmingly being in favor of the Southern Confederacy, the governments of England and France were forced to turn against the South and its "unconventional" monetary system.

The "slavery issue" was raised late in the war to give a talking point for the change of plans. But that is all it was - a talking point. The question of money was carefully ignored.

The Old Trunk

Many readers have written expressing interest in Confederate "scrip". To satisfy this interest I went to the attic and opened the old trunk. In it I found two envelopes. In the first was a thick stack of Confederate "scrip" and a few bank notes. In the second envelope were many thousands of dollars worth of war bonds made out to my great-grandfather or to his business. These old bills and bonds were left to me and my boys and their boys.

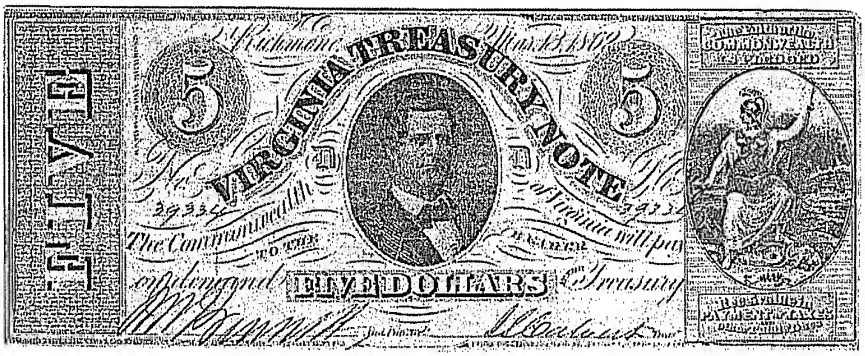
Virginia State Scrip

Modern historians refer to the "Confederacy" as a nation. They are mistaken. The Confederacy was a collection of nations, each represented by the state making up the confederation.

Virginia, the oldest and most powerful, was threatened by invasion. She did not have time to wait. She had to protect herself. Virginia raised, equipped, fed, and fielded her own armies and built her navy long before there was a Confederate Army and Navy. Virginia printed and issued Treasury Notes to pay for these heavy expenditures.

The money envelope was confirmation of the rule that people keep the valuable and pass on the less valuable. A large part of the money was in Virginia currency.

The Virginia scrip in the envelope was made up of $1s, $5s, and $100s. Below is an example of the the $5 issue.



The engraving on all the Virginia Notes is good and done only on one side. Most were issued in early 1862 and bear the notation "Receivable in Payment of Taxes and other Public Dues". The serial number of the note above is 39334, is entered in red ink and signed in two places by two individuals.

The handwritten signatures were to protect against counterfeiting. In most cases they did. Much counterfeit money of the period in existence today did not pass at the time. It was distributed as souvenirs after the war.

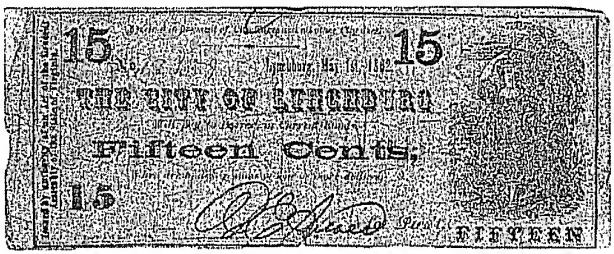
Other states that comprised The Confederacy also issued their own scrip. However, my great-grandfather passed their scrip on as fast as he received it. He retained only a few out-of-state pieces of small denomination.

One is a 10¢ North Carolina paper piece. It too is hand signed, numbered 3193 in ink, and contains the notation "Receivable in payment of all Public Dues." My great- grandfather accepted it in Virginia.

Virginia County Scrip

Most Virginians were farmers. They looked to their own county - or to the nearest town where they sold their tobacco. The counties and towns issued their own scrip to carry on trade and buy munitions for local defense.

The City of Lynchburg has a 15¢ piece with serial number and signature dated May 1st, 1862. There are several $2 dollar bills from the Corporation of Alexandria, D. C. dated 1846. I have numerous examples of county money.



Lynchburg Scrip

The City Of Lynchburg will pay the bearer of this scrip 15¢ in current funds (whatever that may be). This scrip was printed by the City of Lynchburg and spent into circulation as pay for its employees. It was good for payment for all tariffs and dues. Municipal or private scrip is entirely different from Bank Notes.

Most of the county samples are well worn from constant usage and are discolored by age. This prevents them from being copied well enough to be included here.

Corporate Scrip

There are also numerous examples of Virginia city scrip. It is interesting that Virginians were using City of Alexandria money which was 20 years old at the time of the War.

Bank Notes

There are also a few bank notes present. A $1 note issued by the Monticello Bank of Charlottesville dated May 1, 1861, a $1 Commonwealth Bank of Richmond dated May 1, 1861. These would compare with our Federal Reserve Notes of

Bank Note

Bank Notes are borrowed into exlstence when one mortgages property. If $10 is borrowed into existence and it has been agreed to repay $11 - more Bank Notes must be repaid than have been borrowed into existence. There is always a Bank Note shortage. Thus, it is impossible for many borrowers to repay their bank loans. When they can't pay, the bank is able to take over the mortaged property for the benefit of the bank stockholders.

today. They were soon superseded by government issue.

The presence of only two notes indicates what my great-grandfather thought of "bank notes". Like others, he tended to pass on the worthless and keep the valuable.

Confederate Scrip

The issue of Confederate Scrip is a replay of the Virginia issue. It was issued in all denominations and printed on both sides. There is even a paper 50¢.

The most interesting, in my opinion, is a blunder in issuing one of the $100 pieces. It appears to be like the other issues but isn't. The trunk is full of them. The reason is that these strange scrip issues were collected and presented for payment bccause they paid 2¢c a day

Since these bills paid 2¢ a day it was a great deal of bother to figure how much $100 was worth on any given day. Then, too, they were worth more the longer one held them. As a consequence, these interest drawing bills were kept and other money was passed along. With everyone hoarding these bills a scrip shortage developed. This issue was a mistake and was not repeated. A standard $100 bill soon made its appearance so a circulating currency would be available with which to trade. The $50, $20 and $10 examples on the opposie page are typical, as are the $1.00 and 50¢ examples below.

Confederate Bonds

There was a need to take surplus currency out of circulation to keep inflation low. This was done by offering Confederate war bonds to holders of surplus cash.

On the opposite page is one of the 6% Confederate war bonds owned by Granville J. Kelly, my great grandfather. It is in the denomination of $50,000 dated February 1864.

Much is made over the fact that gold traded at more than $100 an oz. in the South in 1864. Little is made of the fact that it traded at $287 an oz. in New York that same year.

The sale of war bonds did a remarkable job of keeping inflation low in the South during all but the final stages of the war.

Placing The Chains

Many of the individual soldiers of the Union practiced the greatest kindness and humanitarian care in their dealings with the civilians of the South. I have numerous stories which substantiate this fact. To them the South owes a debt.

The fact remains that the armies of the Union were unrestricted in their everyday practice of looting, arson, rape, and murder against the civilian population of the South.[15]

> "Thou shalt not avenge, nor bear any grudge against the children of thy people." Lev 19:18. "Thou shalt neither vex a stranger, (Heb: gêr - racial kinsmen) nor oppress him.") Ex 22:21. "One law shall be to him that is home born, and unto the stranger (Heb: gêr) that sojourneth among you." Ex 12:49.

Every time a house, barn, mill, town, or city was burned to the ground it created a demand for money for reconstruction. One is forced to conclude that the vandalism of the Union Army was planned and deliberate.

As additional evidence, when the South was conquered, her state scrip was outlawed. The only money permitted had to be borrowed from usury banks. These were conveniently established in the South in 1865 by men from the Northern money centers. What follows next is the most damning evidence of all.

The Rape Of The South

To force the South into debt southern whites were deprived of the vote. Blacks were then given the vote and allowed to rule over the whites as judges, police, congressmen, senators, and state legislators, etc.[16] This rule was backed by thousands of Union bayonets. Protesters could be punished by gang beatings or death. Public protests stopped.

The blacks were carefully instructed how to pass laws and which laws to pass. These laws created impossible debts - all of which had to be paid with usury money borrowed from the usury banking system.

Scrip money, which could have removed the burden of the debt, was forbidden.

Conclusion

In spite of the prohibition against scrip, 65 years after The War, in the 1930s, the extreme suffering brought about by the same usury system caused states, and hundreds of their counties, cities, and corporations to once again issue scrip nationwide. Once again it worked.

If history repeats for the fourth time, the usury demand of $22 in IOUs coming due worldwide for each $1 in the M1 money supply will cause money to again disappear. Once more SCRIP will be needed to prevent starvation.

You readers are knowledgeable. Be prepared to share your knowledge to help your town, county, city or state jump into the money vacuum with "SCRIP".

This next time - it must be made permanent!

Chapter 143

BIRTH RATES

The media pontificates over the dangers of volatile stock markets, the debt bomb, Soviet nuclear threat, and weather changes. These are very real threats.

However, there is one threat greater than all these threats combined. This threat, in the author's opinion, will soon determine every reader's lifestyle and investment posture. It will even bring into question his "right to live" in the days ahead.

The US News & World Report ran an article on comparative birth rates.

According to this article whites are increasing at the rate of .6 per 100. This is a bit more than 1/2 of 1% per year. Blacks are increasing at the rate of 1 1/2%, orientals 2%, those of Mexican descent 4%, and Mexican immigrants 4 1/2%.

To get an idea of what these figures would do to the racial composition of the United States in 100 years they were taken to a computer. The assumptions made were:

1) The total non-white and mixed-breed population of America now numbers about half the total, or about 130,000,000.[17]

Considering the torrent of immigration the last few years this figure should not be off by much.

2) The non-white birth rate was rounded to 2%.

3) Non-white immigration was estimated at 2%.

Vastly different figures are available depending on whom you are talking to. Some say it is 2%, some 3% and some 4%/yr and even more.

Adding a 2% non-white birth rate to a 2% immigration rate results in total non-white increase of 4%./yr. Adding 3% would make the total 5%.

The computer printout on the next page lists white increase at .6% a year and the non-white natural increase plus immigration at 4% and at 5%.

Results

If present white and non-white birth rates plus immigration continue unchecked for one hundred years the total white and non- white populations in America will appear as follows:

17 Increasingly, the word "white" is being used in place of "native" which the media now uses to refer to American Indians. "White", in the above contex, includes Anglo-Saxon, German, Celtic, and Scandinavian peoples. The early-American use of the Hebrew word "adamic" meaning to blush red (according to Strong's Concordance) removes the ambiguity and is coming back into common usage. Europeans use the word "Westerner" for the same reason.

	Year 1986	Year 2085	After 100/yrs
white @ .6%	130,800,000	236,500,000	3.5%/total
non-white @ 4%	135,000,000	6,566,000,000	96.5%/total
non-white @ 5%	137,000,000	17,095,000,000	98.6%/total

Population Increase For Whites & Non-whites In 100 Years

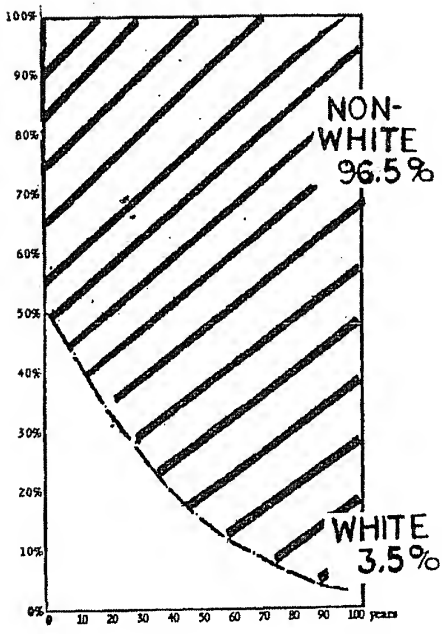
It is obvious to a thinking person that the United States cannot support a population of 6.5 billions. Famine, war, or genocide have interrupted such trends in the past.

"Flashpoint"

Using the above statistics, by the year 1995 the white population will have been reduced to 41.8%. By 2005 it will be reduced still further to 34%, and in 30 years to 27%.

At some point a "flashpoint" will be reached. The whites will either become intolerable to the non-whites, or the non-whites will become unbearable to the whites.

We remember what happened in Haiti. The blacks were a majority. One morning they revolted and killed every white man on the island. In 1910, non-whites comprised the vast majority of Mexico. They rose and killed almost every white Mexican in the country and took their land. Bodies of whites lay in the streets. The unbearable stench floated across the border to the United States.



You can find blond haired, blue eyed descendants of these Mexican refugees living in Texas to this day. They have Spanish names and fearful stories to tell.

Given the same population ratios that brought disaster before, why can't the same things happen in America's large cities? The present crime wave is making people acutely aware of the possibility.

When will a "flashpoint" be reached for the rest of the country?Again, turn to the printout and pick what you think might be the time. One man's guess may be as good as another.

It is a fact that America is being inundated by a flood of alien humanity that shows no signs of abating. This single fact will determine where we will live, where we go, and our personal and business decisions almost to the exclusion of everything else in the days ahead.

Chapter 144

BLOOD RIVER

"The 'Great Trek' or Afrikaner exodus from under British rule in the Cape started in 1835 and culminated in the founding of the Boer Republic.

"C. A. Venter, an Afrikaner historian says: 'The major reason for the Great Trek was 'Ordinance 50'. This infamous (SA "one man one vote" circa 1835) ordinance stated that there would 'thenceforth (circa 1835) not be any further discrimination between white and black (full citizenship)' one man one vote et al' in the Cape . . . and the ordinance could only be repealed or amended by the British Government in England (making it an Englishman's law).

"This act, Venter states, 'left the Afrikaners feeling that they had lost control over their lives and destiny to a foreign power, and moreover that a government of their own kinfolk arrayed itself against them on the side of those who were not of their race."

Practically speaking this "Ordinance 50" was designed to place the South Africans under the heel of the blacks and make them subject to their tender mercies as was done in the Southern United States 30 years later.

Unable to survive under such conditions, the Afrikaners abandoned their businesses and farms, loaded their wagons, and started their now famous trek into the virtually unknown lands to the north.

As pioneers moving into new country, when camping for the night or when in danger, they arranged their wagons in a circle. This circle of defense was called the "lager".

"The historic Battle of Blood River forever made the "lager" synonymous with survival, solidarity and victory for the Afrikaner. This battle was fought on the 16th of Dec. 1838. It followed after seven days of prayer and pleas for intercession to the Almighty in which the Afrikaners beseeched the Lord to give them the victory in the pending attack by Dingaan and his 30,000 Zulu impis (warriors) and to preserve them as a nation.

"On the morning of Dec. 16, 1838, under the leadership of Andries Pretorius and Sarel Cilliers a covenant was made with the Lord. It reads as follows:

> "My brothers and fellow citizens, here we stand in the presence of the Holy God, creator of heaven and earth, to make a vow unto Him, that if His protection shall be with us and (He) give our enemy into our hand so that we might be victorious over him, that this day and date every year shall be spent as a birthday and a day of thanksgiving, just as a Sabbath is spent, and that we shall erect a temple to His honor wherever it will be pleasing to Him, and that we shall also instruct our children that they must also share in it, as well as for our generations yet to come. Because the Honor of His name shall thereby be glorified, and the glory and honor of the victory shall be given him. (Original in Dutch) ...

"By the end of the day the 460 odd Afrikaner men with their women and children not only successfully fought off the repeated onslaughts with the loss of Zulu lives estimated at 12,000 and not a single casualty on the Afrikaner side, but they also irrevocably bound future generations for survival on Him.

"If the outcome of the battle is to be considered a miracle, then equally miraculous is the fact that the Afrikaners did not lose a single one of their animals, notwithstanding the thousands of spears hurled inside the 'lager'. Neither did the animals (900 oxen, 500 horses) stampede at the blood chilling battle cries that accompanied 30,000 warriors' attack after attack. Neither did the odor of blood which permeated the air give cause to stampede.

"Old Zulus who took part in the battle as young warriors were later to tell that what decided the battle against them was not the 'Boers' shooting from between the wheels of the wagons, but 'Boers shooting from the white cloud hovering above the 'lager' all day . . . Afrikaners know their survival is completely dependent on divine intervention."

This report is the result of Dirk van der Merwe's trip to South Africa. It deals with the present leaders of South Africa, P. W. Botha, the champion of the left wing internationalist liberals, and on the other side, Eugene TerreBlanche, one of the champions of the Afrikaners. Merwe writes;

> "... the Afrikaners are defecting en masse from the National Party. The conservative right wing parties are riding a crest of popularity which grows by the minute. It is about to become a tidal wave which will sweep the government from power and usher in the worst nightmare of every liberal and internationalist: a true-blue Afrikaner nationalist government ..."

These are strong words that challenge everything the internationalist media is saying. But of this I am convinced. The Afrikaner believes that the God who was with them at "Blood River" is with them now. They are protected by the pact made by their ancestors.

It is obvious that the internationalists would gain nothing if they were to sweep over Europe and America and leave South Africa unoccupied. Why? The world's industry would slowly grind to a standstill since half its mineral wealth comes from there. They MUST occupy South Africa if they wish to safely occupy the rest.

It is also obvious to those who believe the promises of the Lord God of Israel that anyone who fights those under his protection will find "Boers' shooting from the white cloud hovering above the 'lager'..."

AIDS

The White Man's Black Plague

A short time ago the disease AIDS was unknown. We were told that it originated in Haiti.

The French soon traced it to Africa. The US News & World Report, July 7, 1986 headlined an article, "Fighting A World Epidemic, 6% Of Africans Estimated To Have AIDS Virus."

Recently a TV documentary was done on the AIDS impact on Haiti. It now seems this black nation, an early AIDS suspect, does not have merely a "few cases" as was once thought, but is literally riddled with AIDS.

Other black nations in that area are suspected of being in the same condition. The disease seems to affect both sexes equally. It appears that world-wide there are tens of millions of blacks who are infected.

The Wall Street Journal of 7/22/86 reported a federal health official's remark that "AIDS is being contracted by blacks and Hispanics in disproportionately high numbers."

There is speculation that the disease that we in the West call AIDS a disease of blacks. Most times it is dormant. The present excitement is the identification of a disease that has been there all along. It becomes especially noticeable when there are large concentrations of blacks such as are in Africa and the Caribbean. It is further speculated that outbreaks of the disease occur in cycles of unknown duration.

Carrier

Blacks contract AIDS and die from it, but because of the large number of blacks infected with the virus compared to the comparatively small numbers who die from the disease, it is believed that they have a natural resistance to it.

The white has no natural resistance. Once infected, the disease rapidly progresses and death soon follows. This results in statistics in America and Western Europe showing that almost all the deaths due to AIDS occur among whites, while blacks are found to carry the virus but death as a percentage of the infected is more infrequent.

The white homosexual is blamed. He spreads the disease to other Westerners. The early belief that it was purely a homosexual disease has been found erroneous. Homosexuals, however, are the primary carriers. Whites engaging in interracial sex are suspected of running a close second.

Smallpox

Smallpox was a disease largely dormant among whites. When transmitted to Indians it became virulent. Indians died by the thousands. Now the shoe is on the other foot - infected whites are dying like flies. At least, this is what is happening to the infected white homosexuals.

The Large Cities

As expected, most AIDS victims come from large population centers such as Los Angeles, New York and Atlanta. These areas contain large black populations.

It is speculated that like the black populations of Africa and the Caribbean, the AIDS disease may be present in these American areas in its usual dormant state. We do know that army reports show that blacks and Hispanics have 4 to 5 times as many having the virus as whites.

Nurses tell me that that while they have seen a number of whites die with AIDS they have never seen a black die with the disease. That is not to say that they don't - it just seems to be much more rare.

Possible Bombshell

An active investigation by the US health authorities could quickly and easily determine whether it is true that the AIDS virus is present in a dormant state in America's black communities as in the other black communities of the world. However, such a confirmation would present the administration with a political bombshell.

Confirmation would necessitate a quarantine. A quarantine will most certainly bring a backlash by black voters. The politicians can do without that.

The Government Choice

An alternative to an active AIDS investigation is the discouragement of such an investigation.

The government has made its choice. They have filed a suit against a North Carolina company for discriminating against a worker infected with AIDS.

This suit aligns the government on the side of the the powerful black voting bloc and protects the white carrier. Without opposition the AIDS disease can now run its course through the defenseless and uninformed white population.

Other Carriers

A species of African monkey has been found loaded with the virus and is believed by some to be instrumental in the spread of AIDS through its meat or blood.

The Pirbright Animal Virus Research Institute in Surry, said " ... Haitian pigs are thought to be a reservoir for a low-virulent swine fever..."

Almost daily, pertinent news items surface: "COCKROACHES CARRY AIDS!" Weekly World News, Sept 30, 1986. " ... experts at the Pasteur Institute in Paris state . . . We got bugs from Zaire and the Central African Republic, we found that some types of insects were contaminated - cockroaches, bedbugs, mosquitoes, tse-tse flies and ticks."

If the disease can be transmitted by vermin why can't vermin spread the disease to cattle and fowl, as well as humans? Or infected cattle to humans, or to both vermin and humans?

While the administration comes down hard on those wishing to quarantine AIDS carriers, New York City health officials announce that last year AIDS was the leading killer of men between the ages of 30 and 39 and the second-leading cause of death among women aged 30 to 34 years.

We can expect such announcements of white deaths to continue and grow in magnitude with time.

Food & Food Suppliers

Half the beef and much of the pork consumed in America comes from abroad. Thousands of tons of food are being imported from Haiti, Jamaica, Brazil, and other third world nations. Much of this food is handled by people who live in areas infected with AIDS.

Is this imported food infected by its handlers? We have not been told. It is entirely possible if the life of the AIDS virus in its dried state is longer than the 10 to 14 days that now seems to be the accepted time span allotted to it.

Business Impacted

People are asking about blood banks, human parts banks, about AIDS in schools, and in hospitals. They are not only asking about the danger of homosexuals, but also the danger of association with blacks and Hispanics. The business and political implications are enormous.

If identified, infected imported food will be stopped. This will present drastic problems to many supplying nations with balance of payments problems.

Demand for government action to contain and eradicate the disease and disease carriers must mount in time. High risk sectors of the population will be increasingly separated.

The "city", with its black and Hispanic population, may in time be looked upon as a place to avoid.

Chapter 146

THE ADL WATCHDOG

The Illusion Of Election

Newspapers, radio, and TV are controlled by the banks. They control the MEDIA by voting stock held in trust.

The MEDIA controls which politicians are elected. Approved candidates receive favorable coverage. Those not selected are simply blacked out or are given unfavorable publicity. This results in their defeat.

A government thus selected is completely "uneducable". They will support "school busing", "pornography", "abortion on demand", "unlimited immigration", and all sorts of programs approved by the bankers and disapproved by the people. MEDIA exposure elects.

The Watchdog

The banks govern. The media advertises and supports bank policy. Congress rubber stamps. Opposing views are attacked by the media. The watchdog is - the ADL.

All facets of today's social structure are watched by the ADL. Government, corporations, media, colleges, churches, minority organizations, and private clubs. No organization is exempt. Their agents pry, investigate, condemn, and regulate.

The Code

A SWAT team killed a protesting farmer named Kirk in Nebraska. It was reported that Kirk was "anti-Semitic". The words "extremist" and "violent" were also used.

"Anti-Semitic" is the code used by the ADL to tag Kirk and all protesting farmers. ADL watchers believe that this code instructs the media that all references to the person or organization so labeled must carry the additional labels.

Farm Rally

A Farm Rally was scheduled for the Kirk locale. This meeting was turning into a giant farm protest of the type disapproved by banks foreclosing the farmers.

In panic the "code" blared forth - "anti-Semitic". The media then ran front page stories stating that a Jewish farmer's life had been threatened and that he was forced to flee to the Governor's mansion in Lincoln for refuge.

Using the code "anti-Semitic" and this story as the kickoff, the media then went on to repeat "extremist" and "violent" plus terms such as "controversial", "anti-democratic", "anti-Jewish", "farm extremists", and "terrorists".

These names were almost never used in referring to someone directly associated with the Nebraska rally, but to people far away in distant states. This is the old technique of "guilt by association". The ADL was constantly quoted as the source relating one alarming story after another.

The Holiday Inn national management ordered the local manager to cancel the farmers' meeting hall. The media crowed that the farm meeting was "canceled" and did not report the new location of the meeting. After wrecking the farm rally the media calmly announced;

> "Authorities denied today a report that a Jewish farmer's life was threatened after protesting a farm crisis ..."

Note the close cooperation between the media, government officials all the way up to the Governor's office, and the management of a national corporation.

Anti-Semitic

The label "anti-Semitic" does not mean "anti- Jewish". It is merely a "code". Many Jews are labeled "anti- Semitic" by the Establishment. The determining factor is whether or not an individual adheres to Establishment policy.

One farm leader was asked by a radio talk show host in Atlanta if he disapproved of the Federal Reserve. He answered "yes". The talk show host then said "that means you are 'anti-Semitic' since many of the banks making up the Federal Reserve are Jewish owned."

This would sound strange if you didn't know about the "code". The farm leader could have praised the Federal Reserve and still have been labeled "anti-Semitic". It does not mean "anti- Jewish".

Christian Conference

A Christian Law Seminar was held in Ohio. With the prompting of the ADL the local newspaper did an article entitled "Anti-Semitic Seminar".

The reporter pulled out all the stops and used the entire arsenal of words reserved for farmers plus the most recent additions which are "white supremacist", "tax-protest", neo-Nazi", "right- wing", "identity", Ku Klux Klan, "children of Satan", "Adolf Hitler, "Mein Kampf", "neo-Nazi", "the Order", "armored car robberies", "counterfeiting", and "Posse Comitatus".

As usual most of the copy using these words described events in other states. Only by the wildest stretch of imagination could they be related to the meeting. Again, "guilt by association".

The Bible calls for the death penalty for murderers and rapists. Christians repeat the demand. The last paragraph of the story was based on this to read; "The group's presence ... has alarmed the Anti-Defamation League ... (the speakers at the meeting) are advocates of killing in the name of a racist philosophy they call Christianity."

How about that?

This Ohio case is the first time in some years the ADL has openly attacked a Christian meeting. The buzz words used are the ones reserved for farm protesters. All indications are that the ADL mistook the Christian Conference for a farmers' protest meeting. This was a little mistake. One day they will make a big one.

Many of the speakers at this meeting are nationally known Christian ministers. Almost all have their own alternate media newsletters to refute this ADL story.

Abortion

James J. Condit, Jr., an anti-abortion leader in Cincinnati, noted in a private talk to supporters that among those for abortion were Jewish groups. This is an undeniable fact.

A "sleeper" reported the statement. The media headline was "anti- Semitism!" The rest of the names and phrases were - "bigotry", "censured from all sides", "labeling of people without any regard for the truth", "religious hatred", "ridiculous", "demagoguery", and "absurd."

From now on, media reports dealing with the Cincinnati anti- abortion movement will use these adjectives.

I called Mr. Condit. He said the media mis-quoted him.

Conclusion

The ADL charges anyone who opposes Establishment policy with "anti-Semitism". This includes Blacks, Jews, Indians, Democrats, Republicans, ex-Presidents, foreign Chancellors, Germans, South Africans, American Southerners, countless foreign nations, Arabs, newspapers, farmers, individuals, small businessmen, the DAR, Christian churches, Catholics, the Pope, and all others who opposes establishment policy. They are individually, severally, occasionally, collectively, all "anti-Semitic" according to the ADL.

Learn to read the code "anti-Semitism" and to distinguish between "straw men" set up by the ADL to be shot down and embattled farmers and "pro-life" organizations that are labeled "anti-Semitic" to isolate them from community help.

The charge "anti-Semitic" may be the flag that some day will signal that a George Washington has arrived!

LETTERS

TAXES: Dear Mr. Hoskins: You said that millions of people are not paying their taxes. What reasons do these people give for not paying axes? I maintain that it is not fair to those who do. K.J. - Washington

RKH: There seems to be three main reasons. The first is the scripture:

> Of whom do the kings of the earth take custom or tribute? of their own children, or of strangers? Peter saith unto him, Of strangers." (Gr: allotrios foreign, not akin.) Math 17:25-26

Many don't pay income taxes because they maintain that they are not "strangers" in their own land. This is one of the main arguments used against an income tax before 1913. "Use" taxes (toll-roads, bridges, etc.), yes. Income taxes, no.

Second, the government doesn't need your taxes to run the government. They can print money, pay for expenses, and tax it back out of circulation. This was done in Colonial days. It was done this way for centuries in Europe.

Third: According to many, the income tax amendment was never legally ratified. The author of the book The Law That Never Was", M.J. Beckman, traveled to each state to gather copies of the documents used to ratify the 16th amendment. After viewing the evidence one would be hard put to agree that the income tax amendment to the Constitution is legal. AGENT-PROVACATEUR: Dear Mr. Hoskins; What do you think of today's "agent-provacateur?" D.L. - Iowa RKH: The "agent-provacateur" is part of today's American way of life. He is sent where the Establishment wishes to destroy opposition.

A clean-cut chap appears out of nowhere and says that he is a Christian patriot. He has plenty of money but doesn't seem to work hard. He steers the conversation to make it appear that there is no other choice to America's problems but violence.

If the listener indicates in any manner that he agrees with the argument - it is called "conspiracy", The person who falls for this can be sent to prison for 40 years. America's prisons are loaded with those who did.

If a farmer who is being foreclosed, or anyone else, has the slightest idea that the one he speaking to - whether in a church, at a farm meeting, or anywhere else - is advocating what an establishment lawyer in court could construe as "violence", he should go on record to a hidden microphone that he is NOT for violence.

Further, he should clearly state that he will take no part in violence, will not stand for violence, and will not allow the subject to be discussed in his presence. This is what I do.

An "agent-provacateur" can erase your denial from his tape. A jury will be asked to believe the "agent". A witness will come forward to testify that you are a homicidal maniac plotting to murder the president. It is your word against the testimony of host of others.

Honest denials will not stop the "agent-provacateur" but they will slow him down. Readers have sent me clippings of incidents that point to people being "set up" by the establishment's "agent-provacateur".

Chapter 147

GERMAN FEAST OF ORDERS

One rainy evening thirty years ago I was honored by the visit of a damp employee of the State of Virginia. He was getting old and he huffed and puffed as he walked up the three flights to our small apartment in Richmond. Unknown to his superiors he was a genius. He had graduated with honors from the University and was a walking encyclopedia of everything and everyone past and present.

We sat drinking coffee before the warm radiator and he told me a fascinating story. One that I had never heard before and one that I have not been able to find reference to since. It's the type of story one relegates to the land of wishful thinking except that I knew the narrator. He was most exact in choosing his words. And, too, it's the type of story the Establishment loves to black out of Saxon histories.

I'm telling the story as I remember it. I have forgotten the exact names of the "orders" he mentioned, and doubtless many of the lesser details, but the story in the main is as it was told to me on that rainy night.

FEAST OF ORDERS

Before World War I, a great banquet was held once a year in Germany. It was called the "Feast Of Orders". The Kaiser himself presided. Before him dined the elite of Germany.

This was not the ordinary banquet that the wealthy hold to flaunt diamonds and furs. This was the single most prestigious occasion of the entire year. This affair involved the whole nation. Everyone had a vested interest.

A rare last minute change in the guest list could cause newspaper headlines accompanied by lengthy editorials and quotes from approving and disapproving authorities from all over the world.

The Invited

The meal was paid for by the nation. It also paid for the manufacture of the humble decorations to be presented, each with its bit of ribbon. The Kaiser of all Germany contributed the great hall where the banquet was held. It was he who actually presented the highest "Order". But neither the Kaiser nor his government influenced the choosing of the names on the list. This was one gathering where political power and money could not buy a place. A "pretender" would have been laughed to scorn.

The names of those chosen to be present had been known for months. Some - for years. Many were already household names - some known internationally.

The inclusion of a man's name meant fame for him, his state, city, and community, and economic security for life. Every German schoolchild dreamed of one day being invited to take a seat among this illustrious gathering. It was possible for anyone to gain a seat. But it had to be earned - there was no way to buy it.

The Guilds

Guilds proliferated in medieval Europe. There were wool guilds, weaving guilds, metal workers guilds, and many other guilds. Numerous professional associations were the natural outgrowth.

The guilds and professional associations set minimum apprenticeship standards that one must pass to enter their ranks. An apprenticeship was thorough. The apprentice exchanged pay for tuition. He knew his job when his training was completed. The training could last five, ten, fifteen years, or even longer depending on the job to be mastered.

When finished, an apprentice was certified by his master. He was then tested by the association. Passing this test, he was accepted into his chosen guild. As long as he remained in good standing his presence in the guild was the association's guarantee to the world that their man was competent.

The Reward For Excellence

Within any profession there is a natural striving to excel. The wool guild had weavers and dyers more skilled and competent than the rest. Many wanted to become still more skilled and increase their economic and social advantage. In the steel guild there were machinists who were striving to do the same.

It is a universally accepted fact that almost any professional, whether potter, weaver, or lawyer, may, and often does, deceive those unfamiliar with the terminology and specialized demands of his trade.

While the professional easily fools the rest of the world as to his own worth, he rarely fools one of his own kind. Professionals know the tricks of their own trade.

Members of Professional Associations were highly trained men. They knew their jobs and what their jobs demanded.They knew good work and work that wasn't.They also knew the caliber of their associates' work.

At their meetings they selected the most accomplished members of the local association to represent their group. It was the duty of those chosen to ensure that standards were maintained and that sloppy workers and workmanship were banned. They represented the local association's "state-of-the-art" to the outside world.

These carefully selected individuals were recognized by the City Mayors by the presentation of an Order - the "Black Eagle 2nd Class". The recipient was required to wear its ribbon in his lapel at all times. Its unauthorized use was severely punished. It served a purpose.

A patient needing the services of a doctor could request one by the degree of expertness needed. His "Order" indicated the degree of expertise. He was paid accordingly. There were few "blow-hards" in the system. The ribbon spoke for him. One could always tell the speaker's degree of skill by a glance at his lapel.

The District

2nd class Black Eagle Order holders in turn selected their best man. He was elevated to the "Order Of The Black Eagle 1st Class". Other 1st Class holders in the District became their peers and "equals". Their selection in turn was elevated to "Order Of The Red Eagle 2nd Class".

The State

The 2nd class holders met in a state wide meeting and chose their most excellent member. He became a holder of the Order of the "Red Eagle 1st Class" and represented the entire state.

The trade and guild representatives of all the German states gathered and chose their most competent machinist, administrator, cabinetmaker, soldier, diplomat, etc., in the entire nation. This was the highest honor that could be bestowed in Germany - the Order of the Master.

The Master

The "Master". The most accomplished single representative of his craft in the entire nation. A specially struck medal "The Order Of The Master", with its ribbon proclaimed the fact to the world.

This Master, the choice of the most critical examiners his nation had to offer, was in demand at every turn. His word was constantly required to judge, to advise, to endorse quality, and to demonstrate technique. A world desperate for masters to guide them through the maze that goes with an advanced technical civilization monopolized his every minute.

The Display Of Talent

Special museums were maintained to show examples of the work of certain of the trades. In more recent years pieces from the Master's Cabinet Makers Museum are said to have brought fantastic prices when sold at auction.

There were always long lines of school children waiting their turn to go through these museums ... many dreaming of the day when their work might be considered worthy to be placed in that same museum.

Results

Under the "Orders" system the public utilities were the most efficient in Europe. Trains ran well and on time. Monitored by their association, the Prussian Civil Servant was absolutely incorruptible. Public records were exact. Embezzlement unknown. The Legal Association's constant vigil assured that the lawyer did his duty and that a judge's decision was in fact lawful and just. The wrath of one's peers was a thing to be feared.

The world flocked to the German Medical Schools."Educated in Germany" was a foreign doctor's ticket of excellence. Standards set and maintained by the "Orders" were the highest in the

The German Chemical Industry became the schoolroom for the world's chemists. One trained under their supervision was deemed competent at the very least.

The German Army was admittedly the model for the world. Even during the terrible WW I the German army was held up in the English and American military training manuals as the example they must emulate to succeed.

The number of inventions patented during the period of the Orders was lopsidedly German. High standards could not help but result in new inventions and techniques.

The Banquet

The Kaiser's great banquet was public recognition of those who had been pushed to the top by excellence, step by step, order by order, by their knowledgeable and demanding peers. They stood at the very top. They were the Masters ... the elite of Germany.

All those at the table were equals.Rubbing shoulders were the best schoolteacher, the best streetsweeper, the best chemist, the best bricklayer, the best manager, the best soldier, the best diplomat, and on through the list.

This yearly ritual lasted until the communist revolution swept through Germany at the end of WW I and put an end to it. The red credo of "all men are equal" could never stand comparison with the living proof that all men are not equal.

Conclusion

The "aristocracy of merit" still exists unrecognized today. There live among us - masters. For our nation to excel these men must again be recognized - examples to guide our children.

Given a choice, I for one would prefer to be governed by Masters - aristocrats of merit - guaranteed by those who know and who would suffer by their misconduct.

True merit can only be recognized by peers.It is the highest form of republicanism.It is achieved. It cannot be bought. It's not for sale!

Without working, manufacturing, mining, farming or investing, the FR has acquired over $180 billion dollars worth of assets - mostly U. S. Government securities - while our national government in the same period has accumulated over $2 trillion dollars of public debt." Peter Cook, Treasury Monetarist, July 1985, Box 86, Wickliffe, OH 44092

ANGLO-SAXON: Representatives of Anglo Saxon nations met in California October 18th. Larry Patterson reported:

"... Their reports concerning their own countries parallel the United States - there's book burning in Canada ... the attempt to turn Australian lands over to the aboriginal people in Australia ... and the already well understood attempt to take over the the Republic of S. Africa. ... The problems we face here in the U. S. are duplicate copies - with variations to reflect local culture - of the plan to destabilize the world ... . There is no place to hide. The reports on the gov'ts of these countries - were universally negative. Mulrooney in Canada, has turned out to be a weak-kneed jellyfish ... Margaret Thatcher has become incapable of independent action - and the Australians suffer under one Trilateral leader after the other." Monthly Lesson In Criminal Politics, PO Box 37432, Cincinnati, OH 45222

RKH: It has cost us tens of millions of our own dead, killed in one arranged war after another, to learn what he Establishment has known all along. WE are the foe. The Saxon nation. Worldwide we look alike, think alike, ave the same God and the same values. They would use us to slaughter ourselves - if we let them do it again.

MILLIONAIRES: Dear Mr. Hoskins: While the US has 175 millionaires per 100,000, little Hong Kong with 5.5 million population has 36 millionaires per 100,000. S. H. Illinois

RKH: China's millionaires live in Hong Kong. It will be interesting to see how many still live there after England returns the colony to Communist China.

SANCTIONS: Dear Mr. Hoskins: Polls show that the vast majority of Americans oppose sanctions against South Africa. Why do the stock holders of American corporations do it?"

RKH: American corporate stockholders may be against sanctions, however, most of the stock of American corporations is in trust to avoid inheritance taxes. The banks vote this stock and elect corporation directors. The banks tell the corporate directors what to do. International banks, not American stockholders, are the one boycotting South Africa.

APARTHEID: Dear Mr. Hoskins: Most people are confused over the word 'apartheid'. While the American government doesn't allow apartheid they allow the American Indians self-rule and separate development in their own lands set aside for them. This is the same thing. The blacks in Australia have the same privilege, as do the Maoris in New Zealand. This is also true of Indians in Canada.

Each of the radically different black tribes in South Africa has its own lands in which to live and govern themselves. The only thing keeping these black nations in South Africa from exterminating each other is the White who acts as a police force to keep them separate - by enforcing apartheid' - 'separate development.

Media critics seem to approve of 'separate development' - as long as it is not extended to whites. It may be better to use the word 'separate development'. For the moment, everyone seems to favor 'separate development.'" G.W. - Oregon

THE 4-YEAR BOTTOM & SEVEN YEAR TOP

PIA has often discussed the "Four Year Election Cycle". It was the first to draw charts so that its readers could visualize them. There is also a seldom discussed thing called "The 7 Year Top." But first - the Four Year Election Cycle Bottom.

Four Year Market Cycle

Two years before election time the President spends the money appropriated earlier by Congress. This results in good business along with a booming stock market which crests two years later near election time. The president's party looks good and American voters tend to vote for the incumbent party. xxx<chart;4-Year Market Cycle

This "on again/off again" spending has been going on for a long long time. It has resulted in well defined stock market bottoms every four years - 1962, '66, '70, '74, '78 and '82.

4-Year Chart

On the facing page is a chart of the New York Stock Exchange. The vertical bars represent the 4-year bottoms. About midway between the bars is election time when the stock-market is expected to top out.

Exceptions

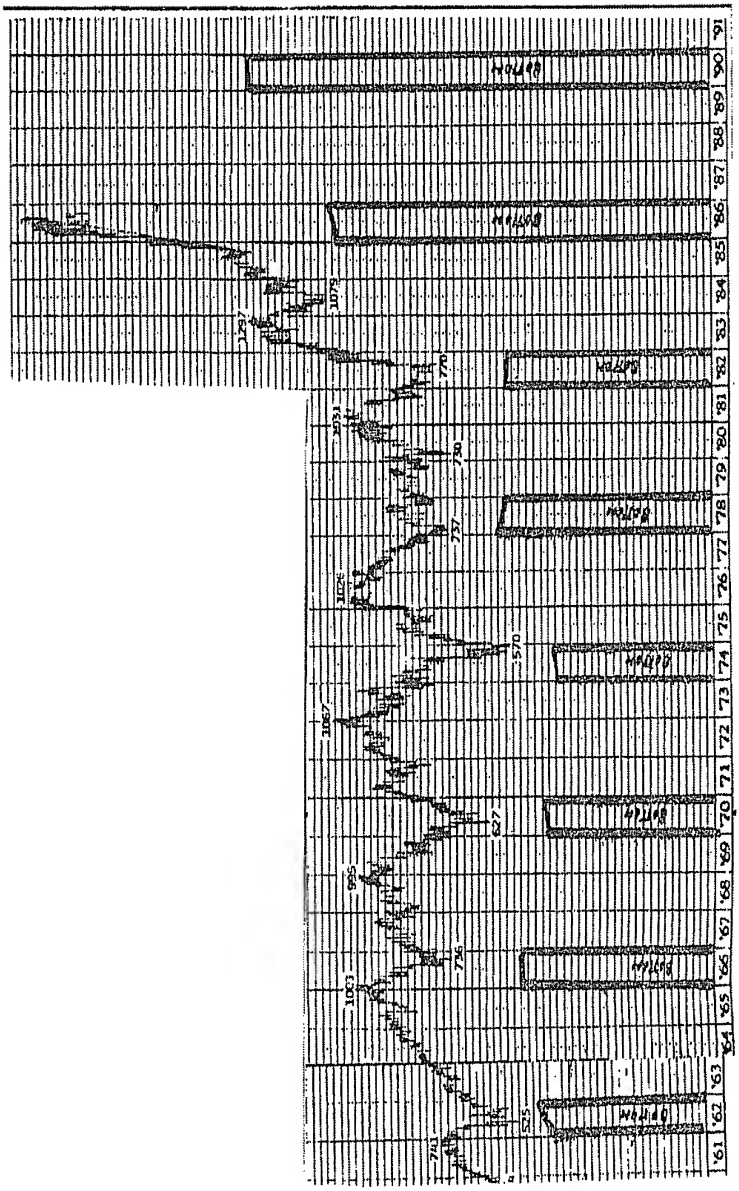
What about last year - 1986? The stock market didn't swoop down into the expected 4-year sell-off. Instead of going down, the stock market went up in the early part of the year and continued to trade sideways at its present highs.

Stock market pundits have been waiting the entire year of 1986 for the usual 4-year stock market downside correction that has not come as yet.

New Era

It could be that the extra stimulas added to the economy is responsible for this maverick stockmarket behavior. The reasons are there if one looks for them. For one - the banks have dropped the exchange value of the dollar. This has accomplished several things:

The dollar now buys cheaper American goods for foreign markets which keeps American industry busy past its usual slowdown time.



.In prior Four-Year Election Cycle bull markets the stock market stopped when it ran out of government spending. Higher interest rates made sure the stock market stopped its climb - almost on a dime.

Perhaps the reason is that the market advance was not accompanied by the usual rise in interest rates which in the past brings the market to its peak along about election time. Interest rates have actually declined.

These factors may account for the lack of the usual Four Year Election Stock Market Decline starting in 1986.[18]

The 7-Year Leapfrog Top

Observe the chart to the right. If one measures seven years from a stock market top he leapfrogs one top and discovers another stock market top just beyond. Why? No one knows.

Not only will there be a usual stock market top, but the measurement will often point to the direct top of the stock market.

Measuring 7 years from the 741 top in 1961 (A1) indicates the 995 top in 1968.

Each stock market top +7 years will often point to the stock market top following. Of course, there are exceptions, On occasion it misses. But it has been a very good general indicator - well worth taking the time to watch.

Details

As a rule when one has a long drawn out top such as the '76 top at 1026, take the last part of the top as the starting measuring point. If the market top has a closely following lower top such as the '68-'69 top at 995, measure from that point.

Summary

We know the monetary authorities can almost do as they wish with the stock market. They can pump it up by lowering interest rates, and they can run it down by raising interest rates. It appears that their continued lowering of interest rates indicates their desire for a continued stock market advance.

In the field of economics, anything can be made to happen - for a time - and nothing happens by accident.

TARIFFS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Is it wise for the US to use high tariffs or not?" G. S. - Minnesota

ED: To help one's country survive one must do whatever is necessary to preserve its industry. he international bankers who own or control Korean electronic manufacturing companies are the same ones who own or control the electronics companies in your state that they shut down two years ago. abor is cheaper overseas, that's one reason they moved the business overseas. If unemployed US labor starves, that's tough. The plant owners get theirs.

You bet we should enact high tariffs!

CREDIT: "My Dear Mr. Hoskins: When I borrow $100,000 at the bank and deposit that money in my account - does that up the credit of that bank 7 times to a total of $700,000? R. A. - Massachusetts

ED: Don't get confused by the countless bank regulations that can be changed in an instant. In the present usury system it is theoretically not necessary for a bank to have ANY money at all in order to lend you money.

In the old days banks did it this way: You went to a bank and asked for $1,000. Your house is collateral. You signed a note promising to pay back the $1000 plus $100 interest - IN THAT BANK'S MONEY ONLY. A different colored money from a bank up the street would not do. The banker would go into the back room and print a $1000 bill and give it to you. Sometimes the ink would still be wet.

It was impossible to come up with $1100 on due date because only $1000 was in circulation. This broke the contract. You paid the penalty by losing your house. This scam was worked by most banks and gave them all a bad name. Bankers were looked on as something worse than faro dealers in gambling houses - except you had more chance in a gambling house.

When the Federal Reserve System was established it tried to give banks a better image by requiring them to all use the same kind of money. You could pay debts to one bank with currency from another. All present money is the same color and it all looks alike.

Still, the bank only lent $10 and required $11 in payment. More IOUs are coming due than there is money in existence with which to pay.

When the banks get together and raise interest rates, refuse loans, or finance imports making it impossible or uneconomical for you to borrow - you bankrupt. The bank gets your house or business like they always have. That's why the Bible forbids usury and the Arabs use "joint venture".

UNFILTERED NEWS

Afrikaner ... leader Mr. Eugene Terre' Blanche last month made it clear that he would not bow to increasing Government pressure to disband its growing "Brandwag" home defense units. ...

"He stressed, however, that Brandwag units would only 'go into action' if the security forces were not available ...

"Brandwag units were on stand-by throughout the recent unrest and will continue to do so,' he said." SA Observer, Oct. 1986, S. E. D. Brown, PO Box 2401, Pretoria, SA.

ED: I have been informed that fear of confrontation with Afrikaner home defense units is the only thing preventing the present left wing South African government leaders from turning the country over to the communists. Everything now being done to SA will be done to America in time.

"The Race Relations Act: Dusky, Reddish, and other aliens are legally placed beyond the bounds of criticism. ... When someone over here oversteps the bounds and says, writes, or publishes something these privileged racial and ethnic groups find annoying or inconvenient, he is accused of 'inciting hatred' and clapped into jail for twelve months ..

"Right now, John Tyndall, head of the British National Party, ... is serving a twelve-month jail term ...

"We will win ... the key lies in separatism. The ultimate victory for us will come about through ... the United States becoming a collection of smaller countries defined by geography and ethnic dominance. ... My brand ... is Southern Nationalism and I see very encouraging signs there too ... The separatist idea is one whose time is coming."

Letter from England, copied from Southern National Newsletter, PO. Box 18214, Memphis, TN 38118.

ED: Perhaps. In my opinion the US doesn't need new nations, it needs a government that will do away with party politics, administer justice, protect rights, and defend the nation. Our Law teaches that each of us is a priest and is responsible to enforce the Law. America can become a safe law abiding land when Law abiding men govern once more. Criminals will be punished, good men rewarded, and the streets will be safe.

"Whereas: Usury (commonly known as interest) is strictly prohibited in Scripture except under limited business conditions, and the entire money supply of the US is based on ... a system of total usury ...

"THEREFORE: The American Coalition of Unregistered Churches will encourage and promote the preaching of the Word of God against usury in every pulpit and the encouragement of all Christians and Churches to get out of debt." The Kingdom Messenger, November 1986, Mike Watson, PO. Box 710304, San Jose, CA 95171.

ED: Usury is causing chaos in Western business. A return to the old system of Joint Venture is only a question of time. If the Arabs can do it - the West can too.

LEUKEMIA: Dr. Livingston-Wheeler believes that almost 100% of chickens in America have leukosis (chicken leukemia) ... Fifty years ago, one out of 13 people contracted cancer. Today it is one out of three ... " Acres USA, 10008 E. 60th Terrace, Kansas City, Missouri 64133. Dec/1986.

CRIMINAL: Harold MacMillan, former Prime Minister of Britain, was squirming before he had the effrontery to die three days ago.

It is alleged that while he was Britain's Resident Minister in Italy in 1945 he gave the order to the British army commander in Austria to deliver captured Cossacks, many of whom were not Soviet citizens, to the tender mercies of the Soviet army. No trace has been heard of them since and it is supposed that they were "liquidated" along with their wives and children.

The Nuremberg War Crimes trials set the principle that those who carry out inhumane and illegal orders or concur and assist in carrying them out are as guilty as those who originate them. The British, who pride themselves on their "justice", were undoubtedly planning to clap Mr. MacMillan into jail until he could be tried.

There is also the case of the cold-blooded murder of 15,000 Polish officer prisoners-of-war by the Soviets in the Katyn Forest, and the case of the guilty party who ordered the saturation bombing of undefended Dresden, the "open city", killing more than 100,000 Saxon women and children.

Then there's the case of the quarter million Germans who surrendered at Stalingrad. 8,000 survived.

What about the former leader of the Israeli nation? He had a price put on his head by the British for the cold blooded murder of hundreds of British soldiers.

And, to set an example, America will want to attend to the many Washington politicians who knew of the impending attack on Pearl Harbor weeks and months in advance. They did nothing to warn the thousands of American soldiers and sailors who were killed in the Japanese attack.Their widows and children still care. So do we.

STAFF STUDY
To Destroy Farmers

A government paper has come into my possession entitled "A Staff Study, Prepared For The Use Of The Joint Economic Committee, Congress Of The United States, dated May 10, 1986." It is 44 pages long and in the nature of government reports uses ten words where one will do.

It has been excerpted to fit this newsletter. Editorial comment is sprinkled throughout. The key word "interest" has been put in bold print.

The existence of this report proves that our elected Congress knows what is going on in this land and allows it to happen. Why? Like it or not, we are under a Law that our legislators can't override.

One part of this Law states, "The borrower is servant to the lender". Our Congress borrows from the international banks and is servant to them. Your representative in Congress is THEIR, not YOUR, servant. Other than being allowed to fix your parking ticket, its master gives them no say in the government of our country.

Another part of the Law forbids USURY. If this Law is broken, a chain reaction is started. This paper reveals the chain reaction, one event after another that is winding the nation down into ultimate chaos. A basic Law of creation has been broken. The nation will change or the normal and natural consequences outlined here will follow as surely as night follows day.

A STAFF STUDY

(ED: This is tough reading. Stick with it - your government is telling you your fate.)

"Latin American debtor nations had a total external debt of... $318 billion, with yearly interest payment totaling $38.5 billion. Their trade surplus... was only $8.5 billion, or $30 billion less than they needed to pay interest. ...

"Debtor nations generate a large portion of the dollars they needed to pay interest by increasing their exports and cutting their imports;

"... to comply with this strategy, Latin American debtors... reduced their imports from almost $100 billion in 1981 to approximately $60 billion today.... Argentina, Brazil, and Mexico, ... account for 2/3s... (they) increased the volume of their exports by 47%, 56%, and 62%...

"...third world debt problem posed a serious ... threat to the stability of the international financial system. ...policies ...implemented have permitted US banks to... increase their profitability. But... those policies have... injured the economic well-being of other sectors of the US... agriculture and manufacturing in particular....

"Injury To The US Farm Economy

"Little attention... has been paid to the relationship between the international debt crisis and the financial difficulties of US farmers.

"Declining Farm Exports

"First ...decline in farm exports to Latin America. In 1981 ...the US Department of Agriculture reported:

"Developing countries continue to be the major growth area for US farm exports... over 1/2 of US wheat and soybean oil and 4/5s of US rice exports went to developing countries in... 1981.

"... US farm exports hit an all-time high in 1981... Between 1980 & 1981, the Latin American market absorbed almost 1/2 the total growth of US farm exports.

"When the debt crisis emerged in Aug. 1982 ... L. American markets contracted precipitously. ... to obtain dollars to pay interest on their external debt, debtor nations began reducing their purchases of all US exports... this had dire consequences down on the farm.

"... agricultural exports to L. America tumbled 1/3 below ...their 1981 level. ...US exports to L. America exceeded exports to the Soviet Union by 240%, or $4 billion. ...by 1985, the L. American debt crisis was nearly 5 times as damaging to US farmers as reduced sales to the Soviet Union. ...

Falling Commodity Prices

"... to pay interest, debtor nations must increase their exports as well as reduce their imports ...they must ...produce more and compete more fiercely with US producers for a share of world export markets....

"This additional production ...places downward pressure on virtually all major commodity prices. Falling commodity prices ...pushes many (farmers) into bankruptcy. ...falling commodity prices also make it more difficult for L. American debtors to continue servicing their debt.... as ...debt ...difficulties mount, they are pressed to produce and export still more which ...generates additional price declines and increases the financial strains on US farmers....

"This vicious circle is not limited to agricultural commodities. Petroleum, tin, and copper have also experienced major price declines caused by worldwide overproduction. ...falling oil prices have received ...public attention, ... prices have tumbled for nearly every commodity exported by debtor nations.

"Between October 1980 and Oct. 1982, prices for all non-petroleum commodity exports declined 40%. ...downward slides seem to be continuing. ... Commodity prices ...showed no signs of reversing their relentless decline...

Global Overproduction

"Many Americans are under the impression that the current farm crisis is due primarily to domestic overproduction. ...export statistics tell a different story.

"... while US wheat production was increasing by 6 million metric tons (6 MMT) between 1981 and 1985, global wheat production was increasing 75 MMT, or nearly 12 times as much...

"Rising world production ...spark the dramatic decline in US farm exports. ...US agricultural exports peaked in 1980 at 163.9 MMT and then fell by 40 MMT, or 25% ...export volume is now below the 1978 level.

Increased L. American Grain Exports

"... While US production and exports have been declining, debtor nations ...Argentina & Brazil in particular, have greatly expanded production and, as statistics concerning the increasing incidence of malnutrition in both countries indicate, they have increased their exports even more rapidly than production. ...their success in boosting exports has come at the expense of US farm exports.

(ED: These countries, desperate to pay interest, are taking their own citizens' food to sell to obtain the money.)

"Manufacturing businesses and their employees are also victims of the international debt crisis ...more than one million US jobs have been lost because the debt crisis has forced debtor nations to reduce their consumption of US products and increase their exports of competing products to the US... (ED: Recent statistics project manufacturing job loss to be much higher than this.)

Preserving Solvency Or Promoting Profitability?

"...Without new bank loans, debtor nations would have difficulty making ...interest payments. ...if debtors failed... bank profits would fall.

" ... Between June 30 1982, and Dec 31, 1985, the 9 money center banks ...increased their total L. American exposure by only $1.8 billion....

"Even though these 9 banks provided a meager amount of the new money ...to alleviate the debt crisis, their stockholders have clearly been the major - indeed, possibly the only - beneficiaries of Administration policies.

"From the earliest days ...banks increased their spreads - (Additional interest charges) ...These higher profit margins ...quickly translated into higher profits at the money center banks. During 1985, ...after-tax profits rose by 12% at Citicorp, 39% at Chase Manhattan, 16% at Manufacturers Hanover, 31% at Morgan Guaranty, 15% at Chemical, 21% at Bankers Trust, & 96% at 1st Chicago. Continental Illinois converted a $1 billion loss in 1984 into a $134 million profit in 1985. Bank of America was the only member of the top 9 to register a loss. ...Bank profits have grown steadily since the onset of the debt crisis....

"Not surprisingly, bank stock prices and dividends increased along with profits ...In addition to ...higher dividends, shareholders also profited from a substantial increase in stock prices...

(ED: Some individual stockholders think that bank stock ownership is the road to riches. In Europe, bank owners instructed national governments to nationalize all bank stock to get rid of small stockholders. Later, they were ordered to sell it back again to the same international bankers who owned it in the first place - without the small stockholders.)

Growth Or Interest Payments

"... except for the Dominican Republic, all the major L. American debtor nations are generating large trade surpluses. In Argentina, Brazil, and Venezuela, exports were at least twice as large as imports. ... In dollar terms, the total trade surplus of these 10 L. American debtors is $35.6 billion. ... a large part of that trade surplus was generated by reducing their purchases of US products. ...

"However, because of their debt service expenses (interest), debtor nations cannot afford to increase their imports. ...With the exception of Ecuador and Venezuela, interest payments exceed the trade surplus in every Latin American nation ...

"... In other words, after all expenses are taken into account, debtor nations were still not generating enough export earning to operate on a pay-as-you-go basis ...

Impact On US Farm Economy

"... there is a significant chance that it will lead to further declines in international commodity prices and US farm exports.

"... Argentina is getting its $350 million World Bank loan on condition that it... expand the amount of land devoted to wheat and soybean production...

"The World Bank recognizes ...boosting food exports reduces world market prices...

"The World Bank analysis leaves 2 important questions unanswered. Who will purchase Argentina's additional agricultural exports? And... which country's exports will decline so that Argentina's exports may increase?

"... several potential customers for Argentina's additional agricultural exports ...One is the Soviet Union ...the Soviet Union will not need to increase its US grain purchases...

"Another obvious candidate is Japan ...If the Japanese ... increase their purchases of Argentine farm products, US farmers could once again be the biggest losers. ...

"... the recent decline of the dollar against the yen will not give the US farmers a competitive advantage of L. American farmers. ...both Argentina and Brazil devalued their currencies and then pegged them to the dollar. Consequently, both... will always remain below the dollar in value... Argentina and Brazil will appropriate... the benefits that US farmers hoped to reap from a falling dollar.

(ED: Unemployment and industrial loss should result throughout the West to facilitate interest payments to New York banks.)

"A final set of candidates for purchasing the additional Argentine farm exports are Brazil & Mexico ...In effect, all three debtor nations will have more dollars to pay the banks because they would all be purchasing less from the United States."

Conclusion By Editor

The upsetting thing about this report leaked to the public is the revelation that the government officials know as much about the USURY BOMB as we do - and refuse to do anything about it.

If our government will not protect us from danger, they have lost their reason for being. I for one do not feel any enthusiasm for the coming depression followed by war that is the inevitable result of what we have just read here.

Chapter 150

WAR TUNNELS

Ancient Tunnels

Brave men feared to face a Roman line of battle. Valor stood little chance against Roman skill, arms, and training.

To avoid such a meeting the defenders at the Siege of Jerusalem dug tunnels beyond the walls. After the Roman battle line had marched over them, the defenders quickly dug to the surface and attacked the Romans from the rear.

European Tunnels

In the 30 Years War, Germany was devastated. Many survivors lived underground. I was told about them by WW II veterans who had visited old tunnels that connected distant German towns. Some were wide enough to drive wagons and livestock through.

American Tunnels

In Virginia during the Indian Wars many plantation owners built emergency escape tunnels.

Later, colonists, taking an active part in the Revolution, often used the old Indian Wars escape tunnels or dug their own.

During the Texas War for Independence certain Texas farmers escaped invading Mexicans by hiding in underground shelters.

Civilian Shelters

In most places Federal armies were unrestrained by their military commanders. Many Southerners living in occupied areas abandoned homes and possessions rather than chance contacts with lawless soldery. Of those who remained, many concealed themselves underground at the approach of the enemy. Quite often their shelters were simply a camouflaged icehouse or springhouse with a hidden entrance. At the alarm, the inhabitants would slip out of their homes and disappear underground until the enemy left.

Petersburg Tunnels

When I was a young man courting my present wife, I took her to Petersburg to see the Confederate tunnels.

Following a friend's directions we walked to the far corner of a wide field and discovered a small opening made by the rear wheel of a heavily laden truck crashing through a tunnel roof.

Slipping down into the dark recess we found ourselves at a tunnel junction. This junction was the reason the tunnel roof was weak at that point. Two tunnels were open and two were closed from the cave-in caused by the truck.

The tunnels that were open kept us busy that afternoon. Mostly, they were 5 1/2 feet high, cool and dry. In other places, wet. Sometimes we waded waist-deep in water following tunnels that gradually disappeared under water. The blue sky was visible through periodic air vents above our heads.

During the war Confederate military intelligence pinpointed threatened points. The tunnels allowed General Lee to move his army to threatened points unseen by Federal observation balloons and observation posts.

Until the last days of the war every Federal attack was quickly broken by General Lee moving men, unseen, rapidly, and quietly, through his Petersburg tunnels.

Vietnamese Tunnels

The Viet Cong[19], possessing slender resources, were unable to meet the technology of the West on the field of battle.

From the beginning the VC dug underground caches for food, for defense against raiding parties, and for shelter from air attacks. In time these caches were connected by tunnels to neighboring tunnels in their village. From there escape tunnels were dug leading to the open countryside, often a quarter to half a mile or more away.

19 The Tunnels of Chu Chi, Tom Mangold & John Penycate, Random House, NY. 1985

Standard Construction Techniques

"Protection" was the initial force motivating the building of the first tunnels. Soon, the concept of tunnels to support fighting forces became the goal.

A triangle was paced out 50 yards or more to a side. At each point of the triangle a concealed trapdoor led down. Each trapdoor entrance was in view of the other two entrances. A rifleman at one tunnel entrance could defend the other two entrances. Each combat triangle was manned by two VC. One acted as observer, and the other as the fighter.

The construction of the trapdoor was unique. It was made of two layers of planks about 3/4 inch thick laid crossways, about 1 yard square. Watertight plastic or rubber sheeting was placed between. Every crack was filled with water proof material.

Trapdoors were concealed so that an enemy might actually stand on one without knowing of its existence. A great number of the tunnels were used only when combat demanded. Consequently, most times they stood deserted. Grass and foliage grew naturally. The entrances were almost impossible to detect.

Five men were required in tunnel construction. One dug, one moved dirt to the shaft. One pulled the dirt to the surface, and two disposed of the dirt elsewhere.

An initial shaft was dug 3 to 9 yards deep.Ten yards away another shaft was sunk.At the bottom of these shafts diggers tunneled toward each other by sound. When completed the vertical excavation shafts were filled in. Other shafts were dug until the tunnel complex was completed.

Triangles were often dug two or three levels deep. Level #1 might run 30 feet or so and make a dog-leg turn. The dog-leg would act as a blast and bullet deflector, or hiding place for a defender. Behind this dog-leg would be a water proof, blast proof, and gas proof trapdoor leading down to Level #2. Level #2 would zig-zag and in time rise again to connect to Level #1 near another triangle tunnel entrance.

Other tunnels were 3 levels deep containing rooms with sleeping quarters, large storage bins, communication centers, arsenals, command posts, machine shops, and hospital facilities.

The VC relate stories of large 105mm howitzers being kept disassembled deep in 3rd Level rooms. They were brought to the surface at night, reassembled, fired, disassembled once more and taken below ground at daybreak. They were almost never located by Americans.

Complexes

Planners, acting as engineers, laid off the overall defensive position and assigned areas in which individuals were to dig. Each triangle was planned to cover other triangles. In time the network of tunnel triangle complexes grew large. Some occupied many square miles.

Most combat triangles within a complex came within a foot or two underground from other triangles but did not tie in unless there was an emergency. American "Tunnel Rats", fighting the VC underground, might locate a triangle in the middle of a large complex and think it was a single isolated triangle because they could not find a way into the other tunnels.

There are countless instances of strong American battle groups sweeping over areas containing thousands of enemy soldiers deep in tunnel complexes and having to report that few if any enemy troops had been seen.

Tunnel Combat

If the Viet Cong desired to engage an enemy, they would wait until the targeted group got near the geographic center of a tunnel complex and then they would man their tunnel fighting posts. It was very easy to get into a complex. Once in it was difficult to get out alive.

The Americans developed an elite group called the "Tunnel Rats" whose job was to enter the tunnels and fight the VC underground. They were the most successful. Underground combat by others was often disappointing.

The VC would often purposely allow Americans to see one of their fighters disappear into a tunnel. This might cause green soldiers to crowd around the newly discovered entrance. This grouping presented an opportunity for a VC observer at another tunnel entrance to explode a claymore mine electronically, sometimes wounding or killing the entire group.

A VC observer would watch a developing American attack on a newly discovered tunnel. Explosives, gas, and water inserted into the tunnel were contained to a single tunnel level by the remarkable trapdoors. If attackers descended into the tunnels they would usually first drop in a grenade and descend after the explosion.

The grenade explosion was the signal for a VC fighter to ascend through a trapdoor from Level #2 to Level #1 and post himself behind a tunnel zig-zag to wait for the attacker.

According to the VC, the Americans would usually approach with flashlights in hand. The defender would point his weapon around the bend of the dog-leg, fire, and disappear down into Level #2.

If the Americans retired from the tunnel with their wounded comrade the VC would quickly re-enter the vacated tunnel and place a booby trap near the ground entrance.

If the attackers remained in the tunnel, the VC dropped down into Level #2 below the trapdoor and waited. When he heard someone above moving across the trap door he would fire through the trapdoor at the intruder and rapidly retire to the other end of the tunnel triangle and ascend to Level #1 and again wait.

When an attacker was heard below, he raised the trapdoor, dropped in a grenade, closed the trapdoor and placed sandbags upon it.

VC Tunnel Warfare - Summary

In Vietnam, the use of explosives, gas, and water used by the French and Americans against the tunnel defenders was almost always contained to a single level by tunnel trapdoors.

VC defense against tunnel invaders consisted of ambush above ground, and booby traps and a series of tunnel ambushes underground. The technology of the West was neutralized and warfare reduced to a primitive "one on one" contest with an unseen defender waiting in ambush. As is usual in such cases, the defender holds an advantage.

Conclusion

Today, the Soviet and Chinese civilian populations have been provided with massive underground shelters by their governments. There are tunnel shelter entrances in every block. Chinese tunnels, paved with brick and concrete, contain clothing stores, food, sanitary facilities,[20] and escape routes that emerge miles outside the cities.[21]

America's present leftist government has shown that it has no intention of providing the same protection for the American people. Americans are defenseless in event of a communist nuclear attack. In short, if Americans want shelter, they will have to build them themselves.

If the long awaited drouth actually comes we may expect a national food shortage. We may also expect the denizens of the large cities to pour out into the suburbs and countryside seeking the food that remains.

Judging by past actions, we may also expect the present government in Washington to aid the denizens of the cities rather than native Americans.

It may be wise for native Americans living in the country and suburbs to consider constructing and stocking bomb shelters on their property with a distant exit.

If "the bomb" comes, if the drought and food shortages come, if lawless urban denizens flood your neighborhood, Americans can once more go to ground for shelter and emerge after danger has passed.

WAR WITH KINSMEN

Usury has a life of its own - independent of the wishes and desires of men. Once usury is brought into existence and practiced, it takes control from its creators and makes them act in ways they would never dream of acting otherwise.

Based on usury's "requirements" which it needs to exist, and its ability to enforce its wishes, "War Cycles / Peace Cycles"f*War Cycles / Peace Cycles,* Virginia Publishing Co., PO Box 997, Lynchburg, VA 24505. hb, $28/copy. projected that SA would be the next war victim.

The war-drum will not quiet - it cannot quiet. Following its well traveled road to its inevitable end, usury will again require the violation of one of the basic Laws of the universe.

Before the periodic blood bath starts and the "green curtain" falls to allow an "iron curtain" to be built behind it, usury's victim - South Africa - has something to tell the world.

They must use this last short respite to tell the world that they are EXEMPT - exempt from being forced to fight a war with their own kind - and they can prove their exemption to their kinsmen with "points of Law".

Thou shalt not avenge, nor bear any grudge against the children of thy people. Lev 19:18

"I require you to abstain from shedding the blood of men." Antiquities 1:1:2 25J, Antiq 1:3:8.

"Blessed is the man who does not direct his heart with malice against any man." Enoch 44:3

"They forced the Jews that were among them to bear arms against their own countrymen, which is unlawful for us to do." The Life of Flavious Josephus v.6

"Endure for the sake of the Lord ...because the Lord will ...be your avenger ...that there be no avenging here among men." Enoch 50:4-5

The word "man" in most old Hebrew manuscripts is translated from the Hebrew word "ADAM".Strong's Concordance translates "ADAM" as "to blush red". According to our Law, those who blush red are not allowed to raise hands against their own kind. The rule for violators is:

"He who vents anger on any man ...the Lord's great anger will cut him down ..." Enoch 44:2,3

"In case one of their own blood, ...should attempt to confound or dissolve their constitution of government (God's Laws), they should take vengeance on them, both all in general, and each person in particular... that if they were not able to take such vengeance, they should still demonstrate that what was done was contrary to their wills." Antiq 4:8:45

Those who practice the system of usury have hidden the real need - which is the need to borrow money into existence to keep the system of usury going. They have whispered to us of noble causes for which we must fight and die. They have forced us into slaughtering ourselves in the Hundred Years War, the 30 Years War, the American Revolution, the War Between the States, the Boer War, WW I, WW II, and all the rest - millions and millions of corpses of our finest boys. Armies of widows and orphans. The usury practitioners might, overnight, find themselves at war with their intended victims - worldwide!

"When any persons would compel us to break our laws, then it is then we choose to go to war ..." Against Apion 2:38

If South Africa demands her right, under Law, to be free from strife with her own kind, God's people in other lands are obligated to grant this exemption. Those who do not recognize the Law are God's enemies.

According to Law we are not allowed to raise our hand against our own.

Chapter 151

SCAMS

A pigeon glided past the window. A hawk dropped and hit the pigeon knocking him out of my line of vision. A few feathers were left floating. It couldn't have been more than 25 feet from where I was sitting in my office.

I felt like that pigeon. For the "umpteenth" time a man I had been talking to on the phone said he knew where there was $100 million in Arab money looking for a borrower. All I had to do was to locate one. My finders fee would be 1/2 a point. That's $500,000. A tidy sum for merely making a phone call.

If I couldn't find a big borrower - how about a small borrower? one that wanted only $10 million or so? There would be $150,000 in it for me.

The people involved spoke with authority. The banks handling the deals were in South America or the Caribbean. They couldn't be checked out. It is hard to check on banks out of the country. Other than that, everything seemed legit.

In spite of all the talk, of all the "finders" looking for borrowers, the juicy deals, the desperate borrowers, I never knew of a single loan that went through. Was there actually Arab oil money to be had? Why hadn't anyone collected the big "finders fees"?

Much later I was told that those with the money wanted to make loans without paying any fees at all.

The talk about the big finders fees and the big amounts of money waiting to be borrowed stirred the pot. Multimillion dollar borrowers showed themselves the first week. The lenders went directly to the borrowers and left out the finders. Those finders are embarrassed at being taken in and don't like to talk about it. It was a scam.

Farm Loans

Two years ago I received 3 or 4 phone calls from Pennsylvania about a man making farm loans of up to $1 million to all comers. He had Arab money (it always seems to be big blocs of "Arab" money or "Oil" money). The money was available because the Arabs hated American usury banks and were trying to undercut them. Stories got into the newspapers. I was sent clippings. Farmers flocked to get loans.

The borrower had a choice. He could pay back 10% of his income from farm operations each year, or pay 5% (instead of the prevailing 20%) on the loan with the usual conditions. The choice was the borrower's.

The farmer was told he had to put up $10,000 "earnest money". The lenders didn't want to go through the trouble of setting up the loan if the farmer wasn't really interested.

The loans never came through. I understand people went to jail but the "earnest money" was never recovered. I have since heard of several variations of the "Arab money" theme.

The Colorado Offer

Last year I received a call from a prominent lawyer telling me of a group in the Dakotas who had access to tens of billions of dollars. I was impressed. These kind of numbers always impress me.

It seems that a group of European industrialists wanted to help the farmers and help break the back of the usury banks at the same time. They had the money but no machinery with which to make the loans to the farmers.

They had decided that selected individuals across America would have to be entrusted with making the actual loans.

A phone number was given me to call and ask for particulars. My instructions were to keep the phone number secret so as not to let the banking community know about this bombshell soon to hit them.

A charming female voice answered my call. The voice said that she was the executive secretary. No, the president was not in. Yes, there was to be a meeting in Denver this weekend. Only a handful of people were invited. Could I make it? Yes, there would be hundreds of millions of dollars available to be invested.

Whose money? That was confidential. Arab money? Sorry. Terms? I could set the terms. Five percent, ten percent, two percent! Whatever I wanted. Half of whatever I took in I could keep as payment for my efforts. After all, without my help the loans could not be made. The backers of this effort had enough money and were not interested in making any more. They were just interested in helping the farmers.

Security? The farmer's land was the collateral. What bank were they using? Several. She then named several Swiss banks. Under what name was their account? That was confidential.

Oh, one other thing. If I decided to take down a few hundred million I would have to put up a certain amount of "earnest money". The loan operation had to be self sufficient. This money was needed for paperwork and startup costs. How much? Not much. How much? Just a few thousand for each $100 million I took down to lend out. Exactly how much? The amount had not been decided on at that moment. I would learn details at the meeting in Denver. Thank you. You're welcome.

I didn't go to Denver. I called the attorney back and told him that the whole thing sounded like a scam with someone making a hit on those attending, or an establishment sting to entrap those in attendance.

A phone call last month found the Dakota phone disconnected. Another to the attorney involved who attended the meeting disclosed that those holding the meeting and most of those who attended were in prison. A sting? A hit? Both?

Perpetual Motion

Two weeks ago I received an offer in the mail to sell me stock in what purports to be a perpetual motion machine. There is always a lot of talk in conservative circles about the existence of such a machine.

A week ago a young man phoned. He was a Christian. One of the open sincere types. No, he had not seen the machine. He had met the inventor - a wonderful chap. He had also seen other machines the inventor had patented that were simply amazing. The inventor was a Christian himself. He didn't need the money, he felt led to give other Christians a chance to participate in the tremendous profits that were going to be made with this machine in the days ahead. It would be nice if I wrote about it in my newsletter.

The machine? The machine was small, only 1 ft. by 10 inches. It produced 1,350 horsepower. It was run, I believe he said, by either taking hydrogen particles out of the air, or by the transposition of light rays. I've forgotten. This is at least the 15th such machine that I've heard about in the last 30 years. Each one runs on something different.

I asked the young man that if the machine was so small why didn't the inventor bring it with him? He hadn't thought of that. I asked him if he knew anyone who had seen the machine do 1350 horsepower worth of work? No, he didn't. I asked him if he had investigated the inventor's bank references? No, he hadn't thought of that either. The inventor seemed like such a nice man.

I thanked the young man for bringing this remarkable invention to my attention. I took the opportunity to remind him that there were two kinds of Christians who worship two different gods.

One god receives his subjects with open arms "under grace". This god lets his followers do anything they want to do since the "Law is done away with". If he feels that this is his god, he should feel free to go "by faith" and invest in this machine. Another self proclaimed "christian" of the same type could sell it to him. They deserve each other.

The God of the second kind of Christian also saves by "grace", loves his subjects, and expects them to love Him. The love he demands is specific. "If you LOVE me obey my commandments." One of His statutes states that one must have two witnesses. "In the mouth of two witnesses shall a matter be established." Two QUALIFIED witnesses. Neither this invention nor its inventor passed that test. In this world, take all the help you can get.

Innocent Disasters

A man I know and really like heard a story. He was convinced that what he had heard was "foolproof". It was a story about how the use of a certain legal action could keep farmers from being foreclosed. A number of people agreed that the argument was true.

He felt that he had to impart this knowledge to those whom he believed were being robbed of their farms and land by the banks. Since he had to give up his regular employment to do this he charged $750 for his services. The people paying this $750 were farmers in severe financial straits who could ill afford to lose any part of their money.

This man went from state to state and held seminars. He told farmers how to fill in legal papers to file with the courts.

Later, a case based on his argument was actually brought to court. The "foolproof" argument he had been promoting was thrown out. He was arrested and thrown in jail charged with all sorts of things.

This individual may have done the things he was charged with. I believe he was innocent of consciously doing wrong. He was quite sincere in his desire to help farmers. He supported something theoretically correct but not proven.

The courts almost never take the part of a defendant against the banks regardless of the theoretical correctness of the arguments.

The error made by the man in question was in promoting an untried theory. The error made by the farmers was the same. Their desperation made them susceptible.

Conclusion

The present high number of foreclosures combined with a booming stock market provides conditions for both scams and stings to flourish. The level of greed or desperation of debtors will determine the risk a victim will take.

In practically every case the victim could have avoided losing money, his freedom, or both, by investigation. Questions that must be asked include:

1. Is the plan proven? Has it been successfully done before? or is it only in the planning stages?
2. Does the plan require you to put up "earnest money"?
3. Who sponsors the plan or invention? Does his bank and personal references check out?
4. Who has successfully used the plan or invention? You need the names of at least 2 satisfied users whom you can contact. You must also check the users to see that they have not been planted to mislead you.

The above rules may not keep a person out of trouble but they should help. When you hear of an investment that doesn't sound right - use the check list. If it doesn't pass, contact your law enforcement agency. You may keep a widow from losing everything she has.

LAW: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: What do you think of today's law vs Bible Law? K. R. - Virginia

RKH: Originally there was only one law - Bible Law word for word. Today's law is a perversion. In the 9th century Alfred copied his "law of the land" almost verbatim from the scripture. When we landed at Jamestown our law was taken almost verbatim from the Bible. The 6th Commandment says "no killing". It also says that if a man is killed in an accident the offender is not to be put to death. Sodomites (Lev 20:13), rapists (Deu 22:25), miscegenationists (Num 25:6-13) and premeditated murderers (Nem 35:21) were to be put to death.

In recent years lawless politicians and judges, seeking special privilege for friends and themselves have rebelled against God's Law and made state slavery or "imprisonment" the punishment instead of death. In Lynchburg we have had three-time murderers and three time rapists, after short prison stays, prowling the streets again. God's commandments are violated. The rulers and judges of the land who allow this are lawless enemies of God. They have made the land unsafe.

WHITE PEOPLE'S PARTY

The following is excerpted from a hastily written letter sent to newsletter writers and newspapers across the country and received by Hoskins Report last week. It was signed by Glenn Miller, leader of the now "underground" White Patriot Party of North Carolina. I called acquaintances of Miller in NC. They said they believe the declaration genuine. The Washington newspapers have printed parts of the letter. The following are some of the parts of the declaration not carried by them.

Declaration Of War

"... I have pleaded with the federal dogs to leave me alone and to allow me to work peacefully and legally within the system...

" ... The federal dogs ... destroyed the White Patriot Party on July 25th 1986 when they used desperate convicts seeking federal favors and lying ambitious federal agents to obtain guilty verdicts against me, Stephen Miller, and the WPP. Their star witness... testified that he had met me on 3 occasions, and that I had given him $50,000 and instructed him to obtain stolen and illegal weapons and explosives and to train members, (he) lied throughout the trial.

"I had never before in my entire life seen (this witness) prior to the trial, and I underwent a lie-detector test after my trial to prove it. I was innocent but found guilty ...

Restraint

"Since July 25, 1986 I have been under ZOG (Zionist Occupation Government) orders not to have any contact whatsoever with any WPP members... This ... effectively stopped the White Patriot Party, an organization which took 6 years of my life to build. ZOG has proven by his deeds against me and the WPP that he will not allow effective White resistance ....

"Two years ago, I held a press conference in downtown Raleigh, NC which was published throughout the country. I stated that if ZOG framed, entrapped, and/or imprisoned our leaders on trumped up charges, that the WPP would declare war against ZOG, because war would then be our only hope for salvation... All 5,000 White Patriots are now honor bound and duty bound to pick up the sword and do battle against the forces of evil.

"I, Glenn Miller, now this 6th day of April 1987 do hereby declare total war. I ask for no quarter. I will give none...

"Strike for the 16 millions of innocent White babies murdered ...Strike for the millions of our people who have been raped, assaulted, and murdered ... Strike for all the millions of our race slaughtered in wars. Strike ... for all the outrages committed against our People.

"I realize fully that I will be caught quickly. My face is too well known ... Do not be discouraged when I am gone. ... My fate will either be assassination or the death penalty. I order my 3 young sons ... to swear upon my grave to take my place in battle when they come of age. And I order you as members of the WPP ... to declare War against our enemies ... Millions of our people lying in their graves cry out for you to act...

"I hereby invoke the following orders issued by our founding fathers;

"'...whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it, and to institute new government. When a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government, and provide new guards for their future security.'....

"I, Glenn Miller, leader of the White Patriot Party, do hereby declare the separation of the Southern States of the Confederacy... to be totally and absolutely separated from the ... federal government of the US, because said government is now, and has been for decades, in a conspiracy to ...destroy our race and Christianity... I realize there must be ... organizations that must work legally within the system, but without the underground now begun by the WPP they will suffer the same fate as I and the WPP... I realize too, that many... will attempt to distance themselves from us... they offer no hope or solutions to our People...

"We offer peace to all White law enforcement officers, but we promise death to those who attack us ...

"I ask (my friends to) bury me in the Miller graveyard near Dillon, SC in my WPP uniform. ...and the following songs played in order: Tomorrow Belongs To Me, The Old Rugged Cross, Ride of the Valkyrie, and Dixie... I ask God to forgive me for my sins and for being so slow to battle.

"Farewell... Let the battle axes swing smoothly and the bullets fly true..."

(signed) Glenn Miller, Leader, WPP."

The White Patriot Party

The above "Declaration" sounds about as extreme as one can get. However, for the last year or so I have watched the establishment back this protest party and its leader into a corner.

When at long last the establishment got the WPP into court on the accusation of a rival radical leftist group, one charge followed another like nails being hammered into a coffin. They started with the charge of making threats, to attempting to buy stolen government munitions, and ended with the charge of sedition and the attempted overthrow of the government of the United States of America.

Miller says the establishment worked hand in glove with radical minority groups in bringing the charges and that they used perjured witnesses. It is a fact that Miller is ready to die for his beliefs and probably will die. A man who thinks he is going to die doesn't often lie.

Observation

I don't know Glenn Miller. I talked to him twice on the phone trying to get a story for PIA (forerunner of HR). He had been jerked around so much by the establishment that he was very guarded in what he said. He was so guarded that it was hard to get a story.

My concern is the thing that those in power are doing to their political opposition.

The WPP was a viable protest political party. The United States allows such parties. If you didn't like the Republican or Democratic parties you could vote for the Communist party or the WPP. As long as it existed dissidents had a place to go.

Establishment courts separated the WPP from its leadership and destroyed the party. They destroyed an active right wing opposition political party. This thing didn't take place in the USSR, it took place in America. Think on that. Even the Communist Party with its history of mass murder is allowed existence in this country.

A new age has descended. Sedition trials not seen since the early 1800s and early 1941 are taking place. Grand juries are impaneled and constantly grind out charge after charge against more and more people. Wild accusations such as "Conspiracy to overthrow" or "conspiracy to commit" are bandied about as everyday chatter. They are not directed against the communists who have sworn to overthrow America but directed against the patriot right wing sworn to defend America.

No effort is made to contain the international communist conspiracy in America, much less abroad. None against Jewish terrorist groups which were charged by the FBI as committing more acts of violence than any other. None against the Puerto Rican bomb throwing nationalists.

The banning and suppression is directed against competing political parties of patriotic nationalist leaders whom dissident Americans have traditionally rallied behind. You can now vote for the Democratic/Republican party or the Communist party or its fronts. The WPP has been removed as one of your choices.

North Carolina's Glenn Miller is only the latest to be forced into an act of defiance. If secret agents were planted in his organization, as is usual today, it is doubtful if either he or his group can maintain their protest for a week.

Conclusion

The business of America is business. Free political expression allows business to prosper. Today's repressive political and social activities do not produce a climate that encourages business or any sort of long term economic progress.

George Washington tended his plantation and speculated in land until British repression gradually ruined his plantation and those of his neighbors. The British ruined with excessive taxes and they forbade political dissension. What did the British do that the present establishment is not doing?

Glenn Miller believes that he has been denied his legal right of political protest under the Constitution. Many across the nation agree with him. He believes that he is being railroaded on trumped up charges.

Believing that he has exhausted all legal remedies he has fallen back on the words of the founding fathers; "When a long train of abuses ... evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism it is their right ... to throw off such government, and provide new guards for their future security ...".

Miller now believes his only choice is to pursue the above dream and die for it, or spend the rest of his life in prison. Some choice!

Time and events will disclose whether or not his choice was in vain. If by some miracle he manages to survive he will have won. We know that the establishment negotiates with and gives aid to blood soaked tyrants from one end of this globe to the other whom they cannot kill or intimidate, why not with a domestic political opponent?

To defuse the growing numbers of Glenn Millers across America the ruling establishment must return law and order to the country. It must allow free political expression and opposition political parties. It must reform itself and punish its minions when they run riot over the rights of others.

If they don't, it is almost certain that a future George Washington will lead an avalanche of protest that will sweep away today's injustices and replace the nation's present rulers with ones who will respect and obey the God and Constitution of the People of the United States.

Editor's Note

The above was written before the editor discovered the depths of establishment deception. Glenn Miller was a government informant. He informed against other members of the WPP sending them to prison while he was given a new identity and sent to live in another part of the country.

The editor now believes that Glenn Miller put together the WPP of NC on government orders to trap and discourage local patriots and derail the formation of political protest.

SLAVS & WAR CYCLES: "Dear Mr. H.: Your War Cycles / Peace Cycles & Our Nordic Race are better history than I received in college. I am a Slav of Polish descent. I have brown hair and blue eyes. The Nordics must have come through and left their print a thousand or so years ago." M. J. - California

ED: Many Nordics lived in Poland. Some still do. However, the early sons of Japeth and Ham were also "sons of man" (Heb: sons of "adam" - to blush red) and fair. The pure Hamites are now gone except for remnants in the Atlas Mountains and small groups in the Iranian deserts. The warrior sons of Japeth (Slavs) from Poland saved the West by sending their armies to save Vienna from the Turks. Some Slavs can be as blond and blue eyed as some Westerners. God blessed the Slavs in their own right. The West owes its survival to their distant kinsmen - the Slav.

Years ago I worked in the main office of the old Francis I. duPont firm at 1 Wall Street. A real "eye opener" for me was the "Smith Indicator". This man, who I'll call Smith, was a wealthy customer of one of the duPont stockbrokers. The man was always wrong about the stock market - he never did anything right.

He was treated with great respect when he walked into the board room. Everyone sought his opinion. He was a walking dictionary. He read everything about the stock market and talked to everyone.

He believed everything written in the newspapers. When the media said the economic news was good he believed it, and he bought. When bad news was reported, he believed that too, and sold. Whatever he did the stock market did the opposite. He was never right. Being wrong only stimulated him to greater efforts.

Stock brokers discussed Smith's opinions by the hour, whether he really believed his own opinions or whether he was putting them on. They had stopped smiling over Smith years before. Now they took him seriously.

Some investors believe in research, some in charts. Smith beat them all. He had a proven track record going back for years that no one could match. Only fools argue with that kind of success. People seldom joke when they put hard cash on the line.

Uncertainty dissolved when Smith actually bought. The word flashed around the office. In an instant there was a frenzy of activity. Orders had been stacked on desks for weeks waiting the signal - was Smith going to buy or was he going to sell? Which?? Smith bought! This meant it was time to SELL!

Hurried fingers circled the SELL on the order forms. Brokers jostled and quietly cursed as they queued up at the usually vacant order window. Alarmed cage personnel dropped fingernail files and crossword puzzles and tried to create order out of instant chaos created by the avalanche of orders.

There was no possible way to get all the buy orders to the floor of the New York Stock Exchange on one day. The cage personnel worked long hours overtime typing buy orders onto tape, and made it ready to enter the first thing the next morning.

In 1959 I can remember days when the volume touched under a million shares. Compare that with 200 million shares today. A hundred thousand shares buying or selling in that kind of market made things happen. Other brokerage firms called asking the reason for the sudden duPont activity. What did they know that others didn't? The word passed around the Street.

Smith was a walking gold mine. The man's private fortune was worth millions. He was also worth millions to Wall Street's stockbrokers. The "Smith Indicator" was one of the few indicators on Wall Street that proved profitable year in and year out. When he died from a heart attack, Wall Street went into mourning. I heard that he was given one of the biggest turnouts the Street ever gave for a valued associate.

The Way Things Are

Good news is bad news
Bad news is good news
The best news is no news.
Stock market adage -

At any one instant there is good news and bad news. When the stock market rises, only the good news is printed. When the market starts down, only the bad news is printed.

The very BEST news is printed at the stock market top. The WORST, at stock market bottoms. This is why "Good news is bad news - and bad news is good news."

The ideal stock to buy has neither good news nor bad news. That's why "The best news is no news."

CLASS 52C

The Korean War broke out on a Sunday. I was a lifeguard at Virginia Beach. The next day, along with thousands of other American boys I rushed to the recruiting office to volunteer. I chose Air Force pilots training. Many of us ended up as Aviation Cadets in Class 52C.

Some months ago I attended a reunion. Fifty attended out of the 250 that started out together. Fifty are dead in the war. It has been 35 years since we flew together. No one has changed. They looked to me as they did the last time I saw them. A little grayer perhaps.

Getting "history" straight was our pastime. My roommate, Jimmy Carden from Roanoke, Virginia, didn't die when he had a flameout and had to land in the Gulf of Mexico as had been reported. He simply blew up on takeoff. No one knows why. One of our classmates saw it happen. It's a little thing - but still - . Did Hank's throttle stick? or did he freeze? His wing touched the ground and he spun off into the trees. Not a mark on him, but he was dead. He was from some place called Crossville, Indiana. I never could find the place on a map.

Isbicki, our Polish classmate, was shot down and taken prisoner in N. Korea. He was taken before a firing squad 7 times because he would not confess to war crimes. He lost 50 pounds in little over 5 months. His stories confirmed those of our returned Vietnam prisoners. The Oriental neither thinks as Westerners do nor treats prisoners the way Christian people do.

After 35 years these men have progressed in their chosen fields. Most are struggling like the rest of us. Some have risen to the top. Others have achieved what they wished to achieve and have retired. All are intensely patriotic. If ever called on to defend their country - to a man they would volunteer to take to the air - bifocals, pacemakers, bypass surgery and all.

These men were the cream of America in 1951. They still are.

Drive Through Georgia

Driving home to Virginia through the back roads of Georgia confirms the fact that there are almost no traditional family farms left. In two hundred miles I saw fewer than 10 farms of the sort on which I lived as a boy. The countryside seemed to consist mostly of scrub woods, grazing pastures, and a few large chemical farms. On the back roads one can drive for 10 miles without seeing a living soul. This rural base supports rich, sophisticated Atlanta with its scores of skyscraper banks.

If the countryside of Georgia is an indication - and I believe it is - the day of reckoning will come. There is no more blood left in the Georgia countryside to suck.

LETTERS

DOCTORS PANIC: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I am a nurse in a large hospital. Three months ago the doctors "pooh-poohed" AIDS. These same doctors now wear caps, masks, rubber gloves, the works. One doctor will not enter the room with us when we treat AIDS carriers. He stands outside the door and gives us orders." S. G. - North Carolina

WAR WITH USSR: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Is war with Russia imminent or will it probably hold off until 1988 or beyond?" H. S. - Virginia

RKH: Massive spending for military hardware for the imaginary cold war conflict with the USSR works so well it is doubtful if a hot war could improve on it. In fact, a hot war might ruin a good thing. I believe that the US would prefer to fight someone expendable rather than ruin the present US/USSR marriage of convenience. S. Africa or some of the Arab nations appear to have been selected. Perhaps both. If people appreciated all the hard work, the years of diplomatic maneuvering, media indoctrination and advance planning needed to bring off one of these wars they would have much more respect for those in authority.

S. AFRICA: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I am completely bewildered with the news reports concerning South Africa. You know your own American people. Exactly what can we expect from them here in South Africa." M. A. - Johannesburg, S. Africa

RKH: The people you are talking about aren't MY people! My people fought them at Sharpsburg. They wouldn't bury our dead until the stench forced them to. After the war they heaped taxes and tariffs on us and reduced us to economic slaves for the next 100 years. They took our land. We were a conquered province with black troops as police. Blacks were placed over us to rule us. These are the same kind of American leaders you are dealing with today. Look past their smiles. They don't represent Americans North or South, they represent only those who put them there. That's what rules America under the guise of a republic. They will force you to fight them if they can because they need a war for business purposes. You can't surrender - they won't accept it. Their demands will be impossible. War for you is inevitable. You had better fight smarter than we did. Look at the bright side.

Dying in the conflict is infinitely better than submitting to the aftermath. Ask us, ask the Scots, ask the French Algerians, ask the Germans, the Rhodesians, ask your own kinsmen who fought them at the turn of the century. Have a good day!

INTEREST FREE: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: My union has a lot of money in various funds. Is there some sort of joint venture non-interest bank where we can put our money to be faithful to God's Law?" D. J. - Oregon

RKH: Nothing has come of the many plans to open such banks. I have heard of banks actually opened that were nothing more than interest banks in disguise. God is faithful. No-interest banks will open in time. Present banks may convert to no-interest joint venture. I would like to see state and municipal joint venture no-interest banks.

PIGS ATE YANKEES

During the War Between the States the Yankees attacked my grandfather's regiment at Cross Keys. It was wild. Yankee shouts, rebel yells, shells exploding, cannon firing, deadly musket rattle on the left and right, the horizon filled with writhing blue bodies trying to get to you with bayonets.

My grandfather fired, loaded, fired, loaded, fired, and - they were gone. The smoke quietly blew away. The wounded moaned. The dead lay everywhere.

A hat raised on a ramrod was instantly torn by minie balls. They were over there. You didn't stick your head up to look around.

The Yankee generals were proud. They wouldn't send a truce flag to tend to their wounded and dead.

After a time the pigs came. They ate the bodies. They ate the badly wounded, too. At first, a shout or the sudden noise of a shot would make them scatter. But only at first. They returned and ate until gorged. Nothing would make them stop.

Later, someone offered my great-grandfather some pork. My grandfather was revolted. He replied. "I'll kill Yankees if I have to, but I'm not going to eat 'em!"

In our family we know better than to eat pig. When you eat pig you eat a scavenger. When you eat a scavenger you eat what that scavenger has eaten.

The Pig

Swine are to the animal world what the turkey buzzard is to the bird world. They do the job they were created to do. No rotten carcass, stinking offal, or rancid garbage remains where pigs root.

Most people have better sense than to eat scavengers. Dogs, cats, rats, skunks, turkey buzzards, wolves, bears, foxes, hawks, swine and shark are best left alone. Their insides are often infested with parasites. Their flesh contains a substance different from other animals, a strong chemical substance to cope with the carrion they eat. It makes their meat taste different. Most scavengers such as pig and shark can be eaten only after the meat has been treated by "curing" or soaking to "draw the taste". But curing or soaking doesn't change what is in the flesh of a scavenger.

AIDS CARRIERS

In Africa the monkey has been discovered to carry the virus. The monkey is a scavenger. African blacks eat monkey scavengers and drink their blood. AIDS is sweeping through the black population. It is believed that all scavengers living where the virus is located will in time become infected if they are not already infected.

Almost two years ago it was reported that pigs in the Caribbean carry the AIDS virus. This is not surprising - the pig is a scavenger. Blacks in the Caribbean eat pigs. Their rate of infection is growing by leaps and bounds.

Not only is drinking the blood of infected monkeys believed one cause of the spread of AIDS among black Africans, but the media reports that whites in America contracted AIDS by merely having infected human blood splashed on them. They didn't have to drink it.

Imported Meat

Almost half the beef consumed in the US is imported. The point of origin of imported beef does not have to be reported if mixed with US raised beef.

If beef, imported from the highly infected Caribbean region is mixed with domestic beef and the fact does not have to be reported to the consumer, logic says that the information that Caribbean pork is also being mixed with domestic pork does not have to be reported to the consumer either.

How well is imported pork tested? Is imported swine meat really free from infection? Why is it so important? Pigs that carry a disease can also die from the disease they carry. Who ever saw a pig dead from AIDS?

No one that I am aware of. Why not? The logical answer is chilling. It could be because infected pigs reach the American supermarkets FIRST![22]

Dead Animals

AIDS virus in human blood transmits AIDS to people. AIDS virus in animal blood is believed to do the same.

Pork carcasses prepared for public consumption contain residual blood. Sausage bought at the supermarket and placed in water will turn the water pink. The pink is blood. This blood carries whatever infections the slaughtered animal carried. An unreported quantity of this pork is believed to be imported from the Caribbean region.

Nurses touching contaminated human blood contracted AIDS. Millions of loving hands across America are covered with pork blood each morning as they shape sausage patties for breakfast. Will they contract AIDS infection from contaminated pig blood?

22 If banning infected imported pork would cause the default of the exporting nation, there is doubt that a ban would be allowed.

Will merely washing pork blood from the hands remove possibility of infection? We will know in 5 to 7 years. That is the incubation period for the AIDS infection.

We know that nurses caught AIDS in spite of washing their hands. We are told that the virus entered minute cracks in their chapped hands. A nurse's chapped hands are no different from a housewife's chapped hands. It would seem that infected blood from a pig may be just as infectious as infected blood from a human, and just as capable of transmitting the disease.

Other Scavengers

No one would dream of eating a turkey buzzard. A surprising number of people will eat a crow in spite of seeing them fly away from car-killed animals on the sides of roads.

The smooth skin catfish is a scavenger. The best bait to catch him is rotten meat. If it is rotten and smelly enough the catfish will eat it.

Too many cities and towns pour their wastes directly into America's waterways. A portion of the sewage is AIDS infected. Fresh water has its scavengers. Salt water has its own, too. It has to or it would be overwhelmed with dead things. We know about the shark. But what about the crab and lobster? Farmers living next to the Rappahannock who have a dead cow on their hands are presented with the choice of digging a monstrous hole in which to bury the dead cow or just quietly slipping it into the river.

Carcasses floating in the river are covered with crabs. Alongside the river both blacks and whites catch these same crabs and take them home to feed their families. Other crabs are canned, cooked and shipped worldwide. If the carcass were diseased, does the cooking kill it? What about those who handle the scavengers before it is cooked? Does the virus enter the chapped hands of one who prepares seafood?

In spite of contrary claims, water immersion does not cleanse carrion of its diseases. Water is not a very good cleansing agent at all. In fact, water has been found to be the culprit in the spread of typhoid and other such diseases in the past.

The crab, lobster, oyster, and clam are all scavengers. As the level of infection in America's polluted waterways increases, the risk of scavengers living in these waterways being infected also rises.

The Lawful Christian community has long had its list of approved and forbidden foods. This list is simply a common sense list of "healthy" vs "unhealthy" foods.

Our Law, to which we have pledged obedience, requires us to stay healthy. It orders us to refrain from eating scavengers which may be diseased. "Health" in exchange for obedience!

This does not mean that the Lawful never get sick. Almost everyone gets sick at times. It simply means that unlike the "lawless" community that is constantly riddled with sickness, disease, and maladies of one sort or another, those who watch what they eat suffer to a much less degree.

A man gains nothing if he makes a billion and loses his health.

IRANGATE: "What is the meaning of 'Irangate'?" W. D. - Idaho

RKH: Aid to Contras fighting communists is admirable. North's covert collaboration w/Israelis to help one Moslem nation slaughter another is reprehensible. Murder is Law violation. Westerners dealing with strangers in their own lands have violated the Law by being there. They were not kidnaped on the "high seas" or in Western lands. The "captives" have burned their bridges behind them.

Incidentally, in Greece, a Westerner's conflict with a Greek is presumed to be the Westerner's fault unless proved otherwise. The logic is that an outsider should not be there in the first place. Admirable logic. Get used to it. It's the future.

PEOPLE OF IRAN: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Please comment on the people of Iran." S. S. - Ohio

RKH: The 3 sons of Noah divided the world (Book Of Jubilees). Japeth was given the cold, Ham the hot, and Shem the land between. Part of Iran was occupied by descendants of Ham, part by Shem. Next, part of the 12 tribes (Shem) settled there. They were numerous at one time. Last, Hamitic peoples poured in with the Arab, Turk, and Mongol invasions. (Mongol is an asiatic name for Arab.)

Originally, Iranians were racially identical to Westerners. There is a strong and growing strain of the Hamitic. At one time they were almost entirely Nestorian Christian. As the people changed they dropped Christianity for Islam. "My sheep hear my voice" is a basic determination of bloodline. The "adam" trait visual to the eye is another.

Chapter 156

LIKE PRODUCES LIKE

The Bible & The US News & World Report

The Bible says that like produces like. On April 13, 1987 the USN&WR concurred. Now it can be believed.

The USN&WR article dealt with a study of identical twins. The study shows that identical twins sired by law abiding parents tend to be law abiding even when placed with lawless adoptive parents. On the other hand, identical twins who are children of lawless parents tend to be lawless even when placed with law abiding adoptive parents.

The article carries statements such as "heredity has a greater influence on one's personality and behavior than either one's upbringing or the most crushing social pressure." And "... a host of findings in behavioral and animal research

- conclude that genes - profoundly influence human behavior and personality."

Experts are quoted as saying: "The evidence is so compelling that it is hard to understand how people could not believe in the strong influence of genetics on behavior.... The human mind, rather than being a tabula rasa to be filled in from birth by family and society, is 'hard wired' before birth with a predisposed personality ... Sociobiologists believe that such traits as aggression, criminal tendencies and intellectual ability may be biologically inevitable."

Five Thousand Years

The God of our early Christian fathers was called "God The Word". He was strict. He demanded that his Laws be followed to the letter. Violators were severely punished.

Those guilty of violating His Law against premeditated murder were ordered to be put to death. Execution to take place immediately. For thousands of years, generation after generation, Christians have obediently put murderers to death. Families with a tendency toward premeditated murder have been weeded out. They are now rare. In fact, it is extremely difficult to find someone in the Christian community who will take pay to kill, or even use force to make someone bend to their will.

Practically speaking, when a middle class white can be hired to cold bloodedly stick a knife in someone it is an event worthy of a news article.

In this present age of lawlessness our people, for the most part, remain lawful. Except for the occasional maverick, the genetic lines of those who would violate God's laws have been cut off over the generations. Like produces like.

Amerian Indians

The modern day American Indian is a descendant of braves who survived thousands of years of perpetual warfare. Their never ending wars allowed only skilled and efficient warriors to remain alive to produce children. Inefficient warriors died young without offspring. As a result many Indian villages maintained a ratio of five or six women to each brave.

Horse stealing provided payment for wives. Efficient thieves bought many wives and had numerous offspring. Inefficient ones - none.

The pinnacle of Indian society for thousands of years was occupied by their very best thieves and murderers. The inefficient were just as efficiently cut off.

An inspection of prisons in the western United States near Indian population centers bears witness to this selective breeding. The prison population in these areas is almost exclusively Indian. A white face is a rarity. It could not be otherwise.

Thieves and murderers have been bred for hundreds of generations - and thieves and murderers are the result. Like produces like. The Indian is no longer made chief and given wives as reward for murder and theft as were his ancestors. The law slaps him into prison. Today's Indian, a product of a hundred generations of selective breeding, is punished for doing what he was bred to do.

To reverse these unsocial traits may require as many generations of selective breeding as it took to put these traits in him in the first place. Those committing capital crimes would have to be eliminated. Preventing offenders from reproducing their own kind over the next several thousand years will result in a more socially acceptable type. This would be traumatic to the Indians, to say the least. Their prison population, however, is proof that their present conduct is traumatic to those on whom they prey.

Africa's black leaders are today living proof of the success of selective breeding. Seemingly, only the most vicious and bloodthirsty rise to become presidents of black nations in a one time "free" election.

The black in the United States has not fared so well. What is an obvious survival trait in Africa is considered a criminal trait under Western Law. The jails in New York, Philadelphia, and Boston furnish abundant proof. They are almost entirely black. Blacks do best the thing they have been bred to do. This gains them leadership of nations in Africa and lands them in prison in the West. Like breeds like.

The Problem Of Kings

The problem of the king is to maintain control over his own citizens. Disaffected citizens revolt. History shows that the king's police and army are reluctant to use force against their own kind. They even join the rebels.

French troops couldn't be trusted to suppress French citizens. Swiss troops were brought in. The Pope brought in foreign troops. The British used German troops in America when their own troops exhibited sympathy for the colonial cause. The Lincoln armies recruited many tens of thousands of Germans during the War Between the States for the same reason.

The US Today

The Government of the United States does many things disapproved by most Americans. It finances, feeds, and arms world communism. It unmercifully taxes American citizens. It sponsors forced busing, unlimited immigration, and casts a benign eye on an unbelievable high crime rate while protecting the offenders.

History says that at some point Americans may come to feel that peaceful efforts at reform are of no avail. They may even feel it necessary to adopt the more aggressive stance of their forefathers if they are to return the nation to obedience to the Law. This has long been a topic of conversation.

The King's Counter Move

The King who rules America has learned from the past. He has taken every precaution to protect himself against a revolt of his subjects. Knowing that the army is the ultimate enforcer of his will, he has carefully selected its personnel.

While the majority of America is composed of the same people - 75% of the Army is made up of minorities. The largest part of whom are blacks, Indians, and Hispanics - a mixture of the first two with white added. These groups hate the majority group in America with an intensity that is difficult to understand unless one also understands what has gone before.

Most of the personnel making up today's American army has been bred for 5 thousand years to violate the laws of the majority population they are supposedly dedicated to defend. If like produces like, this army as now constituted would not hesitate to violently suppress the majority population if it defied the will of its king.

Escape Clause

There is a time limit, however, on the use of this army. If this carefully selected, trained, and indoctrinated force is to be used as the ultimate whip to keep the nation obedient to unpopular edicts, it must be used sometime during the next two years.

The reason is, if reports are to be believed, the AIDS virus attacks minorities at a rate many times greater than it attacks the majority group. It is entirely possible that today's army may soon dissolve in terror as it flees decimation by plague. A non- existent army is of no use to the king if not available to enforce today's unpopular laws.

Conclusion

There is a more rational and tolerant attitude in the land toward the study of genetics and inherited behavior than there has been in the past. This is seen by the USN&WR article on inherited characteristics. It may also be time to examine more closely the suggestions of the Indians and Blacks that they be allowed self determination.

If the minority populations are allowed to peacefully go their way and rule themselves under their own law it will end the irritation of forced association of lawful and lawless populations. It will also sidetrack the approaching "difficult times" so loudly predicted by black and Indian leaders. It will also sidetrack the solution offered by a cynical politician which was "let 'em fight it out".

Self determination would have an enormous economic impact on the nation. Every sector would be affected, from law enforcement, tax, political, and every aspect of the economic scene to the entire social services systems. There will be many questions that will have to be answered. None are insurmountable.

Self determination for blacks, Indians, and Hispanics at the same time self determination and self development for whites who are demanding a lawful society may permit America's streets to once more become safe.

Since like produces like, it appears that separation of the lawless from the lawful is the only practical way this goal will be achieved.

Self determination is an idea whose time may have come.

LETTERS

"Dear Mr. Hoskins: In October the Treasury Dept. will send our T- bill interest checks to our banks. Why?" M. J. - Nevada

ED: The expense. Then, too, the illusion must be maintained that the Treasury needs private banks. Politicians and bankers dread the day people realize that taxes and private interest banks are not needed and that interest from public debt is nothing but a sweetheart deal.

"Dear Mr. Hoskins: Two things:

1) "A nice man lives down the street. He doesn't work and attends all the local conservative meetings. A newspaper article just identified him as an employee of an international police agency. You are right. Watch nosy nice people who don't work.

2) "Alonzo Shadman in his book 'Who Is Your Doctor & Why', states that in the course "of 20,000 surgical operations, 'I never gave a blood transfusion and never had a patient die from lack of it. I have given many 'transfusions' of normal salt solution. It is better and safer.' He goes on 'The poisons that produce ... hepatitis, ... venereal diseases, malaria, ... are in the blood even before the symptoms appear.' He says that blood used for transfusions contains all the diseases of the donor. Perhaps with the AIDS plague this may be something to look into.'" I. B. - New Jersey.

"Dear Mr. Hoskins: What is your opinion of the antics of the electronic preachers?" A. M. - Georgia

ED: Those who preach God's Law aren't given the spotlight by the establishment. There is no way for them to build a $100 million dollar ministry. There is little that happens in America that is not planned.

"Dear Mr. Hoskins: Daily News Digest believes that the country has already been surrendered to the Soviets. The leaders of militia organizations recently rounded up by the government believe so too.

They had gathered arms and recruits to wage guerrilla war if the Soviets marched in. The US must have been ordered to eliminate pockets of possible anti-communist resistance. American militiamen felt they could not fire on their own countrymen and so allowed themselves to be herded into prison. There is now no white anti-communist militia under arms in the country. There are Black, Hispanic, and Jewish militias in America that are protected by the authorities. You say in one of your articles that the government did this to break up growing political opposition. This is not party politics. It is treason! M. A. - Washington, DC

"Dear Mr. Hoskins: In Kentucky our Governor is making a great effort to attract Japanese here to live. Our cities are filling up with them. The banks have teller's names in English and Japanese. My instinct tells me this is wrong. What is the law in this matter?" H. C. - Kentucky

The judgments for violating this law are many and are contained in Lev 26:14-35. Kentucky politicians who traffic with strangers fight God and his people. God is not mocked.

Letter from South Africa

The media war against South Africa appears to be over. The reelection of the leftist National Party constitutes surrender.

The powers that rule SA selected an extreme liberal to shadow box against their incumbent National Party. This wildly liberal opposition advocated turning the country over to the tender mercies of rampaging blacks.

The media hammered at the SA voters telling them that if they didn't vote for their ruling National Party the opposition crazies would be elected and would do to SA the same thing they did to Rhodesia.

The media frightened the voters so badly that they went to the polls to vote once more the same old liberal left wing National Party back into power. The newly formed opposition Conservative Party was defeated 2/1.

Now that they are re-elected and in firm control of government, with the media, the army, the blacks, and the communist/capitalist world coalition solidly behind them, the National Party announced through their Washington Embassy newsletter[23] of August 1, 1987, the following:

"The pro-National Party press saw the May election results as ... (a) mandate to move more quickly ... the Government has announced its support of ... the release of Mr. Nelson Mandela, the legalization of the African National Congress, and the abolition of remaining discriminatory laws...

"In the second policy development ... within one month ... Natal and the black state of kwaZulu are expected to institute ... a joint body to ... decide together on matters affecting the two territories and their people

"Thirdly, the Government has welcomed ... (a) proposal for multiracial government .... and political participation for blacks ... In the months ahead ... even more rapid movement can be expected."

Meanwhile: "Dr. Andries Treurnicht on May 20 said 'the Afrikaner ... refuses to be treated as a minority group in our own fatherland ... If the swing to the Right continues ...we will undoubtedly have a very interesting election result in 1989.'" S.A. Observer

Dr. Treurnicht should be informed that is it doubtful that either he or his Conservative Party of Afrikaners will be around for the 1989 election.

Further protests on the part of the white Afrikaner will constitute rebellion in the eyes of the National Party and will win them graves in South Africa or cells next to Glenn Miller in the United States.[24] Help can now come only from God.

The man who deals with strangers betrays both the Law and his nation and should be avoided.

PHINEHAS PRIESTHOOD

America's Law

Early America lived by Law. At Jamestown in 1607, Captain John Smith opened the Bible and dispensed justice.

On the frontier, from the foothills of the Blue Ridge, down into Tennessee, over into Kentucky, and up into the Ohio, Virginians lived by the Law. There were few courts and almost no jails. People studied the Law. The Law was judge. The obedient enforced the law. Justice reigned.

Where outlaws appeared the "+" superimposed on "P" carved into a tree or chalked on a wall, reminded the outlaw that the "Law" was not done away with and that violations would be punished. Every man was expected to be a Christian and every Christian man was expected to be a Phinehas priest.[25] Law violators paid the penalty laid down by the Bible in the "judgments".

Criminals were rare. So rare that their existence was carefully noted.

The Revolution

When the Revolution broke out ministers of The Church of England as well as the royal judges scampered back to England.

Land disputes in Piedmont Virginia were settled by a judge who was selected by his neighbors - Charles Lynch.

"Judge" Lynch held court under a tree that stands 20 miles south of Lynchburg.[26] That tree became known as the Lynch Tree. Those who had justice dispensed to them were said to have been "lynched". Judge Lynch never sentenced anyone to be hanged. Capital crimes were punished according to universal Christian Law before reaching Judge Lynch.

Back country settlers boasted that they had instituted "Lynch Law". It meant that they were self sufficient and Lawful. Today's media proclaims Lynch Law to be merely Lawful, not "legal". To them only "legal" counts. Today's "legal" is often un-Lawful. The "legal" establishment constantly warns those wishing to be lawful, "Don't take the Law into your own hands".

25 Phinehas - "zealous for his God, and (who) made an atonement for the children of Israel." Num. 25:6-13 This same Phinehas, "executed judgment and so the plague was stayed". Ps 106:30

26 Charles Lynch's brother, John, founded Lynchburg.

War BetweenThe States

After the South's defeat the radicals put black strangers in power to govern whites. Murder, rape, robbery were rampant. Punishment unknown. Some of the greatest criminals were "law-men" themselves along with the soldiers assigned to enforce black rule. Criminals openly walked the streets. "Legal" law could be bought by anyone not a southern white. Blacks led by radicals put Southern whites under tribute and took their land and homes.

Rape, torment, crime, and fear taught Southerners that those who had captured the United States government offered nothing but more misery.

They turned to God the Word.

> In the beginning was the WORD, and the word was with God, and the WORD was God...and the WORD was made flesh, and dwelt among us..." John 1:1-14

God the WORD to the Christian is the Laws, Statutes and Judgments personified in Jesus.

The Law requires the Priest take charge of administering the Law. These Priests were named:

> "Ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, a holy nation." 1 Pet. 2:9. "Ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests." Ex 19:6

Obeying scripture, the sign of Phinehas again appeared in the land. Rapists and murderers were quietly taken from the streets, tried, convicted and executed.

The establishment was infuriated. Lawless themselves, they protested mightily as their lawless agents disappeared one by one.

The big city media made every executed rapist and murderer appear a saint and their punishment appear as murder. It did no good. With the criminals gone, law and order returned. The entire nation took part.

Phinehas

Bible students know that within the Christian priesthood lies the Phinehas Priesthood. Numbers 25:6-13 tells the story:

> "One of the children of Israel came and brought ...a Midianitish woman ... and when Phinehas .... saw it, he rose up from among the congregation and took a javelin in his hand ... and thrust both of them through. And the Lord spake ... saying. Phinehas, the son of Aaron the priest, hath turned my wrath away from the children of Israel, ... that I consumed not the children of Israel. ... Behold I give unto him my covenant of peace: ... and his seed after him, even the covenant of an everlasting priesthood: because he was zealous for his God, and made an atonement for the children of Israel."

The one who was slain was a powerful and influential Israelite named Zimri. His comment before his execution is the typical comment of the lawless:

> "Zimri ... said ... thou deprivest us of the sweetness of life, which consists in acting according to our own wills." Josephus Antiq 4:7:11

Disciples Of Phinheas

Two years ago a story appeared in the paper where Joseph Franklin, a man in a western state, had been charged and sentenced for shooting at least a half dozen interracial couples.

As a matter of interest I phoned the commonwealth's attorney who prosecuted the case. His answer to my questions confirmed my suspicion when he laughingly commented that the prisoner had made a "religious defense". He was puzzled how the "crime" had anything to do with religion. The prisoner appeared to be a clean cut, polite chap who didn't belong to any organization.[27] The prosecutor couldn't understand it. He himself was married to a stranger and saw nothing wrong with it. He had never read the Bible about the Priesthood of Phinehas.

Carolina Porn Shop

A reader sent a news article about an event that occurred last year in North Carolina. Unknown gunmen entered a porno-shop and shot 5 people. No money was taken. The reporter could find no logical reason for the "killings". He theorized that it might be a struggle for territory between contending mobs. Almost as an after-thought he noted at the end of the article that the porno-parlor was a known rendezvous for homosexuals.

> "If a man lie with mankind, as he lieth with a woman ... they shall surely be put to death; their blood shall be upon them." Lev. 20:13

27 The question of "who" is responsible for the law is answered by: "In case anyone of their own blood ... should attempt to confound or dissolve their constitution (laws), they should take vengeance on them, both all in general, and each person in particular ... if they were not able to take such vengeance, they should still demonstrate that what was done was contrary to their wills." Josephus "Antiquities" 4:8:45

Subway Vigilante

Much has been written about the "subway vigilante". Those who fear the lawless seek protection from those who enforce the law even when it is called "vigilante". Common sense tells them that everyone near a vigilante is safe. Only the establishment condemns him. They know who he is ... thus, the endless effort to punish him.

California Incident

In California a man was convicted of cutting off a young girl's arms and then raping her. The establishment released him after a short prison term. The public was outraged. Great mobs gathered wherever the released prisoner appeared. The law that deters criminals from committing deliberate mutilation on helpless victims states:

> "Thou shall give ... hand for hand." Ex. 21:22-24

It was required that the offender be treated as he had treated his victim. But there was more. The second crime committed was rape:

> "If a man find a ... damsel ... and the man force her (rape),... then the man ... that lay with her shall die." Deut. 22:25

The man was freed. The ancient law was violated and was being flaunted. Citizens rose in protest everywhere the offender went. Hundreds met. The establishment became alarmed at this demonstration of the Phinehas spirit. The offender was hidden and placed under guard. The news intimated that any one of a thousand may "have taken the law into his own hands" and dispatched the guilty on the spot if found. The media may have been right. Everywhere there are those willing to sacrifice themselves if need be to secure the reward promised the faithful.

Florida

For many years "traitors to the laws and their own nation" Maccabees 5:15 allowed criminals to prey on the people. The criminals were protected. Crime is now no longer controllable. It is beyond the ability of the state to protect the people.

To restore order, the legislature in desperation passed a law allowing law abiding citizens to obtain permits to carry concealed weapons. A quarter million applicants are expected. Soon an army of law enforcers will be armed and on guard to enforce the Law with the tacit approval of the state.

Lawless liberals and their media wail protests over this threat to the rights of their agents. Nevertheless, in Florida, the tide is turning. The lawless will violate the Law at his peril. An entire state is awakened.

Conclusion

Christian America was founded as a lawful Christian land. God The Word was accepted as final. The faithful were expected to reverence God The Word and enforce His commandments.

In time there came another god to America proclaiming another law. There are now two gods in the land - two gods with two separate distinct law systems. Each considers itself supreme and the other unlawful.

There has never been and can never be agreement between the two. Those who obey God The Word receive protection, aid, help, and comfort from others who obey.

The lawless opposition, with their lawlessness protected by their courts, promotes robbery, murder, and loathsome diseases that threaten all.

Events are forcing man to make a choice. Like it or not, agree or disagree, God The Word is once more being held up as the final and sole solution. The priests once more walk the land. Those who offend God The Word are beginning to meet them face to face.

Even now, vast areas of the nation have re- instated the death penalty. Entire states with millions of people are being encouraged to arm to enforce the laws of God The Word. The tide is flowing.

There will emerge a new land when the tide reaches its flood. It will cause the same economic and social repercussions as the resurgence of Islam has had in the lands of Esau. Soon - woe be to the lawless when confronted with one of the priesthood who believes:

> "Cursed be he that doeth the work of the Lord deceitfully, and cursed be he that keepeth back his sword from blood." Jer. 48:10

"Dear Mr. Hoskins: Why is the Japanese Stock market so high?" B. R. - Florida

ED: Japan's banking system was taken over by the international bankers at the end of WWII. Japan's great industries were turned into stock companies. The banks force Japanese privately owned businesses to borrow money into existence to survive. This money is spilling into their stock market forcing it to fantastic heights. It is also reaching our stock market. In time the plug will be pulled. Japan's private companies will not be able to pay their debts and will fall into the hands of the international bankers as happened to US companies in 1929. The European, Soviet, and US fish have been landed. Now it is Japan's turn.

"Dear Mr. Hoskins: Why was the "Apocrypha" removed from the Bible?" B. L. - Colorado

ED: The first "inspired" King James version contained 14 more books than it does today. These 14 "inspired" books were removed in 1825. Each of these censored books enthroned "God The Word". After being removed they were named "Apocrypha" as a put-down. Most are considered more "inspired" than many of the books left in today's condensed Bible which is also said to be equally "inspired" with the earlier uncensored edition. No one will accept blame for being "inspired" to having censored our latest "inspired" condensed Bible. Without "Apocrypha" restraints the new KJ Bible can be interpreted to nullify God The Word, thereby creating a new god. That is why the 14 inspired books were censored out in the first place.

"Dear Mr. Hoskins: What do you think about the popularity of recent Japanese books exposing the international bankers?" K. T. - Pennylvania

ED: The Japanese lost WW II. The international bankers took over the Japanese banks. Spoils of war. They now control Eastern and Western banking and industrial systems. It doesn't matter what the Japanese think about anything. The borrower is servant to the lender. The Law is the Law.

"Dear Dick: We must have some unifying force. If it is The Law, we have failed to understand it as such to this date. People cannot be brought under law against their will." N. I. - New York

ED: Where Christians control, the Law is supreme. To do away with one of the 10 Commandments is unthinkable. The LAW is the ONLY rallying point. Each and every one of the 10 commandments. Plus nothing - minus nothing. The obedient are brothers. The disobedient are enemies. The latter include those "Christian" preachers who give 49 reasons God's Law is no longer in force. The lawful vs. the lawless. The lawless are sending the country to hell on a toboggan. Discussion time is over. It's one side or the other.

VOLGA GERMANS: "Dear Dick: Enclosed is a book "Wir Wollen Deutsche Bleiben", the story of the Volga Germans, published by Halcyon House, P. O. Box 9547, Kansas City, MO 64133. $20. The Volga Germans are descended from those invited to come and live in Russia centuries ago. During and after WW II the Soviets roughly used them. See p. 328 - 329." C - Missouri died. Following are excerpts from these two pages:

"1941-1942. Banishment order executed during winter months (sending Russian Volga Germans to Siberia) ... The people were given 4 hours in which to prepare for the evacuation. Anyone resisting... would be shot ... Each person... was allowed one suitcase... Some... took all clothes... Others took as much food as they could... those with the extra clothing... had the best chance of surviving the cold in the north where little or no preparation had been made for their arrival .... we shall probably never know how many died on their trip to the forced labor camps ... of Siberia .... They froze to death en route to Siberia in temperatures that were often minus forty degrees...

"General Dwight D. Eisenhower was given the task of returning to Russia those who had fled... 'Crusade In Europe'... fails to mention... the military command performance that saw Germans from Russia beaten with clubs and rifle butts, and jabbed with bayonets while being loaded into boxcars for their trip back to the Soviet Union, imprisonment and execution. In Europe the Germans begged to be shot. Some committed Suicide.

"Germans who had quit Russia to fight for Germany also had been detained on Ellis Island, at Fort Dix and Camp Ruston in the US. When they refused to walk aboard the ships, and rifle butts failed to move them, they were fed knockout drops in coffee and carried aboard by American soldiers...

"And what of the banished who survived? ... Volga Germans from as far as the Central Asian Republic of Tadzhikistan ... they seem to survive in a gale of silence."

ED: I am an American Southerner of Anglo Saxon descent whose kinsmen experienced the same sort of attention from the same people as the Volga German Saxons. This I can say with absolute certainty. We are not going to go away. They fight us - they fight Him! HE is our refuge and strength. HIS day will come - and they know it!

UNFILTERED NEWS

MARCUS GARVEY: "Mayor Koch yesterday announced support for rescinding the mail-fraud conviction of Marcus Garvey (1887-1940), the Jamaican leader of the Back to Africa Movement of the 1920s." NY News, 5 Aug. 87.

ED: A bit late. If the establishment had not stopped Garvey most of America's blacks may have gone back to Africa with him. 20 million in N. & S. America belonged to his organization and 50,000 were camped at Newport News waiting to be taken on board when he was arrested and his ships confiscated. (See Teutonic Unity by E. S. Cox)

ANTI-SAXON: "Anti-Apartheid or Pro-Soviet? ... the ... Act which Congress ... (passed) last October prohibits US imports of any 'article' from ...South Africa. ... The Statistics are jolting . ...chrome ore from the Soviets surged to a whopping 6,440 gross tons per month ... compared with ... 479 gross tons... antimony from Russia has risen 98 times ... Soviet ferrosilicon ... 1.8 million gross pounds compared with 692,970 ... imports of ferrosilicon manganese from Yugoslavia ... 3,270,157 gross pounds against ... 2,168,352, platinum bars ... up 5 times; rhodium up 3.5 times and zinc up 4.5 times. ...

"One must ask why the US should believe that racial injustice in South Africa warrants action drastic enough to harm this country, but should embrace trade with the Soviet Union, which puts millions of its own people in gulags and commits untold atrocities abroad." Barron's, Aug. 3, 1987.

ED: The last time the Soviets got hard up the US embargoed Rhodesian Chrome making the Soviets the only world seller of the metal at several times the usual price. Barron's is to be congratulated on its perception of S. African conditions.

CREATING MONEY: "The Board of Governors have no ... facilities to increase or decrease the Nation's M-1 money supply...

"The bankers canonized rhetoric that the market forces determine their prime and primary interest rates is downright nonsense ... the checkbook money the bankers lend is created by commercial bankers themselves out of nothing and at virtually no cost to them. If the bankers did re-lend ... the public's savings, as they commonly claim, there would be no growth in the M-1 money supply "It is the commercial banks ...interest rates ... that are the forces ... driving individuals, business, industry and agriculture into defaults and bankruptcies and throwing millions out of work.

"It is time that the public becomes aware that deflation, recession and defaults are a built-in cyclical characteristic of the commercial bankers' Bank Money system in order for them to eventually reap their real profits - the forfeited, intrinsic value assets of the borrowers. In other words - swap debt for equity." Peter Cook, Treasury Monetarist, Box 86, Wickliffe, Ohio 44092, $20/yr.

MONEY: Balance of payments is out of control cries the media. It is inferred that the fault lies with Americans who are spending money overseas that should be spent here.

American dollars can be borrowed into existence anywhere in the world. If those who own American banks also control the foreign banks - checks drawn on these foreign banks will be honored in the US. Instead of billions of dollars being sent from the US overseas, billions of Euro-dollars are being borrowed into existence overseas and then sent to America. These Euro-dollars have never seen America before, but they spend as well as those borrowed into existence in the USA. A private bank can hide a lot of hanky panky.

An investigation might show that much of today's stock market buying is being done by Americans with Eurodollars borrowed into existence from foreign banks owned by the same people who own our American banks. Certain non-regulated foreign banks require little collateral from a borrower. A bank could lend millions to whom it liked and then default. The borrowers could use the borrowed funds to buy American corporations on the stock exchanges and then re-sell them to holding companies & friends. No cost, no investigation, no paper trail, and a bought congress could dump it all on the American taxpayer.

THE OPPORTUNITY OF 1987

The Chinese have a word for catastrophe. It is the same as the one for opportunity. The two diametrically opposite words are represented by the same written symbol. You can't have the one without the other.

While looking at the catastrophe one must look for the opportunity. But first:

What Happened?

Interest and principal payments siphon money out of circulation.

The money supply MUST increase at least by the amount being siphoned off.

The following chart shows that for the last 8 months the rate of INCREASE of the M1 money supply has been DECREASING.

MONTHLY M1 INCREASE/DECREASE

	monthly m1	Dow	1 mo	6 mos	12 mos
sep	751.1	2597	0.32%	0.21%	5.43%

Deflation

If mortgage and principal payments take up 12% of the money supply and the rate of increase drops below 12% - there is a CRISIS.

Events now show that a crisis was in the making with the M1 money supply rate of growth decreasing for 8 months. The trigger was supplied by Chemical Bank's "unexpected" move in raising its prime rate 50 basis points to 9.75%.

These bankers aren't stupid. They read the same statistics from the Federal Reserve Bank that you and I do. FRB statistics have shown that a crisis was in the making.

With an impending crisis everyone expected LOWER interest rates to avert a crash. It is not election year and there is no reason for the banks to trigger a crash just now. Lower rates would send the stock market higher, prolong the boom, and re- elect the party in power. Higher rates would stop the boom and crash the stock market.

Chemical RAISED interest rates. It crashed the market.

The Result Of Higher Prime Rates

To obtain Federal Reserve Notes to pay a mortgage, people throw their assets on the market for whatever they will bring.

Stocks and bonds are dumped. Nothing is sacred. Gold, houses, horses, cars, boats - EVERYTHING is sold that can be converted into Federal Reserve Notes to pay the mortgage.

The usurers won't accept anything but Federal Reserve Notes in payment. It's part of the usury contract the borrower signs. If payments were allowed in gold or anything else most borrowers would not be forced to bankrupt, and the banks would not be able to take the borrowers' collateral. The usury system would lose much of its charm and profit.

The usurer must be able to foreclose if he is to become the master and all others his slaves.

Post-Crash Anouncements

Following the 1929 crash there was a rash of statements by illuminaries to the effect that everything was basically OK and that we have nothing to fear but fear itself. The same is happening now. Talk does not increase the M1 money supply. Action does.

Increasing The Money Supply

In a Usury System a government has only three ways to increase the money supply. The first;

1) Tax Cut.

The tax cut is the quickest way to put money into circulation. Tax monies that would be paid into government coffers are instead retained by debtors to pay bills.

Instead of a tax cut, however, our government officials are talking about a TAX INCREASE. This is NOT an accident. They know what they are doing.

The second way for the government to increase the M1 money supply is:

2) Monument building.

Governments borrow money into existence to build highways, airports, bridges, flood control, institute programs like "war on poverty", and furnish other give-away programs. This puts money into circulation.

Instead of this the politicians are talking about "cuts" in the budget. Stopping spending. Stopping money from going into circulation so that people can pay their debts. They are talking about balancing the budget. Again, they know exactly what they are doing and what will happen when they shut off the money supply.

The third, and traditionally the best way to increase the M1 money supply is

3) War.

Tanks, guns, planes and ships cost hundreds of millions. If shot up they must be replaced. If not, they become obsolete in 5 years and must be replaced.

War

The book, War Cycles / Peace Cycles, shows why the Arab states and S. Africa have been chosen as adversaries for the next war, a war long planned which is supposed to get us out of the next planned depression.

The Arabs and S. Africans won't be able to weasel out of the war by surrendering. That's unacceptable. If they try, the US will do something to them that will make them fight. The Arabs may be required to do something like get baptized, or kiss the cross and renounce Allah. The white S. Africans will have to agree to be ruled by blacks, dig ditches for them, and share their women with them.

Yes, the Arabs and S. Africans will fight when the time comes - like it or not. Our economy depends on it.[28]

Again. There are only three ways a government can force people to borrow money into existance to increase the money supply: 1) Tax cuts. 2) Monument building. 3) War.

1929 Comparisons

There IS order in chaos.

From 1921 to 1929 the stock market rose from near 64 to 386. In the 1929 crash it declined about 50% to near 200. The recovery rally came up to almost 300. This was again almost a standard 50% commodity retracement.

The 1987 crash low was close to 1618, or about a 50% decline from the 1987 top of 2748.65 to the 1974 bottom of 570.

If the expected recovery rally materializes, it should take the stock market averages up to near 2183.

What's Next

The scenario is written out in War Cycles/Peace Cycles. There is no reason to more than briefly touch on it here - what happened last time and what may likely happen again.

---

28 It is now 2008. I was right about the first part. The second is still on the back burner.

Get out your copy. Read it. Refresh your memory.

Jubilee

For the record. A number of Bible scholars have stated that October 1987 is the beginning of the Jubilee year. People are going to be forgiven their debts - whether they like it or not. The debt ridden farmers of Kansas with their thousands of mortgaged acres did nothing last year for fear of upsetting their masters. Let's see what they do when they are "liberated" from their debts - and their farms.

Look Ahead

You have read War Cycles / Peace Cycles. If the path ahead gets extremely bad there will be money difficulties. Be ready to tell your local government officials HOW to issue scrip- tallies.

Food

Look to the emergency food supply you set up in the 1950s. Make sure your automobile is in good running order. If a food shortage starts - be prepared to move if you are near urban areas. Friends and family will be your haven and protectors.

If the establishment can't enforce its version of the law, it is likely that you will be on your own. When I was a boy all streetcar conductors carried pistols. Grocery clerks, too. These times will return at some point in time.

YOU are the only one who can make your home your castle. Own and be able to use a firearm. "He said unto them ... he that hath no sword, let him sell his garment and buy one." Luke 22:36-38

Remember

The Lord did not set his love upon you, nor choose you, because ye were more in number ... But because the Lord loved you, and because he would keep the oath which he sware unto your fathers. Deut 7:7,8

Remember who you are. Remember His promises. God has not forgotten you. Don't you forget your God.

FORCED INTEGRATION: "Judge Russell Clark .... ordered a doubling of the Kansas City, Missouri School district's property tax and imposed a 1.5% surcharge on businesses ... to pay for ... school desegregation." Spotlight, Oct. 19, 1987

ED: The mailed fist shows. Tribute is imposed. Lawmakers have been supplanted. Judges appointed by the establishment rule. The establishment is in debt to the international bankers. According to law "The borrower is servant to the lender". America is governed by rulers called "judges" appointed by representatives of the international bankers. Thus, we are ruled by strangers and pay tribute without representation. Wars have been and will be fought for less.[29]

INTEGRATION SOLUTION: James Farmer said, "... desegregation has been followed by ... 'white flight' from the cities ... The only solution ... is to create a situation where there is no place to run ..." News Leader, Sept. 9, 1987.

MARRIAGE: "Establishment Media likes to hype the idea that traditional marriages are on the decline and that most children live in broken homes. But the fact is that in 1985 71% of the entire population lived in households headed by a married couple... 78% of all families with children of their own were still two-parent families ... 75% percent of all children under 18 lived with both parents. These figures come directly from the Census Bureau." Spotlight, Sep. 14, 1987.

LETTERS

BANK DEFAULTS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: The banks are in danger of defaulting their debt in 3rd world nations. Doesn't this represent a danger to us?" G. H. - Arkansas

ED: Nobody defaults on the banks! Mexico belongs to the Mexicans. Their government belongs to the bankers - "The borrower is servant." Same in the USA. Don't get "what belongs to whom" confused. The Mexican government nationalized (confiscated) much private industry. It is now exchanging this confiscated private industry for the national debt owed the international bankers. The government is doing what it is paid to do. Property transfers can take place during inflations as well as deflations. The bank owners end up owning Mexican industry. It didn't cost them a dime.

In exchange for canceling debt, called "default" by the media, concessions must be made. Sometimes it is the Mexican kind. Sometimes it is control of a nation's banking system, collection of import taxes, or exchange for public lands - whatever. Nobody defaults on the banks like the Germans did before WW II!

Look at Germany now! Germans own NOTHING worth owning in Germany. They don't own their industry, banks, media, government, or army. Censorship is draconian. Occupying armies force compliance. The world can see. Pay up or you'll get the same!

USSR ATTACK: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Wouldn't Russia attack us if we have an economic collapse or chaos resulting from AIDS?" A. - Canada

ED: The cold war is too profitable to exchange for a hot war. I cannot picture a war of missiles. It may well be that the SOVIETS (many of the Western Russ were exterminated in the 1920s) will be invited into the US by our own US government officials to restore order.

APOCRYPHA: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Tell me something about the Apocrypha? I didn't know that it had ever been in the Bible." W. L. - Arkansas

ED: The Apocrypha was in the Bible from the very earliest days. It was probably the MOST quoted of all scriptures by our grandfathers. The LAW could not be put away as long as the Apocrypha constantly hammered its supremacy. A prime establishment problem was the Books Of The Maccabees. The conditions then parallel conditions today. It tells of the fight to live by law and restore the worship of God the WORD. The Apocrypha is the single most dangerous piece of literature to anyone wishing to conquer our land and destroy our God. It had to be removed. It was. Its removal disturbed few mainstream preachers. Still doesn't. Neither do rape, murder, or sodomy. Most don't worship the same God our grandfathers did. They are easy to spot. They never mention God's Laws, Statutes, or Judgments. They call those that do - "controversial".

SUBWAY VIGILANTE: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: If enforcing the law when no one else will makes a Phinheas Priest - the Subway Vigilante, Bernhard Goetz, is one. Note the 'establishment' tried him "umpteen" times and at last put him in jail for a 6 months sentence. He did not use a religious defense so far as I know." J. F. - New York

PHINHEAS PRIEST: "Dear Dick: When I was in Philadelphia two or three years ago I read about a man there who had walked up to an interracial couple and killed them. He used a religious defense. I suppose this was another Phinheas Priest. O. J. - Virginia

---

JAPANS VIEW: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: While in Japan I met a former major in the Japanese army, who served in the Philippines during WW 2. I mentioned that Japan had lost the war. He bristled: 'No, we did not lose the war, we only changed weapons!" S.J. - Oklahoma

---

DESEASES: "Dear Dick: Reports say that AIDS attacks blacks many times the rate of Northern Europeans. It attacks mixed breed races at a rate between blacks and N. Europeans. All races have hereditary diseases except the N. European. It would appear that AIDS attacks those races with hereditary diseases first. If this is true, to survive we will have to follow God The WORD and 'come out from among them and be ye separate.' Is 52:11. N. Europeans in America who innocently integrate at job, school, or play, may die with AIDS like the homosexuals." H. W. - Idaho

APOCRYPHA: "Dear Dick: I use an old KJ Bible I bought at an auction. It contains the 14 books of the Apocrypha. There is all the difference in the world between Bibles with and without these 14 books. Modern day anti-Christ "Christians" couldn't get away with what they are doing if the modern censored KJ Bibles retained these books." W.H. - Illinois

BLOCKBUSTED: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Last month G.S. from Texas said that a $98,000 house declined in value to $28,000. A friend in the Austin neighborhood of Chicago paid $210,000 for a house. The neighborhood was blockbusted and he finally sold for $10,000. I'm sorry for the Texans, but this is really being 'blockbusted'." H. F. - Chicago

ED: The establishment has long used blockbusting to force our people to borrow from them for new houses. It has made them tens of billions of dollars. It's big business. To protest the practice lands one in prison.

"Dear Mr. Hoskins: God spoke the world into existence and all in it. Our ancestors worshipped 'God The WORD, i.e. the Commandments, Statutes, and Judgments, as personified in Jesus Christ. "Christian" ministers who say that God's Law is put away are in fact denying the existence of Jesus Christ as defined by His commandments and are by definition - anti-Christ. Right?" E. G. - Washington

ED: Right. If God The WORD is put away - God becomes whatever the speaker says he is. This is "anti-Christ".

APOCRYPHA: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I am an Episcopal priest. Our 'Great Bible' contains the Apocrypha. It's there for those who want guidance. P. E. - North Carolina

APOCRYPHA: "Dear Dick: Went to all the book stores. None had the Apocrypha. Got one from a friend. Read it. Every other word DOES uphold and glorify God The WORD. Now I understand why it was censored from the KJ Bible." W. H. - Pennsylvania

---

ONE VIEW: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I do not understand my Bible as giving me the job of fighting Satan. Under provocative circumstances Jesus did not fight. In the meantime we are to show His loving and gentle nature." G. E. - California

ED: "He said unto them ...he that hath no sword, let him sell his garment and buy one....And they said Lord, behold, here are two swords, And he said unto them, It is enough." Luke 22:36- 38

In the beginning Jesus gave us the Commandments, and the statutes and judgments to enforce them. He told us what to do to those who violated His Law. Our refusal to obey has created the world today.

SCRIP

We are still here. British royal governors made trade agreements with the Indians. In exchange they allowed the Indians to kill Virginia's settlers at their pleasure. We lived through it. They are gone. We aren't.

We accepted the worthless paper money of the Continental Congress, and survived.

We accepted the worthless paper money of the New England Puritans, bought their slaves that they assured us was their God given right to sell to us, and then had them turn around and confiscate them without returning the purchase price. We lived through that.

We have lived through four great economic booms and three busts since this country was founded. We will live through the 4th. Not only will we live through it but we grow stronger and we will continue to prosper. Why? We grow stronger because we have been this way before - and we know the rules.

The borrower is slave to the lender." Our government borrows from the international bankers and is their servant.

It is doubtful if America as we know it will be in existence in another 10 years, but, Virginia and the rest of the nation will be here ... the states, the counties, the villages.

We were here long before the Frankenstin's Monster was created in Washington DC. We will be here after it destroys itself, after the political hucksters, and their bank masters, have scattered before the whirlwind they have unleashed. We will continue, and we will continue to prosper.

Money

Civilized societies require money. PIA[30] Issue #79 told about treasury bills - descendants of the ancient wooden tally. Properly used, they could be the tally's replacement.

The book War Cycles/Peace Cycles gave the history of the wooden tally that establishment histories are so careful to omit. We in Virginia used the wooden tally for almost as long as there has been a United States. We remember. It left no bad aftertaste.

Issue #130 told of the on-going effort by groups across America to persuade the states to issue their own money. Included was a boiler plate bill to present to state legislatures to help the effort to re-establish scrip as the currency of the land.

Issue #140 gave the history of Confederate scrip. The different issues of national, state, county, and municipality were represented. There is a great deal of theory in talking about money, but it is an historical fact that we fought a war against overwhelming odds for 4 long years and almost all of it with virtually nothing but paper scrip. It is also a fact that until the very last it served its purpose better than anything in circulation today.

The Coming Demand For Scrip

Today we have about $22 dollars in IOUs coming due worldwide for each $1 in the M1 money supply. When times get hard and money is scarce, as fast as a dollar makes its appearance a debtor will pay it against his bank debt. The credit and debit cancel. The dollar disappears from circulation into the bank. People are reluctant to borrow new money into existence during hard times. The money supply tends to shrink. Still later, money virtually ceases to circulate and no one but the government will borrow it into existence.

About 18 months to 2 years after the 1929 crash, money disappeared. There was no money. This phenomenon is built into the usury system. It has happened before once each cycle. Last time in 1896 and before that in 1843.

The banks and their government flunkies did little that was helpful for a long time. The banks were busy foreclosing. Governments spent their time driving people off their lands when they failed to pay taxes.

The people couldn't wait. They were starving. Anything that works, anything that is fair, anything that is agreed upon, can be used for money.

There wasn't time to establish an elaborate wooden tally system. There wasn't time to establish a t-bill system. Americans just printed and issued scrip into existence. Scores of different issues, hundreds of different issues. Corporations issued scrip. States issued scrip. Individuals issued scrip. It was accepted, and it worked.

This Time

Please take time to grasp the full implication of what may one day be placed in your hands.

Scrip is issued by a king. the king may be King George, the Confederate States, or your state, county or city. Whoever issues scrip is for that moment - king.

Scrip that circulates supersedes whatever medium of exchange that does not circulate. In this case - Federal Reserve Notes. FRNs can only be brought back into circulation with the force of stronger king. Today that king is the Establishment in DC.

But, at this moment, if my information is correct, the king in his seat on the Potomac is riddled with AIDS. He has brought strangers into our midst and armed them to back his powerplay. At the peak of his power he has fallen sick.

These strangers are now armed almost without restraint. A food shortage could make them turn their backs on him and rebel. The king may be too sick to do anything about it. In that case we will be on our own.

If this happens, the king may never be able to reinstate the FRN to replace scrip. It may be that your State or County may become king by default. God save the king!

Now

History tends to repeat. A period similar to the one past may recur. It is also likely that the same solution will be used. So that you will know, and know what to advise, the following examples of scrip are shown.

Examples

The following is taken from the book Depression Scrip of the United States, by Ralph A. Mitchell & Neil Shafer.

> "Becasue of bank failures ... inability to collect taxes, people simply had no money to spend. ... various forms of emergency currency or scrip were issued. The first ... appeared as early as 1931 ... by February of 1933 ... there were over 400 communities using some form of emergency currency ...
> "Whenever a government fails to provide an adequate supply of currency or coin to maintain commercial trade, the people will step in and provide their own." .
> "1933 was the year that issuance of scrip reached its highest point ..."
> "Aside from those of the US, issues (have) ... been identified ... from ... Austria, Bulgaria, Canada, Denmark, Ecudor, France, Germany, Itay, Mexico, Rumania, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland ... China, Finland and the Netherlands."

The example below gives an idea of the quality and the large amount of scrip that was put into circulation at that time. Then, there were large numbers of companies capable of printing bank notes. I don't know what the situation would be today. I do know that the will to have them printed must come before the printing.

Attention: Mr. John J. Gorman, Commissioner,

Gentlemen:

We are pleased to submit herewith for your consideration our bid for the furnishing of Steel Engraved Scrip, as follows:

4,000,000 Pieces of Steel Engraved Scrip, consisting of five denominations, engraved and printed on both sides, using 100% new White Rag, with localized water mark to consist of center design with a basket wove tint or something of that nature surrounding the emblem, in other words, it will be an all-over water mark; certificates to be numbered in one place on the face and to have a prefix letter ..... $7.60 per thousand.

Same specifications as above, except using Crane's No. 29 Bond ..... $8.32 per thousand.

4,000,000 Scrip Certificates, engraved and printed from steel plate, both sides, consisting of five denominations, using 100% new White Rag, with a centralized water mark only, numbered in one place on the face and to have a prefix letter ..... $7.55 per thousand.

4,000,000 Scrip certificates, same specifications as the foregoing, except using Crane's No. 29 Bond ..... $8.27 per thousand.

Delivery will depend altogether on the length of time it takes to manufacture the paper. If the paper is to be made with an all-over water mark, that is, a center design surrounded by a basket wove tint or some other design of tint, it will take four weeks to get the paper made. We can, however, start making shipment of 200,000 pieces of scrip ten days after the receipt of the paper, and 200,000 pieces daily thereafter.

If a center design only is required then the paper can be made in about two weeks. We can, as above stated, make shipments in ten days after receipt of paper of 200,000 pieces daily.

The prices quoted are all F.O.B. Detroit, Michigan, and if awarded the contract we will provide full insurance for safe delivery.

Yours very truly

After the crisis was over the company redeemed every piece of scrip at face value. In addition to the above examples, there was both Confederate and Virginia treasury scrip in circulation - much different from bank notes which were looked down on by the average citizen.

Later, the depression of 1929 forced other widespread scrip issue. Lynchburg's Craddock-Terry Shoe company issued scrip that could be exchanged for shoes - just one of many such issues.

ED: Choosing law vs lawlessness is for the Israelite adamite only. Everyone of our people knows right from wrong. The scripture says:

"He showeth his WORD ... his statutes and his judgments unto Israel. He has not dealt so with any nation: and as for his judgments, they have not known them." Ps 147:19-20

Knowing, we disobey. Therefore, our punishment shall be the greater.

CRASH THE DOLLAR

How To Crash The Dollar

Crash the dollar? It's simple - if you are a money-changer.

Take a US dollar to the bank's money-changer to exchange for another country's money and you will be given only 95¢. They pocket 5% for their trouble.

Bring them back the 95¢ converted into someone else's money and they will give you only US 90¢ in exchange. They take 5% coming and 5% going without effort or risk. That's the way it is done. They do it every day.

Not only that, they determine what the US dollar is worth every day. If they want the US dollar to be worth 1.10 foreign, that's the price they set for the exchange. If they like, they can exchange it at 1.15 the next day and 1.20 the day after. The dollar's value drops lower and lower and there's not a thing you can do about it.

When the dollar goes up, billions are made by currency traders. They buy money contracts. They know from their friends whether the banks are forcing the dollar up or down. With scores of top level management in the know and hundreds of money- changers, this kind of information always leaks to the select few. Industries can be made rich as the dollar drops. They underprice foreign competition. It's great if you have information from the money-changers. You know what to buy or sell. The same industries may be forced to close down and lay off millions of workers when the dollar goes up and foreigners underprice them in turn.

The international bankers have a monopoly on the creation of money. They have a monopoly on money-changing. They have a monopoly on determining money's worth. They can make the value of money rise - they can make it fall. Their profit is all important. The well-being of the nation is not a consideration.

Germany Stops 1920s Inflation

The Versailles treaty forced Germany to borrow money into existence from the international bankers to pay tribute.

The money-changers dropped the value of the mark each time they exchanged dollars, pounds, or francs for German marks. Inflation went wild in Germany. The middle class was wiped out.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht was appointed head of German finance. He stopped inflation in a single day by issuing a simple directive. The directive said that all money exchange was to take place across his desk; four marks to a dollar.

The international bankers howled, the newspapers and the politicians threatened. Governments convened emergency committees. Four to the dollar. That's what he said it was going to be and that's the way it was. Schacht didn't budge. Inflation was over. Four to the dollar.

It's really this simple. Of course, it forced the international banks to rally the whole world to go to war against Schacht's Germany to get his rule changed. However, it showed that a government can regulate its own currency in spite of the banks. It's really this simple.

International Bankers Strip America

Not long ago bank money-changers raised the value of the dollar. American industry was priced out of the world markets. Plants closed.

Banks control America's corporations through voting stock held in their trust departments. They voted to close America's factories and build others in foreign lands.

American owned plants were built all over the 3rd world. The third world now possesses much of America's industrial might. Strangers now hold jobs belonging to Americans.

War By Dollar Manipulation

Next, the 3rd world currencies were attached to the American dollar. When the dollar falls their currencies fall at the same time. When the dollar rises their currencies also rise.

No rise or fall of the American dollar can hurt the 3rd world nations. Possessing America's former industries - fewer 3rd world nations fail to pay their debts to the international banks. The banks profit. Our people lose their jobs.

Europe's currencies have NOT been attached to the dollar. A fall in the dollar forces a trade war between America and her kinsmen in Europe.

A dropping dollar can underprice Europe's products and cause their industry to bankrupt - or cause them to also move to the 3rd world nations. Either way it is Westerners who lose. It is Westerners who are unemployed.

In time, it is possible for the banks to manipulate ALL major industry from the shores of both the US and Europe.

The results would be drastic. The population would have to decline so that those remaining could be fed. The lands themselves turned over to a reduced number of farmers and flocks of sheep. This is what was done to Spain and Portugal by the international bankers. This is the end result of what the same money-changers are doing to us today.

Capturing Farm Trade

The banks instructed the US government to pay dairymen to destroy their herds and pay farmers to retire their acres from production.

The drop in production was immediately filled with exports from the 3rd world. When the dairymen and farmers once again try to re-enter the market they will find the market expropriated.

This new income for the 3rd world helps pay debts to the international banks.

Usury Cycle's End

The Usury System allows only three ways for money to come into existence.

1) individuals borrow money into existence,

2) corporations borrow money into existence,

3) governments borrow money into existence.

At the bottom of a depression only a government dares to borrow. Even it can only justify borrowing at such times by arming and fighting a "defensive" war.

Next comes inflation. Then the break in prices. The decline. And it starts all over again.

It does not have to happen this way. The system of usury is outside of God's law and will be contained now or later. It cannot continue. It will die or we will die.

If the past repeats, the time is fast approaching when money will once more disappear. Scrip will re-appear. It will be issued either by the national government, states, counties, cities, or individuals. Perhaps by all at the same time.

Scrip is the exact opposite of a bank note. It will do away with the need for wars to get us out of depressions. It will do away with the booms and busts that result in depressions. It will do away with depressions.

Hjalmar Schacht proved that we can stop the irresponsible usury bankers and their money tampering that results in booms and busts.

The 1930s presented us with the example of an outpouring of debtless scrip from everywhere. We know from our history books that the price of bread remained the same for over three centuries in the Hanseatic League. We know further that instead of being something new, our ancestors lived with tally-scrip instead of the banknote for almost 1000 years.

It is time for America to awake and obey her Constitution which requires our government to issue money and set the value thereof.

The alternative will be drastic.

SEED

Issue #134, November 1985, reported that certain scientists believe that the weather is changing.

They believe this will result in a changing climate with heat and drouth claiming large areas. Cold is expected to claim large areas of tillable land in Canada, the northern US, and the Soviet Union - and heat to claim large areas of Africa, Mexico, and the American SW. The result - a general food shortage. The time frame given was less than 10 years. The outbreak of large forest fires in summer is to be one of the signals that the transition is underway.

In the 1930s most things couldn't be bought because for a period there was no money. It took time to issue scrip.

Farmers planted seed they had held back from previous harvests. Today this cannot be done. The seed is hybrid. It will not reproduce. A farmer cannot hold back part of his harvest for seed.

Recognizing what may be an approaching disaster, a number of sources offering non-hybrid seed have come into being. It may be that the time will come when people will offer gold for non- hybrid seed - weight for weight. A few hundred dollars invested in non-hybrid seed may be the best investment your family has made in several generations. Frankly, what are a few hundred dollars in your budget?

Listed below are some of the addresses that carry non-hybrid seed. As a rule, the source closest to where you live will produce best for you.

CRASH: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Do you believe that a crash marks the beginning of the end of the rule of Babylon." M. A. - Kentucky

ED: No indeed. The establishment triggered the crash as part of their on-going plan to take over other people's property. The crash is a standard part of their plan. The establishment is not hurt when they alone have money and almost everyone else must come to them hat in hand.

USURY FORMULA: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: It's simple to prove that usury is unworkable. D (debt) = M (money). 1D = 1M. They are equal. However, if the borrower and lender agree that 1D(debt) +.1D(interest) = 1M (money), there is a problem. This is saying that 1.1 principal and interest = 1 money. It doesn't. It is unequal. How can the economy stay equal when the money is unequal. No wonder there are crashes." A.J. - Kansas

US & USSR MERGED: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Do you believe that the US and the USSR will be merged?" A.Z. - Arizona

ED: Think of the US and the USSR as football teams. Each player a front-page superstar. The quarterback is president. He gets top billing but calls only 5% of the plays. The invisible coach is the Federal Reserve in the US and the Gosbank in the USSR. They call 90% of the plays. Above even the coaches is the one owner who owns both teams and others too. If any of his teams gets out of line he can call his other teams in to beat up on the wayward team. He calls only 5% of the plays, but when he speaks there is no appeal. There is no reason for him to merge his teams. He already owns the system. If he merged the teams he would ruin everything. Who is the owner? He (they) is the biggest creditor(s) of all. "The borrower is slave to the lender".

I had to order a payroll for 50 people consisting of an exact number of different bills and an exact amount of change down to the last penny. Chapter 161

THE CLOAK Of NIMROD

There was once a cloak. It was made by God to clothe Adam.

It descended to Noah who bequeathed it to Shem. Noah's outcast son, Ham, stole the cloak. His son, Caanon, received it from him. In time it fell into the hands of Nimrod.

This was not an ordinary cloak. It possessed special powers. It allowed the one who owned it to capture men's minds.

Using the cloak, Nimrod became ruler of many nations and many peoples.

One day Nimrod went for a stroll in the cool of the evening. Two guards were with him. Essau saw Nimrod approaching. He hid himself, and waited in ambush.[1]

Essau sprang from concealment and with his sword slew all three. Seizing the cloak from Nimrod's lifeless body, Essau fled. Nimrod's followers followed hot on his heels.

Essau arrived in the camp of Isaac, his father, frightened, weary, and despairing of his life. He demanded that his brother Jacob trade his meal to him in exchange for the birthright due him as the eldest son. His birthright was of little value if he were killed before the sun set. He kept the cloak.

The Cloak

Nimrod's cloak is now owned by Essau's descendants. They have taught not only their own people but their servants its secret. Whoever possesses it is able to rule peoples and nations without their being aware. Their eyes become blind. When in its power, lies can be told for truth, and sawdust given for treasure.

Andrew Jackson

Andrew Jackson protested bitterly when the 2nd Bank of the United States used its ability to create money to bankroll the purchase of newspapers. He protested bitterly when bank newspapers told lies about him. He protested bitterly when the bank used its power to raise interest rates and trigger panics. He protested that resulting depressions were used to bankrupt enemies of the bank while enriching bank friends. He swore to ruin the bank, and he did.

Jackson's actions caused the 2nd Bank of the US to bankrupt on Oct. 11, 1841. It was then discovered that most of the stockholders of this powerful bank resided in Britain. The most powerful bank in America was an alien entity.

The downfall of this bank slowed the spread of Essau's cloak over America. It did not stop it as long as individual usury banks retained the use of usury. Its power remained and it elected the banks' great supporter, Abraham Lincoln, President of the US.

A usury bank-man, ruling as president, brought about the bloody War Between the States. This destroyed the last enemy of the usury banking system in America, the independent debt-free plantation system of the South.

In 1913 the Federal Reserve was created. This gave the big banks control over the little banks. It united most of the nation's usury banks into one entity. They now act in unison. One of the sponsors of FR Bill was Sen. Carter Glass. His offices were less than two blocks from where these lines are being written.

The Scenario

The law clearly states:

> Thou shalt not lend upon usury (with interest upon a loan) to thy brother; usury of money, usury of victuals, usury of anything that is lent upon usury: Unto a stranger (Heb:zûwr - racial alien) thou mayest lend upon usury; but unto thy brother thou shalt not lend upon usury." Deut 23:19,20

It is clear. We are forbidden to lend at usury to our own. We are permitted to lend at usury to the stranger.

Of whom do the kings of the earth take custom or tribute? of their own children, or of strangers? Peter saith unto him, Of strangers." (Gr: allotrios - foreign, not akin.) Math 17:25-26.

If "custom", "tribute", "taxes", are to be taken only from strangers, why then are we taxed?

It's simple. To those who rule - WE are the strangers.

Who then is ruler? It is he that is NOT taxed.

> "Federal Reserve Banks, including the capital stock and surplus therein and the income derived therefrom, shall be exempt from federal, state, and local taxation ..." ("except from real estate.") Cross Sections, Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, Vol 3, Number 2, 701 E. Byrd Street, Richmond, Va. Summer 1986.

Tribute

The refusal of Americans to obey God's law has reduced them to slavery.

Anti-Christ ministers, in the pay of the enemy, tell foolish people that God's law has been done away with. That there is no law.

No longer protected by the law, it was easy to add tribute to usury. Tribute is called "income tax". The name was meant to mislead.

Trust

Inheritance taxes were added to income taxes. Trusts were promoted to avoid taxes. Banks established trust departments to administer trusts to cut down taxes. Most trust assets consist of corporate stocks.

To collect dividends and stock splits, banks insist that stock certificates be registered in the bank name. Stocks registered in the bank name allow the banks to vote for and elect directors of American corporations.

Almost half the stock of American corporations is held in trust. More than half of the directors of American corporations are elected by banks. Bank controlled corporate directors thus control a large, if not the largest, part of corporate America. It is they who determine how corporate money is to be spent.

Capture Of Corporate America

Following the establishment of the Federal Reserve, American corporations borrowed hundreds of billions of dollars from the banks to expand. As a result, most American corporations are now heavily in debt.

During a depression, most corporations find it difficult to pay bank debts. Statute law says that defaulters must bankrupt. Those holding the mortgages may legally foreclose. The banks hold the mortgages. Bank stockholders can become wealthy by American corporations going bankrupt. America's corporations, their directors elected by banks, can be turned over to the banks and their owners by the same bank appointed corporate directors who put them into debt. It's like shooting fish in a barrel.

Usury is the method banks use to transfer the assets of the trust in their care to the stockholders who run the banks.

This is why the corporate media gives only one viewpoint. Their bank elected directors tell them to do it. No word of criticism against Essau's cloak of usury is allowed in the media. Bank elected directors will not allow it.

Cloak Of Esau

The cloak of Essau is interest. One is permitted to use interest ONLY according to law.

The law states:

> "Thou shalt not lend upon usury to thy brother ... Unto a stranger (Heb. zûwr - racial alien) thou mayest lend upon usury." Deut 23:19,20

Usury - A Christian Weapon

May a Christian use USURY? Of course. He is required to fight against the enemies of God. The law requires it. While usury cannot be used against one's brothers, it is to be used against the stranger and his agents. It is the ultimate weapon.

> "They shall not dwell in thy land; and thou shall drive them out before thee." Ex 23:31-33; "They shall not dwell in thy land, lest they make thee sin against me." I Ki 4:21-24

The use of usury against the stranger will in time make it so uncomfortable that he will leave. The scripture says that if he lives among us HE WILL rise above us.

> "The stranger that is within thee shall get up above thee very high; and thou shalt come down very low ... he shall be the head and thou shalt be the tail." Deu 28:43

Usury can be used against the following:

Banks - OWNED or CONTROLLED by strangers. Banks use deposits to satisfy bank regulations, not to lend. Money that banks lend is created by them from thin air. They don't lend your money on deposit with them

Municipal bonds - Municipalities are usually heavily in debt to international banks. "The borrower is servant". Most cities are servant/agents of the stranger. To lend to an agent is the same as lending to his master.

State bonds - Most states are heavily in debt to the international banks. Their bonds can be bought for the reasons listed above.

Government bonds - Nations in debt to the international banks are their servants.

Church bonds - A church allowing bonds to be issued in its name in violation of the law is evidence that that church does not obey God's law. "If you love me obey my commandments." Buying its bonds may help put an end to its unlawful acts.

Risk Factor

While recognizing the lawfulness of certain usury loans, it is well to remember that the lawless usually prey on each other. Their usury instruments are often two edged swords. Unless the usury instrument is designed by yourself they are often fraught with risk to the unwary.

Exceptions

Interest loans are not permitted to kinsmen. Most small businesses fall in this category. Joint venture can be used to finance kinsmen. Joint venture presents risk for both parties, as it should be to be fair.

Conclusion

The Cloak of Essau exists. Because of false priests it has long remained a tightly kept secret. It is no longer a secret.

As a weapon it rightly belongs to those to whom it was bequeathed, and who will use it lawfully.

"Thou shalt not lend upon usury to thy brother ... Unto a stranger thou mayest lend upon usury." Deut 23:19,20

TAXES: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Is there any place where there are no taxes which consume your substance and take away initiative. The huge capital gains tax is so unfair under the new tax law." A. R. - Georgia

ED: The income tax was practically non-existent before the establishment of the FR in 1913. The name "income tax" itself is a cloak. The income tax is in fact - "tribute".

The property tax is also tribute. More land is lost through non- payment of taxes than by any other means. As the usury system permeates America real estate taxes have soared. This separates people from their God-given security - their land.

Capital gains taxes and inheritance taxes do the same. Both are designed to trap and separate people from their property.

Such thing as tax free? Yes indeed, but it's highly unlikely that we can get a piece of it. Tax free foundations have many billions and hand out many hundreds of millions. They make tax free $1.3 million grants to "deserving" people who have won grants by drawing pictures of doubtful merit or writing stories considered worthless by some. These grants can include $250,000 tax free a year for 6 years. It's done.

Each of us knows wealthy people who do nothing, work at nothing, have no visible means of support, have no verifiable history of where their wealth came from.

What do they do with their time? Some are everyday drones who stumbled on a good thing. Others aren't. They work. They are friendly - but distant. They talk your interests. They are conservative - if you are. They watch. They attend. They make a one time visit. They ask questions. The ones I've known are tight fisted. They are generous only to gain good will. They contribute little except suggestions. They could do lots - but don't. At the end of two years you know little not known in the first 10 minutes.

They earn their pay. Instant wealth makes them important. One million dollars to them is the same as one thousand to you. Almost every county has at least one. Congressional districts have dozens. They contribute to political candidates. The politicians keep their doors open to them. They watch politicians and the people of America's conquered provinces. They make possible our captivity.

ACCIDENT WITH A .22

Two weeks ago my 17 year old daughter had a mis-adventure with a .22 pistol. It went off while she was handling it.

The bullet passed through her lung, knocked a hole in her liver (a real bleeder) the size of a 50 cent piece, hit a rib and bounced back through the lower side of her liver and collapsed her diaphragm.

Fortunately, her mother was near by and called for help. An ambulance was present in 6 minutes.

This happened at 4 p.m. Emergency blood transfusions were given in the emergency room to keep her alive. Inflating the collapsed lung, patching the diaphragm, and stopping the bleeding was done by the attending surgeon within an hour and a half.

The bleeding still continued. She continued to receive blood. Another operation was performed which located the hidden second wound in the lower part of the liver. This too was repaired. Time 10 p.m. The surgeon announced that he thought she stood a 50/50 chance. All together - she received 16 pints.

Two weeks in intensive care. Two weeks in a hospital room. Cost - much in excess of $50,000. Luckily I have hospitalization which covers a large part.

All my children are expert with firearms. This is the first child of six to break the house rule forbidding handling a firearm without need. The punishment was severe. Hopefully, the lesson was learned.

In past articles I have mentioned that a .22 cal. bullet can kill, but not stop a person. This accident reinforces that observation. It also reinforces the observation that anyone who thinks the .22 cal. bullet is harmless is foolish.

In regards to the blood transfusions. Our family is large. There were many available donors present, and more potential donors arrived from out of town.

It is understandable that my daughter received blood from the blood-bank as an emergency life saving measure. This was done before I reached the hospital.

However, after signing the usual hospital liability release form allowing the doctor to use his judgment without fear of being sued, he continued to use blood from the blood bank and brushed off my protests as being "false worries". I was never informed that blood was to be given until after the event.

When questioned on this point no satisfactory answer was ever given. It seemed that they were determined to use their own blood bank in spite of all.

Later, a nurse was questioned about AIDS in the hospital. She replied that they didn't talk about AIDS in the hospital. When asked why, she replied that "people might stop coming to the hospital". Those were her words. She WOULD NOT talk about AIDS in the hospital. It seems that there may be a rule in the medical profession against discussing AIDS with patients or their families. This may be the means the medical profession is using to keep an AIDS panic from developing. The hospital staff acts as though AIDS does not exist.

It is a fact that my daughter was given blood from the available blood bank in preference to blood from ready and willing donors.

My daughter is expected home in a few days.

THURSDAY: Last night the surgeon informed me that my daughter would not be going home soon. Another operation on the liver is needed.

A nurse later asked me to sign another release form. I stated that from now on no blood was to be given except from family members. When the nurse saw I was serious she left to get her supervisor.

Soon, there were several people gathered in my daughter's room. The surgeon protested that if my daughter was to catch AIDS from infected blood-bank blood "the cow was already out of the barn" since she had already received 16 pints. I stated that the 17th pint might be "the" pint.

He said that the hospital used blood from their blood bank because it was already tested for hepatitis and AIDS, and that they were not set up to do these tests or to make person to person transfusions.

My father was a surgeon in Lynchburg. Forty years ago he would bring a family member in, type his blood, and get started on a transfusion in 10 minutes. In this case, there were 4 family members with the same blood type as my daughter within 45 minutes of the hospital. A saline solution could be given until then. The doctor stated that that is how blood diseases were transmitted.

The doctor may have been on a spot. He had stated that an operation was necessary. I had agreed. I had also agreed to blood transfusions - but only from family members. If the doctor refused to perform the operation and something happened to my daughter, it would seem that he would be liable. I felt sure he would agree. Later that night I was allowed to sign a release form that included "Blood is to be given only from family members."

THURSDAY AFTERNOON: My daughter hasn't had water in 24 hours, almost no food in 2 days, and I have just learned that the surgeon mentioned above spoke for himself, only. He wasn't scheduled to do the operation. Another doctor canceled the operation when he learned of my insistence that family blood be given. There is much more to this than meets the eye. I'll report to you next time.

In the case of my daughter. She's a fighter. With the help of God she will recover. In any case - God's will be done.

Chapter 162

THE COVENANTERS

Commandment #1 - "Love God".

Definition of "Love". - "If ye love me obey my commandments." John 14:15

Definition of "God" - "In the beginning was the WORD, and the word was with God, and the WORD was God." John 1:1,14

The Laws, Statutes, and Judgments were with God, were of God, and were God.

Scotland

In early days disenchanted Catholic priests met. They protested violations of God's Laws then rampant. They vowed to obey God's word since the WORD was God. The Bible alone determined the WORD. Local groups of Christians met and elected their own leaders called "presbyters".

England's king was head of the Church of England. He selected his own priests who taught whatever he wanted taught. This form of church government was called an "episcopacy". The king said it was his "divine right" to do this.

The presbyterian system (from the bottom up) of Scotland, using the Bible alone, found itself in opposition to the episcopal system (from the top down) of the English king.

Covenanters

James VI of Scotland was a Covenanter. He covenanted with God and his Scottish kinsmen to obey only The WORD taken directly from the Bible and not the dictates of the episcopacy. England chose him to be her king. He became James I of England.

As King of England he was automatically the head of the Church of England. The Church of England owned 1/3 of the land of England and more than 1/2 her wealth. Poor James VI of Scotland became rich James I of England.

The price was right. He renounced the covenant and his oath to The WORD. As head of the Anglican Episcopal Church episcopacy he was God's spokesman, ordained to tell Britons what to believe.

He appointed church leaders and sent them to replace presbyters elected by church congregations in Scotland. Instruction directly from the Bible was replaced with instruction from the king's own approved prayer book. Scotland began to bristle. Another Stuart, Charles I, determined at all costs to make Scotland bow to the demands of his episcopal system.

The storm broke in 1637. During services in St. Giles Cathedral in Edinburgh, Jenny Geddes picked up a stool and threw it at the minister's head for reading a prayer book instead of God's Law directly from the Bible.

A meeting followed at Grey Friar's Church. Hundreds upon hundreds were present. Hundreds more arrived hourly. It spilled out into the churchyard. Law violations were listed. Each of those affixed his name to a mutual Covenant swearing to God and each other that they would obey only God's Laws, Statutes, and Judgments - and nothing else. This was the National Covenant of 1638.

When no space was left on the document for another name, copies were made and distributed. Ladies set up tables in village streets. Lines patiently waited to sign.

Scotland signed a covenant with God and each other. The world watched in awe.

Much was at stake. Charles I had to insist on his claim to be head of the Episcopal Church to claim its wealth. Without it he was dependent upon Parliament for his daily bread.

England's Parliament and the people it represented were alienated by the all-powerful king who claimed such a large part of the nation's land and wealth and also claimed that he spoke for God.

Frightened, they united with the people of Scotland in a Solemn League and Covenant. This international covenant was like the others before. It too was a covenant to obey The WORD - God's Laws, Statutes, and Judgments, and them alone.

Civil War

In 1642 civil war broke out. The king was defeated.

Highpoint

The downfall of the king's episcopacy and the supremacy of the presbytery system marked the high point of the Covenanters. Covenanters now included practically all the people of Scotland and most of England. They also included numerous English and Irish Catholics.

During this period the civil law system was reformed. Murder, rape, and false weights and balances received Biblical punishment. The Law was the same everywhere and was often dispensed directly from the Bible. Exceptions found in statute law which had been designed to favor special interests were corrected. There was only God's law.

Enter The Puritan

Parliament's military leader was Oliver Cromwell, a military genius. The name "Puritan" from this time no longer meant "to purify". It meant something more sinister.

Oliver Cromwell created consternation. "Cromwell ... was opposed root and branch to Presbyterianism as a narrow and oppressive formalism; and he long delayed to sign the Covenant."

He could be on all sides of any question. He renounced the Covenant as easily as he had sworn to obey it. Through 1647 he negotiated for a settlement with the episcopacy of the king. In 1648 he reversed himself and denounced the king in Parliament. Then he did what David feared to do to Saul. He beheaded the king. He supported neither the covenant nor the claims of the episcopacy. He was all things. He was a Puritan.[2]

The Puritans recognized few restrictions to their power. Quoting scripture and profanity in the same breath, they ran roughshod over traditional rights. God's Law had been done away. There was no Law and they could be bound by none. They quoted scripture to prove it. "The WORD" was what they said it was. "Grace" allowed them to do as they liked. They recognized no covenant. They did as they liked.

Reaction

England and Scotland awoke to a nightmare. It was the same thing with another name as the dread "anabaptist plague" that had afflicted the continent.

The former enemy, the king, his forces, and the episcopacy he represented were defeated. But the victor, parliament's own army, was in the hands of one they considered an anti-Christ, one who had overnight repudiated the covenant and everything it stood for.

Frantically, the covenanters of England and Scotland recruited new armies to subdue this evil in their midst.

Nothing availed. Cromwell's New Model army, honed to razor keeness on a hundred battlefields, marched from victory to victory, and from massacre to massacre.

To fight against Cromwell was death. To surrender to him was death. To side with the covenanters was death. The crimes of his Puritans were many.

2 "Cromwell, in filling his regiments with zealous soldiers, refused to take account of their religions and dogmas ..." ibid. p80. The occasional covenanter was welcome, but while following God's law he must not insist that others obey it also.

He replaced Parliament with his own creatures. Without compensation he confiscated the lands of his one time friends, declared them enemies, and gave their lands to his followers. He killed thousands of Christians surrendered to his armies. His armies looted cities, killed his opponents with their wives and children. Ships were loaded with tens of thousands of his captives to be sold into slavery in Virginia and elsewhere. In the 1650s, against public outcry, he opened England's gates to international bankers, thereby infecting England with their usury for the first time in almost 400 years.

Puritans were the monied aristocrats of England possessing the lands, wealth, and titles of those they had dispossessed. Only a few hundred, at the most a few thousand, ever came to America to live among those whom they had defrauded. The few who did were cooly received. In the 1600s, the name "damn Yankee" was forged in America to describe their sharp practices. "Yankee" was a New Englander. "Damn Yankee" was a Puritan. There's a difference.

Cromwell, their leader, lived as an unchallenged despot until he died.

The Killing Times

The Puritans, who inheritated land and estates from Cromwell, restored Charles II in 1660. To satisfy the people, Cromwell's judges were executed for sentencing Charles I to be beheaded, but the rest of the Puritans kept their ill gotten wealth. They stood solidly behind the king, and to keep his throne the king supported them.

The common enemy was the covenanter who would deny the Puritan his newly acquired lands and the King his newly acquired episcopacy. This marked the beginning of the Covenanter Period proper.

A Puritan Parliament shortly restored royal supremacy in matters of religion which allowed the king to keep church lands and wealth. The power of the king to choose his own church leaders was restored in full strength and vigor. Hundreds of elected presbyter ministers were turned out of their parishes. The king reciprocated by confirming the Puritan's land ownership. Then the National Covenant of 1638 and the Solemn League and Covenant of 1643 were condemned as HIGH TREASON.

Covenanters who refused to renounce their covenant with God were mercilessly hunted by dragoons. Those who qualified their submission by distinguishing between Church and State or if they declined to give their opinion were automatically guilty of treason.

> "Many, loyal to the king, were executed because they refused to say 'God save the King' and give to man the honour due to the Lord's Anointed. Its use was tantamount to confessing that the King was supreme earthly ruler in the Church of God. The Covenanters chose death rather than life when impaled on the horns of this dreadful dilemma." [3]

Thousands were executed. Most executions took place on the spot. They ranged from dragoon ambushed church meetings held in the deep woods where all were killed, to the never-ending monotonous single executions of individual farmers.church meetings;held in deep woods

3 Fair Sunshine, Jock Purvis, Edinburgh 1957.

A refusal to renounce was punished by a shot in the head in front of wife and children. Hundreds were dragged on rope ends to be beheaded by axmen in Edinburgh. Scores were hanged, drawn, and quartered.

Thousands died from torture, sickness, and starvation in prison. Tens of thousands had their lands confiscated. They too were shipped to Virginia and other colonies. There is hardly a pair of eyes reading these lines that doesn't count a dozen covenanters among his ancestors.

The Killing Times bred martyrs. For each execution ten more covenanters stepped forward.

After 25 years the slaughter gradually stopped. It was economically unprofitable. The lands of most wealthy covenanters were already taken. Continued killing and deportation was leaving no one to work the land. Those who were left had nothing worth confiscating. To this day most confiscated Scots live in cities. Few own land in their own country.

Virginia

Virginia, the mother of states, profited mightily from the persecutions. She is peopled by layer upon layer of covenanters. They came from all classes. Most arrived as slaves. Most lost everything in the service of their God, and their God blessed them for it.

Added were thousands of French Huguenots who underwent the same trials and who also lost all their worldly possessions.

To these were joined the "Valley Germans" who left their homes and country rather than violate The WORD by being inducted into armies and forced to kill kinsmen.

From Virginia across America they have spread. The descendants of Covenanters sworn to obey to the death the commands of God. They know their own.

They know the counterfeit, their ancient enemy, the Puritan. The one to whom there is no Law. They see him posturing on TV. His is the officially "approved" brand of "Christianity". When he speaks of his "Puritan forebears" he speaks truly. He eyes us over his shoulder while being held in view by the money king who dares not chance giving his viewers a glimpse of a true Covenanter.

He knows Covenanters have not changed. They cannot change. They are bound by The WORD and the blood of their ancestors. He knows that to comply with the covenant great changes must come about in the land.

The establishment must resort to the terror of the Covenanting Times to try to prevent the covenant's return. Still, it will come again, even the Killing Times. Churches and their schools will be closed. Universities which are true will be denied tax exemption. Children will be forced to hear the king's word taught by the king's teachers in the king's own schools. Show trials will be held for ministers accused of high treason when they refuse to acknowledge the king. America's prisons will become England's Virginia to receive the outcasts.

The politicians, preachers, and investors who expect tomorrow to be the same as yesterday are to be sadly disillusioned. Nothing will be the same.

The Covenant is in force. It will no longer be denied. The land that has never been divided - WILL be divided. Unlawful taxation abolished. Criminals punished. Freedom to choose God's Law restored. Prisoners freed. Business conducted according to Law. God's Laws, Statutes and Judgments will rule.

The ancient cry of the covenanter is beginning once more to be heard in the land,

"Down with the king! God save THE KING!"

ACCIDENT WITH A .22 (Part 2)

The kids have put balloons on the trees, shrubs, and front door. Rebecca is home. Weak, but with a big smile and in good spirits.

For the latecomers, my daughter Rebecca had a mis-adventure with a .22 pistol. She spent 2 weeks in intensive care, 3 weeks more in the hospital, underwent 2 major and several minor operations, and received 16 pints of blood. Most of the blood was given AFTER the request had been made that family members ONLY be allowed to supply blood if needed.

Rebecca's conditioned worsened. Another operation was needed. I inserted a statement in the "release-form" stating that if more blood was needed, only blood from family members was to be used.

The doctor canceled the operation. He was quoted as saying that he wasn't going to operate until he had "reached an agreement with Mr. Hoskins." My daughter was in extreme pain. She had received almost no food in 2 days and no water in 24 hours.

My daughter needed an operation to stay alive and there was a chance that she might receive contaminated blood. On the other hand if she did not get the needed operation she might die - what choice is that?

I begged the doctor's pardon in my most humble manner and consented for my daughter to receive AIDS contaminated blood, sickle-cell blood, or any other kind of blood that the medical authorities might feel inclined to give my daughter.

The operation was a success. My protest went for naught. Fortunately, Rebecca did not need more blood.

I felt I was being jerked around. It wasn't common sense to have a room full of willing donors and not be able to use their blood. I know more about my kinsmen than I know about bloodbank donors, at least the donors I've met.

Then too, I have only so much confidence in the blood tests being currently given. After all, it has only been recently that the Red Cross has felt the need to test for AIDS. They still don't feel the need to test for HIV-2 virus that causes AIDS. In fact, it was not long ago that some of the authorities said that AIDS couldn't be transmitted by blood and that it was ridiculous for nurses and dental technicians to wear rubber gloves.

As soon as the operation was in progress I got on the phone to a hospital in Charlottesville to find out how they handle blood transfusions. The first thing I learned is that no 2 doctors give the same answers. Lynchburg and Charlottesville answers differed. It was soon established that most doctors and nurses have no idea why they do the things they do and who makes them do it. "Policy" is what they follow. They can seldom tell you where "policy" originates.

"Charlottesville" stated that they didn't test their own blood but sent it to DC to be tested. In an emergency there was a minimum 3 to 4 day waiting period. Normally it takes 30 days (The Lynchburg doctors said 40 days). I asked why they didn't do their own testing. The one questioned thought it was because of some sort of FDA government ruling. This was the first time anyone had mentioned anything about government involvement.

I called the Lynchburg Red Cross. Lynchburg's testing is done in Roanoke. I called Roanoke.

After going through 4 layers of experts in Roanoke I reached someone who gave me straight answers. A Dr. Cannon. From her I learned the following.

Blood requires 40 days to be tested round trip. Three days in an emergency. Blood has a 42 day shelf life. Hospitals are required to have a license to draw & give blood. Most don't have licenses therefore they can't draw blood. Blood is tested for AIDS, syphilis, and hepatitis. It is not tested for sickle-cell trait.

A person can give and store his own blood for an operation. The operation must be done within the shelf life of 42 days.

Most requests for blood are emergency requests. Usually there is no warning before it is needed. Therefore, there is no opportunity to give blood and wait up to 30 days for it to be tested before being used. The establishment has fixed it so that one must use the blood provided by their blood banks, or die.

I asked for a copy of the code that required all this. This is what was received:

"21 CFR Ch. 1 (4-1-87 Edition)

"Subpart A-Release Requirements

"§ 610.1 Tests prior to release required for each lot.

"No lot of any licensed product shall be released by the manufacturer prior to the completion of tests for conformity with standards applicable to such product. Each applicable test shall be made on each lot after completion of all processes of manufacture which may affect compliance with the standard to which the test applies. The result of all tests performed shall be considered in determining whether or not the test results meet the test objective, except that a test result may be disregarded when it is established that the test is invalid due to causes unrelated to the product."

A cover letter on Red Cross stationery dated Feb. 2, 1988 said:

"Under this regulation, as presently interpreted by American Red Cross employees, your blood, and any blood anywhere, is a MANUFACTURED product and therefore may be regulated.

A doctor who gives any of this "manufactured" product to anyone without going through specified government procedure is in violation of Federal Code 21 CFR Ch. 1(4-1-87 Edition) Subpart A- Release Requirements §610.1. I suppose he could lose his license to practice medicine if he participated in the giving of this untested manufactured blood.

Actually, if anyone has blood in his body he must have manufactured it. Consequently, It would seem logical that those manufacturers may also be regulated under this same regulation for having in his possession and transporting across state lines a federally regulated manufactured product.

Conclusion

I was out of line in blaming the doctors for doing what they could not help.

The doctors were out of line for not knowing what the regulations were that forbade them to give patients their own kinsmen's blood, and therefore could not explain it in a coherent manner.

The government is out of line in demanding adherence to outdated blood testing regulations, regulations that seem designed to spread disease through contaminated blood that can slip through the limitations of their tests, and, most of all, basing the decision on such a weasel worded regulation.

At present, there appears to be no way you can receive your own kinsmen's blood in an emergency. There is no way you can avoid receiving blood from strangers.

This situation will remain until a public outcry forces the establishment to allow "freedom of choice", a thing the establishment greatly abhors.

Chapter 163

THE COVENANTER IN AMERICA

America rapidly prospered because her covenanting immigrants continued to conduct business lawfully.

Obedience to the Law prevented property from being accumulated in the hands of the few. It facilitated trade. It prevented plague and insured a healthy prosperous land free from crime and lawlessness.

But, the Puritan and his master followed their Covenanter victims to their new homes in America. Together they have once more robbed him of lands and wealth won from barren lands.[1]

They have adopted as law every plank of the Communist Manifesto while outlawing the Law that the Covenanters have sworn to obey. Even the mention of the Law in places controlled by the descendents of the false Puritans is banned. The consequence to the nation is proving drastic.

Because of numerous requests the banished laws are listed below. The havoc cause by their absence will force their return in time. A Covenanter cannot serve two masters, nor can he live without the one God he has.

The Law

There are 10:

LAW #1: "Love God".
Definition of "Love".

"If ye love me obey my commandments." John 14:15

Definition of "God".

"In the beginning was the WORD, and the word was with God, and the WORD was God." John 1:1,14

The Laws, Statutes, and Judgments were with God, were of God, and were God.

LAW #2: No substitutes
If something is not a Law, Statute, or Judgment, it is a substitute, not of God. Substitutes are forbidden idols.

LAW #3 Thou shalt not call upon God vainly
It is a vain blasphemy to ask for that which is forbidden.

LAW #4 Keep the Sabbath
Rest. Cycle intensity must be reduced on the 7th day, the 7th year land sabbatical, and the 7 x 7 Jubilee year. Rest to keep your health, the land's health and your nation's health.

LAW #5 Honor parents

Honor parents. Honor their values. Honor their bloodlines. Honor statutes they have established under law to make society orderly.

LAW #6 No murder

Kill only malefactors required by Law. No murder.

LAW #7 No adultery

Don't adulterate marriage contracts, business contracts, one species with another, your race with another, your God with another. No adulterating.

LAW #8 No stealing

LAW #9 Fair weights & balances

Usury, lying, false weights forbidden. Law adherence allows instant transactions. Your word is your bond.

LAW #10 No coveting

Other men's wives, daughters, possessions. Coveters are dangerous to anyone who possesses anything.

This is the basic TEN. Simple, straightforward, easily understood. Under these laws are the statutes and judgments.

Example - Stealing

LAW #8 - no stealing. That's the LAW.

A thief steals a car. The LAW is violated. Next, the STATUTE dealing with car theft takes over. Then, the JUDGMENT.

If the thief is caught with the car and it is undamaged, 2 cars must be repaid the victim. If the thief steals a car and wraps it around a telephone pole, 4 cars must be repaid.

If the thief cannot pay, he is reduced to servitude to repay with labor. If he runs - he is killed.

The law of the Saxon is simple and effective.

The Situation

In spite of unLawful establishment court decisions and government pronouncements, millions of people in America, like their ancestors before them, remain true to The WORD.

They judge Everything by it. IT is judged by nothing and no one. To the obedient, Law violation is more than simple disobedience. It is blasphemous since it does injury to the body of Christ who established it in the beginning and whose body the WORD is.

America Without Law

Today, in America, murder is unpunished. The establishment forbids taking life as punishment, even the life of a murderer. The murder rate is soaring. The streets are unsafe. Murderers sire children who murder. Like breeds like.

Pornography is encouraged. It makes the population tolerant of abnormal acts. It stimulates sexual appetites. The result - rape.

Rape is no longer a capital crime. It is encouraged by pornography. Most rapists are strangers. The rapist defiles the people whose statutes say "no bastard shall enter the congregation of Israel forever." The establishment calls for compassion and understanding for the rapist, not the victim.

Sodomy is called an alternate lifestyle instead of an abomination deserving capital punishment. Sodomy is protected. The result - an unchecked plague.

Establishment spokesmen encourage young girls to abort their first born. This allows the babies to be committed to the flames in the ancient ritual offering of the first-born to Baal. The result - a negative birthrate.

Interracial marriage is promoted. The result is deadly. Protected sodomites infect prostitutes and the "liberated" with AIDS. The liberated and prostitutes infect their associates. The circle spreads to other circles - fastest where sex is uninhibited.

One group of strangers with unbridled sex appetities has an illegitimacy rate in excess of 90%. Their habits have extensively infected them with AIDS. Among almost all groups of strangers sex is uninhibited. As a consequence, among ALL groups of strangers the plague is rapidly spreading.

Death Sentence

For one of our women to be raped by a stranger is now tantamount to a sentence of death.

For one of our own to have sexual relations with a stranger is becoming synonymous to a sentence of death.

Sex with one of our own who has had sexual relations with a stranger may soon be synonymous with a sentence of death.

To associate with, to work with, to share food or drink with, to take food from, to inhale the aerosol globules of a cough, or to have ANY relationship formerly considered "innocent" with one who has had a sexual affair with a stranger may incur the sentence of death.

Jesse Jackson belongs to a high risk group. He boasts of spitting in the food he served while working as a waiter. Count on his followers to follow his example. Many are certain to be infected. Many are certain to pass on their infection in this manner.

The dangerous person is no longer perceived as being the sodomite. The world knows him and avoids him. It is not even the highly infected "stranger". He too is easily identified and can be as easily avoided.

The most dangerous of all is the one spreading the plague unperceived. The one who associates with the stranger. One of our own who betrays his own. The one of whom is written:

> "There is no hope: no; for I have loved strangers (Heb:"zûwr - racial alien), and after them I will go." Jer 2:25.

Special care must be taken to 1identify these people. They are spiritual kinsmen to the false Puritan. For your own protection you MUST know the company your associates keep.

Avoid those who associate with high risk groups. Their associations cause them to stand a much higher risk of being infected. If you avoid the plague then everything becomes possible.

Our Concern

Our concern is to arrive in the future with as little damage to our beliefs, our persons, and our property as possible.

Rapid changes are taking place. Washington is lawless. Their decrees unreasonable. In time they will be disregarded. The day of LAW and the lawful will arrive. Everything and everyone will be judged by the Law. To be lawful is to ensure survival.

There will be change. There is profit in change. New industries will be needed. There will be drastic shifts in political power, in populations. It will be OUR time.

Summary

Change always comes. Almost always there is time to adjust.

Live a day at a time. Use precaution. Don't worry unnecessarily. Insofar as possible owe no man anything. Be patient. Be prudent. Read the signs of the times. When they point to deflation, buy discount government bonds and hold a few "no and low-debt stocks" situated in strong industries. If you speculate - sell short. Keep most of your cash in government money market funds and T-bills.

When inflation comes again, quickly sell the bonds, cover shorts, take your money from government money market funds and T-bills and buy no-debt and low-debt stocks. Buy land, timber, and other natural resources. Buy gold.

Cycles come - cycles go. The only sure thing is change. But even with change - there is still nothing new under the sun. It has all been said and done before.

AIDS UPDATE

EXPLODE: "A secret report predicts the AIDS epidemic will explode within the next 4 years and may overwhelm city hospitals ... The city ... will be flooded by up to 109,400 patients with AIDS ... by 1991." NY Post, Oct. 28, 1987

WIDESPREAD:"Tests ... in Massachusetts indicated the AIDS virus is more widespread ... than previous studies had suggested. ... blood tests showed ... one of every 476 women giving birth ... carried the virus ... Such screening in Massachusetts had previously found one out of every 25,000 women blood donors infected... Hence, the new finding might reflect the national prevalence of the AIDS virus." WSJ, March 3, 1988. p.20

ED: If tests found only 1 infected in 25,000 blood donors what about the 52 per 25,000 whose infected blood should have been caught but wasn't? Count Dracula himself would have reservations about bloodbank blood.

SEX WITH AFRICANS:"The Ivory coast ambassador ... has circulated ... a report quoting Professor Finn Black ... one of Denmark's leading AIDS experts. (Prof. Black) warns Danish women not to 'have sex with men from Africa.' ... (he) said AIDS had another form in Africa, where just as many women as men had the disease unlike in the Americas and Western Europe where the disease was found primarily among homosexuals and drug addicts. ... Black said it was equally dangerous for Danish men ... 'It is really dangerous and I am shaken by the fact that my own examination of travelers who have been to Africa showed that 9% had been infected.'" S. A. Observer, Dec. 1987

JEWISH BURIAL: "Jewish burial societies have been told that neither religious law nor tradition requires them to wash the bodies of AIDS victims. ... The ruling by rabbinical experts in Jewish law came at the request of a rabbi who said members of some burial societies were afraid that contact with AIDS victims might infect them. 'It is a question that every Jewish community is now addressing,' said Rabbi Yitzchak Rosenbaum.'" New York Daily News, Oct 7, 1987

DOUBLE PLAGUE: "Health officials, facing a 30% rise in syphilis ... fear a link with AIDS. ... NY City began seeing unusually aggressive cases of syphilis ... AIDS tests on people diagnosed as having syphilis found 20% also carrying the AIDS virus ... The ... implication: People may be simultaneously spreading AIDS and virulent new forms of syphilis." USN & WR, March 21, 1988

AFGHAN RESISTANCE: "The flow of weapons to the Afghan Resistance has decreased markedly ... according to the Resistance they were promised a doubling of tonnage ... tonnage so far this year is only 30% of what was promised." Sen. Gordon J. Humphrey, copied from Washington Inquirer, p.7, March 11, 1988

ED: Communist rule in Afghanistan, El Salvador, Nicaragua, Cuba, Angola, SW Africa, View Nam and elsewhere was established with help from the US government and is protected by the US. Anti- communists in these nations have been persecuted. The present show of force against Nicaragua will be as effective as the show of force against Viet Nam. The sedition trial in Little Rock is a trial of US anti-communists. The number of these trials will increase. The US is ruled by those who do not mean her citizens well.

TAX DEFICITS: "Tax Increases are likely next year as Congress looks for ways to cut the deficit." WSJ, p1, March 16, 1988

ED: Congress won't "coin" money. They borrow $10 from private banks and agree to repay $11. The 11th dollar interest is the deficit. Deficits can be stopped. Coin money and don't pay interest. Increased "taxes" can't reduce deficits. They only siphon off the small volume of money left in circulation. Congressmen work for those who elected them. Not the voters.

BLACK ON WHITE: "Big Lie ... Patrick Buchanan ... cites a report ... which tries to lay the blame for racial violence on white racism. ... Of the 629,000 interracial crimes recorded in 1985, 9 out of 10 were committed by blacks against whites. 98% of the time white criminals prey on other whites, but black criminals choose fellow blacks as victims less than half the time, preferring to attack white people!" copied from Curtis Dickinson's Report, 5231 16th Street, Lubbock, Texas 79416

HOUSE OF LORDS: To the British House of Lords, Baron Jakobovits ... chief rabbi of Britain ... The honor, recommended by Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and appointed by Queen Elizabeth II was the highest bestowed on a chief rabbi since 1656, when Jews were allowed by Oliver Cromwell to resettle in Britain after a 366-year ban." Maclean's Magazine

MAKE MONEY AND DIE: Executive order 11110, June 4, 1963, signed by President Kennedy, further amended E. O. 10289 of Sept. 19, 1951, gave authority to the President to issue the currency. He ordered the issue of US Notes in the amount of $4,292,893,815. On November 1963 he was shot and killed in Dallas, Texas. The next day the E. O. was rescinded by President Lyndon Johnson." - Melvin Sickler, Michael Journal, Rougemont, Quebec JOL 1MO, Sep.- Oct. 1987, copied from Financial News Analysis.

WITCHES: "Johnny Todd was a member of the Grand Druid Council of 13 until Sept. 1972, when he professed conversion to Christianity. Until that time, he knew no other religion, for his ancestors had practiced witchcraft for over 700 years. Todd testified that the covens in level 3 were actively involved in human sacrifices. Level 4, he claimed, contained members of the Council on Foreign Relations, which he also claimed was the secret government in America". Covenant Message, Jan. 1983, p.19 PO Box 830, Honeydew 2040 S. Africa.

EPISCOPAL SODOMITES: "Episcopal House of Bishops says it might bless couples in sodomite marriages. Presbyterian General Assembly recommends that the Federal Government nullify laws that regulate private sexual behavior between consenting adults. They are going to grant membership to unrepentant sodomites. The Church of England says it will not excommunicate sodomite priests and supports the position that sodomy, adultery and fornication are not sinful in all circumstances." Sileven Sez, PO Box 249, Louisville, NE 68037

FOOD: A congressional investigative report says proposals to require labeling of imported beef, pork and lamb to tell consumers where the meat came from are not justified ... recent exposure of chemically contaminated beef from Australia, kangaroo meat mixed in with Australian beef, cancer-eyed cows slaughtered in Mexico, and unsanitary conditions of slaughter plants in Costa Rica. Unjustified my foot!!!" Agriculture Watchdog, Dec 1, 1987, Hereford, TX 79045

SWISS BANKS: "Mr. Hoskins: A recent speaker advised getting out of the dollar and getting money into a Swiss bank. What do you think?" G. T. - Illinois

ED: I remember 1974 when some of the soundest Swiss banks went under. There was no warning. It turned out that Swiss banks have little supervision.

GERMAN WAR CRIMINALS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: How is it that the US, Britain, and the USSR didn't have a single war criminal while Germans have been executed by the thousands as war criminals?" - Cpl. US Army.

ED: Strange, isn't it. Shortly after WW II, I was shown US Army training films showing US troops lining up German prisoners and shooting them down with machine guns.

WC/PC: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Just finished reading your WC/PC. It is a vast history lesson in a few pages. I believe you said it would be wise to get out of debt immediately if you can, with or without bankruptcy, regardless of high taxes. Is that correct?" B. E. - Iowa

ED: Mostly. One knows his own situation best. The law is absolute and governs all. The borrower is slave to the lender. A slave is worthless for the days ahead. Free MEN, penniless or not, will be in demand.

ERNST ZUNDEL: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Canadian Ernst Zundel is again being tried. He asked for proof that '6 million' were exterminated in WWII. The Red Cross says that 300,000 died in prisons and prison camps in Germany from 1939-1945. Out of this 300,000 perhaps 30,000 may have been Jews. The Red Cross also reports 3,050,000 German civilian deaths from air raids, etc. Most of this can be documented from official lists. There are official lists of Allied prisoners who died in German camps, lists of German soldiers and civilians who died in Allied camps, lists of women and children who died in British concentration camps in S. Africa, lists of thousands of Allied POWs who died in Japanese captivity, lists of the thousands of Confederate POWs who died in Union prison camps and of Union POWs who died in Southern prison camps. But, no list of the '6 million'. An extermination policy killing 6 million is a very big operation. It requires much paperwork. There has been none found. Not even one sheet out of the hundred or so tons needed for such a massive undertaking. Nothing. Zundel asked for proof. Abuse in place of proof is no answer. What happens to the billions in reparations already paid if the '6 million' can't be proved? R. M. - Canada

P.S. I can't ask the above questions in Canada without fear of arrest."

SEDITION TRIAL: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: The biggest news today is the Sedition Trial in Fort Smith. The three charged with "sedition" have been placed in the midst of already convicted members of The Order to establish guilt by association. The government has spared no effort. The media helps by burying the trial. If the government railroads these men, to speak or write against the government will become treason. The days of freely speaking and freely writing will stop." H. L. - North Carolina

BLACK SOLDIERS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: A black woman told the DAR that 5000 black soldiers fought in the Revolution and she wants to put a memorial to them next to the Vietnam Memorial. Did 5000 blacks actually serve in the Continental Army?" F. A. - Colorado

ED: 5000 blacks would fill 5 regiments. Five regiments were often as many troops as Virginia had in the field. Washington's entire army at times numbered only about 5000. I know of no black regiments, battalions, or even black companies that served in the Continental Army.

Body servants accompanying their masters, and black teamsters hired to the army by their masters constitute an unknown number. But, 5000 could mean that at times most of the men in Washington's army had body servants, or that Washington's army itself was black. Both suppositions are ridiculous. Virginia and most other states would not use blacks as soldiers because to do so would violate the law prohibiting "strangers" ruling over Israel, even when they were the enemy. From the records we have it is highly unlikely that 5000 blacks served in line regiments of the Continental army, or even as servants to those who did.

Incidentally, these descendants of English Puritans recruited blacks with the promise of freedom and then sold them into slavery in Barbados. They also aroused, armed, and led Indians against our borders and watched them do what Indians do.

MEXICAN BLOOD: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: In his book The Tarnished Door, John Crewdson sheds light on the source of some of the blood that goes into US blood banks. In El Paso, a blood plasma center, one of 9, is a short distance from the Mexican border. They buy from border crossers for $8 a pint and sell to hospitals for $20. The quality of blood going into the blood banks is anyone's guess." C. A. - Wisconsin

DIFAQANE

The following article appeared in DAIS, Fort Langley, B.C. in March 1988. The Afrikaaner author, Dirk Van der Merwe, tells a story of an extraordinary venture in S. Africa - a venture which became very profitable for those who risked their blood and treasure to take and keep it. Van der Merwe also wrote "Blood River" which appeared in issue #144, Sep. 1986.

"Difaqane is a Sotho word meaning 'forced relocation' or 'hammering'. The Nguni word 'Mfecane' for the same concept means 'devastated in a total war.'

"Both of these words are at best an extremely poor attempt to describe the horror and magnitude of the worst (recorded) instance of black fratricide, and black on black genocide in Southern Africa.

"These wars started when the Manthatisi drove the Mist people from their country and then moved on west either to destroy other clans or to disperse them.

"In this way a congestion involving hundreds of thousands of people developed. Sotho groups both large and small turned westward each trespassing on the domains of another.

Waves Of Invaders

"Powerful armies annihilated their weaker neighbors, confiscating their possessions and moving on, knowing full well that if they loitered they too would be attacked by wave upon wave of people advancing from the east ....

"Difaqane hurled the Sotho people into a maelstrom of destruction, until eventually an estimated twenty-eight distinct clans disappeared, leaving not a trace of their former existence. ...

"The Difaqane exhausted itself by 1829 (leaving) in its wake the once proud Sotho nation a devastated rag tag mob ... The victors' 'mop up policy' was simple: That which could not be consumed on the spot was burned, slaughtered, raped, wrecked or murdered. With crops burned and herds obliterated, cannibalism became a necessity to survival ...

Vacant Land

"The Difaqane also left the region north of the Orange River (S. Africa) an uninhabited wasteland, littered with the ruins of burnt out kraals and the multiplied thousands of sun bleached skeletons - a wilderness ready for the taking by whomever would settle and claim it as their home. ...

"Seven years after the Difaqane came to an end, the Boers, emigrating from British rule in the Cape colony, entered this uninhabited region and claimed it as their property ... (They) brought a religious and moral ethic ...

that all should live in peace and that the weak were worthy of protection. ...

"The enforcement of this ethic by whites has (until now) prevented a re-enactment of the Difaqane in S. Africa."

The New Difaqane

"A new African Difaqane has already started. And this one no one will stop until it has claimed its last victim. Its name is AIDS. That it will leave vast areas in Black Africa depopulated is no longer the question. The question is: Who will settle and claim the land once the carnage is over? ...

"The death toll is expected to reach 75 million in the foreseeable future. It is reported that S. Africa recently returned 1000 migrant mine workers to Malawi who tested positive for AIDS ...

"Unless a miracle drug that will cure AIDS is found very quickly, most of Black Africa is doomed. And so are the plans which were calculated on the inevitability of blacks ruling all of Africa - S. Africa included. Pockets of blacks will survive! But the concept of blacks as a political factor in Africa ... is finished ...."

Editor's Comment

Botha, the puppet president of S. Africa, has turned his back on a few of his integration policies. His reason is that Black voters may not be a political factor in the long run. Most will be dead.

A politician has no political future if his political base is gone. AIDS will have changed everything. The establishment's plot to have S. Africa taken over by blacks may be fading.

The Question

With the blacks dead, WHO will live on the vacant lands? First, second and third generations of dispossessed American farmers may definitely be interested in knowing - WHO will take up the rich farms abandoned by white farmers who refused to live under black rule just a few decades ago?

The answer is - Africa is up for grabs. If our people can settle first and keep out the teaming millions of India and China, a new homeland free from establishment rot can be formed.

Across America are tens and hundreds of thousands of families - penniless land hungry families the establishment has thrown off their land. It would appear that the developing scenario was made for them.

I have talked to my own children and their families about this possibility. Their reaction was enthusiastic - if all comes to pass as projected.

Summary

The first Difaqane cleared the land and resulted in today's Boer states. The present Difaqane is slowly clearing the land again and may result in opportunity.

It should be to the advantage of S. Africa to have her northern borders colonized by her own kind rather than by potentially hostile Asiatics or land hungry Turks and Arabs from the mid- East.

To ensure that this takes place I predict that in time Boer survivors will court dispossessed American farmers and the many others who have lost their land in earlier generations. She will offer to subsidize travel and much of their expenses if they will take up some of the richest land in the world - virtually free.

Africa may be the new land of opportunity. The tarnished American dream may become a bright African dream.

European farmers developed million dollar farms a generation ago which where stolen from them by the schemes of white renegade politicians. These farms were in turn indifferently farmed by blacks who will in time be dead from plague. They will stand waiting for the man and his family willing to emigrate, settle, and fight for them.

Let's watch the situation and be prepared if events unfold as envisioned. If they do, we may soon hear the cry -

Africa! Land of opportunity!

==========

The Sedition Trial

Pastor Richard Butler, Pastor Robert Miles, and Louis R. Beam Jr, walked free. The establishment's sedition trial in Fort Smith fell to pieces. A JURY found the accused "not guilty".

The government's case hinged on the testimony of James D. Ellison. The jury didn't find Ellison trustworthy. Ellison was the government's informant who implicated 5 others in an alleged conspiracy.

Ellison headed a survivalist group for about 10 years in Arkansas. He was arrested in 1985 and plead guilty to the "catch-all" charge of racketeering and federal firearms violations. The government said that he was turned in by his own son-in-law, an event that raised eyebrows but doesn't seem to have caused undue animosity between the two.

The government said that Ellison started working for them in 1986. The suspicion is that he was working for the FBI all along since his survival operation had no other visible means of support. Its avowed purpose was to be a last ditch holdout in the Arkansas mountains in the event the communists took over America. As such it became a right-wing beacon to those disaffected with DC policies, especially those who have come to believe that the communists have already taken control of the government. The government's story is that Ellison agreed to implicate others in trade for reduced sentence and protection for himself and his two wives and nine children.

Ellison testified that he and his right hand man, Noble, met with two of the defendants and discussed means of killing an FBI agent. He admitted that he took the resulting plan to the defendants Richard Butler, Robert E. Miles, and Louis Beam at Hayden Lake, Idaho to get their agreement, which was used as establishment evidence.

Ellison's right hand man, Noble, and others of Ellison's group were not indicted for many overt acts they were said to have participated in even though the defendants were standing trial for these very same events.

The suspicion among certain conservatives is that the "Ellison bust" was a government sting from beginning to end. They point to many strange coincidences. Ellison had been allowed to have two wives in a country which frowns on such things. The Ellison compound in the hills of Arkansas had no emergency "back door" escape route. After a nationally publicized "sweetheart confrontation" with federal assault forces the Ellison group folded without resistance, and congratulations made the rounds over a staged "peaceful solution"; a most illogical ending for a group protesting that communists had taken over the DC government. There were illegal automatic weapons discovered casually lying around which conveniently provided evidence of the group's guilt. Only slight effort had been made to conceal them, and no effort had been made to destroy and dispose of their incriminating automatic devices. Something easily accomplished. A large barrel of a chemical was present that served no useful purpose except to confirm the charge that the accused meant to poison entire cities. And, no charges were placed against others of the Ellison group who appeared as guilty, if not more guilty, than those indicted.

There was even one government witness, Dale Strange of Forksville, Pa, who, under cross-examination admitted that he had attended the same meetings as Ellison and that he had heard no seditious talk. He also said that the accused ministers had gotten on him for smoking marijuana.

Numerous witnesses contradicted government testimony, giving different accounts of events and placing defendants at different locations at different times. When asked why he voted for acquittal one juror said simply that he "did not believe the government witnesses".

Trademarks - Government Agents

The "sleaze factor" has emerged as a government trademark in these affairs. Their agents often appear as law breakers themselves. The most obvious in this case being, Ellison's two wives and Dale Strange's marijuana. Evidently, the better types will not work for the establishment.

Other employee trademarks I've been told about are:

1) Stand-offish-ness to prevent betraying themselves by a careless remark.

2) Bad language and often indifferent hygienic habits, including dirty nails, poorly shaven, unkempt looking, shirt-tails partly out, etc.

3) Most drink and smoke.

4) They ask shocking questions - for their recording devices.

5) They often deny basic Bible beliefs, or cannot substantuate their stated beliefs.

Unfortunately for the government's image the sleaze factor often betrays their presence.

This Sedition Trial failed. The JURY SYSTEM worked as establishment howls attest. However, innocent men were chained together and locked away for months. They were forced to spend every cent of their personal fortunes to avoid 20-40 years imprisonment on trumped up charges. They are now penniless. Already the word is out that there are 5 other grand juries meeting at this very moment to start other "sedition trials" around the country. The end result was predicted 30 years ago in my book Our Nordic Race. It can still be obtained for $5.50 from this address.

UNFILTERED NEWS

US FOREIGN POLICY: "The (anti-South African) Act adopted in 1986 by ... the US Congress is proving a serious embarrassment ... US imports of key metals and minerals from Soviet Russia have risen as follows: Chrome Ore + 157%, Rhodium 386%, Platinum sponge +17%, Ferrosilicon +377%, Platinum bars +321%, Antimony +4,793%, Industrial Diamonds +4,900% ... the US taxpayer is having to foot the bill ..." World Economic Review

ED: There's no embarrassment. The USSR found it difficult to pay interest on their loans from the international banks. Laws were passed forbidding purchase of S. African products. S. Africa is forced to sell her goods to the USSR at regular price. The USSR re-sells S. African goods to the US with a very large middleman profit. The profit pays her debts. The banks get their interest.

The Panana Canal was given away for the same reason. American industry is given to 3rd world nations for the same reason. An "embarrassment"? Hardly! The establishment and their political collaborators know what they are doing. There are no red faces in Washington or on Wall Street.

ABORTION: "It is all right for Doctors to abort babies but a man who stabbed a pregnant woman and killed her baby was charged with murder."Insight Magazine, p.59, March 28, 1988, copied from Sileven Sez, Apr. 1988)

FREEDOM FIGHTERS AID: "The State Department has developed a plan to cut off all aid to freedom fighters in Angola, Afghanistan, and Central America at the same time." Washington Inquirer, Feb. 26, 1988

ED: Establishment media insist the US will continue to supply Afghan rebels. The Soviets join in by protesting the US supply of Freedom Fighters. In view of US/USSR cream-puff confrontations and past collaborations, who do you think is telling the truth?

ENERGY FROM WATER: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: A man has written me and wants me to invest in a water machine.

He says that it has the ability to run on hydrogen taken from the water. This is wonderful!" G.M. - Indiana

ED: Once a week for 30 years I listened to someone present a new get rich scheme. I like to hear them. They sound so plausible. Some of them I can never discover a fault with. It's amazing how the human mind can continue to come up with new variations on the same old themes - the very same ones I heard 20 years and more ago.

But invest in them? Heavens no! Just listen to them. Enjoy the stories. They are better than anything on TV. If you are serious about this hydrogen motor, take a bucket of water and fill up your gas tank fitted with the advertised conversion device. If it works for a week consider buying it. If it doesn't you will have a problem getting the water out of your gas lines, but at least you won't have paid for the converter.

Another recently advertised "heat machine" is supposed to take heat out of the ground for power and run forever. It will power your home, run a factory, furnish a city with electricity. All free once you buy this marvelous machine. I would recommend that you test this one too before buying.

LAND SABBATH: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I am going to leave my garden idle for the 7th year so that insect pests won't have anything to feed on and will die, and also to control weeds. Before leaving it should I till it & leave it? plant rye grass? or what?" B.J. - IO

ED: I've been told not to till. Just walk away from it.

DRUGS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: What do drugs have to do with the US effort to oust Gen. Noriega?" P. B. - Ohio

ED: Peru makes more from drugs than copper. More than a billion. This money is laundered through Panama banks. Gen. Noriega is accused of taking more than his share. He is also accused of slowing up the laundering process until he gets it. A friendly politician placed in Panama can plug this hole. The establishment's private annual budget is in the billions - kept in offshore banks or the underground cash economy. It can't allow a banana general on the family payroll to clog the conduit. Noriega must step aside, shape up, or die. Business WILL be transacted as usual. There's too much at stake. Of course, things will be quiet if he gets his price.

FARM FORECLOSURES: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Farm foreclosures aren't over. My cousin is a widow. She works for a bank. She went to work this morning and was told that she was fired and her farm on which the bank holds a mortgage was foreclosed. There are no more 'marginal' or 'average' farms left in this part of Missouri to foreclose. This farm is among the top 10% in the community." P.H. - Missouri

1929: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I remember 1929. My dad worked for Virginia. A steam shovel operator. He had to take three - 10% pay cuts. He planned for the future and bot a 100 lb. bag of beans. Our neighbor came over daily for a cup of beans to keep his family from starving. They ate most of them. He had a cow. He traded milk, butter and cheese for our beans. Mother canned fruits and vegetables from our garden. We had an apple, peach and pear orchard. Also grapes (5 different kinds), cherries, plums and damsons, apricots, gooseberries, 2 chicken houses, and turkeys. The droppings and straw went to the garden. We lived in the city limits on 1 acre of land. May eat a lot of beans and black-eyed peas in the days ahead, but the protein in them is good for the body." T. E. - Florida

UNIVERSALISM: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I'd like to see more emphasis on alternatives to minimize conflict between all people during the transition to universal brotherhood, peace and justice." G. T. - New York

ED: Each race demands things other races do not want. Differences grow greater. Tempers shorter. Those stretching hands in brotherhood burn bridges behind. Upon arriving in the others' camp they are rejected. When they try to return they are spurned by those they left. Peace is found with one's own. Separation brings peace. Universal brotherhood is another name for universal strife.

MEXICO'S DEBT: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: The newspaper says that the US will guarantee Mexico's debt. What do you think of this?" G. R. - Michigan

ED: Roman bankers lent money to conquered provinces. The Roman provinces couldn't meet the payments. The bankers instructed Roman politicians to tax the Roman people to raise money to grant to the conquered provinces. With this tax money wrung from the Roman people, the conquered provinces had money to pay the Roman bankers. Roman bankers could not care less about Rome or its citizens. American bankers could not care less about America or its citizens.

RUNAWAY: "Dear Dick: I was approached by a young white runaway boy. He hadn't eaten in days and was wandering with such a desperate air about him. What in the world can we do about these who are our own people? We try to live ethically but it all seems so vain!" N. I. - New York City

ISLAMIC BANKING: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I recently imported your book WC/PC from Australia. Is the debt free Islamic banking system the reason the US is threatening Iran? G. R. - S. Africa

ED: Only partially. The main reason is that the usury system demands an opponent. It is the one excuse that Americans will buy when it is time to borrow massive amounts of money into circulation to spend us out of the next depression.

IRAN GATE

Events like those described below don't "just happen" - they are made to happen. Most times they are planned. Sometimes they are "dirty tricks": Iran-gate may have been a "dirty trick".

Rome

Twenty families ruled Rome. They owned almost all the land on the Italian peninsula and paid almost no taxes. Rome was their own private "milk cow". Laws that were passed benefited the interest of the ruling party of the establishment and the fallout usually helped all the rest.

Most times these parties supported each other against outsiders to their mutual advantage. In dealings among themselves they kept an armed neutrality. "Differences" were settled privately. The great danger was a leader of the people arising, or one family becoming supreme over the rest. Such an event could be deadly and result in "St. Valentine's Day" massacres.

This, in fact, happened on two occasions. One family became supreme and liquidated most of the rest and confiscated their wealth. Thus, there was a constant struggle to keep one family from gaining absolute ascendancy over the others.

Roman Incidents

Things seldom "just happened" - they were made to happen. Misfortunes took place. Important supply ships sank, armies were sent to the wrong place, people drank things that didn't agree with them or had unfortunate accidents. They sometimes vanished.

At other times the Roman government managed to make such a mess of affairs that historians can hardly believe that the events related actually took place. These things really made the current rulers look bad.

The events taking place today within America's hierarchy may prove to be the same sort. Things go wrong. Things seldom go right.

Events Prior To Iran-gate

Judging by recent fiascoes, one would think that the U.S. military is a circus peopled with clowns.

This isn't true. I have spent years in military school, in the National Guard, Air Force, and Airborne, and from personal experience I know the United States military to contain many extremely efficient professionals. To explain their never ending "flaps" one might look elsewhere than just to blame stupidity.

The U. S. Picks Iran's Ruler

Iran had a Shah who was pro-U.S. The ruling junta in the U.S. dumped him for the present anti-U.S. Ayatollah. When thinking about Iranian affairs always remember that the pro-U.S. Shah was dumped in favor of anti-U.S. Ayatollah Khomeini. The Ayatollah had always been anti-U.S. and the deposed Shah had always been pro-U.S. The switch was no accident.

Next, thousands of pro-U.S. Iranians were executed. This too was no accident. The U.S. has no friends in Iran. The ruler installed with U.S. help has killed them all. This is almost an exact replay of the way an "anti-U.S. Cuba was established. "Anti-U.S." Castro was a B-movie Hollywood tapdancer/actor until chosen to replace "pro-U.S." Batista. Installed with enthusiastic American help he executed thousands of "pro-U.S." Cubans. Kennedy instructed the military to support an invasion of Cuba by "pro-U.S." Cuban refugees. After getting them on the beach they were abandoned. Critical air cover was denied at the last minute. Most were killed. The U.S. has no friends in Cuba. The "anti-U.S." ruler installed with U.S. help killed them all. Nationalist Chinese victims still living also have strong reservations about the American help they received against the communists.

Embassy Debacle

Next, the "anti-U.S." Iranians sacked our embassy. Marines were assigned to guard the embassy. Orders from Washington forbade them the honor of defending themselves against attacking Islamic mobs - their traditional enemy. Instead, proud American marines were handed over to Islamic heathen to be slapped, beaten, and spat upon.

The god of Islam was proclaimed to be greater than our god. Those were almost the exact words spoken by Jimmy Carter as he tried to win favor during negotiations for Embassy hostages release. Islam swelled with pride. American marines who had stormed ashore and humbled Islam 200 years ago were humbled by a government installed with establishment approval.

The Hostage Rescue

Then came the "Iran hostage rescue" to show the American public that everything possible was being done. A rescue mission staged by the American military that looked for all the world like a "Chinese fire drill". Half the rescuing party ran into the other half leaving a pile of crashed helicopters, scattered corpses and equipment lying all over the place. It was called an "accident".

The survivors barely managed to limp home - AND there wasn't an Iranian within miles of the landing zone. Not one. "Allah caused them to do it to themselves. Great is Allah!" The world of Islam still gloats.

To us, America's cannon fodder, this isn't funny either.

The Khadafy Raid

A bomb exploded in a German cafe killing an American. The establishment announced that Khadafy was behind it. Our Air Force was ordered to retaliate to teach Khadafy a lesson; teach him, his followers, and terrorists all over the world that the U.S. is not to be trifled with.

The non-U.S. world sees it differently. In their eyes the U.S. used a Pearl Harbor type sneak attack. The target was the head of a foreign state with whom the U.S. was at peace. The attack resulted in Khadafy's youngest daughter and many, many innocent civilians being killed. Across 5000 miles of N. Africa, the Middle East, and Asia, Islam calls the American attack - murder!

German, English, and French Christians in far away Syria and Lebanon were instantly shot in retaliation. If a "Christian" injures a follower of Islam anywhere in the world, all Islam feels the pain. Even more important, because of the attack hundreds of thousands in Islam have once more raised the "green flag" of holy war. Today, it is usual to find pictures of Islamic groups

German intelligence later traced the club bombing to an Israeli double agent. Apologies and reparations have not been forthcoming or even offered. If one were cynical one might say that those who rule the U.S. are doing everything they can to renew the 5000 year old enmity with the followers of Esau.

Grenada

With administration credibility slipping, a new target was selected. A pin-prick island in the Caribbean was said to be a massive supply depot to be used for communist aggression in central America. An invasion was mounted to neutralize this menace. Against virtually no resistance so many things went wrong that it took three days to secure the island.

It was later revealed that there were only a handful of defenders. Many had no rifles. Little enemy war materiel was found which was the reason given for the invasion. Grenada's ruler was removed and a U.S. selection installed. "Grenada" was then proclaimed to be a great victory. The U.S. withdrew followed by the world's laughter.

At home two establishment critics had accidents. The most vocal, a congressman, was killed in an airliner shot down by an anti- U.S. Chinese government which had been installed with help from the American establishment. His widow is presently being harassed by the IRS.

> "Of whom do the kings of the earth take custom or tribute? of their own children, or of strangers? Peter saith unto him, Of strangers." (Gr: allotrios - foreign, not akin.) Math 17:25-26.

Because of this law "use taxes" (use of a bridge, use of a highway) are tolerated in Christendom. Taxes on income loudly proclaim the king to be a "stranger" or a "stranger's agent". A "stranger" who does not recognize Christian law. Since Christ IS the law, those who violate the law, both master and agent are branded - anti- Christ! To many - the income tax is un- Christian. for payment of taxes on an accident settlement that she has never gotten. The other, also a congressman, was imprisoned by the IRS for doing what almost everyone else in congress was doing, and for which he was singled out for punishment.

Iran-gate

"Iran-gate" was the most recent disaster. Its immediate cause was due to "someone" leaking information. The leak has never satisfactorily been traced.

This leak was designed to embarrass certain establishment members who currently hold office. It did. Unlike other fiascoes, during this disaster the cloak of privacy slipped a bit and the public saw things behind the scenes designed for insider eyes only. Continuous disagreements within the establishment cause Washington to always look as if it is coming unglued. One thing seems clear. 'Ollie' is not "just" a marine Lt. Colonel. "Fawn" is not "just" a pretty little secretary. The job is too important. Her mother was long term secretary to Kissinger. We may be looking at an hereditary servant to the power elite.

Money Making Machine

"Iran-gate happened because "someone" leaked information. The "money making machine" of Ollie's group within the establishment was exposed. Munitions bought wholesale and with Israeli collaboration sold retail to Israeli enemies. Millions involved, perhaps billions. Secret Swiss bank accounts. Offshore banking. A multi-billion dollar war going on in the mid-east with generals and admirals all around, and a Lt. Col. appears who has the power to march in to America's munitions barons and order anything he wants for anyone he wants, and who has the authority to do anything he wants with the proceeds. No questions asked. All to fight Communism and uphold the American way, of course.

It was also revealed that there exists a private CIA within the CIA with the equipment, financing, and staff able to launch full blown military operations, and not even the CIA admits to knowing anything about it. Millions sent to the Contras. Not to support the war against the communists, because the communists are never hurt. The results indicate that the Contras are being paid NOT TO FIGHT, and they are doing exactly what they are being paid to do. They DON'T FIGHT!

The thing most difficult for the executive branch to explain is why America is furnishing arms to our supposed enemy, Iran, via our supposed friend, Israel, to fight our supposed friend, Iraq, who is also the friend of the USSR whose aircraft attack and blow up our warships in a most unfriendly manner. But still, the establishment stoutly maintains that Iran, the one aided by the establishment, is our official enemy. It is inferred that we just do not understand the situation.

This is hard to comprehend unless one remembers that "anti-U.S." Iran and its "anti-U.S." leader are creations of the very same establishment that is also responsible for doing all these other things.

The Operation

America briefly glimpsed one of the groups who rule America and the world.

The establishment and its operational groups have been around for years. There must be hundreds of billions at stake. For this reason someone cannot be allowed to drop in from nowhere and rearrange years of effort. Even the nation's president must take orders, not give them.

ALL candidates for the job have to receive media exposure to be elected, and they must be basically acceptable. They must be the same kind of horse from the same stable regardless of party. From arch-conservative Wallace to wild-eyed liberals like Jesse Jackson and Bush the wimp, when the cards are down all will prove to be liberals who have passed the establishment test and are house-broken. They know what they can do and can't do. Media exposure is their reward. Without it they are nothing.

In effect, the election whoopee chooses between previously chosen candidates. The election process is only a crowd pleasing spectacle. The winner is always an actor. Some come directly from Hollywood.

If this were not the case - Wallace would not have had a cameraman present at the schoolhouse door to take his picture. Reporters would talk about Jackson's love life, and questions about Bush's drug contacts would be front page. No one asks these questions. Media protection goes with establishment OK.

The well paid toothless hounds of the senate's "millionaires club" are given another pay raise[1] a little TV exposure, and in return find little wrong. A presidential "pardon" awaits if partisan politics go beyond that allowed.

For a brief moment we glimpsed the millions of dollars moving on well traveled highways we never dreamed existed outside of all traceable economic channels. Millions that can be used for payoffs, retirements, elections, Nugen-Hand bank assassinations, revolutions, private estates - anything! "The Nugen-Hand Bank was exposed by the Australian Government as a CIA fraud. Francis J. Nugan, Chairman, murdered. Michael J Hand, Vice-Chairman, an ex-Green beret Vietnam War Hero - now one of the world's most wanted men.[2] Billions that can be used wherever and whenever needed.

Conclusion

We learned a lot from Iran-gate. In time it will all come out. Just as in the time of Rome, today's ruling establishment is made up of families who are jealous of each others' power. Their houses of cards are bulging with money and power.

1 "Let him not have ... abundance of riches ... he may grow too proud to submit to the laws." Antiq 4:8:17

2 Hope's Husband, p.47, Nord Davis, Jr.

"Iran-gates" occur when competing families pull cards from the bottom of their neighbors' "house of cards" to show onlookers in the attempt to cut them down to size.

Order will be restored when our nations recognize God The Word and obey His requirements. The promise is:

> "The day that Israel shall repent (obey), the kingdom of the enemy shall be brought to an end." Book Of Dan 2:16-17.

Fort Smith - FBI Surveillance

Following the acquittal of the Fort Smith Treason Trial defendants I called one of them, Pastor Robert Miles, to discuss the trial. One question I asked was "What new or unusual occurred at the trial that you consider worth mentioning."

"The FBI's use of 'pick-me-up' agents", was his answer.

"Whenever the FBI wants manpower they hire local amateurs and pay them $400 a day. When they go after someone, almost overnight they can produce a cloud of informers, snoopers, impersonators, all newly hired.

"As these new agents stumble over each other questioning neighbors, poring over courthouse records, grilling teachers, friends, etc. they make quite an impression. This is your new FBI."

I've got news. The FBI has been doing this for years.

A few years back, on a dare, I wrote the FBI, Washington, DC, and asked them to release to me under the "freedom of information act" a copy of any record they might have on me. Then, I had my signature "notarized" so they wouldn't have a reason to turn down my request.

A few weeks later a thick packet returned. I was shocked! Yes, they had a file on me. Not only did they have a file, but the entries went back into my teens. The first agent had followed me onto a bus when I was perhaps 15 years old. He reported that I had advised other school children not to say "Civil War" but "War Between The States" because it showed which side you were on. Can you imagine? This is important enough to go into an FBI file? - when I was a teen!!!

My father, a surgeon, was identified as a dope fiend, not respected in the profession or the community. My father, a medical doctor, had 4 specialities and was one of the few doctors in the country deemed capable of practicing all four at the same time. Internal medicine, eye ear nose & throat, surgery, and urology. My mother was identified as a "religious fanatic" who taught Sunday School and was chaplain to a radical organization known as the Daughters Of The American Revolution. The FBI report described my family as "strange" and "standoffish".

A group of woodland scouts, led my me, was of particular interest to the FBI. Some parents and certain boys belonging to my group of pre-teens had been questioned by agents on the QT. Investigation showed that the group was possibly subversive. At meetings, tortures were inflicted. Boys offending some rule were made to sit absolutely still with their feet out in front of them (error: legs crossed) for 20 minutes (and they were not even allowed to move their eyes except to blink). Further investigation at last convinced the investigating agent that this group was local, had no contact with any national group, and was probably harmless.

When I got into college the files got even more interesting. Places I went. Political speakers I heard. Letters to editor I had written. Things I said. It was all there. The really interesting parts that I suppose dealt with bugs, wire taps, informer's names, mail interceptions, agents grilling employers, breaking and entering, payoffs, and amount of the bribes paid weirdos to collect this sort of kinky information must be in the parts blacked out. Almost entire pages were blacked out.

All this is unbelievable. I have searched my memory and can't recall a single unfriendly face. Who were these mysterious agents doing this watching? Why didn't I see them? Why were they following me around? What had I done?

Except for brief periods I have lived here all my life. In my teens Lynchburg was a small town. Everyone knew everyone else. It was a fish bowl life. Were FBI agents prowling everywhere? Was something going on that I didn't know about? Something that people were afraid that I might find out about? Later in the military I even had "Top Secret" clearance. Even after this clearance the record continues.

I mentioned to Pastor Miles that I was a little "paranoid". The old man said to me - "Dick, just because you are paranoid doesn't mean that they aren't watching you." A good observation.

Look! If the FBI will pay their agents fortunes to watch me from the time I was a boy, and I still haven't done anything illegal, they'll watch you too. Why don't you sit down right now and write the FBI in Washington and ask for a copy of your own FBI record.

Be sure to have your signature notarized before you mail your letter. Then, sit back and see what arrives in YOUR file. This is the good old USA, the home of the free. Remember?

Note: There is an excellent chance that you will receive back an interesting folder. If you don't, just remember, you have their word that they have no folder on you. Only that.

Note: Eustace Mullins' FBI file was over 800 pages. He photocopied it, made it into a book, and sells it for $15 a copy.

LETTERS

ESCAPE TUNNEL: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: You stated in your last letter about the Fort Smith Conspiracy Trial that the Ellison compound in the Arkansas hills did not have a back door. There was an escape tunnel which was immediately covered by the federals." P.C. - Colorado

ED: Ellison's groundplan envisioned a siege. In the actual sweetheart siege the tunnel became the only door. There was no back door. Even if there had been two tunnels, a door is only as good as its keeper.

LINCOLN: "Richard: You seem to regard Lincoln as the enemy. How can this be? He died at the hands of the money changers after he attempted to introduce constitutional money." C.W. - Washington

ED: Mr. Lincoln? Sir, you have touched a tender spot. Lincoln is one of the few things on which I hold strong opinions.

Lincoln was a central bank supporter. He was elected to office with bank backing. A bank agent, if you will.

Once in power he developed independent ideas. He admired the debt free Southern monetary scrip system. He copied it and issued money instead of borrowing it from the private banks who supported him for office. The Lincoln experiment had to be stopped for the establishment to survive. Lincoln was replaced. There was no other choice.

BUT - just because Mr. Lincoln's enemy is MY enemy - that does not make Mr. Lincoln my friend. He did other things besides making interest-free money while he was in office.

He imprisoned 10,000 of his own people without charge, closed opposition newspapers as it pleased him, had his army shoot down civilians in northern cities, and declared martial law.

At the very time his own family owned slaves he stole those belonging to others which had been bought by their owners in good faith. Payment was refused. "Lincoln lies" are notorious. He surrounded himself with like-minded men. A hard drinking, hard smoking lot. Sherman needs no introduction. Grant was called a shiftless unemployed bum by those who knew him. His father had been trained by the terrorist John Brown. His wife delved into astrology. A cozy family-like group of like-minded people that couldn't have come together by accident. These were his good points. From here it was all downhill.

The man was a monster to those he chose to make his enemies. There was nothing about him to "misunderstand" or "misjudge". It was all there on the table. There is not a single reason to believe "things would have been different had he lived." To support that hackneyed quote are only the words of his fellow party-politicians.

He knew of the suffering of POWs, both northern and southern. He imprisoned Southern POWs in the most exposed areas and refused to furnish them blankets and proper food. To the Northern prisoners in the South he refused to send medicines when requested both by Union prisoners and Southern officialdom. He stopped prisoner exchange that had been instituted earlier to relieve prisoner suffering.

He took over my great-grandfather's home at Kelly's Ford for his headquarters. While there he witnessed first hand the wanton pillaging and destruction going on right before his eyes and didn't lift a hand to stop it. He could have. He looked on approvingly as his soldiery broke open barrels of flour and poured molasses over it to make it unusable. Kelly's Ford was far behind union lines, so there was no military reason for it. He looked with hatred at the hungry women and children of my family, and the other burned out women and children refugees living there and crowded together in barns. His face was hard. His heart was hard. His soldiers drove the slaves away with rifle butts, only to have them return a few nights later to share the hunger and deprivation his minions left behind. Still they stayed. The generals he picked were hard. Lincoln was a hard hard man. The only gentle thing about him is the picture establishment historians paint. Had he lived it is doubtful if more than a very few of us would have survived.

Even after he was gone we had to live though years of occupation by black soldiers, carpetbagger government, wholesale thievery, brutality, rape, murders, and unspeakable things. It took that long before Lincoln's holocaust of ruin, starvation, and brutality, picked clean the bones of the South. There was nothing left to steal, so they went away and left us be.

BUT, before they left they raised the tariffs and charged us 3 times as much as before. They put in differential freight rates so that it cost more to ship goods by train from Richmond to NY than from NY to Richmond. The rates were still that way when I was a boy. Maj. William Hoskins, my great grandfather was a surgeon in The War. He had several advanced degrees. His son, my grandfather, was left 10,000 acres. Taxes broke him. Much of his life was spent behind a mule. He was lucky to get a 3rd grade education. He was fortunate to sell his land to a land company for almost nothing. It saved killing himself to pay the killing taxes used to pay the enormous state debt forced on Virginia during his father's generation.

Lincoln's successors relented not at all. They just left us in our misery and told us to pay the debts their minions had run up or they would "come back and finish the job." They left us in chains, but, praise God, they left.

Mr. Lincoln an enemy? Why sir, why would you think that? He is the model that the establishment wants everyone to copy. Goodness knows, today, Washington has a score that could fill his shoes in an instant.

Chapter 167

WHO WILL EAT

Issue #119 stated that driving the American farmer from the land would have serious repercussions.

Issue #134, was about The Weather and its changing character. Both articles are combined in the one that follows.

Sometime in the first half of this century the world entered an ice age.[1]

Proof - the heat!

Smog, smoke, and dust envelope the earth. It acts to shield the polar ice caps. The sun's rays cannot reach the ice caps to melt them. Snow falling in this region accumulates and little of the sun's heat arrives to melt it. The air that takes moisture to the poles leaves it there as snow. As it returns it picks up little moisture from melting ice as it used to do to bring summer rain. The summer winds arrive dry.

Throughout the world, little rain falls. Mexico is turning into a desert and her people flee to the US. Here, America's bread basket is drying up. The Mississippi is reduced to a trickle. The sun beats down like a furnace, and there are few rain clouds in the sky.

Jetstream

New centers of heat and cold are being established. The result - larger polar caps, larger deserts. The cold is colder, the hot hotter. This year, the only parts of the country to get normal rain were the central Atlantic states and the Pacific northwest.

The jetstream over our heads, said to be responsible for bringing the rain, is forced elsewhere.

Special groups in America blame the Soviets for using Tesler Buck Rogers type techniques to stop the rain. They say that the USSR now controls the weather. It may be somewhat farfetched to believe that a nation unable to produce a good can-opener can make it rain or not as they choose. If they could perform this remarkable feat, why import so much American grain?

Aggravation

America used to be self sufficient, able to provide all her food needs and well able to weather drought years. This self sufficiency is now gone. The reason - bank policies.[2]

New York international banks lent large sums to foreign nations. To earn dollars to repay the loans the foreign nations pay their own farmers to increase farm production as much as they can. Increased subsidized production gluts the world markets forcing farm prices down.

Low cost foreign farm production undersells the American farmer. The American farmer bankrupts and is forced off the land. America's potential to produce food is drastically reduced while over 50% of American food must now be imported.

This allows foreign nations to earn dollars to pay interest to the American banks at the expense of the American farmer and the American public. This trade off, interest payments in exchange for bankrupting farmers and curtailing the American food production, will be fatal to millions of people if the drought continues.

Result Of Drougth

The drought is world-wide. The media tell us that there are surpluses in the USSR, Argentina, and Australia, available to fill our and the world's needs, and that on top of that our own wheat stockpiles are sufficient to supply normal exports for several more years.

This appears doubtful. A faithful subscriber sent me a copy of the trade journal "Traffic World", dated June 27, 1988. It contained tables taken from the US Department of Agriculture, Office of Transportation.

They show that US grain carloadings to the Pacific coast ports are up 41% this year over last. The massive export shipments through the S. Atlantic & gulf ports are up 92%.

At the very time the drought has reduced American production 27%, according to official figures, the international grain dealers are shipping food out of the country by the trainload at a tremendously accelerated rate.

The total American grain reserves were expected to soon be reduced to the Strategic Reserve. If the government is telling us the truth this means that there is little food reserve left in the country except this Strategic Reserve which is supposed to be used only in case of war.

However, to count on this reserve to fill an emergency may be a false hope. Farmers have called me and said that the part of this stockpile they have personally seen may not be fit for human use. It was old, rat ridden, and some had gone bad. In other words, much of the reserve food may not be usable in an emergency. If this is so - there may be no lifeboat for a second drought year.

Preparation For Food Shortage

The lack of food is called FAMINE. It is a drastic word - not one to be used lightly. People die in famines. If they don't live on farms, have substantial garden plots, or have large food reserves stored, lots of people can die.

We don't want to be alarmist and jump at shadows. We don't want to be stupid either. If a famine arrives and we have made no preparations, we die. If we make preparations and there is no famine, well, we'll use up what we have set aside, and chalk it up to experience. Our long term costs will have been small.

To prepare for a worst case scenario in case nature continues its present course - put aside a year's supply of food. Our grandfathers always had a substantial supply of food on hand.

One has to eat anyway - why not buy a larger supply now, and use oldest first to keep it fresh.

This past week, subscribers have informed me that in west Texas and in parts of Ohio corn products and certain other foods are in short supply on store shelves. If the situation turns tight, food stores could empty overnight. Supermarkets carry only a 3 day supply.

The January #160 issue of this newsletter listed companies that produce non-hybrid seeds. Some are now defunct. I haven't had time to cull the list. However, non-hybrid seeds may be worth their weight in gold in the days ahead. Get the list, find the companies still in business, and get a supply.

Firearms! Just a reminder.

Clothing. Don't forget a hat, rain slicker, and good clodhoppers.

Transportation. Be ready to move where necessary on a moment's notice.

Confrontation

If things get very bad, we may expect the establishment to tell us that things are very good. Why? To keep us quiet while they take our grain for others. Once the cupboard is bare it makes little difference what we think or believe. We will have to deal with what will be left us - famine.

There is no way to soft-peddle this next; So here it is, in a nutshell:

If we do get back-to-back drought years - the entire world may be looking at famine. If there is not enough for everyone to eat - who then will eat?

The international grain merchants intend to supply their clients worldwide. Their profits are enormous. They could not care less about us. Will we be able to afford to have them take our grain to make their profits and let us starve? Will we be able to permit the long grain trains to rumble hundreds of miles across country to seaports and load them on ships to take to foreign lands at our expense?

What about the inner city denizens whom the establishment uses as their storm troops? Will we be expected to go hungry to feed them?

Conclusion

At this stage, the economic implication of a climate change combined with a food shortage cannot be fully envisioned. Is it possible that entire cities in our west may have to be vacated? This happened earlier to scores of cities in Iran when her weather changed. We are simply dealing with a situation beyond the ability of man to see.

However, just because we cannot fully envision the scope of the problem doesn't mean that we shouldn't do what we can to prepare for it.

At the Nebraska Farm Rally (#125) in February 1985, hundreds of farmers met to try to get someone to listen to them. One speaker asked God to send a leader - a Gideon - to lead. When the time is right he will appear.

In the meantime the rest of us, ready or not, may be forced to take the judgment seat. These judgments may be hard in the days ahead. For the sake of a profit, the future others may choose for us may result in famine and death.

Given two back to back drought years like the one we are going through - the question may be - who will eat? And what will you do to ensure that you do eat?

ED: Nowhere in The WORD does the phrase "psychiatric examinations" appear. The punishments for all crimes are spelled out. A cold blooded killer cannot make restitution, and he will pass along his own kind, therefore he must die. There is no exception.

HATE CRIMES: The Connecticut State Police are taking on "hate" crimes. According to the "Bridgeport Telegram", "a glance, a gesture, a word, a demeanor." They also can be committed by omission, association, inference, or by overt acts, such as denial of equal employment, housing and education. (Spotlight, July 1, 1988)

RICE: "Dear Dick: Enclosed is a package of wild rice. I carry some 4 1/2 packets in a screw-top 1/2 pint dairy cream bottle in my backpack. GLENN MILLER: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Whatever happened to Glenn Miller of the Patriot Party of North Carolina?" S. K. - Montana

ED: While waiting for a George Washington on a white horse to save the nation I was suckered once more by a "flag-waving" "reverse-speaker".

At his trial Glenn Miller was revealed to be working for the government. His "flag waving" was a come-on to patriots. His patriotic speeches were "reverse-speak". The government wanted the names of establishment opponents. They used Glenn Miller to get them. It all came out in the trial. I have copies of FBI testimony that goes into detail about Miller's co-operation with them. It is no longer a mystery why it was so easy for Miller to be apprehended. We now know why he issued a call to arms without participating himself. Others were to bleed and fuel establishment propaganda against patriotic flag-wavers. He received government protection, and a new identity. Thank goodness North Carolinians refused to go along with him.

The FBI report says that Miller has a drinking problem. I found out that Miller also had no interest in God when I quizzed him by phone about a news announcement he had made.

Rules learned? 1. Never again trust a "flag-waving" leader who drinks (Drinking proves a man to be neither a good priest, king, or leader - according to law.) 2. Never trust a man who does not go by God's WORD. The laws are simple cut and dried. If a leader doesn't follow the ones we all understand, then he MUST follow his own, or those of the establishment. 3. Find out who pays the man's check. The man who puts the groceries on the table calls the tune. 4. Never judge a movement by the CAUSE. Great CAUSES can be put on or taken off like coats. No cause is better than its leader.

The establishment uses our discontent against us. He knows that millions of Americans feel betrayed, robbed, over-taxed, and disfranchised. To defuse this he finances organizations to mislead the disenchanted. The establishment is the real sponsor of many flag-waving and religious do-nothing patriotic veterans organizations, patriotic newsletters, patriotic religious leaders, and flag-waving politicians. The establishment has been at it a long time. But then, so have the faithful.

I am sorry about Glenn Miller. He could have been another George Washington.

CIRCUMCISION: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Do you believe that the law requires 'circumcision'?" K. N. - California

ED: Circumcision became deeply ingrained during the occupation of Palestine by the Syrian-Greek-Arabs. The Syrian-Greek prohibition against it helped trigger the Maccabean Wars.

The occupying Syrian-Greeks killed newly circumcised boys along with their parents. The ancient book of Antiquities (perhaps the book least tampered with) states:

> "God charged him (Abram), in order to keep his posterity unmixed with others, that they should be circumcised." Anti 1:10:5.

The Syrian-Arabs were a different race. They were not "adam". They were not "son-of-adam" or "son-of-man" (both mean the same thing). They couldn't blush red. Circumcision was done to constantly remind the conquered that "son-of-man" people were to stay to themselves alone.

The cream of the adamic race came to America during the persecutions of the 1600s. The ancient command was perpetuated here. 90% still practice it. 90% in Europe don't. Most in Europe are descendants of those who opposed the Law in the 1600s. Like breeds like. As long as there are adamic people in America who wish to keep to themselves circumcision is likely to continue.

Some say that circumcision supports "disfigurement" - which is forbidden.

The disfigurement of circumcision is not the same as the custom of cutting a digit from one's finger to memorialize a sorrow or a success. It is not the intentional scarring of one's face for the same reason. Circumcision is no more disfiguring than removing an appendix, extra and unneeded teeth, impacted molars, or a wart. Circumcised men do not get many bacteriological infections prevalent in lands where circumcism is not practiced.

CIRCUMCISION: "Dear Dick: On circumcision I have taken the view of the medical profession, which comes from Paul, who told the Galatians that they must stop following Jewish laws, particularly regarding circumcision." Dr. Edward York, Financial News Analysis, 152 W. Alta Green, Port Hueneme, CA 93041

ED: The only thing that I have found that has come down intact from the ancient days is the Law. "I have not come to change the law ... "The law forbids "adulteration". I have 10 typewritten pages, taken from the scriptures, of specific commands, statutes, and judgments forbidding the adulteration of the race of "son-of- man".

Circumcision was begun to keep "son-of- man" separate from those who weren't. Paul is used today to refute this, as he is improperly used to refute ALL law - "The Law is done away." This usage was not possible before 1825 because at that time our Bible contained the Apocrypha as it had since the Bible was put together by the early church fathers.

The Apocrypha comes down hard against association with non- adamic peoples. It used to be that the works of Paul, following the Apocrypha in the Bible, were interpreted in light of the older law-abiding Apocrypha. "Abolitionists" had no theological argument to justify mixing adamic with non-adamic peoples. Paul can be interpreted in a number of different ways. They needed Paul's help, unrestrained by the Apocrypha. The stripping of the Apocrypha from the Bible gave this help.

In an instant the history starting with the return from Babylonian captivity to the advent of Jesus almost completely vanished. Without the Apocrypha, Paul could be quoted without Apocryphal restrictions.

Notice how Paul is the one quoted and misquoted almost exclusively to substantiate unlawful acts. Paul, instead of Jesus who gave the Law in the beginning, has become God to many (present company excepted). When the law of Jesus comes under assault it is the quotes (misquotes) of Paul that lead the attack - especially the catch-all "the Law is done away".

Regardless of what Paul says, most adamic Americans will follow what they consider the requirements of the law in regard to circumcision.

Incidentally, as a boy I assisted my father, who was a surgeon, to perform circumcisions on mature men who because of poverty had not been circumcised as babies. They had become convinced, for whatever reason, that they should be circumcised. For a mature man to undergo this operation he has to be really convinced. These men were, and they came in a steady stream.

Chapter 168

SUSANNA

Alien Rulers & Their Gods

Alien rulers make demands not palatable to conquered subjects. They make demands which their god approves, or else they would not make them. To avoid punishment, conquered subjects do all in their power to humor the rulers and their god.

The demands, however, continue to come. To keep peace, concessions continue to be made. But nothing is ever enough. In time the ruler will demand something that his conquered subjects cannot do without being damned by their own god. Then, the hard choice must be made. Obey the alien's god or obey one's own God.

In ancient days our God was called God the WORD. He had 10 rules dealing with murder, theft, adultery, etc. Under these 10 rules were statutes and judgments. His people were expected to follow them. Then, as now, the disobedient used every argument not to obey. But, God's people esteemed it a privilege to obey.

The Apocrypha lists some of their stories. Following are three. The first is about Susanna. The elders, or priests, referred to in the story were the usual politically approved establishment types.

Susanna

"Jocam ... took a wife, whose name was Susanna ... a very fair woman, and one that feared the Lord.

"Jocam was a great rich man, and had a fair garden ...when the people departed ... Susanna went into her husband's garden to walk. And ... two elders (who hid behind) saw her ... so that their lust was inflamed toward her. ... they were ashamed to declare their lust ... Yet they watched diligently ... to see her ...

"She was desirous to wash herself in the garden: for it was hot ... She said to her maids, Bring me oil ... and shut the garden doors, that I may wash ... when the maids were gone ... the two elders rose up ... saying, we are in love with thee; therefore ... lie with us. If thou wilt not, we will bear witness against thee, that a young man was with thee ...

"Susanna sighed ... if I do this thing, it is death unto me: and if I do it not, I cannot escape your hands. It is better for me to fall into your hands, and not do it, than to sin in the sight of the Lord ..." (History Of Susanna, from the Apocrypha)

(Read this yourself to discover the proper way to examine a witness in a court of law.)

Susanna was willing to obey God, refuse these two evil lying elders, and be put to death for adultery, rather than actually commit adultery.

The next story comes from the time of the Maccabees - the time to which I believe we have returned today. The land had been occupied by Alexander in his pursuit of the Persians. Greek generals ruled and Greek soldiers and their mixed arab-Syrian wives were the aristocracy. These rulers demanded the conquered peoples do what their own alien god approved.

As time went on the people began to resist. Small things became a test, much as "God save the King" became a life or death test to our own forefathers in the 1600s. One did what was demanded or died. The following is the story of a mother and her 7 sons.

The Mother & Her Seven Sons

"Seven brethren and their mother were taken and compelled by the king against the law to taste swine's flesh, and were tormented with ... whips. One of them ... spake ... We are ready to die, rather than to transgress the laws of our fathers ...

"Then the king ... commanded ... to cut out the tongue ... and the outermost parts of his body ... he commanded him yet being alive to be brought to the fire, and to be fried in a pan (and this he did to each of the six brothers)...

"Whilst the youngest was yet alive (the king said that) he would make him both a rich and happy man, if he would turn from the laws of his fathers ... But ... the young man would in no case harken unto him ... the king called the mother, and exhorted her that she would council the young man to save his life ...

"But, she ... spake ..., Fear not the tormentor, but being worthy of thy brethren, take thy death, that I may receive thee again in mercy with thy brethren ... The young man said ... I will not obey the king ... but I will obey ... the law ...I, as my brethren, offer up my body and life for the laws of our fathers ... and that by torments and plagues confess, that he alone is God: ...

"So this man died undefiled ... last ... the mother died." (II Maccabees 7:1-41)

But, there comes a time when a man, somewhere, refuses to do one more thing that will violate his God's law. He will not be content to be imprisoned and die there from maltreatment and mistreatment from other prisoners to show love for his God. When the establishment asks this man to turn against his God there will be an explosion. The next is the story of such a man.

Mattathias

"The king's officers, ... came into the city ... to make them sacrifice ... Then answered the king's officers, and said to Mattathias ... Thou art a ruler, and an honorable and great man in this city ... Now ... fulfill the king's commandment. ... and thou ... shall be honored with silver and gold ... Mattathias answered ... Though all the nations ... fall away every one from the religion of their fathers ... Yet will I and my sons .. walk in the covenant of our fathers. God forbid that we should forsake the law and the ordinances ... Mattathias ... was inflamed with zeal, ... therefore he ran and slew him upon the altar. Also the king's commissioner, who compelled men to sacrifice, he killed at that time, ...

Thus dealt he zealously for the law of God, like as Phinees did unto Zambri the son of Salom. And Mattathias cried ... Whosoever is zealous of the law, and maintaineth the covenant, let him follow me. So he and his sons fled into the mountains, and left all that ever they had in the city." I Maccabees 1-27

This act of Mattathias and his sons started the Maccabean revolt. It continued until the false priests, and the strangers and their allies, were banished from the land.

These are three examples of people willing to give their all for their God.

The Law

Who is one's god? Is he tall or short? Does he have curly hair, a "godly look", and is he filled with "love"? What's his name? These words have no meaning. No living man has seen God.

A god is known by what he demands. Many gods allow their followers to do practically anything they like and proclaim "the law is done away with". Our God has given 10 commands and expects us to obey them. Jesus confirmed it again - "if you love me, OBEY."

The West is living on a powder keg. As in the day of Susanna, the Mother and her Seven Sons, and Mattathias, the law once more is being flaunted and violated.

Across the West live tens of millions of Law Christians who are as willing as their ancestors who ventured on the crusades to die for God's Law. It only remains a question of time until the establishment does as the Greeks did, and demands that one of the faithful do that which his God declares "unlawful". When they do - the answer will be - NO!

A Susanna will refuse and throw herself on the mercy of a corrupt court stacked with lying witnesses. A mother and her 7 sons will die one at a time, in a frying pan or in a prison at the mercy of savage inmates loosed on them. But a Mattathias will fight! and die like Mattathias and each of his sons died, one at a time. BUT, die in the process of destroying law breakers. The murderers, rapists, and homosexuals, and those who approved their acts, were punished when Mattathias and his sons, "the Maccabees", came down from the hills. The story says that Matthathias' last son lived to see the heathen and their lawless allies banished.

Those who believe that tomorrow will be the same as today are in for a rude awakening. There is only one standard that the faithful can live by - the 10 commandments.

The new god brought into our land is demanding that his alien laws be enforced. Open immigration, tribute to foreign nations, heavy taxes, forced busing, coddling communists, coddling criminals, corruption, favoritism, Hollywood morals, the Bakker/Swaggert establishment approved Samaritan Christian substitute religion, etc. This confronts the 10 commandments of our God. There is friction. Both laws can't rule at once. It is certain that a Mattathias will refuse. If the establishment does not stop him he will force everyone to choose. On that day this land will fragmentize.

It comes as a shock for the average citizen to realize that at this moment thousands of people are in prison in America for obeying a law that was lawful yesterday but today has been declared unlawful. Hundreds were jailed in Atlanta alone this past month. The month before hundreds more were jailed in New York. The establishment becomes more oppressive as it demands that its god be obeyed.

Another back-to-back drought year could create a food shortage. A food shortage could result in uncontrollable political conditions. People may opt for change if they come to believe that conditions will not get better and that they have nothing further to lose. Yesterday's Matthathias could be tomorrow's George Washington.

Tomorrow's investment decisions will be made in changing times. They will not be simple. Don't complicate matters by going into debt.

If events become unhinged, remember, that where your people are, your God lives. There, His law rules. You and your property will be safe. Only there.

AIDS UPDATE

GLOVES: "The medical staff at San Leandro's (Calif) Fairmont Hosp. recently conducted tests of gloves following the finding of defective gloves during a procedure on an AIDS infected patient. They blew the gloves up and held them under water. The results? 10% of nonsterile vinyl gloves and 35 % of nonsterile latex gloves leaked! ... many are now double-gloving on a routine basis." First AIDS Report, July, 1988, PO Box 2396, Vancouver, WA 98668

UNDETECTABLE: The AIDS virus hidden in body cells can remain undetectable by commonly used screening methods. This finding suggests that the virus is actually being carried by some who were declared free of the virus in commonly used tests. NY Times June 5, 1988.

KISSING: "AIDS transmission by kissing has occurred. A man ... permanently impotent ... contracted AIDS from blood transfusions. Now, his wife has AIDS and their only sexual activity was kissing." Letter, N. England Journal of Medicine, copied from Daily News Digest June 22, 1988

BANK LENDING: "Banks loan 80% of the money deposited with them." shrills a newsletter. Nonsense! Banks don't lend depositors' money. They create money out of thin air to lend. This is how they bankrupt small banks and take over their accounts. They've been doing it for years

BLOCKBUSTING: "Hundreds of specially trained black, Hispanic and white couples will be sent by the federal government to pretend ... to buy ... homes... (to) spot blatant discrimination ...." News, Lynchburg, A3, April 11, 1988.

EDITOR: This is a billion dollar business. The WORD will not allow us to live among strangers lest we learn their ways. Blockbusting forces our people from their homes, and forces them to borrow money to build new houses. Billions in profits are generated for the usury bankers. This is why blockbusting statutes were passed. The Law will judge those who have abused our nation. They will be required to restore fourfold to those whom they have defrauded.

BORROWERS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: The 'economic potential' of immigrant beggars is tremendous and confirms what you wrote in your book. Brought into the country and put on welfare, each can handle $50,000 in loans. 'Open Borders' is big business for the banks - and hell for the American worker." Q. S. - Alaska

Chapter 169

MERCURY FILLINGS

A few months ago a subscriber called with an unusual story. He said that both he and his wife had been subject to poisoning from silver-mercury fillings in their teeth. His symptoms were those of muscular dystrophy and Alzheimer's Disease. His wife was subject to severe menstrual disorders. The problems had continued for years. Upon filling removal and replacement with ground glass fillings with a plastic binder on a Dropsin base, the symptoms disappeared.

The following article was copied from The KS Newsletter, Box 399, Pleasant View CO. It is a partial reprinting of a newsletter written by Dr. Tim Kersten, a practicing dentist from Burney, California.

"Patients are too dumb to make decisions concerning their own health!"

Believe it or not, this was the comment from another dentist to me while our office participated in the Redding Holistic Health Fair last week. Unfortunately, it is the attitude of many dentists in deciding whether to inform their patients that 40% to 60% of that 'silver' filling they want to place in your mouth is MERCURY.

One of our displays at the the health fair stated the following:

ARE MERCURY/SILVER AMALGAMS SAFE?
They contain:

MERCURY 40-60%
SILVER 15-37%
TIN 12-13%

The University of Tennessee Toxicology Center, which is considered to be the finest in the country, rated plutonium as the most toxic substance to man; it was rated at 1900+. Using the same scale, mercury was rated at 1600 and nickel at 600.

The Toxicology Center's mention of nickel brings up another dental dilemma. Nickel is currently used by the National Cancer Research Institute to induce cancer in lab animals. Rather tragically, about 80% of the Dental Profession are using nickel- based alloys for their porcelain overlaid crowns. Most toxic/allergic reactions to nickel do not show up in the mouth, but manifest in a disease process somewhere else in the body, i.e., kidneys.

On May 19, 1987, Sweden, after many years of extensive investigation and research, has declared that;

> "Amalgam (mercury and silver) is from a toxicological view, an unacceptable dental filling material, which shall be discontinued when a suitable dental filling material has been developed. As a first step in the process to eliminate the use of amalgam in dental fillings, comprehensive amalgam work on pregnant women shall be stopped in order to prevent mercury damage to the fetus.'"

The American Dental Association publishes several warnings and precautions concerning the occupational hazards to dental personnel working with mercury-silver fillings. It states under no conditions should the mercury-silver filling material be touched or come in contact with the skin and that all scrap filling material must be stored under water in an air-tight, sealed container. Does that sound like a substance you would want in your mouth?

There are acceptable alternatives to the mercury/silver filling; ask your dentist about these and start now in minimizing your toxic exposure from this dental material. When old filling are removed, ask that a 'rubber dam' be used so that mercury/silver filling do not go down your throat. When the bacteria of the bowels comes in contact with the mercury/silver particles, there is a biochemical conversion from the inorganic mercury to an organic methyl or ethyl mercury, which is many times more toxic and can cause bowel and/or kidney dysfunction.

If you don't feel you are 'too dumb' to make your own decisions concerning your health, start now through education; after all, it's your health that is at stake."

The book "It's All In Your Head" by another dentist,[1] contains the following statement by the American Dental Association quoted from the JADA, Vol. 82, March 1971:

> "Are amalgam fillings and their placement hazardous to the patient? The answer is an unqualified 'NO'.

1 It's All In Your Head, Dr. Hal A. Huggins, POB 2589, Colorado Springs, CO 80901

> Study after study has shown that the patient undertakes no risk whatsoever with the amalgam filling."

Dr. Huggins' response to the above statement is: "It is interesting to note that there is no documentation to the 'study after study' claim. Efforts to find these studies proved fruitless. We contacted Dr. P. L. Fan of the ADA to request reprints of those studies. He said he would be happy to furnish them. A few days later we received one reprint (written before we were born) and a list of references that, in his words, 'clearly repudiate any apprehension about the safety of amalgam fillings.'"P*Ibid*: p.159

"It's All In Your Head" contains a number of interesting case histories, as well as a large number of enlightening comments. Following are some of them taken out of context.

> "'Chronic fatigue' is a result of insufficient oxygen to the cells. Mercury interferes with the ability of hemoglobin to transport oxygen. Slow healing is in part a result of zinc deficiency. Mercury interferes with zinc metabolism." p50. "'Most people who suffer from mercury toxicity are constantly fatigued. They sleep more than eight hours a night and wake up tired. ..." p.62.

> "Electrical current is generated in metallic fillings in the mouth. The higher the electrical current, the faster the chemical reactions .. more mercury comes out of the fillings." p.67 "The suicidal patient is extremely friable in terms of reaction to electrical change." p.72. "The amount of electrical current generated by 'braces' is generally several times higher than that created by amalgam fillings." p107.

> "People process thought differently with amalgams than they do after amalgam removal. They cope better." p.75. "Perhaps the greatest dietary source of mercury is canned tuna. This is followed closely by the shell fish like lobster and shrimp." p93. "Chemically the high copper amalgams emit mercury 50 times faster than conventional amalgams ... high copper amalgam is probably the most deadly." p103. "... nickel is used in over 90% of the crowns made. Overall use is over 85%." p106.... "gold and amalgam should not be in the mouth at the same time ..." p71. "Some of the worst reactions we have seen occurred where the patients had combinations of nickel, gold, and amalgam -". p107. "Dycal, the most often used base material, gives many people the same reaction as mercury does. ...Although it is not perfect either, we have found the best results overall with a base called Dropsin." p108.

Studies listed in his book on page 159 but evidently not referred to by the ADA include:

"Death Caused By Swallowing Large Amalgam Filling"
"Diseased Eyes and Amalgam Fillings" Mercurial Necrosis Resulting from Amalgam Fillings"
"Irritation of the Larynx Caused by an Amalgam Filling"
"Poisoning from ... Amalgam Plugs in the Teeth"

"Amalgam and Kindred Poisons"

Conclusions

Before the recent rash of articles on mercury poisoning my knowledge of the subject was confined to the expression "mad as a hatter". This expression referred to "hatters" who cleaned the beaver hats of yesteryear and were subject to insanity brought on by being poisoned by the mercury they used in the cleaning process.

If mercury on a hatter's hands could cause mental instability, mercury in one's mouth could presumably do the same. One is left with the feeling that the subject of mercury poisoning may in time blow up into something really quite big. Perhaps bigger than the drug, tobacco, or even the AIDS controversy. After all, who doesn't have an ache or a pain and doesn't have a mercury filling they can blame it on. The combination is almost certain to bring lawsuits and have economic repercussions.

In time investors, instead of only lawyers, and the afflicted, may learn how to benefit from it

B B B

The ruling party in S. Africa is called the National Party. It poses as conservative. Its actions brand it "radical-left".

An opposition party, the Afrikaaner Resistance Movement (AWB), under the guidance of charismatic Eugene Terre'Blanche is rapidly overtaking the ruling National Party, according to opinion polls. However, the AWP offers nothing more than just "opposition". They have no new or long range plan to deal with problems in South Africa. They merely want to "stop" the ruling party.

The suspicion is that S. Africa's "establishment" may be funding the ruling party AND ALSO its opposition to control both, as is done in the United States.

A radical-right party has formed in S. Africa. It's name - "BBB". It's leader " Professor Johan Schabort.

Its purpose - to present ideas which it believes are purposely being ignored by present right wing parties.

Stripped of rhetoric, Schabort's platform calls for "repatriation". The removal of blacks from S. Africa.

Like it or not, THIS is a clear cut solution! Professor Shabort says that S. Africa is for Whites. They were there first and they mean to stay, and the rest of Africa is large enough for the blacks. In his words "We believe firmly that Blacks and Whites cannot share the same geographical area ... we believe in total separation."

This stand was shared by early American presidents who supported the African Colonization Movement. Marcus Garvey, the charismatic black leader of the largest "back to Africa" movement, had over 10 million dues paying black members in N. & S. America in his organization. He was jailed by the establishment in the 1920s in the effort to break up his group.

At the present time there is an organization called The League Of Pace Amendment Advocates, 1222 S. Glendale Ave. Suite 3, Glendale, CA 91205 1-818-247-2804, composed of black speakers who tour the U. S. drumming up support for a congressional bill to finance a "back to Africa" move by American blacks.

Peace comes when friction is removed. The right wing BBB is serving a useful purpose in S. Africa. It presents a litmus test issue. If the other parties are controlled, they won't acknowledge that the option exists - just as in the United States.

PRIVITAZATION S.AFRICA: "Electricity, oil, telecommunications, railways, airlines, television and many other basic industries are all in the hands of the state. Now the government (of S. Africa) has announced that it will begin turning these industries over to private enterprise." The Detroit News, 8A, February 22, 1988

ED: This is Botha's payment for establishment support. South Africa's industry will be turned over to the international bankers. Only they have unlimited funds to buy these industries. England, France, and Mexico did the same earlier. First the establishment confiscates (nationalizes) industries from their owners. Then they give (sell) them to the internationalists. "Privatization" is the biggest un-talked about scam in the world next to "blockbusting" and the "income- tax".

US SUPPORTS AFGHANISTAN: Soviet supporters in the US government provided Stinger ground to air missiles to Afghan Freedom Fighters only after it became obvious that 1) the Afghans were winning without them, 2) after drum fire Afghan complaints that the US government was providing no help, 3) to silence US critics world wide. Patriots point to lack of US help to anti-Communist freedom fighters in Poland, Angola, Nicaragua, Vietnam, Mozambique, and elsewhere as examples of communism at work in the US government.

MERCHANT FLEET of the US that formerly registered some 5,000 ships is now down to 97. State-supported foreign lines, including the USSR, are eating the US alive. Most of the industry could disappear within months - not years. From Traffic World, p. 13, October 26, 1987

ED: It's planned this way. Our country's agricultural system is being destroyed. Alaskan oil industry remains undeveloped resulting in absolute dependence on foreign oil that can be cut off in a day. Critical military equipment is manufactured abroad. The electronics industry is being ruined by imports. Basic industry is being moved wholesale out of the country. No anti- missile defense, no bomb shelters, no universal military training, a country swarming with hostile strangers, aided by a left-extremist congress, an anti-American media, AIDS plague- carriers are protected, its God held to ridicule, and now - no merchant fleet. This is a scenario of a nation being prepared for destruction. It's no accident. Our GOD is bringing the strangers against us. The survival of our country, our possessions, and our lives depends on our obedience.

US CHINA COZY: "In an unprecedented move, the State Dept ... approved export of US communications satellites to China. ... State Dept. spokesman ... said ...the US and China will cooperate to safeguard the technology from possible misuse or diversion." NY Post, p.10, Sept. 10, 1988.

CALIFORNIA PREDICTION: "California will have the the world's fifth-largest economy by the turn of the century. ... LA will be ... #1 population center ... California's trade with the Pacific Rim countries will exceed $100 billion.

Ethnic minorities will make up 1/2 of the state's population." DLJ, 140 Broadway, NY, NY 10005, p.5, Sep 2, 1988.

AGENTS PROVOCATEUR: "The Police Department today will start an anti-bias decoy operation in New York neighborhoods ... Cops in street clothes ... will spend time ... to await attacks by bigots ... For example, black decoys will work Howard Beach ... Hispanic decoys will work the Bronx ... Holmes insisted the decoys would not 'provoke' attacks ... " Daily News, NYC p. 21, Jan. 21, 1988.

ED: I'll bet! Once the "scare is on" they'll move in the billion dollar neighborhood blockbusters. The establishment is organized and good at this. Why not send "white" decoys to Harlem? or would that be provoking attacks?

SEDITION TRIAL: "As we have been gathering facts for our 'sedition trial documentary', we are discovering that the men of The Order, who were on trial, have been maligned. The individual who reported that these 4 members of The Order who were on trial were immoral and frequented brothels was not able to substantiate, or was not willing to substantiate, his accusations to us. The Order members on trial showed great courage, Christian conviction, and love for country and their God. It appears that they have been lied about and forgotten with most being afraid to speak out in their defense. While not endorsing the group or its actions, it needs to be said that those particular men, who are now painted as villains, may someday be described by historians as just the opposite once the truth is known."

"Dear Richard: Two questions:

Q1. I wish you could address real estate more thoroughly." C. W. - Washington

ED: The usury system has reduced real estate to a commodity. The dollar rises or falls at the whim of the establishment. The dollar fell from about 1971 until 1980. Real estate boomed. From 1980 to 1985 the dollar rose and farm values broke badly while urban real estate traded flat. From 1985 to early 1988 the dollar fell. Urban real estate almost doubled and farm values went up 10%+. Now the dollar has started to rise again. If history repeats, this should mean that urban real estate and farm values should weaken.

Q2. The bureaucracy is buzzing with problems of waste disposal. I have a feeling that there is an investment potential here.

ED: In Europe, waste disposal has been developed into a business. It's efficient and also EXPENSIVE. A cheap way of recycling is the road to riches.

RECYCLING: "Dear Dick: Before WWII our township disposed of garbage by putting the food products into containers and putting bacteria on top. It made the best fertilizer. No incinerators or anything." I. B. - New Jersey

EXCESSIVE DEBT: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Another newsletter writer says that unlike W. Germany and England, the US and Japan have created excessive debt, therefore they must have higher interest rates to stop inflation. Please comment." F. B. - Colorado

ED: I don't know what "excessive debt" is. No one voluntarily goes into debt. Rising interest rates always stop people borrowing money into existence, stop rising stock markets, stop expanding economies, and cause depressions. I don't know of any exceptions. The question now is - how high must interest rates be to be high?

NAILING LIBERALS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: From a newspaper list of those having licenses to carry firearms, most appear to be liberals. These same liberals also oppose private ownership of guns for the rest of us. It would seem that this may be a foolproof test. If a man opposes private ownership of firearms while owning one himself - he is a liberal." J. M. - NY

"Dear Mr. Hoskins: Why the great outcry against S. Africa's 'Apartheid'? Every nation in Africa practices it, but S. Africa is the one blamed." G. M - Maryland

ED: Money. The world embargoed chrome from Rhodesia to force them to sell it to the USSR. The USSR marked it up and resold it to the West. Most of the switch took place in the S. African ports. This gave the USSR money to pay interest to Western banks.

S. African factories and mines are presently humming away. The "apartheid" embargo forces them to sell their output to the Israelis who mark it up for resale to the West. Much of the transfer takes place in the S. African ports. The Israeli nation gets the middle-man's money for its own needs. The Israeli owned S. African press supports President Botha in return. Practically the only customer S. Africa has for its products are the Israelis. Since prices are set by a single buyer the ones hurt are S. African workers. In effect, they are economic slaves to the Israeli nation. S. Africa must buy Israeli products in return. It's a sweetheart deal - DC, S. Africa, Tel- Aviv.

AIDS UPDATE

AIDS: "A Department of Correctional Services spokesman noted that the NY state will spend more than $18 million on prison AIDS patients in the coming year." NY Times, May 13, 1988

SWEDEN: "STOCKHOLM - Plans to hold ... carriers of the AIDS virus under lock and key ... in Stockholm ... have raised ... protests ... Two unrepentant prostitutes carrying the virus are already being held to prevent them spreading the disease ... The inmates would be held under the provisions of a law governing the spread of infectious diseases ..." SA Observer, Pretoria, S. Africa.

AIDS CONTAMANATED BLOOD: The California Supreme Court upheld a lower court order requiring medical officials to identify an AIDS infected donor in a lawsuit brought by a woman whose late husband was infected by contaminated blood in 1983. The order was issued in a negligence suit against the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank and the San Francisco Medical Society.

The woman in turn became infected by her husband and is dying. The suit requires the donor's identification so that he can be questioned about screening procedures in effect at the time.

Lawyers for the blood bank argued that identifying the donor would violate physician-patient privilege of confidentiality. The bloodbank spokesman said "We're quite worried that this will discourage people from donating blood."

The woman's attorney said "We feel the blood bank was negligent in screening blood - that it didn't do all it should have back in 1983 - and we need to question the donor about it. From a Los Angeles Times article of Wednesday March 16, 1988 part 1, 3.

Chapter 170

THE HOUSE

The James and its branches traverse the state from west to east. Lexington, Lynchburg, Richmond, Newports News[1], and Norfolk lie on its banks or the banks of its tributaries. South of the James is Southside Virginia. Business sometimes takes me there.

I passed a small plantation house of the sort that used to be so prevalent. It was built perhaps 1720 or so. Not big. Not really old. It had 3 dormers and needed a coat of paint.

1 In 1607-1608, Captain Newport brought news from Britain. Often he couldn't sail up the James against prevailing westerlies, so he anchored. A boat was sent up to Jamestown with Captain Newport's news. His anchorage at the mouth of the James became known as Newport's News. It remained vacant farmland until WW I when a city was built there. Recently the name was changed to Newport News. Five

The striking thing was its cemetery close by. The house and cemetery went together. It was a big family cemetery. Nine generations were buried there. The same family had lived there generation after generation. The fathers, grandfathers, great grandfathers all the way back. Aunts, uncles, infant babies and sons killed in the wars. One fell at Gettysburg, another at the Wilderness, another at Petersburg. All were buried there. It was more than a house. It was home.

There were no cars next to the house and the fields weren't planted. But the driveway was well used and the house, too. The present owner must be working in Petersburg and driving 40 miles back and forth. At least he has managed to hang on to the place.

I envied that man. We all should. He is one of the very few who has salvaged what we all were promised.

My own family has nothing to show for 400 years. We came to Jamestown in 1615. The first of the name was Bartholomew, a boy aged 15. He was sent here so that if the rest of the family back in England were killed there would be a survivor. His father was a protestant minister to a Catholic King. A thing not conducive to longevity in that day.

Landing at Jamestown, he moved across Hampton Roads to Norfolk, then a land of trackless woods, not a city. From there, he moved to the Northern Neck and cleared a small plantation. This was confiscated when the King turned the whole Northern Neck over to one of his favorites. He was forced to move on.

In 1640 he sold land at Hoskins Creek, where Tappahannock is, to buy a plantation in Essex County. The Hoskins' took part in Bacon's Rebellion against a corrupt Royal Governor who objected to their defending themselves against hostile indians, thereby upsetting his lucrative private trade with them. The "rebel's" lands were confiscated and handed over to his favorites (which is the reason we have never gotten along with the "big house Byrds" on the James).

Our family moved on to the run-down Mount Pleasant plantation after the "war crimes" trials, executions, and confiscations were over. There they eked out a precarious living.

After 1692 the King set the usurers of the Bank of England on us. This set the stage for "good 'ole John Robinson's disaster" where he lent state tax receipts to private individuals. The borrowers were unable to pay back the loans since there was almost no money in circulation with which to pay. As a result, most of Virginia's farms and plantations were redistributed again. We hung on to Mount Pleasant because we didn't owe anything.

Robert Hoskins, a younger son, fought with the 1st Virginia Continental Line. His brother, John was one of the first over the top at Redoubt #10 at Yorktown.[2]

After the war he married a Byrd heiress and moved to the Byrd "Dragon" plantation.[3] She was descended from the "little house" Byrds. They were called "little house" because their branch fought with Bacon and had their lands confis-

2 The 1st Virginia went over the killing fields at Gettysburg. The sons of The Blues, the Little Boy Blues, aged 10 to 15, repulsed Col. Dahlgren's attack on Richmond. The 1st Va. has long been known as the Richmond Light Infantry Blues. It has been continuously organized since 1687 and is today a National Guard Unit. My father served in The Blues. I followed in his footsteps as a youngster, from private to commissioned officer.

3 Heiress doesn't mean RICH. Usually it meant that a woman inherits from her father in the absence of a son. In this case a small plantation was given as a dowry.

cated. Consequently, they lived in little houses. Their wealthy Byrd cousins on the James supported the governor and got their confiscated lands and built "big" houses.

Our branch is known as the "Dragon" Hoskins because we lived on the Dragon. We lived there for more than a hundred years and put 4 generations in the Bird family cemetery. Byrd/Bird was spelled either way then.

The War Between The States ruined us. The plantation was looted time after time. There was virtually nothing left. Business was at a standstill. We left. The house is still standing - partially. The corporation that bought the land won't sell that part to us. They thought it amusing that I would try. They laughed.

Dr. William Hoskins moved to Carlton's Corner, King & Queen County, for a generation. The awful depression that lasted from 1865 to 1945 forced the family to move out of Tidewater altogether. A corporation now owns Carlton's Corner as well as the Dragon.

My father is buried in Culpeper in a Masonic cemetery with 5 generations of my mother's family. I live 120 miles away in a city called Lynchburg. I have no land. No home with my ancestors buried nearby. Neither do most of you. This is not right. It is not the way it is supposed to be.

This is the command of our God. It is what our grandfathers refused to do and what we will do in time to be obedient:

> "Ye shall divide the land by lot for an inheritance among your families: and the more ye shall have the more inheritance, and to the fewer ye shall give the less inheritance: Every man's inheritance shall be in the place where his lot falleth; according to the tribes of your fathers ye shall inherit. Num. 33:54

The land has never been divided. I don't want the 10,000 acres that Dr. William Hoskins eventually inherited from the Byrds. The negro legislators of the State of Virginia put such punishing taxes on the land that he was forced to sell it for almost nothing. Anyway, the only way 10,000 acres could be gotten together was through the distress of many smaller planters.

All I want is a hundred or two hundred acres, or whatever it will take to enable me to quit my job if I like and live there.

Once the land is equitably divided we are instructed that this land is never to be sold.

"The land shall not be sold forever: for the land is mine." Lev 25:23

Old county courthouse clerks have told me that in the early days in Virginia the authorities discouraged land sales to try to comply with this law. They fixed it so one could not leave land by a will. It had to descend by a separate contract.

Many times, the oldest son received the lawful double portion. The daughter received a dowry, but no part of the land inheritance if there was a son. Her husband was expected to supply her needs.

Landless younger sons moved to the frontier and took up unclaimed land. That's why there are Hoskins in Kentucky and Ohio.[4]

Powerful strangers have moved in and are ruling "their way". We, the "people of the law", are forced to live in a lawless land. All restraints are loosening. America is coming unglued.

The Chinese words for "crisis" and "opportunity" are the same. Think on it - everything good that has ever come to us has come through crisis! As control loosens, the establishment is becoming more abusive in the attempt to hang on to privilege, wealth, power, and land.

This abuse makes more people angry and will be the establishment's downfall. One day we will have our land back. When we do we will have another opportunity to do it over again, and this time do it right:

> "...ye shall divide the land by lot for an inheritance among your families: and the more ye shall have the more inheritance, and to the fewer ye shall give the less inheritance: Every man's inheritance shall be in the place where his lot falleth; according to the tribes of your fathers ye shall inherit. Num. 33:54 and once divided:

> "The land shall not be sold forever: for the land is mine." Lev. 25:23

One day, our descendants may have their own homes with their own family cemeteries close by; the thing promised by our God to us. The sacred land to pass down generation after generation. Land free from the establishment's tribute/taxes designed to take it from us. And, let us hope that our God gives us the opportunity to do this in our lifetime.

UNFILTERED NEWS

CHERNOBYL: "Chernobyl is still burning ... a terrific explosion ripped through the No. 4 reactor of the nuclear power station ... Seconds later another explosion threw out graphite blocks and fuel material ... 60 miles away is Kiev, .. the ground water of Kiev is filled with radioactive material ... The Dnieper River is carrying radioactive waste downward to the Black Sea.

"... a radioactive cloud rose half a mile high ... England kept 3 million lambs from the butcher shops ... The Lapps (lost) ... 60,000 reindeer ... Every pregnant woman within 20 miles of Chernobyl lost her baby. ... 30% of the land area of the Fertile Crescent is contaminated ... helicopters dumped more than 5000 tons of boron, dolomite, lead, sand and clay ... to smother the graphite fire ... this only insulates the reactor core ... its temperature went past 3000 degrees ... Radioactive emissions were at their highest ... Men burrowed beneath and shored up the foundation with concrete ... Since then many tons of concrete have been dumped on the site to cover it over but the reaction goes on and the ground underneath absorbs it and goes on down to the Dnieper River. It will go on for 1000 or more years." Al Henderson, talk at Junaluska, N.C., April 15, 1988.

ED: We can only imagine what this will do to this choice area of land settled so long ago by Vikings. This holds as well for the Black Sea, and in the long term, the Mediterranean. This is what happens when our nation is replaced by strangers. The world slowly turns into an open sewer when the keeper vanishes.

ISRAELI TORTURE: "Abu Leban ... a 19 year old Palestinian was interrogated and held incommunicado for 18 days under torture until he signed a confession. Defendants in the Israeli system are often not allowed to see their lawyer until AFTER they sign a confession, ... the lawyer may not get to see the client until just before the trial! Many ... are kept in jail for 6 months without trial ... This is democracy in Israel, supported by your tax dollars. Lubbock Avalanche Journal, Feb. 29, 1988 copied from Dickinson Newsletter, 5231 16th St., Lubbock, Texas 79416

S. AFRICAN INTEGRATION: "The disgraceful scenes on Durban's beaches (S. Africa) over Christmas and New Year, which were opened to blacks and Indians for the first time ... shocked the whites back to reality. ... incidents included copulation in public, defecating from parked vans and trucks, cooking fires on tarmac roads, washing laundry in the toilets, showers, and children's paddling pools, urinating on the lawns and flower beds, and widespread general misconduct. It was partly this shocking scene which led to the heavy defeat of the ruling party in the bi-elections. The signal was loud and clear." World Economic Review

ZUNDEL: Zundel ... German-Canadian dissident, was able to score in his second (freedom of speech) trial in Toronto. ... a 196 page report on findings at Auschwitz and Majdanek presented by American engineer and gas-chamber expert Fred Leuchter ...involved the journey of a five-man team ... to Poland, where rock and concrete samples were taken from alleged gas chambers ... and the samples submitted for analysis to an American laboratory. ... Mr. Leuchter summed up...:

" ... the evidence is overwhelming. There were no execution gas chambers at any of these locations. It is the best engineering opinion of this author that the alleged gas chambers at the inspected sites could not have been then, or now utilized ... as gas chambers."

The 4 original atrocity stories were; scalding death by superheated steam, burned to death in trenches, mass execution by shooting, and mass gassing. The first 3 stories were shown to be lies long ago. The last - the gassing lie, is now exposed for what it is. IHR Newsletter, 1822 1/2 Newport Blvd., Suite 191, Costa Mesa, Cal 92627, $50/yr.

ED: Witness after witness came forward to confirm that there were no gas chambers. The thousands of bodies found at the end of the war were what the Germans have always said that they were - typhus victims! The media scam claims that thousands of gassed inmates were cremated each day in furnaces which constantly "belched smoke". British and S. African recon planes took aerial photographs of the camp. I've seen copies of the pictures. There was no belching smoke. There was no smoke at all. This physical proof exposes one more lie. Constant lies. Lies, lies, lies. Forty years of lies. Lies against our own Christian kinsmen against whom the Law forbids us to raise our hand.

A hundred billion reparations dollars rides on this gas chamber atrocity story. We can count on the effort being made to keep the myth alive. The anti-Christ Holohoax scam to turn Christian against Christian needs a truth team to follow behind to debunk every instance of the 40 year old calumny.

EPISCOPAL BELIEFS: "Trenton, N.J. - Representatives of northern New Jersey's 125 Episcopal parishes voted Saturday to give their blessing to relationships between homosexuals and between unmarried couples. ...

"Newark's Episcopal bishop, John Spong, said ... 'I think we need to be more embracing of the pluralism of our times.'" News, Lynchburg, 1/31/88 A5.

ED: Jack Spong was pastor of St. John's here in Lynchburg. He was continuously at the center of controversy. Evidently, he has yet to learn that Christian law is different. Our law teaches:

> "If a man lie with mankind, as he lieth with a woman ... they shall surely be put to death." Lev 20:13.
>
> "Cursed be he that maketh the blind to wander out of the way." De 27:18
>
> "Take the prophets of Baal, let not one of them escape ..." 1 Ki 18:40

"Son of man (Heb: son of adam - he who blushes red), I have set thee a watchman ... if thou dost not speak to warn the wicked from his way ... his blood will I require at thine hand." Eze 38:7-8

HISPANIC BIRTHS: "The National Center for Health Statistics ... found an 11% increase in the number of births to Hispanics between 1983 and 1985 ...the birth rate among non-hispanic women was up just 3%. Hispanic births accounted for 17% of all births in 1985 ..." WSJ, Aug 16, 1988, p.31

AIDS virus in bone marrow can infect cells even when it can't be detected in blood samples. A study by Anthony

Fauci, of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, shows that bone marrow can be an AIDS reservoir. From a news article in the NY Post of May 3, 1988

LEUKEMIA: A "particularly vicious" type of leukemia may be transmitted by blood transfusions. Red Cross experts recommend that donated blood be screened for this virus as soon as a test can be developed. The virus is called "human T-lymphotropic virus type I, or HTLV-1." NY Post , April 29, 1988.

ED: The Red Cross neanderthals are seeing to it that one still cannot use one's kinsmen as donors in emergencies but must use blood bank blood. Thus, they promote disease transmission by refusing to segregate blood and blood donors. The biggest public health menace in the US may be the Red Cross - not AIDS.

AIDS: The AIDS virus is said by George M. Shaw of the British Nature Journal, to mutate with a speed compared with influenza viruses, a factor which hampers the search for a cure. Some infected people have 27 different AIDS viruses. Another unknown is "Why people get infected on day one, but don't get sick for 10 years." WSJ, p. 24, August 4, 1988.

GOVT REGS: "The federal government will soon send ... letters to the ... major U. S. companies urging ... they apply the new federal guidelines on dealing with employees infected with the AIDS ... to take disciplinary action against workers who demand the dismissal of fellow employees infected with AIDS ..." US News & World Report, Aug. 22, 1988, p. 10.

VMI: "Dear Dad: Just a line to let you know that at the Virginia Military Institute in Lexington there is an empty room with a box containing hundreds of dollars in cash on a table. Cadets may order flowers for their dates. $15 each, by putting their name on a list. Those bringing in a $20, $50, or $100 bill make their own change unsupervised. Hundreds of cadets make their own change. There is never any money missing.

"Also: Cheating is punished by drumming out in the middle of the night in front of the massed cadets, and drinking is punished by expulsion. I thought you'd like to know." Your Son, Robert Byrd Hoskins - Virginia

ED: Thanks, Byrd. I know that. That's how it should be. Something else - my old school, Fishburne Military School in Waynesboro operated the same way 45 years ago. I don't know how it operates today, but I do know that it is one of only two fully credited junior ROTC military schools left in the country. There were 500 of them when I went there. A generation of boys is growing up that will blink at the sound of tank engines.

WAR CYCLES: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Just read your book, War Cycles / Peace Cycles. It has changed my life. Unrealized by me my finances have been at extreme risk. You should include more information about Australia in your newsletter. We are your kinsmen, you know." B. N. - Australia

"Dear Mr. Hoskins: Yesterday we mailed you our subscription. That evening we attended a meeting. Some there had read your book, War Cycles / Peace Cycles. They said it talked about a war to be fought in this country, but could not explain who was going to fight whom, or who will win!" W. A. - Ohio

ED: Big topic for this short space. I'll let the book tell the story. You can get a copy from Virginia Publishing Company, P. O. Box 997, Lynchburg, Virginia 24505, $28/copy.

BANK TRUST: "Dear Dick: I was a long time subscriber but was forced to drop my subscription because all my funds, including pension funds, vanished from the bank where they were held. The president of the bank was sent to prison for 7 years, but he had declared bankruptcy for both himself and the bank, so there is no hope of recovery. We live on Social Security. Since I have no funds to invest, your back issues are treasured now only for your comments, historical perspectives, and notes about your family and ancestors." H. H., MD - California.

ED: I'm sorry. I wondered what had happened to you. One day I hope to collect and publish the stories of people ruined by the usury system through no fault of their own.

BANK TRUST: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I was left an inheritance in trust to be administered by a bank. Half the money is already gone. What should I do?" E. F. - Virginia

ED: Consult your lawyer. The trust may allow you to select another money manager in whom you have more confidence.

ATHEIST: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I thought I was an atheist. I hold most 'Christians' in contempt because of the many I have dealt with. As an 'atheist' I prided myself on telling the truth, and doing the things you say the 10 commandments require. I even keep the Sabbath. If God is the Word, and the 10 commandments are the expression of God, then I must be (ugh!) a Christian! If I'm a Christian, what are these sleazes that call themselves 'Christians' who go out and break the 10 commandments every day of the week?" E. J. - Washington

ED: One's acts speak louder than his words. According to what you do you may be classified as a "Law" Christian. Both you and your Jesus, the personification of "The Word", are the enemy of the "Samaritan" Christians, those who are "saved by grace" to go and do whatever they like. You're no atheist. Your brand is THE brand and the ONLY brand. The West is loaded with people just like you and who sympathize with you. You know the rules and practice them. To heck with labels. You know what you are. Hang tough! Together we may see the day the sleazes will be tried by Law.

BALANCED BUDGET RESULTS

The economic world is run by economic laws. Absolute, unchangeable, infallible laws. The Law dealing with money states:

> "Thou shalt not lend upon usury (with interest upon a loan) to thy brother; usury of money, usury of victuals, usury of anything that is lent upon usury: Unto a stranger (Heb: zwer - racial alien) thou mayest lend upon usury; but unto thy brother thou shalt not lend upon usury." Deut 23:19,20

Those who violate this law, or acquiesce in its violation, trigger other laws which come into play.

If there is only $10 in the world, and "A" lends the $10 to "B" under condition that "B" repay "A" $11 - it can't be done. Eleven dollars do not exist - only $10. It is a fraudulent contract. The borrower was trapped from the instant he agreed to it. This usury contract is the basis of today's Western economic system.

The situation becomes repulsive as the borrower is forced to pledge his farm as collateral for repayment of the non-existent $11. It becomes more repugnant still when a SWAT team is sent in to shoot down the recalcitrant borrower as a lesson to other borrowers who might "welsh" on their legal but unlawful contracts.

The borrower, in desperation, may plead with the lender to somehow create an 11th dollar for him, and, from the goodness of his heart, give it to the poor borrower so that he will not lose his house, his farm, or his business.

To get that newly created 11th dollar, the borrower must sign a second contract. In this contract he must pledge his cow and his chickens.

The first 10/11 usury contract pledged the farm. To get the 11th dollar to fulfill the first contract he must make a second contract. He gets in deeper and deeper.

The usury game of 10 for 11 can continue as long as society has borrowers who have unmortgaged collateral. After society pledges all it has to pledge - the game is over. It can't continue. The lender forecloses. The foreclosure is called a crash. It's the age old game of USURY repeating once again. That's why it is the only type of economic system that is forbidden by our God.[1]

1 For over 1000 years our ancestors used the Tally System, an economic system similar to he no-interest system used by Arab nations today. See your Encyclopedia, or War Cycles/Peace Cycles.

Because the system was designed this way - at any one time there are far more IOUs coming due than there is money in existence with which to pay.

To entrap millions of victims in the net instead of only one, the system must grow. To grow, the supply of money must expand to allow debtors to obtain the 11th dollar.

Keynesian Economics

Usurers have three principal methods of increasing a nation's supply of money needed to extend the life of the usury cycle.

1) Decreasing Taxes
2) Monument Building
3) War

This is Keynesian Economics in a nutshell. Keynes didn't invent or approve the system, he just explained it, and it bears his name.

REDUCING TAXES - This gives an instant squirt of money. It can boost a faltering economy in an instant.

Taxes formerly paid into government coffers go to debtors who immediately spend the money. Borrowers have the 11th dollar. Business picks up. This is the quickest method to stimulate the economy.

MONUMENT BUILDING - This is the 2nd best method to get money into the economy and prime the pump. Today's name is - "public works".

Here in little Lynchburg, our city fathers, with encouragement from bankers "serving" on city council, have almost circled the city with a "badly needed" superhighway system. The finest money can buy. Cloverleafs, multi-million dollar bridges - the works!

Old Rivermont Bridge, the one that scores of the jobless jumped from during the '30s depression, was torn down. It was embarrassing because they almost didn't get it down because it was so well built. We now have a new bridge a few feet to one side of where the old one stood.

The same goes for all the other bridges. One new bridge crosses the James a few hundred yards upriver from another major highway bypass bridge. It goes nowhere. It merely rejoins the bypass a half mile further on. It took some talking to justify that one. "Had to build it though - the old one was falling down." This too is proving embarrassing as it is also proving difficult to demolish the old one.

Minorities have been presented with new or refurbished "badly needed" public housing - which was the excuse to borrow millions upon millions into existence.

The system is called Monument Building. It's effective. Every community has a variation.

WAR - This is the best method to get massive amounts of money borrowed into circulation.

People will not go into debt of their free will, and must be forced into debt. They will only borrow willingly to defend themselves and their families.

The usury system requires a perpetual enemy, one which requires billions to arm against. The system requires that America always be ready to fight for freedom! She must be ready to fight "evil" - Germany, Korea, or Vietnam, whomever.

The system also requires future enemies to be kept in the wings, enemies to fight in future years. The media is told to condition the population to think of "future enemies" as "aggressive" and "evil". Countries like S. Africa. When economic conditions require, we will be told that S. Africa will have to be fought to save the world for democracy, and it must be fought before that evil S. Africa can invade and put the United States to the torch!

There are all sorts of variations on this theme.

There you have it - the three methods the Usury System has of expanding the money supply. It's called - Keynesian Economics:

Lie #1 - Balanced Budget

"We must balance the budget or we will go into a depression."

If we balance the budget we WILL go into a depression. The government's deficit spending buys tanks, planes, and ships that will be obsolete and scrapped in 5 years and must then be replaced. The Soviet spy system in the US is tolerated because it helps the Soviets achieve parity. This gives us an excuse to arm to "catch up". Half of the Soviet equipment is an exact replica of ours. The same plans and specifications were used to build it. If they have difficulty with some of our hi- tech, we send engineers and computers to help. This is an absolute necessity if we expect to keep our economy rolling.

Deficit spending also finances the Israelis bashing the Arabs, buys icebreakers for whales, and provides aid to the starving Eskimos at the North Pole. The money spent filters down and allows debtors to pay the 11th dollar.

A balanced budget would shut off this spending. It would stop the 11th dollar from being borrowed into existence. Lenders would then foreclose borrowers. Instant Depression!

Lie #2 - Increasing Taxes

"Taxes must be raised to balance the budget to keep us out of a depression!"

If reducing taxes stimulates the economy, doing the opposite - raising taxes - will depress the economy. Using the Big Lie, black becomes white, white becomes black.

Taxes are increased to cause depression, not to help the economy expand.

Lie #3 - Falling Dollar

"The dollar is falling because our balance of payments is running a deficit."

If the US dollar were exchanged 10 cents (US) for 10 cents of a foreign currency, the dollar would not rise or fall.

The dollar falls when the international bank moneychangers exchange 10 cents (US) for 9 cents in marks, pounds, or francs. It rises when they exchange 10 cents (US) for 11 cents in marks, pounds, or francs.

There is NO free market in currency exchange. If you wish to trade in the international market you must either exchange at the rates set by the international banks or you don't exchange at all. Take it or leave it. If you complain - the politician who is fool enough to listen to you will lose his next election.

A falling dollar serves a useful purpose. Foreign central banks, conspiring with U. S. money-changers, tell their people that something "must be done to stop the fall of the dollar" so that US goods won't underprice their own goods. They recommend to their country to buy American Dollars, thereby halting the dollar's fall. To do this they must borrow money into existence.

Then they exchange this newly borrowed money for dollars at the money-changer's price. This borrowing increases both the foreign money supply and the U. S. dollar supply. This creates good times until interest payments siphon this new money back into the banks once again. But, there is reprieve for a time, and that's the name of the game. Reprieve. For a time - inflation instead of deflation. Then the next money shortage crisis forces them to do it all over again to keep the ball rolling.

The talk about "supporting the dollar" is a lie. The idea is to keep the usury system alive a little longer by borrowing money into existence so that borrowers will have the 11th dollar.

Summary

TAXES - Borrowing money to pay taxes triggers this Law:

"The borrower is slave to the lender." Prov. 22:7

MONUMENT BUILDING - A deficit forces the state to borrow money into existence to cover the deficit. It violates this Law:

"Owe no man but to love one another." Rom 13:8

WAR - This requires violating other laws:

> "Ye shall not go up, nor fight against your brethren." I Kings 12:24; "I require you to abstain from shedding the blood of men." Antiquities 1:1:2 25J, Anti 1:3:8

A nation does not win by fighting God

Conclusion

PLAN #1
Budget deficits - Inflation
Lower Taxes - Inflation
War - Inflation

TO COPE: - buy gold, natural resources, land, houses, real-estate, common stocks.

PLAN #2
Balanced Budget - Depression
Higher Taxes - Depression
Lack of War - Depression

TO COPE: - hold cash/T-bills, government money market funds, bond funds, rent, short term leasing, shorts, puts.

Until we change the economic system back to the no-interest Tally System of our ancestors, one similar to that of the infidel Moslems, we must cope with the system as it now is to survive.

We can't read minds. We can read usury-bank monetary actions. Plan #1 or Plan #2? Do they REALLY intend to balance the budget? or is this just talk? Do they REALLY intend to raise taxes? or is this talk? Is the dollar REALLY falling? Is it inflation or deflation?

Our choice - observe carefully - and then go with the flow.

UNFILTERED NEWS

A confidential UN treaty is being negotiated making it an international crime to fail to fill out a government form. Penalties are to range from 20 years to life and possible confiscation of property owned. State Department negotiators also want tax rates and laws to be globally enforced with a global IRS. Some attorneys have said if a UN treaty violates the Bill of Rights, the UN document will take precedence. (Excerpted from The Virginia Taxpayer, Ken White, Ed., P.O.B. 663, Lynchburg, VA 24505, Nov 22, 1988.)

"Of whom do the kings of the earth take custom or tribute? of their own children, or of strangers? Peter saith unto him, Of strangers." Math 17:25-26.

To strangers - WE are strangers. We pay tribute. The king pays no tribute. They pay no tribute. They rule. They are king.

ED: Country and nation have little in common. The Slav nation in the country of Romania is holding the German Saxon nation in that country for ransom in spite of their having lived there for more than 1000 years. The same is true in the USSR and Poland. The price of one of our kinsman in good physical condition runs in the neighborhood of $50,000. Women and children bring somewhat less.

"LINCOLN arranged for his son Robert Todd, even as draftboards conscripted tens of thousands ... that, after his graduation from Harvard in 1864, ...(he was) hidden away in the university's law school. By 1865, with the war winding down ... Lincoln wrote U.S. Grant in January: 'My son, now in his 22nd year ... wishes to see something of the war before it ends. I do not wish to put him in the ranks.' Grant replied that he'd be glad to put young Lincoln on his headquarters staff. In no time ... he was sporting union blues and captain's bars ...." R-Focus, Vol. 22, No 8, 1988 p.5.,P. O. Box 1149, Temecula, CA 92390,

"ERNST ZUNDEL, who is under a judicial gag- order, recently circulated an anguished De Profundos excerpted here: 'The result of this judicially-imposed censorship is that, since I had been convicted (and sentenced to 9 months in jail-Ed.) for publishing the work of another author, I cannot now publish or speak about any subject addressed by that author or in his work ... about major events in 20th century history ... I cannot even defend my own reputation from the liars-for-hire when they chose to besmirch my character by alleging what my 'views' are. I cannot state my view even when the media hatemongers broadcast calumnies calculated to incite a lynch-mob mentality ... Every political hack can seek to garner votes at my expense, using me as a ... focal point for voter hysteria ... Because I say nothing, the uninformed public tends to think that the lies told must be true..."Michael A. Hoffman II, R-Focus, Vol. 22, No 8, 1988, p7, P. O. Box 1149, Temecula, CA 92390.

PLANTER/SHARECROPPER: "Dear Dick: My family's history parallels yours. After the War Between The States heavy taxes took the land. My mother's family went from Planter to SHARE CROPPER in one generation. Each time they seemed ready to rise again they were hit by another depression. Then the biggie came in the 1930's. After 90 years my father bought 90 acres. My family retained their manners and dignity. Everything else was gone. Because of this my family has had few comforts that many consider normal, but we owe nothing and we still hold the 90 acres." W.J. - Georgia

---

SALAZAR: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Who besides you says that John Hoskins owned the ancestor of Kentucky's race horces, and if he did, what was he to you? " G.Z. - New York

ED: The Register of the Kentucky State Historical Society, 1917. He was my uncle several times removed, brother to Robert of the Dragon who served in the 1st Virginia Continental Line. See "Hoskins Salizar" on the internet.

HOSKINS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: My daughter sent me your newsletter. Most interesting. My FAMILY is also from Essex and King & Queen. What really interests me is your name. I went to William & Mary and there met the KA housemother, a Mrs. Cy Hoskins, the loveliest lady. She had a son - "Cy". Perhaps a relative of yours. This was back in '35." M.H. - Florida

ED: I know your family. I too went to W&M back in the '60s, the law school. My dad went to W&M too. The housemother was my aunt. "Cy" lived in Warrenton, NC with 12 hunting dogs. He was a widower. Married twice.

First wife didn't like dogs. He got one who did. Emma Lewis - a honey. Liked dogs better than he did. Cy was one of the best shots in NC. Emma Lewis was too. Every family should have a "Cy" - an Emma Lewis too.

NEBRASKA NUCLEAR WASTE: "Dear Dick: In Nebraska they are planning a nuclear waste dump. Today, unlike CHERNOBYL, our ground water level is below the planned level of waste burial and can't contaminate it. The authorities don't think of what will happen tomorrow when ground water rises to normal." Dee Kirk, Nebraska

P.S. How's your daughter after her accident with the .22?"

ED: My daughter has almost a yard of stitches concealed under her bathing suit, but has healed nicely. I took her shooting last weekend and she could hit a can with a .45 at 20 paces every time. She insisted on proving that she is up to it. Shooting skill is still important in spite of a mistake in handling a firearm. 400 years in Virginia has taught that lawful days are interludes between unlawful days. The change from one to the other comes as fast as a summer thundershower. To survive, a family must always be prepared. There is no time to develop the shooting skill in a crisis.

Dee is the widow of Art Kirk, one of the first farmers shot down by a SWAT TEAM. Her story is fascinating. I interviewed witnesses and wrote the story as told to me in issue #124.

BLACKS VA BEACH: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Your last month's news item about what the BLACKS did in Durban, S. Africa is not really news. You should see what they did to Virginia Beach! Ten thousand black college students came here over Labor Day. It was S. Africa all over again here. Police in RIOT GEAR tried to protect the public, 9 blocks were roped off, stores were looted, copulation, defecation, urination in public. They had great fun and then went away leaving chaos in their wake. Those who encourage this sort of thing should be held accountable and given the same punishment as those committing the acts." SOUTH AFRICA'S BBB PARTY BANNED

History of BBB

The "BBB Party" in South Africa was formed a few months ago. Its purpose, to FORCE Botha's ruling party and Terre'Blanche's opposition party to take stands on things on which they don't want to take stands.

The BBB is led by Prof. Johan Schabort. Shabort has impressive credentials. In the field of bio-chemistry he is a noted scholar whose research is acclaimed world-wide.

A graduate of the University of Pretoria, he did post-graduate work at Princeton, lectured at the University of California, was a member of the NY Academy of Science, was an adviser to the Atomic Energy Board, and was a consultant to the Department of Agricultural Technical Services. He is a man not easily fooled.

He is devoting himself full time to running the BBB from his home.

Conservative writers have stated the belief that the immense natural resource wealth of S. Africa is a prize the establishment will make their next objective. Such a project is breathtaking in scope and daring - a coup that makes American billion dollar corporate raiders look like penny pinching pikers.

Establishment watchers have also suspected that the S. African President Botha and his ruling party were put there, financed, and promoted by the establishment to facilitate this planned takeover, while all the time covering their tracks with protests that they were only trying to prevent such a thing from happening. A copy of the Democratic/Republican show in America. Whichever side wins - the Establishment wins. Both financed by the same backers.

Schabort's job is to force Botha's ruling party, and its so-called opposition party, to come out for Western interests in S. Africa, or to force them to come out against those interests. In such a situation "silence" is a confession of guilt. A tricky job, but one that the BBB is confident it can do.

Money Grubbing - African Style

The African takeover story is a long and profitable one. The Congo was turned over to blacks who in turn turned it over to their financiers to exploit its copper wealth. Northern Rhodesia was handed to establishment surrogates in the same manner for the same reason. The same thing happened in Portuguese E. Africa. The Blacks got next to nothing out of the deals and most are now starvation poor.

SW Africa is at this moment being handed over to establishment surrogates for the same reason with the full and even eager cooperation of S. Africa's Botha. Each time an African nation is taken from White control, generous 20% adjustable rate loans are made to the new governments and they become slaves ... slaves ready to make any deal, ready to give up anything in exchange for relaxation of rapidly mounting and ruinous debt payments. Establishment profits have been enormous since WW II.

The Rhodesian Sellout

Rhodesia is the most interesting case because she did not run. She stood and fought. It is the textbook situation that the establishment wishes to avoid, if possible, and if all else fails, to use to its own advantage when it can get its own man in the key position.

The Rhodesian news media was establishment controlled. It promoted a WW II fighter pilot, a war hero named Ian Smith, while ignoring all others. In this solitary spotlight he became famous in Rhodesia and was chosen to be leader to lead the fight. His picture was in every newspaper. He was promoted as the Robert E. Lee of the nation, one who could do no wrong.

Playing its part, the foreign press pretended to throw brickbats at him further consolidating his power. After all, the foreign press was the enemy and whomever they were against must be all right.

For years he led the fight. To everyone's surprise, the little nation overcame every obstacle and succeeded beyond anyone's wildest expectations. They broke a worldwide boycott and blockade and opened up new trade routes. They obtained new customers for their goods. They succeeded in protecting their people against establishment armed guerrillas who were known to eat their victims. As expected, nothing the White Rhodesians did was right in the eyes of the international media and the savage terrorists could do no wrong.

Rhodesia became "Fortress Rhodesia" - an armed camp. Every man, woman and child big enough to carry a rifle was automatically a soldier. There are sagas of little ten year old girls bravely firing their rifles at a score of guerrillas, refusing to back up one yard, and making them run. It was a nation of heroes who looked the enemy in the eye time after time and beat them. They were not afraid. They won every battle.

Farmers carried rifles to the fields. Trains donned armor plate and went through. Home industry boomed. Sixteen year old boys took out recon/killer patrols. A small nation of our own, unaided, won against a massive worldwide predatory establishment which furnished unlimited money, explosives, arms, and resources to their savage enemies.

Rhodesia plunged from victory after victory into defeat in a moment. One man did it.

The establishment had prepared against the outside possibility that the Rhodesians might possibly win. When they did, Ian Smith, Rhodesia's George Washington, opened negotiations with Britain and the US to "resolve the dispute". This epitome of patriotism acted without a referendum to ask his countrymen what they wanted. His countrymen thought that this was another shrewd ploy that would gain Rhodesia another advantage. They never dreamed that they were being sold out.

This international meeting took everything from the Whites and gave it to the Blacks, who in turn gave it to the banks who had backed them and had lent them money.

Smith snatched defeat from victory and ruined those who followed him. He was "establishment", and has been branded a renegade by his own disposessed followers now in exile.

The BBB Platform

The BBB means to prevent South Africa from becoming another Rhodesia. To do this they determined to MAKE Botha and his pretended arch rival Terre'Blanche behave like George Washingtons or like renegades who will sell South Africa to the highest bidder.

To do this the BBB took the platforms of the black revolutionary parties, the ones Botha's government tolerates, and copied them.

What the revolutionaries said they wanted for the Black people the BBB said they wanted for the White people.

The Black revolutionary groups said they wanted Whites driven from S. Africa and Blacks put in control with "one man one vote".

The BBB replied that the whites have no homeland exclusively their own as Blacks do, and that S. Africa should be the White homeland. The Blacks, instead, should be the ones repatriated to their own homelands.

Schabort went on to argue that the Blacks live in and rule a score of homelands in Africa where Whites cannot vote, own property, or stay without permission, while the Whites have no such place. Not a single one. They demanded that S. Africa be declared a White homeland because the Whites were there first, and because the rest of Africa is still mostly vacant and certainly big enough for the Blacks.

This issue triggered the question of "right". Who was in S. Africa first - the Blacks or the Whites? This argument unveiled the secret the press conceals from the world which is this; when Whites landed in the 17th century there were practically no Blacks living in the land. The Whites moved into a land virtually vacant.

Since that time practically all the Black population has come from illegals or children of illegals, much like Hispanic "wetbacks" in the American southwest. They sneaked into the nation to get jobs, or were brought in on temporary establishment work permits, and have hidden out to keep from being returned to their homelands. Those illegally in S. Africa are often allowed to stay through the tolerance of Botha's government.

The BBB charged that the reason the establishment wants to give the Blacks the vote is to turn Westerners out and put Blacks in through a Rhodesian style betrayal.

"Racial intermarriage"! How do you stand on racial intermarriage? The BBB brought up the question. The Blacks want it, the Indians and the Jews want it, the communists want it, and the samaritan church wants it. The Whites, the true Christian church, and the BBB are against it.

Johan Schabort, the BBB's leader, stated that "there has never been a country in history where two races lived side by side with no barriers between them, that they didn't interbreed. To prevent racial intermarriage they must be kept separate." White South Africans applauded. Botha was for racial intermarriage, and Terre'Blanche was strangely non-committal.

"Repatriation! How do you stand on repatriation?" The Blacks want the Whites out - how do you stand on sending "illegals" (wetbacks) back to their own homelands? What about S. Africa being a White homeland? The question received no answer from either political party. They hemmed and hawed.

Botha and Terre'Blanche looked on in horror as these forbidden things began to be discussed openly.

Western voters began asking questions.

Each year S. Africa celebrates December 16, 1838, the time when 500 Boers defeated 15,000 Blacks.

At this year's celebration President Botha stood up to say that since there were a few blacks and coloreds inside the circled wagons, that South Africa must become multi-racial which means giving Blacks the vote and political power over the Whites. Terre'Blanche leaned very much in the same direction in a speech made at the same time. In effect, both left and right acquiesce in turning S. Africa over to the Blacks. Botha says do it fast. Terre'Blanche says do it slow. Both parties have begun to show their true colors. The Establishment has done its work well. But then too - so has the BBB.

Botha's Solution

The BBB was being intolerable. Its disruptive questions must be ended. Botha's police started moving in. BBB workers had been active in putting up posters proclaiming party demands. In October 1987, three BBB members were singled out of a demonstration by about 50 people and charged under the Internal Security Act.

The BBB leaned over backward not to break any law so that it could not be charged with anything. But, the embarrassing questions had to be stopped. A short time ago, a young man, Barend Hendrik Strydom, incensed over unpunished Black crimes against Whites, seized a rifle and went about shooting Blacks. Strydom belonged to Terre'Blanche's party, not the BBB, but Botha used him as an excuse to ban "people who might someday act like him".

Botha banned the BBB only. Now, he does not have to answer BBB questions. This is something he has not done to the myriad Black revolutionary parties bent on bloodshed and mayhem.

The media wholeheartedly supported the banning act with news articles designed to take away Prof. Schabort's martyr status. They are attempting to redirect attention to the shadow boxing of the establishment's right vs. left, all of which leads one way - to capitulation.

Conclusion

A basic political maxim is: "The leadership of a nation is too important to be left to chance." It appears that both the leadership and the opposition in S. Africa may not have been left to chance.

The BBB did its job well. Its questions embarrassed Botha and forced to ban the BBB to stop the questions. In so doing he has branded himself - renegade! Botha's opposition has emerged from the affair in no better light.

Thanks to Prof. Shabort, S. Africa has been alerted. The establishment now has nothing left to maintain its power except naked force. The deception is swept away.

The Whites of South Africa now have two choices. Both painful. They can acquiesce, turn the country over to the establishment, and lose everything they have including possibly their lives. Or they can fight, as their ancestors were forced to do twice before in the past century.

By opposing the Establishment and their allies world-wide, S. Africa will be plunged into a flame. If they win they can keep what they have now. If they lose - they lose everything.

If such a war breaks out, it will not be a localized matter. It will attract the scavengers of the world with their armies who hope to profit from the conflagration.

At stake is the greatest haul of natural resources in the world, and the lives of our kinsmen who are once again pawns in the international game of banditry. Also poised in the balance is the economic well-being of the entire world where economies cannot help but be thrown into chaos if deprived of critical S. African products.

HARRASSED FARMERS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: A group of us farmers hired a van and crossed the state border to hear your talk at Colorado Springs. No sooner than we crossed the state line than a police helicopter hove into sight and a road block stopped us for questioning. We hadn't done anything and have never done anything. We are just farmers. I don't know what this is all about, but I just thought you ought to know what's going on out here." T. M. - Texas

ED: Rebellion comes from injured people. The establishment closely watches everyone they have and are looting to detect a hint of rebellion. The masters of revolution well know how to nip possible resistance in the bud. They know they have broken our law: "The land shall not be sold forever: for the land is mine." Lev 25:23. Their bandit raid is called "foreclosure". Their loot - the victims' land. But, it is still a bandit raid and there is still blood on the ground to prove it. We know the law, we know the statute, and have the witnesses. Next - the judgment. Ask Dee Kirk.

S.AFRICAN GOLD STOCKS:"Dear Mr. Hoskins: Why is Congress making Americans divest themselves of

ED: Botha of S. Africa is turning S. African nationalized businesses over to "private" investors, international bankers and their cohorts in exchange for their support. The US Congress is helping to tidy up the loose ends. It's all part of the same package.

CHRISTIAN? "Dear Richard: TV Christianity acquiesces, participates in, is helping cause America's ills. I can't see how you can call yourself a Christian! P.R. - Washington

ED: There are two kinds. Establishment media permit the public to see only the samaritan version. Most allowed on TV are samaritan Christians who be shot down in disgrace anytime because their private lives are often cess pools. They think that they are "saved by grace" and do as they like. "Once saved always saved." In spite of theft, rape, sodomy or mayhem they are still "saved". To them Jesus has long hair, polished nails and sways when he walks. He stands for what the samaritan preacher says he stands for. His path leads to hell.

Christians who follow THE WAY, believe that a god can only be understood by what he demands. They believe that Jesus demands adherence to His Commandments. These bind all contracts. Christians of "The Way" don't murder, lie, or steal, or tolerate those who do. Anyone who teaches this is one with us. Those giving lip service to the Commandments and at the same time adding laws from other gods worship a samaritan god and are enemies of God THE WORD. The Commandments, statutes and judgments divide the samaritan from the Christian. There is eternal enmity between the two. They call us "law watchers" and "legalist". We call them "swine" and "dogs" because they will believe anything, eat anything, breed anything, and do anything that pigs and dogs will do.

CIRCUMCISM: "Dick: Better than circumcision is pulling back the prepuce in infancy and keeping it there. Very practical and effective. Serves the same purpose as circumcision, even in appearance." Edward T. Yorke, MD, Financial News Analysis, 152 W. Alta Green, Port Hueneme, CA 93041 CIRCUMCISM: "Mr. Hoskins: Everything must be held up to Law, especially Biblical scribal commentary which accompanies the Law. However, too much pain accompanies circumcision for it to be Lawful." A.D. - Washington.

ED: It is a painful operation. So is appendix, tonsil, or tooth removal without anesthesia. Certain medical men say that incidence of disease is lower where circumcision is practiced. Another says that the effect of circumcision can be achieved by pulling the skin back on boy babies and keeping it pulled back. Certain scriptures say that circumcision is performed to remind MAN never to mix with strangers. Fact: circumcision is done. Fact: It should be simple to prove benefits - if any. Fact: Until people are given a good believable reason to change the custom, it will continue to be performed.

JEWS BASHING JEWS: "Dear Dick: What is the reason for the American Jews bashing Israeli Jews?" M.K. - DC

ED: A falling out. Monied establishment German Jews in New York, London, and Bonn manage the Western media. They object to wild bomb throwing Ashkenazic Jews from Poland and Russia taking leadership and telling them and everyone else what to do. The Israelis now have "the bomb", storm troops, concentration camps, assassination teams, all sorts of other nasties, and a ruthless reputation to fit. A Frankenstein's monster may have been loosed. The German Jews are trying to put their Israeli brothers under restraint. Jews are already calling other Jews "anti-Semitic". Whether TV "talk'n TV bash'n" will do it is something else again.

The atrocity-hoax, abortion, and melting pot propaganda will continue in any case.

GOVERNMENT INVESTIGATIONS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: If the FBI says they have no data on an individual it doesn't mean that the data doesn't exist. It may mean that the individual hasn't contacted the right agency that investigated him. There are many investigative government agencies. If you ask the right one to send you your file under the 'Freedom Of Information Act', they are supposed to do it. But your chance of asking the right one is infinitesimal. My agency has never been asked for a file by a private citizen." Investigator - DC FARMS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Lots of things have happened on the FARM since you came to speak to us farmers in Kearney, Nebraska in 1985. On May 4, 1988, eight county sheriffs arrived with 2 state planes and a swat team to take our machinery. What a day! H.W. - Iowa WAR BETWEEN STATES: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: There was no 'War Between The States', only a war between the District of Columbia and the rest of the states. Example: The following came from The Mobile Register, Mobile, Alabama, July 13, 1988.

> "On July 13, 1863, rioting against the Civil War military draft erupted in NY City, resulting in about 1,000 deaths over the next 3 days." C.A. - Alabama

CHINA SHORTAGE BABY GIRLS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: What do you think about the developing girl BABY SHORTAGE in China due to selective abortion?" N.A. - Arizona

ED: Heavy head tax caused the same to happen in Greece & Rome. Girl babies were left to die of exposure. Result: in places there were several men to each woman. In nature, there are more women than men. In wartime more girl babies than boy babies are born. The scriptures say it was natural for the patriarchs to have several wives. This changed when the early samaritan-Christian church compensated for the then prevalent girl shortage by ordering only one wife per man. Today, with 14 million babies already slaughtered, and with the ability to determine the baby's sex before birth, it is logical to assume that selective baby killing will result in the same condition in the West that now exists in China.

MEXICAN LABOR: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I am a retired corporation executive. We do business in Mexico because it is cheaper. Skilled labor is 75¢ an hour set by the local government vs. $8 - $10 an hour in the US. Industry will go to the best deal." A.J. - Virginia

OUTSOURCING: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I used to be an executive of a large US electronics corporation, now retired. The greatest danger I see to America is that high paying jobs are sent overseas and the workers laid off must take low paying jobs. America's standard of living must decline drastically in the days ahead. When I say drastically, I mean exactly what I say." C.W. - Virginia

LINCOLN: "Editor: ... the following ... comments on the President of the US ... by a lawyer from Connecticut ...:

"(He is) a person of fair intellect, slight education, limited knowledge, no research, kind heart, jocular disposition; a man, in short, of excellent nature - just the man with his inexperience in statesmanship, and with his vague and hazy notions of political ethics and constitutional history and law, to be misled by the sophists of his party, and to be the instrument of crafty and unscrupulous politicians."

Another man who had known the President well in earlier years said that while it has been generally believed that a love of freedom, presumably economic freedom, is the President's ruling passion. 'Nothing is farther from the truth." Instead he went on, the thirst for distinction has always been the 'one, intense, all- absorbing passion of his life.'

"Still another ... a former vice-president in another administration had occasion to meet with the President at a grave moment when war and peace hung in the balance. He was appalled, he said later, at the President's 'flippancy, evasiveness, and cheerful ignorance.' In reply to an analog from British history, the President blandly stated, 'I don't presume to be posted in history. On all such matters I will turn you over to the Secretary of State.'"

These three men, Bernard Sage, Albert Taylor Bledsoe, and Alexander Stephens ... were in fact, writing of their contemporary, President Abraham Lincoln." Sheldon Vanauken, Prof. of History, Lynchburg College, From The News, Aug. 7, 1988 F-3.

INDIAN: "Mr. Hoskins: I killed a man and am in the penitentiary. I expect to be paroled. My grandmother was an Indian. I have blond hair and blue eyes. Does the law "No bastard (mixed-breed) may enter the congregation of Israel", prevent me from marrying a "white" girl when I leave prison. Preachers won't give me a straight answer." J.M. - Montana

ED: I have a German shepherd. I call - she comes. One thousand times I call - she comes each time. She has no choice. For 1000 generations all German shepherds before her who did not come were killed or prevented from breeding. She is descended from those who come.

A "white" man is self evidence of what he is. God's Law calls - he comes. He has no choice. For 1000 generations the murderers and rapists among his people were executed by his law, or not allowed to breed. Few slipped through the Law's net - very few. This trait is so ingrained that strangers may cheat him, rob him, rape his women, steal his children, and kill him. Only reluctantly will he defend himself. This has a limit.

Such is not the case of other strangers such as blacks. They are the result of 1000 generations of those who bought wives by stealing cattle and who rose to authority by murder. Inefficient thieves and murderers did not gain cattle with which to buy wives. They did not reproduce. Like breeds like. Western jails are filled with law breaking blacks. They are the result of selective breeding.

The Indian's story is the same. For 1000 generations they rewarded murder and horse stealing. The best murderer was made "chief" and many wives were bought by the best horse thief. The product is the result of 1000 generations of thieves and murderers. Like breeds like. The jails in the American West are filled with them. A wolf is "ravening" before he tears his first sheep.

You sound like a nice guy. I wish you well. But, in spite of your blond hair and blue eyes and sounding like a nice guy, you murdered a man. If you had not, it is likely your son will (if you have one), or his son. Like breeds like.

This is the reason the Law forbids the nation of the lawful from marrying the unlawful; "Think not that I am come to destroy the law or the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill (the Law). Math 5:17." "There shall no stranger (Heb: zwer - racial alien) eat of the holy thing (the Law)." Lev 22:10. This is a statement of fact. If we do associate with the lawless the scripture states; "There is no hope: no; for I have loved strangers (Heb:"zu^wr - racial alien), and after them I will go." Jer 2:25. This too is a statement of fact.

The next part is cut and dried; "But if ye will not ... do all these commandments; ... I will send wild beasts among you which shall rob you of your children." Lev 26:14-35.

If this happens and our children are caught and married to strangers the law requires this; "If the priest's daughter (each of the lawful is a priest) "also be married unto a stranger (zwer), she may not eat of an offering of the holy thing (one cannot mix unlawful with lawful). "But if the priests' daughter be a widow or divorced, and have no child, and is returned unto her fathers' house .... she shall eat of her fathers' meat (repentance must be followed by action); but there shall no stranger (zwer) eat thereof (statement of fact). Lev 22:10-13"

The greatest curse for us is this - to be forsaken by our God; "Thou hast forsaken thy people ... because ... they please themselves in the children of strangers." Isa 2:6; What to the willful stranger is mere amusement, is to us - death! The Law made our people. We are the result of the Law. The absence of Law destroys us.

You must find one of your own to marry. Your offspring will be like you. If you enter our nation you will bring your 1000 ancestors with you. To absorb you is to absorb your ancestors. Our nation will become like them, lawless. Scripture says that the WORD is God. We will have violated and abandoned the WORD. Once this happens we will be abandoned by the WORD.

In the past many of our nations have abandoned the WORD and been destroyed as a consequence. Many of our nations have been saved when the WORD sent the Phinheas Priesthood to end the problem. This is not a matter to be taken lightly.

The WORD and the people created by The WORD bless all. Protect them and they can and will protect you.

TAX-FREE BONDS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I have a fair amount in a state tax-free income fund. Is this usury?" I. M. - Colorado

ED: "Owe no man - ", "The borrower is servant - ." Municipalities who will not save before building, and go the bond route, end up paying double. They are servants to the strangers from whom they borrow and will do their will. You may lend at usury to the stranger or his servants. Usury is used to destroy. You may profit at their expense. Be careful not to be destroyed in the process. Reread the chapter on "Tax Exempt Bonds" in WC/PC.

DOLLAR: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I'm a small independent dealer. I import foreign cars in competition with large established car dealers. A mistake can kill me. I didn't buy and thus far have saved a bundle. Thanks." C.T. - Virginia

THE JAPANESE THREAT

Ed Martin lived in Japan for 15 years as a missionary. I've known him for years. He now ministers to prisoners in jails across America. The following was taken from his "Hope Aglow Newsletter", PO Box 3057, Lynchburg, Virginia 24503.

"Japan is a warrior culture. They have a 'No War' clause in their Constitution ... Our protection of Japan ... costs the US a staggering ... $1000 per US citizen annually.

"Japan ... has been shipping (automobiles) into the US in colossal numbers ... without tariff or surcharge or any kind, enabling them to under-sell our American cars. This money goes straight to Japan creating a money-glut there.

"The present day wealthy Japan ... was "made in America". ... The Japanese practically own Guam in the Pacific. They own upwards of 75% of Hawaii. They own 50% of Los Angeles, 43% of Houston, much of Texas, and piecemeal, they are buying up land, businesses and banks all over America. Multiple listings of American real estate - homes, businesses, ranches, farms, etc. are all posted daily throughout the cities and towns of Japan. A Japanese can go into a department store, look over the multiple listings along with pictures and descriptions, then with his credit cards buy property anywhere in the US as a foreign national.

"The transaction or the purchase of this US property is not registered, so we have no record of what, how much, and how extensive Japanese holdings are in our country. This contrasts sharply with the fact that the Americans cannot buy a foot of land in Japan. They protect their sovereignty ... our Government might as well not even exist for all the good they do us. ...

"It is a joke that we are 'trading partners' with Japan, because it's all one way. We trade almost nothing with Japan. They only buy our assets (America) not our products.

"When we tried to put through an 'equitable/fair trade bill' with Japan, the powerful Japanese Lobby in Washington warned our representatives 'You'd better not vote for that bill, or we'll pull our Japanese businesses out of your state and take it elsewhere and you'll get the blame.' So, our representatives voted against the bill. You may be sure, we don't dictate to Japan anything nor meddle in THEIR internal affairs. We have pampered, spoiled, and mollycoddled Japan until they can now get away with murder (genocide of the United States). They would like nothing better than to have the "Rising Sun" flag hoisted over the capitol in Washington, calling it 'Little Tokyo' and playing the Japanese Anthem, 'Kimi Ga Yo.'"

"I blame our American government for malfeasance, for not protecting the sovereignty of the US. There are governors and others throughout our country who must bear responsibility for this deplorable state of affairs. The Governor of Tennessee and the Governor of Virginia are both assisting, practically begging, the Japanese to buy our lands under the guise of bringing the US dollars back to America....

"They royally entertain the Japanese, taking them on guided-tours in Greyhound buses, wining and dining, showing them prime Real Estate, vast rolling acres of the best land in Tennessee and Virginia. The Japanese know that they have us by the throat ... and keep looking at one prime parcel after another until they have fully satisfied their voracious appetite for American properties .

"I talked with Phyllis Schlafly regarding the violations of US laws. She couldn't help me. I talked with our lawyer ... and he said that he didn't want to get involved. I talked to the lawyer for Thomas Road Baptist Church. His statement scared me. He said: 'Ed, it may already be too late to save America.' He stated further: 'It is unlikely you could find anyone in the US government who would care enough or dare enough to even become involved at all, to speak up for their country.'"

"I wrote Senator John Warner of Virginia. He didn't even answer my letter.

"America deserves chastisement for its misdeeds, but I don't believe it should be to the extent of losing our sovereignty to the Japanese who are effectively taking over America in an economic Pearl Harbor.

"There is one particularly alarming note: If the Japanese succeed in taking over America as they are now doing, the military and nuclear capability of the US will soon be at their disposal ... .

"There are many side issues I could mention, such as the prostituting of American girls for Japanese brothels in the United States and Japan ...

"The next thing on the agenda is: the Japanese plan to build vast retirement communities for Japanese elderly wherever they want, anywhere in America. The ironical thing ... is, they don't even ask permission of the host states involved.

"By the way, Japan and American I.N.S. officials are planning to drop requirements for visas between the two countries. There again, it would be mainly a one-way flow of people, as the Japanese export their own people over here.

"I can see by our policies ... that our Leaders don't really understand the Japanese. Living among them, as we did for 15 years, gives us an advantage our leaders don't have. Donald Trump, well-known billionaire from New York, said the Japanese are the hardest to deal with because:

1) They are arrogant and greedy.

2) When you meet with them there's never just one; it's always three, six, nine, or a dozen; they always negotiate in groups. That means you are far less likely to reach an equitable deal with them. One may be sold, but not necessarily the rest of them. They always think in terms of the whole nation ...

"As of now, the Arco Plaza, the Exxon Building, the Exchange Place, the Tishman Building are all Japanese owned. Today, they are sizing up the Sears Tower in Chicago, the world's tallest sky scraper for $1.2 billion, which would be the biggest sale of a US building, ever ...

"Thirty six of our United States have offices in Tokyo where they beg the Japanese to come to their home states for the red carpet treatment and the best of everything. The female governor of Kentucky went farther than that; she had her state purchase prime land and build access roads and everything that was necessary for the Japanese convenience - and gave it to them!

"The Japanese laugh at the way these Americans from thirty six states are in Tokyo fighting madly with each other, each vying for the Japanese attention and Yen, for their individual States....

"To the United States government, I say: You had better start thinking about the welfare of our nation FIRST!"

AIDS UPDATE

PRAVDA: In Pravda the USSR Minister of Health states that 380 AIDS blood testing labs have been set up and there will be 1000 by year end. The Soviet government has stated that AIDS cases and carriers should be isolated. All foreign citizens coming into the USSR will undergo mandatory AIDS tests. Those infected will be deported. Soviet News & Views, p. 16, December 1988.

LEADING CAUSE: AIDS is now the 9th leading cause of death for US children ages 1 - 4. Experts say 1 of 10 pediatric hospital beds will be filled with an AIDS infected child by '91. Washington Times, A-3, 12/20/88.

DEFICIT: Private NY city hospitals face a $120 million deficit. The AIDS patients, now numbering 1513, have added enormously to the problem. AIDS patients are expected to number 2300 on an average day a year from now. NY POST, October 17, 1988.

BLOOD TRANSFUSION: A five year old boy who acquired AIDS after a blood transfusuion was awarded $750,000 by a San Francisco jury. WSJ, Dec. 5, 1988.

CIRCUMCISM: "Dr. Francis Plummer, of the University of Nairobi, presented striking evidence that transmission of the AIDS virus by women in Kenya correlates directly with lack of circumcism ... in their male partners. ... Plummer found that ... those who were uncircumcised were eight times more likely to have become infected with the AIDS virus. .... 'I think,' said Plummer, 'that ... where traditional circumcision is practiced, such as in W. Africa, we see very little AIDS, but in E. and Central Africa, where men are rarely circumcised, we have a serious AIDS problem." Newsday, Sunday, September 18, 1988.

"AIDS by mail is the fear of a Houston, TX judge. He thinks an angry prisoner may be sending AIDS contaminated letters to his court and ordered sent back all documents, unopened, from inmate Damon Down, who is in a Texas prison serving a 50-year sentence for arson." (Reuter, 9/21) copied from Daily News Digest, PO Box 84902, Phoenix, AZ 86071.

CIVIL RIGHTS: "Dr. Koop, Surgeon General of the US, has declared that AIDS 'could undo all the gains made by the civil rights movement in the last few decades.'" The Ernst Zundel Report, 206 Carlton St., Ontario. Sep. 1988.

HIV INFECTIONS: "The actual number of people carrying the HIV virus in the US, as of the the end of 1987, was not the 900,000 to 1.4 million the official sources estimate, but probably more than twice that number ... with the most likely total of infections probably close to 2.4 million." First AIDS, PO Box 2396, Vancouver, WA 98668.

UNFILTERED NEWS

S&L BAILOUT: The S&L bailout will cost $50 billions. Private buyers will clean up at perhaps 10¢ on the dollar with taxpayers footing the rest. Taxpayers, however, will be prevented from owning the S&L's bought with their money. If taxpayer owned S&L's established "Arab style" (Christian style) interest-free banking it might put an end to present foreclosures and the never-ending inflation/deflation cycles. This is why the banker lobby fights taxpayer owned S&L's. They just want the taxpayers to pay for them.

S&L DEBT FOR EQUITEY: Brazil will resume swapping debt-for- equity. Banks sell Brazilian loans at a discount to investors who convert the paper into paper money at full value for investment in Brazilian businesses. Last year debt converted this way totaled $1.97 billion with a further $4 billion converted in informal swaps. Six billion is less than the yearly interest on Brazil's debt. Brazilians own nothing of value in their own country. For her entire history Brazil has been nothing but a chattel of the European usury bankers.

LENIN LIBRARY: "Books which for decades had been unavailable to the general public in the USSR have been transferred from restricted-access stocks to general use ... About 500 of the previously restricted 10,000 titles will remain in restricted- access stocks ... The books to remain there are mainly those with anti-semitic or zionist content ..." Soviet News & Views, p.6, December 1988. No. 23.

LAWLESS CHRISTIANS: A lawless Christian minister collected scores of millions to build the PTL empire. A sex and money scandal forced its sale. The Toronto developer who bought PTL for $65 million was Stephen Mermick, 34, an orthodox Jewish rabbi. If the Christian community had from the first judged the acts of PTL's founder by The Law of the religion he was supposed to uphold, he would not have collected a dime from them and the Christian community would not have lost their investment to a stranger for 20¢ on the dollar.

PARAMILITARY: The Los Angeles Herald Examiner of 8/2/88 reveals that Mordechai Levy, head of the Jewish Defense Organization, subsidiary of the JDL, was establishing paramilitary training camps in both NY and California. The NY camp already has 75 trainees, according to Levy. The White Patriot Party of NC was smashed by the Feds for engaging in just such paramilitary training. Let's see what the establishment does about this.

"Dear Mr. Hoskins: I read that the US has equipped Chinese ships with the latest U. S. sub-detection gear to use against the Soviets." G. N., USN - DC.

ED: Me too. To be fair, the establishment should equip Soviet ships in the same manner to detect Chinese subs. They can track each other today - and us tomorrow.

POLICE WORK: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I am leaving police work after 6 years. It's not the street - I can handle that. It's the coddling of criminals, reports, restrictions, and

INDIAN: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Much interested in the letter from the blond Indian. You gave him good advice. If he lives in our society, gets drunk and kills someone - our society will kill him in turn. His own society doesn't look on murder as seriously. If he raises children like himself it will be worse later on, for both his and ours who will be killed. It is better to have him dealt with by his own people. They still have different laws. The reservation near here has several women to each man. Some of the absent men might be off working somewhere, but I suspect that most are dead. There has never been a reported murder, but Indian men I once knew have disappeared. No one seems to know where they went. I think I know." J.P. - Washington

INDIAN KILLERS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Could it be that some of the 'serial killers' are products of killer-bred ancestors the same as today's pit bulls? Three out of four pit bulls are great, the fourth may create the trouble. The same may be true for warrior races which don't enforce the death penalty. Unexecuted killers may breed killers who 'go off!'." J.K. - Wisconsin

SUN BURNED INDIANS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Anyone who looks on an Indian as a sun-burned white man is a complete fool. They are different people with different ways. Radically different ways! The ones around here are." A.B. - Montana

STEALING INDIAN LAND: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Didn't the white man steal the indian's land?" G. Z. - New York

ED: That's establishment propaganda. The media applies OUR Law to strangers. According to indian law, the land they lived on was theirs. When vacated, it remained theirs for one year, then, it was first come first served. Manhattan island was sold for $20 worth of beads by indians who had vacated it for more than one year. It wasn't theirs to sell. The white man was ripped- off. "Ownership" of land was only a technicality to them. It did not protect the indian from other indian tribes who felt perfectly justified in massacring another indian land owner and taking everything, including the land. The indians didn't, and don't, look on things the way we do. The never ending but natural resort to the tomahawk caused irreconcilable differences.

At the time of the Jamestown settlement in 1607, it is estimated that the total indian population north of the Rio Grande was 750,000. Today, there are 1.3 million, 70% of whom live on 355 reservations. Protected by OUR Law they have almost doubled and their standard of living has increased 1000%. This still doesn't keep some from dreaming of "the good old days" when there were a dozen widows for each brave, the women did all the work, taking 100 scalps really "meant something", and serial killers were the "in thing". But then, things were always better in the old days.

ED: If they offered $10,000,000 for a cure - someone might find it, take the reward and go home. In the meantime why should researchers take paltry millions for a cure when they are paid billions for looking and not finding it? If these researchers find a cure for AIDS, cancer, or multiple sclerosis they will lose their jobs. My brother died from leukemia (blood cancer) in 1926. Tens of billions have gone into research since then. That's 63 years ago and still no cure! AIDS and cancer research could solve America's unemployment problem. There's no reason that only a select few should share the never ending gravy train.

AIDS LABEL: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Hospitals don't label AIDS patients as being 'AIDS patients'. They label them everything else in the world except that. If they did people would stop going to hospitals. I know - I work in a hospital! We haven't had an AIDS patient yet - so they say. I know better!" E.G. - Illinois

WESTERNERS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Why are we called Westerners?" G.B. - S. Africa

ED: When the Egyptians died their spirits traveled west looking for the entrance to the underworld. (The exact entrance is believed by some Egyptian scholars to be a strange looking cave on the Scottish Island of Ionia that can only be entered by boat from the Atlantic.) Our people lived in the west so they were called Westerners. The Greeks continued the practice. We are still called Westerners. British soldiers in WW I who had been killed were spoken of as having "gone west".

BOMB RADIATION: "Dear Dick: Chernobyl is the tip of the iceberg. A recent warhead count finds 50,000 atomic bombs. H-bombs lose their power in about 5 1/2 years as tritium has a regular 11 1/2 year half life. A 10 megaton H-bomb built 11 years ago is now useless unless it is renewed with a fresh charge of tritium equal to half the original charge. The aging machinery that built these bombs is now dirty and leaking deadly radioactive compounds. The existing choice is to 1) cannibalize existing bombs which would reduce their number by half every 5 years. 2) Increase the quantitiy of plutonium used as a fuse to ignite the tritium, or, 3) build new 'clean' plants to produce more tritium. To solve the problem and clean up the existing mess is expected to cost 400 billion over the next 25 years (PBS Video of Jan 11, 1989). I'd be interested to know how the establishment intends to solve the dilemma it has created." Al Henderson - California

LAND GRAB: "Dear Richard: Your background is similar to mine. My people got here in the 1840s. Gradually the usury banks have taken our land so that we only have a third left. The local Mauris have been armed with AK47s automatic rifles plus other weapons that we suspect are being landed illegally. The history of the Mauris is bloody and similar to your American red indians. We live in fear of what the establishment may encourage them to do. Here, according to the media, we can do no right and the Mauris' can do no wrong." K.B. - New Zealand

FOOD STORAGE

Because of the resurgence of talk of possible food shortage in the near future the following is reprinted as it originally appeared in the August 6, 1974 article on food storage. Also included are the seed companies listed in issue #160 of January 3, 1988 and updated.

Top names in the scientific field support the cycle theory which states that we may have a food shortage in this country. It has been suggested that once started it could last five years.

Many people have started saving food for this possible contingency with the thought that if the shortage doesn't happen they are always in the business of eating food so it won't be wasted. Obviously, if the shortage does happen it will be too late to prepare for an emergency while in the middle of it.

Mormons have been storing large quantities of food for years as part of their religious requirements and should have more experience in food storage and amounts required than most others. Accordingly, certain Mormon friends were contacted. They graciously sent several of their storage plans, two of which I am enclosing for your information. You will notice that they are different in detail. If you decide to store food for your family, you must decide which plan is best for you.

Instructions For Storing Dry Foods

Heat oven to 250 degrees and bake pans of food such as dried peas, limas, etc., for half an hour to kill any small insects. Pour into plastic milk containers while hot and secure top. Gallon plastic containers can be purchased from dairies for about 15¢ (It must be more now.) Each holds about seven pounds. Will last 5-8 years. (Food I put up in 1974, 15 years ago, is still good. Hard as a rock and takes forever to soak to become usable, but it is perfectly edible.)

Wheat can be stored in 55 gallon drums obtained from bakeries for about $2.50. (I got mine free from a bakery. They were glad to get rid of them. Goodness knows what they cost today if one has to pay for them.) Dry ice is placed on the bottom of the barrel and covered with a cloth. Three hundred pounds of wheat are deposited on top. The dry ice will drive off oxygen overnight and the loose top can then be sealed with tape and clamp. Will last 15-20 years. (There is one thing the directions left out. Once the top is removed and oxygen reaches the grain, insect larvae hatch and multiply like crazy, rapidly making the remainder of the grain unusable. If you tap the barrel for a small amount, be sure to dig down in the grain and place another piece of dry ice to again drive out the oxygen. Again, wait overnight and re-seal the barrel. It would be better if one used the entire barrel at one time, but few can use 300 pounds of wheat at a sitting. Incidentally, 1000 pounds of wheat costs about $100.)

Place on wooden blocks in a dry place.

Using slanted shelves for canned goods will cause the lowest cans to be used first. Other cans rolling down changes their position and helps preserve their contents.

SOURCES OF NON-HYBRID SEED

In Issue #160, January 1988, a list was given of dealers handling non-hybrid seed. The article went as follows:

Certain scientists believe that the weather is changing. They believe this will result in a changing climate with heat and drouth claiming large areas. Cold is expected to claim much of the areas of tillable land in Canada, the northern US, and the Soviet Union, while heat claims large areas of Africa, Mexico, and the American SW. The result in time - a general food shortage. The time frame given was less than 10 years. The outbreak of large forest fires in summer is to be one of the signals that the transition is underway.

In former days farmers planted seed they had held back from previous harvests. Today this cannot be done. The seed is hybrid. It will not reproduce. A farmer cannot hold back part of his harvest for seed.

Recognizing what may be an approaching disaster, a number of sources offering non-hybrid seed have come into being. It may be that the time will come when people will offer gold for non- hybrid seed - weight for weight. A few hundred dollars invested in non-hybrid seed may be the best investment your family has made in several generations. Frankly, what are a few hundred dollars in your budget?

Listed below are some of the addresses that carry non-hybrid seed. As a rule, the source closest to where you live will produce best for you.

March 6, 1989

BBB: "Dear Mr. Hoskins, Your analysis of the political situation in S. Africa is appreciated by the BBB and myself. ... the white people of S. Africa have their backs against the wall. ... traitors are a bigger problem than the anti-white enemy. The establishment ... is totally committed to sellout.

"A new movement called the National Movement was founded on the 26th of Nov. 1988 to substitute for the banned BBB. This was also banned by the Botha regime on January 17, 1989 ... without giving specific reasons. The S. African Police are patrolling my house day and night and are also monitoring visits by friends and family. .... (ED COMMENT: Since the BBB forced S. Africa's leaders to throw off their disguises and emerge as Establishment agents, communist S. African political parties now receive the blessing of Botha's government. Anti-communist political parties such as the BBB are the new enemy. The Establishment's Media directed Afrikaner interest away from themselves and against their ancient murderous black enemy. Then, unwatched, agents of the Establishment's money interests took over the government. Now, former communist enemies are allies, bloody black revolutionists are friends, old former friends are enemies, and The Establishment's iron rule is backed by the guns of the police and army.)

"... enclosed is BBB literature. Most is in Afrikaans. ... 80% of the BBB membership is Afrikaans - the white population of S. Africa consists of about 67% Afrikaners (ED: White Dutch/French- Huguenot ancestry. Most of the remaining 33% are descendants of late arriving English settlers who sympathize with the Afrikaners.). ...

"We are determined to carry on the struggle ... Practical ways to accomplish this within the framework of the law were (recently) discussed ... I am absolutely sure that in time we will (be forced) to fight for our freedom once again. (ED: If fighting comes - it will be the Establishment's 4th attempt to suppress the Afrikaners in the past 150 years). The enemy will not give us any other choice, and as you rightfully said in your article, the scavengers and their armies will join them.

"The future ... of the Afrikaner people, (and) ... the world's largest concentration of natural resources is at stake. The struggle of the BBB is therefore of decisive importance ...

"Although we have courageous members ... Banned martyrs and dead heroes (are useless) unless they inspire their (kinsmen) here and abroad to commit themselves .... Defeat will be followed by the death of my people and will be a fatal blow to Western Christian civilization." John Schabot, Ex-Chairman of the Banned BBB - South Africa

EDITOR'S NOTE: This letter from the leader of the banned BBB gives a glimpse of the rapidly changing conditions in S. Africa.

The Establishment has long used the armed might of the British Empire as muscle to expand Establishment economic interest and suppress discontent. This has left a long, bloody trail.

The seizure of the S. African gold mines at the turn of the century triggered the last Afrikaner revolt. A population of about a third of a million white Afrikaners took on the tens of millions of the entire British Empire. British armies poured in and were soundly trounced in battle after battle.

Concentration camps were established for the wives and children of the fighters. Twenty thousand of them died in these camps. The Establishment was prepared to kill them all. There was a world wide outcry. The death camps and the deaths continued. The Afrikaner fighters surrendered to save their wives and children. The Establishment consolidated their hold on the mines.

There is something else one should understand. All ore in S. Africa belongs to the country. Mining rights are only leased from the government. Depleted mines revert to the state. Whoever runs the government controls the future of all the minerals in South Africa. This was fine as long as S. Africa was a colony of Britain, but when S. Africa declared their independence this put the owners of the mine leases at the mercy of the white Afrikaners for their future leases.

The international Establishment, their mine owners, aided by their Media and their international establishment allies are trying to overthrow white Afrikaner rule and put in black rulers. As was the case in the American South after the War Between the States, blacks are easier to negotiate with. White Afrikaners stand in the way of what could be the greatest natural resource heist in history and so they must be replaced. Own the government - own the gold.

S. African mining leases stolen at the turn of the century will never be secure as long as Afrikaners live in the same land with the thieves. The wealth and the victims must be permanently separated. The Afrikaner must go.

The BBB's attempt to alert Afrikaners to the effort being made against them forced Botha's government to ban them. The act of banning the nationalistic BBB exposed SA leaders Establishment agents. Now exposed, they must join the rest of black Africa in the communist camp to protect their own hides. After all, the actions of the rulers of the S. African government amount to treason.

The renegade Botha nervously stands watch over a stirring Afrikaner nation and dares them to resist. But, the tougher he stands, the more the Afrikaner awakens. With each passing day his government grows weaker as support drains through Afrikaner desertions.

Because of the alliance between the present left-wing S. African government and the S. African blacks, the black communist states surrounding them including the Cubans, the future is once more filled with peril for Afrikaner men, women, and children. The threat is that resistance to Establishment demands will once again bring about a S. African bloodbath. On the other hand, if the Afrikaners don't resist, everything they now have will be taken anyway. Damned if you do - damned if you don't!

It's all on the line. If our Afrikaner kinsmen lose - the people and the mines and resources they guard will be lost. Then, as Schabot says, Western Christian Civilization itself may also be lost.

BANKS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: It is obvious the part giant international banks play - they rule! My question: what part does the local bank play?" C. W. - Washington

ED: Small local banks procure for the big banks. They ingratiate themselves with the local citizenry, lend them money and that same day sell their mortgages to the giant NY, Chicago, San Francisco banks while keeping a small percentage as a finders fee. When borrowers bankrupt, the ultimate foreclosing muscle comes from the big city. The smiles of the local banker are like the smiles seen on faces in the red light districts on Saturday night. Local banks make a dollar, the big banks make a dollar, the Establishment owners take the rest. The customer is infected with the usury virus and is often ruined, but there's always another.

AIDS: "Richard: An acquaintance in the latex glove industry told me that the size of the AIDS virus is 4 microns and the naturally occurring pores in the best latex gloves are 7-9 microns. This shoots Koop's condom theories all to pieces!" S. J. - Oklahoma

GREECE: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: "Are the persons living in Greece today the same as those who in ancient times wrote inspired philosophy and built the Parthenon?" C. C. - California

ED: No. Usury forced many Greeks to move to Egypt where they were bred out of existence. By the time of Christ our people were extinct in Greece and Egypt. Some went to Italy as slaves where most were forbidden to have children because of the high head tax. Practically all the markers in Roman cemeteries of that time bear Greek names rather than Roman. Romans also had been forced to flee the effects of usury. The vacant lands in Greece filled with Slavs from the north, a different breed entirely. The same thing is happening to America today for the same reasons. This time we have no place to flee.

SENATOR TOWER: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: What about this Senator Tower business? Won't the country lose by not having his expertise?" D. M. - Colorado

ED: The rule: "It is not for kings to drink wine, nor princes strong drink: lest they drink and forget the law, and pervert the judgment of any of the afflicted. Pr 31:4-5.

The Seventh Law deals with adulteration of contracts. The contract that most men make with their wives upon marriage excludes others. If a man will violate this contract with his wife he will violate a contract he makes with you. Senator Tower is a Law violator. It is disgraceful that the President would want someone like that around him unless: "Can two walk together, except they be agreed." Amos 3:3 America is not missing a thing by not having him in the Cabinet.

S. AFRICAN PHONES: "Dear Dick: S. Africans can transplant hearts, enrich uranium, create ceramics harder than steel. Their Achilles heel is that they can't install a lousy phone in less than 8 weeks." V. M. - S. Africa.

LINCOLN: "Editor: ... the following ... comments on the President of the US ... by a lawyer from Connecticut ...:

"(He is) a person of fair intellect, slight education, limited knowledge, no research, kind heart, jocular disposition; a man, in short, of excellent nature - just the man with his inexperience in statesmanship, and with his vague and hazy notions of political ethics and constitutional history and law, to be misled by the sophists of his party, and to be the instrument of crafty and unscrupulous politicians."

Another man who had known the President well in earlier years said that while it has been generally believed that a love of freedom, presumably economic freedom, is the President's ruling passion. 'Nothing is farther from the truth." Instead he went on, the thirst for distinction has always been the 'one, intense, all- absorbing passion of his life.'

"Still another ... a former vice-president in another administration had occasion to meet with the President at a grave moment when war and peace hung in the balance. He was appalled, he said later, at the President's 'flippancy, evasiveness, and cheerful ignorance.' In reply to an analog from British history, the President blandly stated, 'I don't presume to be posted in history. On all such matters I will turn you over to the Secretary of State.'"

THE 1929 FAST SHUFFLE

Problem: Growing Debt

The problem always waiting in a usury society is that: Debt grows faster than equity.

More debt is issued each day. Today's S&L bailout alone is supposed to put $200 billion into circulation. Perhaps as much as $50 billion will be fed into the nation's money system over the near term. Also, at this very minute, junk bonds (more debt) are being exchanged for stock (equity) causing a further shortage of equity and a glut of debt. This debt/equity imbalance promotes an explosive situation. To deal with it the Federal Reserve banks can:

1) Inflate by continuing to issue debt.

The risk is that the price of America's dream house could go to $1,000,000 and General Motors could sell at $5,000 a share. Or:

2) Force prices down for a time. They can make the dollar scarce to depress both prices and debt through bankruptcy. Once this phase is over the money managers will allow prices to rise.

To make the dollar scarce they raise interest rates to discourage borrowing. At the same time dollars are syphoned into the banks by way of interest payments.

They are tricky. On occasion they may make you think that they are doing one thing while doing another. In 1929, they raised interest rates to stop the rising stock market. Then they lowered interest rates, BUT REFUSED TO MAKE LOANS. Many lost everything. The banks just refused to lend the money needed. This happened to tens of thousands across the nation.

As the money growth shrank, so did the value of stocks, houses, businesses, everything else. It caused bankruptcy, foreclosures, and the bankers ended up owning everything - a thing the bankers insist is the last thing they want to happen.

How They Worked The Scam

The bankruptcy cycle can only be ended by ending usury, which was done to bring the West out of the Dark Ages. The usurers fight this tooth and nail. We still continue to "treat" their disease rather than to cure it with a modified Arab style non-usury banking system. The day will come when everyone who loves to taste a slice of the usury pie carved from the side of an agonized kinsman will be asked to account for his actions. Until then:

International bankers use the system to go after 3rd world nations, forcing them to give up farms and businesses in exchange for IOUs. At some point, America will be asked to do the same. Taxes on the national debt will become unbearable - as they are meant to. Then, the international bankers will offer to trade the national debt for our public lands, as was done to Rome. This, to lower public debt which will lower taxes.

Right now, the banking system has chosen to do one of the following:

1) Raise interest rates to break the stock market. After this they lower interest rates and boom the market.

2) Raise interest rates to break the stock market. Then, lower interest rates. As borrowers flock to the window to borrow money at the lower rates, refuse to lend them money as the bankers did in 1929, an act that caused massive foreclosures and sent the stock market hurtling down. Tricky, tricky.

Conclusion

Today's usury system constantly expands the debt. A growing debt causes wild fluctuations in prices. One must deal with the swings. There is no safe place to keep your money. To deal with the wild swings the choices are limited. One can buy:

EQUITY - real estate, gold stocks, coins, common stocks. These are good to keep up with rising prices. Or;

DEBT - bonds (government, municipal, corporate); for falling prices. Or, if undecided, one can invest in:

CASH - folding money, CD's, T-bills, government money market funds as a reserve so that one can go either to cash or debt once a decision is made. Cash is always temporary, NEVER a permanent investment.

Students of economic history know WHAT will happen, they just don't know WHEN. When undecided most invest in all three. They keep common stocks in reduced amounts, and load up on fixed income when interest rates are about to change. After interest rates change and the M1 starts up they load up on common stocks. They also keep a larger cash reserve which can be moved either to fixed or common at the proper time.

Usury society manipulations cause prices to swing wildly from one extreme to another. Low prices are temporary. High prices are temporary. But, over the years the name of the BIG GAME is high prices. Debt ALWAYS stairsteps upward over the years. Those who invest in IOUs always lose in the long run.

Be ready to switch from cash into common stocks and other equity on their signal. Usually, high interest rates cause low prices. Usually, low interest rates cause high prices. When the signal is given that the monetary authorities are going to lower interest rates, and the M1 begins to rise, stand ready to once more re- enter the stock market in a big way. The next inflation leg could make the value of stocks and real estate skyrocket. We could see the Dow at 10,000 sooner than anyone thinks.

In the meantime keep a balanced portfolio, your eyes open, and be ready to move. The monetary authorities have the power to make your sandwich cost 10¢ or $100. This is the power of life and death. Respect it.

The plan is simple. When the stock market gets high - raise interest rates until the market breaks. Then lower interest rates to encourage loans and send the stock market up again. In 1929 the big banks pulled a switch. The stock market broke. The big banks lowered interest rates, but made few loans. Thousands of borrowers and thousands of small independent banks that needed money were forced to bankrupt. The big banks then grabbed the mortgages of the bankrupt small fry at pennies on the dollar.

UNFILTERED NEWS

USURY IS IMMORAL: "Usury is the root cause of our predicament, of all problems. The real issue emerging from intense research of the present debt money system is the fact that interest equals usury and, therefore, interest is just as unacceptable today as usury was yesterday. Usury is immoral and anyone who believes that the interest of today is NOT usury is believing a lie. Anyone who teaches this lie by wrapping it in modern jargon is guilty of participating in a gigantic fraud. Since a lie is a deliberate misrepresentation of the real world, and one lie most certainly leads to a whole cauldron of lies, it is imperative to re-educate the public by sharing the Truth." *S.A. ED: #169 dealt with this subject. The EPA finds no fault with toxic mercury fillings stored in our mouths, only when they are removed and stored elsewhere.

UTILITIES IN S. AFRICA: White nationalists of the Boksburg city council in South Africa have cut electricity and water to hordes of Indian immigrants to encourage them to settle elsewhere. Capetown radicals, some descended from British invaders who torched the country and killed 26,000 white women and children in concentration camps at the turn of the century, are making well publicized offers to share toilets and kitchen facilities. The gesture is believed to stop short of actually allowing AIDS riddled Indians into their homes. Without media exposure a white S. African radical is a bird.

KKK CROSS: In Portsmouth, Virginia unknown parties set fire to a cross on the lawn of an elderly black widow. The act was branded "malicious" and "offensive". A string of ministers lined up to chastise the unknown culprit. Twenty FBI agents scoured the neighborhood. An NAACP spokesman in a half page article was quoted as saying "You want something to go really wrong around here, you let them light another! Here in Portsmouth we want to put an end to racism and bigotry before it gets out of hand." It was "the third time such a thing has happened in 2 years."

regalia or meet because radicals had learned to disguise themselves as Klansmen and commit crimes in their name. Manufactured "atrocities" were needed to keep Federal troops in the South to in turn keep the carpetbagger-ruled blacks in power long enough to finish soaking up what little white wealth remained.

Today's cross burnings cost 50¢ and ten minutes to produce. Fifty cents multiplied by 10,000 papers across the country is multiplied into hundreds of millions of dollars. A fifty cents expenditure is used as a threat to produce urban renewal, black education funds, preferential hiring, "civil rights legislation", new bond issues and all that. Cross burnings are priority media "front page". When blacks or radicals are caught at it - it's "back page". The Media hypes this sort of thing because it's big business.

Think about it. Three 50¢ crosses in two whole years! Two feet high! Little old black lady! A widow! Terrified! String of ministers! Twenty FBI agents! A bit of overkill, wouldn't you say. One hundred years ago the same sort of writers wrote the same sort of drivel and insisted that the little old black widow had been lynched, hospitalized, beaten, thrown down the steps, had salt rubbed in her wounds, and her mouth washed out with soap. Nothing's new. This production will cost the taxpayers dearly just like it did in the old days.

MEXICAN DEBT: The President approved the plan to cut Mexico's debt 20%. Mexico must exchange equity for debt. Mexico's debt grows because of interest. Each year it grows. If they don't pay - trade will be cut off and Mexico will be reduced to again using ox carts, as in the case of Cuba. To keep from being strangled economically she must turn over more of her industry each year to the international bankers. And people wonder why Mexico is such a fertile field for Communists!

SCHIZOPHRENIA: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: A recent news article stated that schizophrenia is a genetic defect. I have heard that it affects certain races more than others. This opens Pandora's Box. EFFEMINATE: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Many Americans believe that Christianity is effeminate and therefore alien. Please comment." M.E. - California

ED: "Mainstream" and "TV" religion must be government approved to be aired. It IS effeminate. State priests NEVER attack the evils of the state. In return they receive tax exemption. They quote enough LAW to gain the attention of the Lawful, then switch to the confusing, unknowable, and inexplicable on which subject they are expert and sole high priests.

The average Christian thinks of himself as a Crusader, each man a priest knowing that in time he may be commanded to do that which The Law forbids. He may then have to resist to the death. The Crusader outlook is alien to the alien in our society. Any other outlook is alien and effeminate to us.

DRUG BUSTS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: In our city arrested drug distributors are released by their lawyers before the arresting policemen go home in the evening. Lately, three drug dealers were killed when they attempted to pull guns on arresting officers. CANADIAN JUSTICE: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Our Royal Canadian Mounted Police have always been regarded as something special. They relied on British military tradition and Common Law roots. The Mulroney government implemented blatantly discriminatory hiring standards. Whites were out - coloreds, Indians, and bilinguals in. A number of 'bilinguals' sent out west are functionally illiterate in English, yet are supposed to enforce the law among English speaking people. Lately, 30% of the recruits are female. It is considered a form of sedition to object to any of this publicly. During the past 15 years there have been an unprecedented number of RCMP scandals reported. Students of history can recognize that once more lawless leaders are bringing in lawless men like themselves to keep the Lawful population in subjection. I understand that this is the case in other countries of ours." G.D. - Canada

LETHAL FORCE: "Dear Sir: What is your understanding of the individual's use of lethal force to defend against a criminal who would do him harm." G. E. - Michigan

ED: The state says that the state is supposed to suppress crime. Christian tradition says that all are responsible. The Law states that each man is a priest and a king. Priests and kings are commanded to enforce God's Law. The Laws are 10 in number and simple.

"In case anyone of their own blood (strangers were not given the Law) should attempt to confound or dissolve their constitution (laws), they should take vengeance on them, both all in general, and each person in particular ... if they were not able to take such vengeance, they should still demonstrate that what was done was contrary to their wills". BRAZIL DEBT: "Dear Dick: Brazil owes US banks interest. To pay she sells us airplanes. If she doesn't she starves. If she does she puts our small plane industry out of business. She is damned if she doesn't - we are damned if she does." M.T. - Florida

JAPANESE SCHOOLS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: The Japanese are opening schools here to keep them out of inferior American schools and so that their middle management's children can learn Japanese ways and culture. American ex-managers now work for the Japanese managers and such a thing as special schools for their own children it made fun of. Such niceties are reserved for foreigners." J. M. - Tennessee

"Thou mayest not set a stranger over thee." De 17:15

LAWLESSNESS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: How can you say that since the Law forbids one to raise his hand against his own kind, those who do are either strangers or agents of the stranger? Why not just one of our kind who is Lawless? G. G. - Washington

ED: Maybe, but I don't believe it. We are creations of The WORD. The WORD is known by it's requirements. It requires the Laws, statutes, and judgments. It is a rare creature of our kind who will raise a hand against his creator - the Law - unless he is NOT one of our kind. Lawless genes inherited from a distant lawless ancestor can easily come together to produce an offender. This is why strangers loudly object to enforcing the Law's death penalty for murder and rape. Lawless strangers lopsidely commit these crimes and protect kinsmen who do.

IMMIGRATION: "Dear Dick: It may be that the main reason for bringing in hoards of 3rd worlders to our country is to disguise the drastic loss of white population. Without the invaders, the vacant businesses, apartments, parking spaces and empty roadways would reveal the obvious to everyone." H. F. - Illinois

DEATH PENALTY BY RACE

Everyone is in Danger!

"CHANNEL YOUR OUTRAGE: DEMAND THE DEATH PENALTY" (Headlines, NY Post, Apr. 26, 1989)

"Yusef Salaam, who is said to have told detectives that one member of the group had suggested that they 'get a white girl.'" (New York Times, Apr. 25, 1989)

"In asking the judge to deny bail to the teen-age wolf pack accused in the brutal Central Park rape (of a 28 year old white woman stockbroker out jogging), quoted one of the gang members as explaining that he had beaten the victim on the head with a lead pipe 'because it was fun.'"(NY Post, Apr. 26, 1989)

"The wolf-pack attack in Central Park has provoked an extraordinary sense of outrage ... The people of NY are no longer willing to be seduced by the claim that society is somehow responsible ... It's clear things have to change if New Yorkers want to be able to reclaim their city from the murderers and the thugs ... And the place to start is at the top - with the Death Penalty. ...

"Call or write your assemblyman; state your position on the death penalty. Deluge him with letters. Gather petitions. This is no time to be inhibited - too much is at stake. Reinstatement of the death penalty would represent an important first step in an effort by honest New Yorkers to reclaim their city - a first step on the part of a society determined to protect itself from the animals who commit crimes akin to the one in Central Park ... real animals at least, kill to eat. These vermin kill for fun." (NY Post, Apr. 26, 1989, p. 24.)

"Israel Rosen, a 49-year old Orthodox Jew who lived in Sydney, Australia, came to NY in the summer of 1986 to visit his teen-age son ... A stranger in the city, Rosen took the subway ... He stepped out onto the platform and came face-to-face with five or six black youths carrying sticks, planks and pipes. ... they went at him with a fury ... Then they left him for dead. There was no robbery, no vengeance. No reason. ... His killers have never been apprehended. ..." (NY Post, Apr. 26, 1989)

Lynchburg

New York has its problems, but now, every part of the nation does, too.

Here in little Lynchburg, a white father and mother were carved up by their daughter and her boyfriend.[1] It was so gruesome I won't describe it. She got the usual prison sentence.

A black boy went to a white girl's house - raped and strangled her. Again - a prison sentence.

A black grabbed a doctor's wife on a main thoroughfare a few blocks from here, pulled her behind a few bushes and raped her. In Lynchburg rapes are often never reported and murder is frequent enough so that it is often commented on in the back pages of the newspaper. There's no reason to waste time talking about events if nothing is going to be done to stop the guilty.[1]

It Has All Happened Before

In 1857, the "Dead Rabbits" gang took over Lower Manhattan and ruled it. It was a long time before they could be dislodged. What caused this? How could this happen? Outlaws ruled New York even in that day. Outlaw politicians did not recognize the Law. Their outlaw philosophy forbade them to punish other criminals. To condemn a crime would point a finger at themselves. Criminals multiplied and bred criminals that recognized no law at all. New York city was in their hands. The lawless recognize no restraint except force.

Reconstruction

The War Between the States ended the dispute over secession. The South could not secede. Not only could they not secede, but they had never seceded. If this was so, it followed that they were still part of the United States and had always been. Accordingly, they voted their old representatives back into office and sent them to Washington where they voted against the Republicans who had made war on them.

This upset Republican economic plans. To obtain the desired economic goals the southern whites were disfranchised and blacks were franchised and elevated to rule the South.[2]

The South was divided into military districts. Federal occupation garrisons were installed in permanent quarters to suppress white resentment and protect the new black-Republican governments who now voted with the national Republican party. This gave the national Republicans 11 Southern states in a voting bloc - run by puppets. The Republican Party now ruled the nation - with the help of the Southern bayonet.

In exchange for voting economic legislation to benefit the NE international bankers, the blacks were allowed to do anything they liked without fear of reprisal. Murder, rape and robbery followed. There was no appeal to the law. Black judges WERE the law in many cases. Thousands of murderers and rapists walked the streets protected by Federal soldiers. Similar tolerance of lawlessness was true in the North and the West.

This conduct was true to a lesser extent with whites, but was not as pronounced as the unleashed behavior of the blacks. The Republicans had inflicted an age of lawlessness on a large part of America in exchange for black legislation needed for them to "legally" loot the country.

After 10 years of Republican rule conditions became bad nationwide. In many places they were so bad that no one was safe outside their homes. New York had degenerated into a veritable sewer. The bankers themselves were robbed, beaten, or murdered on the way to offices. Wives were raped in their homes, and more important, millions of acres of prime Southern farms and plantations acquired at Southern tax-foreclosures were in danger of confiscation by the very blacks they had elevated to rule. Solution? Get the blacks out of Southern governments, fast! and bring back "law and order."

In 1873-74, the national media was instructed to stop their fifty year ongoing attack on the South. The media attack stopped on a dime. Read the newspapers of that period. One week the blacks were "holy", the next week they could do nothing right. The new media policy was that the South had been "misunderstood", that things were really bad down there and that it wasn't the fault of the bankers who had financed the likes of John Brown and Horace Greeley, it was the blacks and carpetbaggers who were responsible. This was something new. It was the first time the North had heard this. You can do this sort of thing when you have a media monopoly.

Next, the international bankers started a nationwide revolt against the Republican Party. This was also led by their media. A Democrat/Republican political war was the result. The Democrats were now the good guys. The Republicans lost and their occupation troops were pulled out of the South. Without federal troops to protect them, the blacks and the few remaining carpetbaggers were ousted. The establishment land syndicates kept their southern land purchases from grasping black rulers who would confiscate it.

Then, what to do with other BIG problem? The thousands of criminals guilty of murder and rape who walked the streets in every city in the country from New York to New Orleans. They were the source of practically all crime.

It was the criminal's turn to flee and hide, but there was no place to hide. The people remembered.

Enforce the Law!

With the Republicans gone, the criminal had lost his protector. The media was instructed to stand back and let nature take its course. The media seldom found anything to criticize in the things that followed.

It was as if fresh air blew through the land. Where Lawful judges presided, legal executions took place. Sometimes as many as 10 on a gallows. Where lawless courts still existed and criminals were protected, extra-legal executions took place. There were thousands upon thousands of unpunished criminals who had to be eliminated to bring society back to normal. America went on a nationwide house-cleaning hunt for unpunished criminals.

Almost as many legal and extra-legal executions took place outside the South as in, even though the South was where most crimes had been permitted to occur. Murderers set free ten years before rounded a corner and found a committee quietly waiting for them. A quick trial, and the felon discovered that there was a God in heaven whose Laws were enforced.

Executions

The period 1930 - 1970, is the only period for which data for "legal" executions is compiled. The government's Hist. Statistics of the US, Colonial Times to 1970, From US Dept Commerce. US Washington, DC 1975. "Historical Data" gives that information as shown on the chart below.

Reducing the data to chart-form is interesting. It may be the first time that this information had been displayed in this manner. You can see that the largest number of legal executions for one year took place in 1935.

The chart (above) "Whites & Blacks Executed" breaks the executions down by race. Of the 199 executions, in 1935, 119 were white, 77 black, and 3 "other".

Even more interesting is the data compiled on extra-legal executions (below). This data goes back 50 years earlier to 1882. This databank shows that in 1884, 211 executions took place of which 160 were white and 51 were black.

A total of 230 were executed in 1892, of whom 69 were white and 161 black.

Executions peaked in 1892 and declined drastically from that time on. The great mass of unpunished criminals were dead by the turn of the century, and from that time, both legal and extra- legal executions merely polished off the few remaining and kept down the new crop of murderers.

Other things of interest to be noted from this data are 1) almost as many whites as blacks were executed legally (see previous page, and extra-legally (see below and next page). There were more blacks executed than whites because then, as today, there were more black criminals per capita. It's a statistical fact.

There may have been some who were victims of private vengeance. Private vengeance occurs today, both in courts and out. However, those committing such crimes risk falling afoul of the Law forbidding those acts. Where murder has been committed the Law adjudges them murderers, subject to the punishment required of murderers. It only remains for the penalty to be enforced. The rules were known by all.

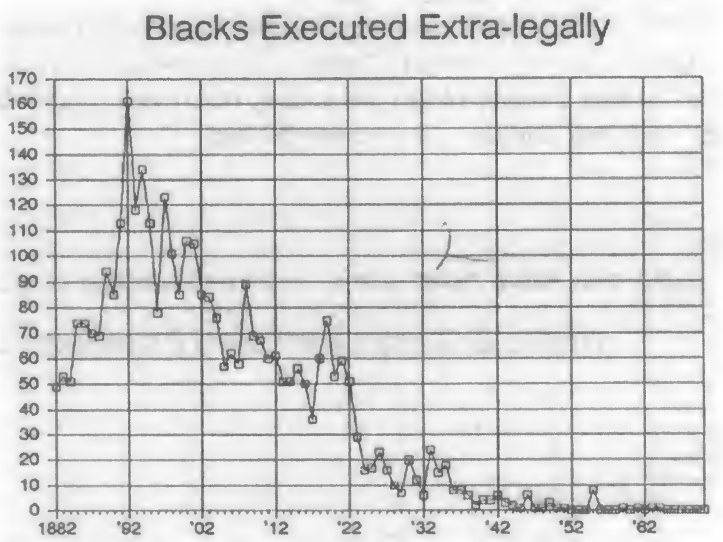
When I was seven I had this fact of life explained to me by Richard. We were riding down the road in a pickup truck when Richard pointed to a tree in the middle of a field and said "That's where some white men hanged a colored fellah." I replied "That's awful! Why did they do such a thing? Aren't you afraid?"

Richard replied "He fooled around with (raped) a white woman. I ain't done nothin' wrong, I got nothin' to worry about."[3] Life was simple for Richard and easily understood. He did "nothin' wrong" and he had "nothin' to worry about." And he didn't.



3 If anyone in Culpeper County touched Richard and could not prove justification, he would have had to deal with my grandfather, Richard Thomas Kelly and my Uncle Thompson. This might have been more than a great many people could handle. The Law that was obeyed had been here since before the nation was founded and was quite clear. Everyone understood. Incidentally, my grandfather Dick and his brother Alex, an attorney, had a dispute with the Texas Rangers in Tyler, Texas. I will try to tell that story when time permits.

There is another interesting thing the charts uncover:

The media crusade against KKK lynchings in the 1920s and 1930s was a hoax. The Klan had been disbanded and there had been no Klan for 50 years. It was not re-formed until the 1920s. By this late date the mass-execution of criminals had been completed (see chart).

The extra-legal executions were done by vigilance committees all over the country, the "neighborhood watch" of the time. These committees had virtually exterminated known murderers and rapists by the time the government started keeping statistics in 1930.[4] The media actively encouraged the elimination of criminals by whatever means available and found almost nothing in the process with which to find fault.

4 The thousands of interracial couples who flaunted themselves in carriages and on the streets in every city in the 1860s and early 1870s were dispatched almost overnight - not only in the United States, but in many places in Europe.

"Legal" executions apparently took over after the actual work of doing away with criminals had been completed. The "legals" only took care of the normal flow of new criminals arriving on stream.

The 1920s media anti-execution campaign caused the newly started government executions to stop. The charge was the same one used when the KKK was first formed in the 1860s - "execution for no reason" or for "private vengeance". The Media had its whipping boy since the Klan had come back into existence. From the 1920s on, all lawlessness was blamed on the Klan. From "protector", it became the "perpetuator" in the public's mind. The same thing was occurring that caused the original Klan to be disbanded in the 1860s. Look at the charts. There were very few extra-legal executions from 1912 on, and the new KKK didn't come into existence until the 1920s.

The COMBINED CHART of legal and extra-legal executions shows the combined total dropped to virtually zero. This situation still exists in spite of a smattering of executions. The now protected criminal still walks and rules the streets. The law enforcer is still the one persecuted.

Result? Headlines in the NY papers decrying rape, murder, and mayhem. Washington legislators even want to call out the national guard to protect them - the (ho! ho!) nation's "law- makers". The very same thing that happened in the last century when crime was protected is happening again.

Summary

It's official! The New York papers have reversed their policy on capital punishment. They now broadcast the establishment's OK to execute criminals. Things must be bad. From now on the death penalty is IN. Both liberal and right-wing "conservative" writers must now echo their lead or feel the displeasure of the establishment.

The world has turned upside down.

A maxim to be remembered: "The only time establishment- media tells the truth is to gain credibility for their next lie."

Another: "Just because the media is on your side doesn't mean that it is your friend."

In the meantime, let's try to stay alive until the criminal is disposed of. You can bet one thing - he won't go to the gallows any more easily than he did last time, but to the gallows he will go!.

AIDS UPDATE

BRAZIL: may face a massive epidemic of AIDS. The New England Journal of Medicine found a variation of the AIDS virus previously found only in Africans. A second variation, thought to be confined to Japan, Africa, and Caribbean, is already established. The disease is spreading to the heterosexual community. (Copied from Daily News Digest, PO Box 84902, Phoenix, Arizona 85071)

GRIM FOR AFRICA: Dr. Keith Edelston, an economist of the AIDS Economic Task Group said that the picture was grim for blacks in S. Africa: 45% will be dead or dying from AIDS by 1996 as well as 12% of the whites. In a typical Western economy, if 2% of the population needs teatment for AIDS, there will be a drop of 10.6% in industrial production. Production of consumer items may fall by 16% and corporate profits down by 32%. If being tested clear of AIDS is a condition of employment, there may be few employable blacks by the end of 1994. Mine production will start dropping off during 1990 and 1991. Heavy industry and the mines may thus face serious problems. The main reason for the AIDS problem in America and Europe lies in their not screening for AIDS. Condensed from an article in Saturday Star, Johannesburg, South Africa. 2/18/89.

Chapter 178

LAND

Landless People

I was filling my car. The gas station attendant was a young fairhaired chap in his 20s with a pleasant Southern accent. I asked him his name and where he was from. He told me that he was originally from Rocky Mount, North Carolina, but had lived in Alabama for 15 years. His real name was Nichols, but it was changed when his mother remarried. He was thinking about changing it back.

I knew the name Nichols. His family were yeomen back in England long ago. The Hoskins owned land close to the Nichols'. Our grandfathers had drawn swords together. I asked him if he knew about the Nichols' white horse? He didn't, so I quickly told him the story.

The White Horse Story

The Nichols owned land of their own in England in the old days. The land might range from three acres up to several hundred acres, depending on availability, quality, and family size. That land belonged to the Nichols family. No one could trespass without their permission, not even the king. On his land the senior Nichols was a king and a priest.[1] He enforced the Law on his land.

If someone objected to these conditions of ownership, he had a bow that could cast an arrow through the toughest carbon steel armor as if it were butter. Not even the king could claim that he was a better swordsman until he proved it. There were a thousand neighbors ready to pick up bows and swords to back the Nichols' claims.

He and his neighbors had a symbol to which all Saxons were entitled and many wore. It was the sign of the white horse, the sign of the Saxon. He was a son of a Saxon. It was his coat of arms. All Saxons are entitled to it.

The Nichols forefather long ago lost his land that was his kingdom. He ended up working that very land as a serf. Land that he formerly owned.

What is a serf? A serf is someone who receives his paycheck from another. A serf has no land over which to rule and which can feed him. With no land a man is defenseless - he is not a king.

This is the story of how his grandfather lost his land.

The King Gets The Land

The king was just another Saxon like himself. He was elected to office to lead in war and arbitrate differences in peace. Justice itself, on the other hand, was dispensed by peers according to ancient Law that brooked no change.

The Law says that Christian kings are not permitted to be rich. It simply is not allowed:

> (The king) "shall not ... greatly multiply to himself silver and gold." Deu 17:16-17

Antiquities 4:8:17 explains why:

> "Let him not have ... abundance of riches ... he may grow too proud to submit to the Laws ... and if he affect any such things let him be restrained, lest he become so potent that his state become inconsistent with your welfare."

Not only were kings not permitted to be rich, they were not permitted to tax their own people, only strangers. It, too, was written into the Law:

> "Of whom do the kings of the earth take custom or tribute? of their own children, or of strangers? Peter saith unto him, Of strangers. (Gr: allotrios - foreign, not akin.) ... Then are the children free." Math 17:25-26. The reason that kings were not permitted to tax their own people is that the people might be forced to borrow, and:
>
> "The borrower is slave to the lender." Pr:22:7

The scriptures give examples of what happens when the people are forced to borrow because they are taxed:

> "We have borrowed money for the king's tribute, and that upon our lands and vineyards." Ne 5:4.

The borrower is slave, and slaves lose their land. That's why kings are not permitted to be rich and are not permitted to tax their own people to become rich with what belongs to his people.

The king promised to obey the Law. He wouldn't think of taxing his people. It was against the Law, and law breakers were subject to being punished by Phineas priests. Every Christian is a potential Phineas priest entrusted to enforce God's Law, which meant that if the king offended the Law, any Christian coming into his presence might be his executioner. All went well until:

International Banker's Foreclose King

A new king arrived, William the Conqueror. He brought international bankers with him.2 to raise revenues. He thought this necessary because everyone knew that Christians cannot tax Christians, but may tax strangers:

These international bankers, being strangers and not covered by the law,[3] could lend to Christians at usury, and take their estates when usury forced them into bankruptcy. The king didn't do this - it was the strangers who practiced the evil usury. The king then taxed the strangers as a form of punishment to take part of their ill gotten gains - he did not tax his fellow Christians.

2 "William of Malmesbury Gesta Rerum Anglorum," ed. Duffy, p. 500) distinctly states that William the Conqueror brought the Jews from Rouen to England." The Jewish Encyclopedia, England, p. 161.

3 "He showed his word unto Jacob, his statutes and his judgments unto Israel. He hath not dealt so with any nation: and as for his judgments, they have not known them. Ps 147:19- 20

The king in this manner received one-half of all that was taken. When the lender died - ALL of his goods obtained by usury went to the king. The king's wealth grew by leaps and bounds. So also did the wealth of the bankers. "As early as 1168 ... the value of the personal property of the Jews was regarded as one- fourth that of the whole country."[4]

At last, the king had gotten all he could from the international usury bankers and so in the year 1290 he banished them and confiscated the rest of the property that they had gotten by usury.

This is how the king got his lands. He said that he was as clean as a mountain stream. He had not taxed his people, only strangers, and he ended up with almost half of the land of Britain. In the process, half of his people were reduced to serfs, and rebellious serfs at that.

Nobles Appointed

To keep a lid on this Saxon serf problem, he appointed certain of the serfs who were good fighters to be overseers of certain large tracts of the land that had been foreclosed from the people. The king's appointees were required to move onto the land and take up residence, build a fort to hold the land in the king's name, and to fight for him if anyone tried to take it away from him. This was called holding land "in fief". The job was much sought after. These fighting ex-serf overseers were called nobles and given all sorts of titles. The ex-serf who administered a county for the king was called a count. Any overseer who was advanced to the lowest rung of the overseer- nobility ladder was called a baron. Some of these new ex-serf overseers put on airs.

It was a sticky situation and has remained a sticky situation ever since the Saxon was cheated out of his land. It's something the Saxon hasn't forgotten. He hasn't forgotten that the king, or the one who rules by whatever name the ruler goes by, has possession of his land, either for himself, or has helped another to take it.

The Law requires that the king go by the same Law as everyone else. The Law says that the land was given by God himself and is not to be sold:

> "The land shall be divided for an inheritance ... To many thou shalt give the more ... to few thou shalt give the less ... the land shall be divided by lot: according to ... their fathers they shall inherit ..." Num 26:53-55 And if for some reason it is rented away it is to return to its owner in the 50 year jubilee:
> "The land shall not be sold for ever: for the land is mine; ... If thy brother be waxen poor, and hath sold away some of his possession ... in the (50 year) jubilee ... he shall return unto his possession." Lev 25:13-28

After all these years the Saxon realizes that the king put a stumbling block in his path to defraud him out of his possessions by usury:

> "Let us not ... put a stumbling block or an occasion to fall in his brother's way." Romans 14:13.

The Saxon also knows what the punishment is for one who is a false witness:

"If a false witness rise up ... Then shall ye do unto him, as he had thought to have done unto his brother." Deu 19:16- 17

The Awakening

The Saxon wants his land. He is tired of being a serf on the king's land, or a serf on the land of the king's favorites. He doesn't want anyone else's land, he wants to be a king on his own land. He doesn't want to rent, tax-rent, or any other scheme with a string - he wants his land free and clear.

He doesn't want anyone else's property, or anyone else's laws - he wants his own land and his own laws. He doesn't want anyone else ruling him, he wants to rule himself. He already has his own ancient Saxon laws, he doesn't need another's. He doesn't want anyone else's rules, regulations, taxes or anything that is someone else's. He wants only that which is his own.

We Saxons have millions of uncrowned kings. Two of the next ones, among a hundred million other Saxon kings, will be Nichols and Hoskins, and the new age will see each ruling his own land guaranteed by the servants of God's Law.

There is the sound of horses hooves in the distance - it is a Saxon horse! We remember!

CHINA: Allowing 'Western Media' inside China to record violence is a laugh, unless the reason was to gain sympathy for the millions of poor "freedom loving" Chinese who will seek their "freedom" and asylum in the West. It sets the stage for another massive wave of boat-people fleeing the media promoted red- terror. Thousands in Hong Kong are already seeking ways of getting to the US. President Bush has paved the way by telling 40,000 red Chinese "exchange students" that they have up to one year to apply for permission to stay in the US for good. These 40,000 students make up about three light infantry divisions. Six million want to come to the US from Hong Kong alone." Excerpted from Intelligence Update, May-June, 1989.

FIRES: Fires in northern Canada have ravaged almost 4 million acres of timber. The Florida glades are also on fire. Last year the American West burned. These fires announce the start of the ice age. COLLEGE DAYS: My college age son has a couple of college friends who sat and watched TV with him last Saturday. They fish together. Nice kids. A few nights ago the friends stopped at a stop light. A car pulled up. A white boy was driving. He had three black companions. The white driver of the other car jumped out and pulled one of my son's friends from the car and began to beat him. When the other friend went to his assistance the three blacks jumped out with clubs and beat both unconscious. Faces and heads look like sewing machines had gone over them. Bones were broken and pieced together. There have been no arrests. I asked my son what lesson was there to be learned. He replied: "You can't let people scare you off the highways and still get to school, so, watch for white renegades starting a leadoff, and do whatever is necessary to ensure your safety."

ED: The central bank of the United States is the Federal Reserve Bank. It is a union of private banks. Increasingly, people are learning that our elected government allows a private bank powers which can bring about booms, busts, bankruptcies, and financial disasters whenever they like. They have the "freedom" to do these things. We have the "freedom" to go along with them.

WARNING LABELS: The Journal of Commerce says that about 100 consumer groups are pushing for Big Brother legislation to force ALCOHOLIC beverage companies to

EDGAR BRONFMAN is a very wealthy Canadian. Ernst Zundel, another Canadian, was tried twice for publishing someone else's book that doubts the "six million" story because of the lack of evidence. That was called "hatred" and Zundel has been tried twice and is now forbidden to speak at all. Now, let's see if some are more equal than others in Canada.

The same newsletter reveals that singing the Canadian National Anthem has been banned in several Ontario schools because it contains the word "God", and that it was also noted that in the effort to win favor with Canada's new immigrants, the familiar "Mountie" may soon sport a turban and carry a ceremonial knife instead of wearing the familiar NERVE GAS believed to be able to pass through conventional Western military gas masks is being used in Africa. A little contacting a leg causes it to go numb. A small bit more will cause the loss of control to arms and legs and body functions. An ordinary dusting kills foliage and causes death. It does not dissipate rapidly. A Belgian nerve gas expert happened to be on hand to investigate the latest African incidents. This technically invalidates US support for UN supervised handover of SW Africa to the SWAPO communists. Heyndrickx, the nerve gas expert, complained that in the past his reports to the UN were classified secret and were never heard from again. Excerpted from INSIGHT, 6-26-89, p. 30.

NEBRASKA FARMS: Nebraska has a law on the books which bans nonfamily corporate investment in the state's 44.9 million acres of farm real estate. The rub is that farm foreclosures are usually done by corporate banks in spite of individuals such as A. W. Moursund of Round Mountain, Texas buying 30,888 acres at an average price of $105.08 an acre, and James Powell of Fort McKavett buying 30,410 acres at $97.51 an acre. The other big buyers are often out-of-state corporations. Belatedly, the state's Department of Justice has been prodded into trying to enforce the law. MEDIA BIAS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: You seem to be almost callous in ignoring the the plight of the poor blacks and Jews!" - G.M. - New York

ED: The media has a reason for everything they do. They cry "wolf" for a reason. It accused us of vile acts following the War Between the States - for a reason.

What was actually going on? Blacks were given the vote and whites were denied it. Black legislators were paid trifling sums to vote for bonds to build "needed" railroad track. A million dollar bond issue was voted, sold in NY for $250,000, given to a railroad to build track - free. Companies such as the Crédit Mobilier did the construction and 50¢ on the dollar slipped between the cracks. Washington politicians were stockholders in the Crédit Mobilier and the Media kept watch to see that nothing happened to stop the rape of the South. The white taxpayers were saddled with the million dollar debt plus interest payments for the next 75 years.

These crimes and others were blacked out by the media and DC. The theft went on. Christians in the North had no idea what was happening down here.

Today, blacks rule America's cities nationwide under federal civil rights protection. They do the same things they did 120 years ago for the same reasons. America's black ruled cities are spending taxpayers' money at a prodigious rate. Now it's nation- wide.

The Establishment's media keeps watch by telling the public that the blacks are being abused, preventing criticism until the job is done. They say their hands are clean and that the white American taxpayer is the guilty one. We aren't impressed. Locate the pockets that receive the taxpayers' rake-offs and you have the guilty parties. The Washington politician arrives poor and leaves a millionaire. He is automatically suspect, and so is his banker.

Chapter 179

THE WHITE CELLS

A doctor who lives nearby read my newsletter and commented "You make the simple so complicated. Life is simple! Business is simple!"

The following is one doctor's concept applied to conditions today as best as I can remember his conversation and analogies. I found it interesting.

Comparing Cells With People

Western society is almost an exact enlarged copy of an individual's body. The brain is the government, the nerves - communications, the stomach - manufacturing. The liver purifies the blood. These organs are natural components of every body. Each has its function. In a healthy body each instinctively does its assigned task in harmony, regulated by the brain. The blood cells are the workers.

The Body Of The Nation

There are red and white blood cells. The red cells work and white cells defend by fighting "germs" and alien substances. For 700 red cells there is only a single white cell.

Alien Substances Attack The Body

Every healthy well ordered body is always under attack from germs, i.e. viruses, organic and inorganic substances. Entry may be gained quietly through all the natural openings, usually through the mouth along with what we eat. Alien immigration can cause a stomach ache. Alien entry can also be made by piercing the skin - everything from a mosquito bite to a bullet which corresponds to invasions by armies all the way to the quiet individual wetback wading the Rio Grande. Either can cause infections.

Cuts & Abrasions

Attacks from without are often painful. The body notices a Pearl Harbor. Even an Indian attack is noticed. The first corresponds to a wound from a .357 magnum. The last to a mere splinter.

The splinter may become painful. When removed the alien portion that remains is surrounded by white cells and attacked. The resulting pus is the dead white blood cells that perish in the conflict.

Fever and Pain

The combat around the splinter causes the battle area to become warm. The pain and the warmness of the wound signal conflict with an alien presence in the body which responds at last by producing more white blood cells.

Local Abscess

White cells are unique. They attack the alien presence on sight and willingly die in the process. It's the reason they were created. Every different body has these white blood cells. They are called Shiites in Islam, Kamikazes in Japan, and Phineas priests in the West. Abortion and tax protesters are recent examples.

An infection may grow to become an abscess. It will either expel the alien presence, or the alien presence in the wound will overcome the body's defenses and kill the body.

Blood stream Infection

If a toxic wound releases poisonous material into the body, this material is caught up and moved about by the body's blood stream transportation system. An AIDS type infection brought in by alien bodies may quickly spread from New York throughout the body and infect healthy blood cells. This may be very serious. This is why white cells are so very contentious about the smallest splinter - a splinter that others don't consider important.

Tumors - Cancers

An alien presence can cause a tumor, or take up residence in an existing tumor. Tumors often grow abnormally as they absorb body nutrients meant for others. Brain tumors are often responsible for many abnormal acts. Bodily organs may respond by retaining poisons in prisons instead of eliminating them. They may even direct their release into the body where they again walk the streets doing injury to healthy red blood cells.

Nervous Disorders

Tumors, pressing on the governing brain, or normal cells made toxic by association with invading viruses, can produce nervous disorders. Entering the pituitary gland, they may cause it to release abnormal amounts of monetary adrenalin. The body may respond to this stimulus with sudden feverish activity. A sudden drop in monetary adrenalin may be followed by an epileptic stupor (boom/bust syndrome). Resulting falls can be very harmful.

Acts characterized not just abnormal but actually insane may result. The body may administer civil war type self-inflicted wounds, or assault its nearby fellows in World Wars. It may cause the forced mixing of its own blood cells with toxic cells of invading alien bodies thereby causing its own cells to become toxic. It may make abrasions in its own skin allowing bacteria to swarm in. It may drain off and ship its own needed body resources to benefit hostile alien bodies.

In cases of advanced infection a diseased brain may launch attacks on its own defensive white blood cells, and even permit millions of its own newly created red blood cells, needed for future work and survival of the body, to be killed in aboratoriums. Its liver may no longer purify the blood by removing alien substances. The kidneys may no longer expel toxic poisons but parole them back into the body after a short 6 month stint.

In terminal cases bone cancer infections may spread to the bone marrow where production of blood cells take place, stopping their production altogether. The patient then dies.

The whole thing can be complicated by hallucinations when an infected brain allows an infected nervous system to proclaim to the body that this condition and behavior is normal, good, and that there is no need to worry. The normal red blood cells welcome this assurance and continue about their assigned tasks. The white cells panic.

Diagnosis

To find an enlarged tumor that may be harmful, look for the largest buildings in your downtown. They are the ones getting the largest share of the body's nutrients. Without exception the largest are the pituitary gland bank buildings, next, the brain - government buildings, and a poor last - church buildings left over from the last century falling into disrepair.

It is the duty of qualified doctors to examine the patient to determine if the tumors are benign or malignant, and whether or not surgery is called for. Today, some are calling for surgery and their complete removal. Others believe that a different diet can cause the body to heal itself. These are all questions that must be faced in time.

Body's Defenses Against Virus

A virus must appear harmless to survive. It may even appear beneficial. If the body's nervous system gives no danger signal, the white cells tend to be inactive. Their numbers may even be reduced by tax courts, abortion lock-ups, and Fort Smith trials. The resulting low white cell blood count is abnormal. This low count is a danger sign that can be picked up by the body's developing alternate nervous system that operates when the primary communication system becomes useless because of infection.

The improvised alternate newsletter nervous system releases the truth and more white cells are created to gather at abortoriums to try to ensure the birth of red blood cells. There they undergo beatings, jailings, and fines as is expected of their kind. The conflict broadens, the temperature rises higher. More white cells are now being created than destroyed. The body is beginning to fight for its life.

Things begin to happen. The body is beginning to notice abnormalities not seen before. It notices that the cars speak Japanese, the computers, Taiwanese. It notices that half the body's food requirements are imported while its own farmers are paid not to grow. Other food leaves to feed strangers. The body has no anti-missile defense and no bombshelters while its enemies do.

Over the protest of its diseased brain and captive nervous system, word filters into the body that the extravagant tax demands fund abortion mills, kill Palestinians, and keep communist nations afloat. Opposition candidates are fielded and are actually elected. And, over the angry protest of the leaders of organized religion, the ancient laws of conduct that guarantee health and survival are once more being sought and are being followed by increasing numbers of individuals, if not the church.

The disease-free healthy body is its own best doctor, and is perfectly capable of judging itself by its jury system. It instinctively knows right and wrong and if left alone usually judges accordingly. Recently white blood cells came before a jury of red blood cells in Fort Smith and were found not guilty. Another jury of red blood cells believed the innocence of two white blood cells in North Carolina. They were accused of shooting down a porno-parlor of homosexuals and burning the building on top of them. The temperature is rising.

Conclusion - The Patient is Sick

A fever is again apparent in the body of the West. It is the old sign of the body's attempt to heal itself. The outcome, as always, will determine whether the body lives or dies.

Recommendations

The current disease of the West has brought about profound changes. The fever and the attempt that will follow to heal itself will bring more. Through it all we must live. A run-away outlaw pituitary Federal Reserve gland now rules and usurps the functions of the brain in Washington. It releases adrenalin when it likes, in any quantity it likes, with no restraints. One day its faults will be corrected, but for now its actions determine economic life and death to the cells. We must know what it is doing to avoid damage.

LETTERS

BACKWARD: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I don't understand how many of the 3rd world nations after having received billions from us can still be so backward?" A. M. - W. Virginia

ED: Most are lawless. They only recognize contracts that they are forced to honor. Contracts with Westerners enforceable in their own courts often result in disaster for the Westerner. In most of the 3rd world the people don't trust a neighbor's word. Arriving at an enforceable contract is a long, involved, tedious process. Gold is an absolute must to guard against treachery from their own governments. This reduces trade to a one on one barter system, enforceable with bribes and force. Without fresh inflows of Western currencies, and without contracts that can be enforced, business and society stagnate. Money, enlightenment, technics, education - all are worthless in the long run without enforceable contracts.

LIBERAL QUEEN: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: The queen of England is very liberal. Is there an economic reason?" G. D. - England

This land was formerly owned by and seized from the Catholic Church. In addition, she still owns much of the land of England formerly belonging to the Jewish usury bankers. This was confiscated at the time the Jews were banished in 1290. If she does not support the ruling powers she risks having it all taken from her.

WHITE HORSE: "Dear Dick: Thanks for the story of the 'Saxon White Horse'. I'd like to see a 'white horse' patch made for shirt pockets and jackets. People would ask about them and we could give a pamphlet on the history of the Saxon horse. It sure would create interest and maybe help turn these hard headed Saxons." O. D. - South Carolina

LAUREL GROVE

The topic for the 1989 Hoskins/Garnett/Hundley Reunion had been the Bookers. Captain Lewis Booker built Laurel Grove. His daughter Sarah married Judge Muscoe Garnett. Both father and daughter are buried at Laurel Grove. Plantations had names to direct mail. "Lewis Booker, Essex County, Virginia" alone didn't say where in Essex he lived. The writer had to include "Laurel Grove". Before going home I took the two youngest girls to see the places.

Laurel Grove

Laurel Grove was built in 1786 in Essex County, Tidewater, Virginia after Captain Lewis Booker came back from the War. He had served seven years in the 1st Continental Artillery. There were about 800 acres in the plantation. It was secondary land, much of it swamp. Prime land in Virginia had been settled in the earlier 150 years. To get prime land one had to go to the Virginia counties of Kentucky and Ohio. But, still, it was in Tidewater Virginia and so it was good land.[1]

The Laurel Grove plantation house was typical - a large cottage with three dormers built in the old style, and square to the prevailing winds to cool it in summer. There was a full basement - half kitchen/sitting room and half dining room.

There was a first floor above - a hall, front to back for ventilation, a sitting room on the right, Capt. Booker's bedroom on the left. A narrow old fashioned stairs on the left led upstairs. There was a nursery at the head of the stairs to the front of the house, a bedroom on the left, a bedroom on the right. All rooms but the nursery had a fireplace. It sounds small, but with the trundle beds and fold up furniture of the period it was more than adequate.

Cousin Vay, in her spry 80s, dragged me, a rebellious 17 year old, into the ground floor bedroom to point at a spot on the floor and tell me "right there was where your grandaddy sat looking out of that window to see who might be coming down the road to visit." Dragging me into the living room she said "Right there before that mantle is where your grandmother Sarah stood when she was married to your grandaddy, Judge Muscoe Garnett." Taking me 50 yards away into the cemetery she said "That's where they are buried. Now remember, so you can tell your children." "Yes, ma'am". I remembered.

The command is "Be fruitful and multiply." We had six, and would have had more except for difficulties. With six children to educate, I didn't have the money, but, I wanted to buy Laurel Grove. I want to go back home to Tidewater where my people are buried, although I was born in Lynchburg, 150 miles away. Buying Laurel Grove would be a good way. It had been vacant for 50 years, sitting way back from the road. After the last war to sweep over Essex County it had been sold into another family. They wouldn't sell it to me. They wanted to get rid of the house. To them it was an eyesore, and descendants of Capt. Lewis Booker kept coming onto the property to visit it and the cemetery. All it really needed was care, and after going to law school in the '50s I had worked as a carpenter to eat. I could fix it up with help from our boys.

I had talked to the kids. If we cut back everywhere we just might put together enough to make another offer for just the house and cemetery alone, maybe three acres, that would be acceptable. There was no way we could buy the whole 800 acres, not with land values the way they are in Essex. That might take a million dollars at today's prices and I wasn't going to borrow. The cutbacks would be severe, and to make sure everyone was willing to make the sacrifice, we all went for one last look at the place before making the offer.

There was a chain across the drive. We dismounted from the car and walked the long road. Laurel Grove was partially hidden behind oaks. It was there, but hard to see in the distance. But something about the house didn't look right. Something was wrong. It looked like a ghost house. A few hundred yards more and I knew. The clapboards had been removed from the house. I could see through it like a skeleton.

I confess, I have had few moments in my life that were worse. The house was being torn down by a company that speculates in old houses like this, and was being offered to the highest bidder. It was now a pile of old lumber marked ready for reassembling. Laurel Grove is now offered for sale to the highest bidder. It is no longer an old house vacant for 50 years, it was pure gold, and priced accordingly. Somebody with a lot of money could buy a "Virginia Plantation House" and set it up in a new subdivision somewhere so that he could say to his neighbors who also have everything that money can buy, "Hey! Look at my house. Built in 1786. Had a name. Can't think of it. Came from someplace in Virginia! They don't appreciate things like that there."

The Law was being torn asunder:

I say - damn those who would "remove the ancient landmarks", who destroy the inheritance.[1] Give it to another Booker, another kinsman, someone to keep it safe for the rest of us. But not to a stranger. Damn them!

It was again time to give my two youngest girls the Essex tour. The oldest had been twice, but the youngest was 14 and had never had the tour. I can't get away to Essex like I used to.

We drove across Hoskins Creek. I told them that my father told me that three masted sailing schooners used to come up Hoskins Creek to the plantations. Then we passed over Piscataway Creek. My dad used to run a trapline there when he was a boy. He carried Dr. William Hoskins' pistol, the one he used to shoot the two stragglers outside Richmond after Appomattox. It was a Starr, the same kind that General Lee had. Dad needed it to shoot the bigger game he found in his traps. The pelts helped put him through the Medical College of Virginia.

In the distance by the Rappahannock River was Clyde Side, first home of another grandaddy, John Hundley I. They had to move. Union gun boats passing by constantly shot holes through it while practicing gunnery. It was unfortunate if you were inside at the time. The family rented Woodland, another house up the road and out of range of the gun boats. When the War was over they moved to Hundley Hall.

Hundley Hall

Hundley Hall was for sale because the first owner, a medical doctor, had been treating a lunatic for an injury when the lunatic, seized an ax and killed him. He was killed in the bedroom to the left as you enter, right close to the fireplace. If you look closely you can see what looks like a stain. I can't see it, but my dad said he could when he lived there as a boy. He wouldn't sleep in that room. He was raised at Hundley Hall with his five brothers and sisters when his mother and dad died at the same time when he was 16. But, that's another story. My boy, John Hundley Hoskins II, who's at the university, likes this story best. He doesn't particularly care for those nighttime noises in Hundley Hall, either. Neither do I, if the truth be known.

Ben Lomond

We drove on past Hundley Hall down to Ben Lomond. Judge Muscoe Garnett lived there. He married the daughter of the owner, but being prideful, he paid for it. It was a half house - the hall and rooms to the left were all that had been built. He built the other half himself when he could afford it. Ben Lomond is a stacked house. This means that it is a big square, or rectangle, house with rooms in front and rooms in back. A properly built plantation house takes about four generations to build.

As a boy I remember visiting Cousin (?), (I've forgotten her name), Judge Muscoe's youngest daughter. She was very old. There were few men left alive after the War and she had married the caretaker. He was a fine caretaker but not much of an owner- overseer of Ben Lomond. He sold the bricks from the cemetery wall, the timber off the land, and the furniture in the house. In 1941, while visiting with my dad, I saw one bed and one chair in that great big bedroom. He offered to sell me the whole place, land and all for $10,000. I was just a boy, but I wanted that place. I went to dad with the offer. Dad was like I am now - raising and educating a family. He couldn't afford $10,000. That was big money then.

Someone else bought it. They died just last month and the house in now on the market for $650,000. I remember how the entire first floor was divided into four rooms separated by mahogany sliding doors. When opened they would turn the entire first floor into a great ball room. Some time I would like to tell you about Sarah Elizabeth's coming out party in 1855. That was something. People came from everywhere.

I showed the children where the dependencies had stood. The kitchen and the house for the teen age boys (they had the same problems with teen-agers then, too.) and how they used to kill ducks with poles.

They didn't believe me about the ducks, so I had to show them how they did it. Ben Lomond stands on the gentle bluffs a mile from the river. Ducks flying from the river on their way south would follow the contour of the land and barely clear the bluffs. Slaves would hide behind the rose bushes in the back garden until a flock was upon them and then stand up, thrash the air with poles, and bring down as many ducks as they needed. Of course, today we don't eat duck since we recognize them as being scavengers and carriers of scavengers' diseases, but back then they didn't know any better and duck was considered a delicacy.

Ben Lomond

I took the children over to the cemetery. We had to fight through honeysuckle. Its interesting how wealthy owners almost never bother to run a lawnmower over the old cemeteries. Usually they are hidden in undergrowth. When they are too visible they deny that the portraits on the walls are the ancestors of the present occupants.

John Thomas Trible Hundley I is buried there (a Hundley had married a Garnett daughter). My daughter, Ella-Garnett was fascinated to see her grandmother Ella Garnett's grave. Judge Muscoe Garnett was buried there too. So were his three boys killed in the War. They lie buried together. Frank, Sgt., age 17, 9th Va. Cavalry, "The bravest of them all"; David, Captain, surgeon; and William, Lt., 55th Va. Inf.

I showed them the mock orange tree. In 1860, Judith, their grandmother, was getting ready to get in the carriage. George, the groomsman, stood holding the horses. Just before she stepped in the carriage, one of the big mock oranges fell, hit a horse and caused the team to bolt, killing George. He died right there, right next to the mock orange tree. The big one on the right of the brick walk. The latest owners lived in the house for 40 years and didn't know the story. The brick walkway is now sunk beneath the ground and is covered with grass. It's still there under the ground. It was there when I was a boy, it is just sunk. Someone really ought to fix it.

I questioned the girls on the ride back to Lynchburg. They remembered what I had told them. They had better. They have to tell the stories that were told to me. Then, when my sons, or their sons get our land back, it will have a soul.

JONES BOYS: This year is the 4th straight year that riots have broken out at Jones Beach, New York, over the 4th of July weekend. The latest left 3 people shot and one stabbed. Most of this year's 20,000 revelers were members of black fraternities. They had a party like this at Virginia Beach last year. They didn't shoot anyone though, they just tore the place up a bit. They said the Virginia police were racist. The New York ones too. These racists!

CHINESE BUILDERS: The New York Times of July 30, 1989 revealed that the Chinese Government is widely engaged in construction activities in America. Acting through a US subsidiary, CSCEC-US Inc., the world's 60th largest contractor, developments "have been undertaken very quietly" after Chinese officials thought the original name attracted too much attention. Such construction activities often bring their own labor force.

Neighbors of their latest project, Latana Lakes near Jacksonville, Florida, have incorporated to fight them. The local mood appears belligerent. Opponents' leaflets state "We do not want nor will we tolerate a foreign hostile Communist government nor its sympathizers taking over our neighborhood." Night vandalism became a problem. William Peretzman, construction manager, said that houses will continue to be built on the 206 unit first phase with completion in 1992.

STANDARD OIL: Standard Oil of New Jersey in the early 1900s accounted for 86% of the oil refined in the US. In 1904, a Standard affiliate in Kansas cut crude prices which almost ruined 500 independent producers. This produced a revolt. Bowing to pressure, the Justice Department filed suit under the Sherman Antitrust act. In 1907, Standard Oil was found guilty and the Supreme Court ruled that it be dismembered. Paper trails revealing control do not exist in high finance. Many believe that those who controlled Standard Oil yesterday control it today. When foreign producers dealing through the dismembered parts of old Standard Oil now drop crude prices and drive out the independents by the hundreds, not a question is raised about it.

PREDICTING MARKETS 1989

Is Dow 5000 Possible?

The Dow is presently at 2875. Is Dow 5000 possible? The Dow has reached the highs of 1987 and has hesitated. Pundits are calling for a drastic selloff. The stock market looks high. Let's look a bit closer.

The line at the bottom of the chart on the next page is based on "book" value - the value of the assets of all 30 stocks that make up the Dow Jones Averages minus their liabilities. This is what the 30 stocks are theoretically worth on the market if sold.

The bottom line is rising. This shows that the companies are plowing money back into their operations for new plants and equipment, which increases their worth. The Dow Jones stocks are worth more and more as the years pass.

Actually, the bottom line represents only 75% of the book value, but historically, that's about how low the Dow Averages go when they decline.

The top line represents 2.2 x book. This is usually how high the Dow Jones Averages go when the stock market moves up.

It's not always a one-way street. Note back in the early '80s when the asset value of the Dow companies took a quick tumble. The Dow was cheap then. But, now the market has risen to 2.2 x book. That's where it stands now. This isn't cheap. If earnings and assets take another tumble this next year the stock market could come down a lot. Using the scenario of an imminent depression, the timid are being counseled to sell everything and head for the safety of the hills.

But, let's look at the chart on the next page to see a little more history. We note that in the war years of the '40s the Dow was cheap and traded down to 75% of book. From this undervalued condition the stock market rose over the next few years. When it declined next time in 1947, it didn't have so far to go since the value of the stocks had increased. In 1949 the book value of the Dow had risen so much that the stock market took off to the topside. Both book value and stock prices rose together and rose rapidly. Between 1949 and 1966 the Dow zoomed to 1000 where it touched on the 2.2 x book line. Fortunes were made in the stock market and those picking stocks had a field day.

In 1966 (next page) the Dow touched on 2.2 x book at 1000 on the Dow Jones Averages and backed off. It then spent the next 18 years trading up to 1000 and down again. During the whole period the value of the Dow companies continued to rise. This lasted until the big selloff in 1974. This was a historic time for the stock market. The selloff made the stock market grossly underpriced and the net worth of the Dow stocks continued to rise rapidly. The old timers can tell you about that crash. Those who lived through it thought it would never end. Some stocks lost 80% of their value.

The Dow touched on the rising 75% of book in 1974 and bounced. It bounced up to 1000 in 1976, and since the 1000 level had stopped it so many times before, people sold and the Dow stopped once again.

In the 1920s (next page) the book value of America's companies grew rapidly because commodity prices were low. Companies could buy commodities cheaply and sell at the same old prices which caused profits to increase tremendously. Stock prices also increased tremendously. Reaching 2.2 x book in early 1928, the Dow hesitated for only a short time before going into a 3rd degree rise that took it up to 4.5 x book (4.5 x book is the top line).

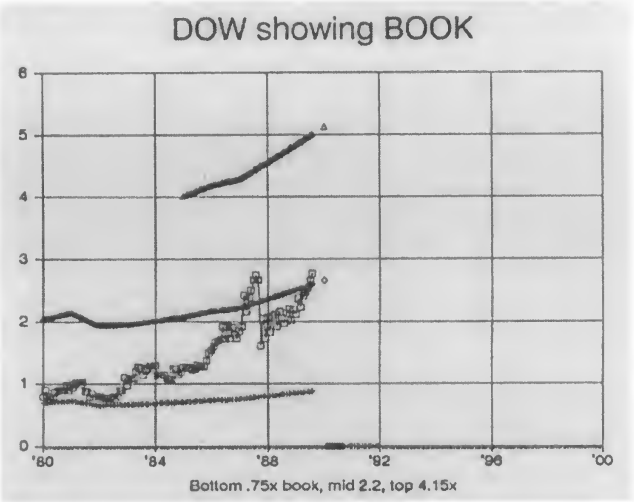
In many respects conditions today are similar to 1928. Commodity prices are either stable or trending lower. They are kept that way by the NY international money changers raising the price of the dollar. A higher dollar means lower commodity prices and higher profits for American manufacturing companies who buy cheap and sell dear.

Interest rates are still high now and money growth is very low. To avoid a 1929 it appears logical that the Fed will have to lower interest rates. Lower interest rates encourage merchants to borrow money into existence. Money being borrowed into existence spills over into the stock market and causes it to rise.

There you have it. Low commodity prices, rapidly increasing earnings, rapidly increasing book, and the Fed's announced intention to look favorably on lower interest rate levels to encourage borrowing money into existence to avoid 1929. All the pieces fit.



To reach the same level as was reached in 1929 the Dow will have to climb to 5000. Can it do it? Of course it can. Are there risks? Of course there are. There always are risks. The Fed could raise interest rates and tumble the whole thing. The massive Japanese stock market could be manipulated into a dive which would drag the American economy with it. There are any number of things that COULD happen. But, there are no signs that any of these things are happening.

The fact is, that at this time, all the pieces are in place for a stock market rise that might take the Dow to the 1929 highs.

It is entirely possible that the Dow could go to 5000 in the months ahead.

NOTE: When this was written in 1989 the stock market was trading at about 2500. Over the next six years it went to 5,000 and then preceded to go to almost 12,000 by January 2000 following rapidly rising earnings.

AIDS UPDATE

AIDS IN NY: "New York City has 3% of the nation's population, but 20% of the AIDS patients. ... Blacks and Hispanics comprise 70% of the city's caseload. Monthly AIDS Update, Box 4009, Martinez, GA 30917. Sept. 15, 1989xxx

ED: Today, a visit to "The Big Apple" for a show and dinner may cost one his life. Tomorrow's task is to keep NY denizens from escaping into uninfected parts of the country.

"NURSING HOMES in Wisconsin that refuse admission to AIDS patients will face investigation and prosecution ... the county's fair-housing ordinance applies to nursing homes." Monthly AIDS Update, Box 4009, Martinez, GA 30917. $39/yr. Sept. 15, 1989

AIDS INCREASE: The reported rate of increase of those infected with AIDS appears to be slowing. AIDS was introduced to the homosexuals and because of their unbelievable lifestyle it spread throughout their ranks almost instantly. They were largely infected 7 - 15 years ago and are the ones dying en masse today. They spread it to Blacks and Hispanics who are only now beginning to come on stream with their death statistics. After them are scheduled the southern Europeans. The last to be reported will be the Whites. In time, the casualty figures of the thousands infected in colleges, schoolrooms, and offices will be released. Somewhere in this progression will come the panic which will shake Western civilization to its roots.

THE FUTURE DEAD: A Gallup poll of 539 students revealed that 42% of those interviewed said religion was very important, while at the same time 69% of them said that premarital sex is not wrong, 56% approve of living together in trial marriages, 9% of the women admitted one or more abortions, 51% said that they approve of abortion, and half reported having more than one sex partner. (Excerpted from Monthly Aids Report, Sep. 15, 1989, Box 4009, Martinez, GA 30917. $39/yr.

ED: American samaritan churches who taught their kids this kind of religion will be repaid as their ghosts return to sit in empty pews in boarded up and abandoned churches. Only fools follow priests who kneel to a false god that kills them.

The following is excerpted from First AIDS Report, Apr. 1989, PO Box 2396, Vancouver, WA 98668, $69/yr.

"...Less than 25% of the patients with atypical gingivitis were aware of being sero-positive (infected with HIV). ... (ED: Most who have AIDS don't know they have it.)

"Saliva ... should be considered a bodily fluid capable of transmitting HIV infection. ..."

(ED: The April issue of First AIDS Report carried the USSR incident where babies infected by needles transmitted the plague to their mothers through their saliva. The article continues:)

"This has implications for the potential of bites by infected children (and others) to transmit HIV. ...

"1. The body fluids of HIV infected infants and children must be considered infectious.

"2. AIDS-infectious infants .... who bite, kiss, or drool infective saliva on other children or shared toys pose a definite health hazard.

"3. Schools, pre-schools, day care centers and baby sitting services must have the right to determine if the infants or children seeking their services are AIDS-infectious. ...

"During kissing ... if the blood of one partner is infective, human immunodeficiency virus can pass into the bloodstream of the other partner." (Journal of the American Medical Assoc., Jan 13, 1989.)

Testing resulted in the following:

"Before brushing teeth - 44 out of 90 (49% subjects had blood detected in their saliva. After brushing - 72 out of ninety (80%) had blood. Before eating - 41 out of 90 (45%) had blood detected in saliva. After eating 50 out of 90 (55%) had blood detecting in saliva. Before kissing - 35 out of 45 couples (78%) had blood detected in saliva. After kissing - 41 out of 45 (91%) couples had blood detected in saliva. ...

"ANALYSIS: This study demonstrates the presence of blood in saliva is common in healthy male and female heterosexuals. Normal daily activities like eating and teeth brushing increase the frequency and quantity of blood in saliva....

"Deep kissing ... with an AIDS carrier can be lethal.

"The Centers for Disease Control erred in their 1988 pamphlet Understanding AIDS, ... when they stated categorically 'You won't get AIDS from a kiss.' ...

"Direct skin or mucous membrane (membranes of the eye, mouth, nose) contact with the saliva of AIDS carriers should be avoided. ...

"Saliva tinged with HIV-contaminated blood which is sneezed or coughed into the air is infective. If the contaminated droplets hit the surface of the eye, are inhaled into the nose, mouth, or lungs, there is a risk of no-sexual person-to-person transmission of HIV. ...

"The AIDS virus has been found to remain infectious outside the body after being dried out in a petri dish for 10 days. This indicates that the AIDS virus is a tough virus capable of surviving on inanimate objects for a prolonged period of time. ..."

ED: Our ancestors looked on a kiss as the seal to a contract. Only in cheap novels was there "a friendly kiss." The culture mulching media has cheapened this symbolic act. Nature is returning it to what it was before - the seal of a contract. It is a contract to create life, or it is the kiss of death.

"Dick: An American friend living in Japan says he knows of no restrictions on owning Japanese land except price." O. I. - Alabama

ED: I checked with Rev. Ed Martin here in Lynchburg who lived in Japan for more than 20 years, and he said that his understanding was that the best that a foreigner can do is to lease, which they often call "buy". He said that if someone thinks differently he had better carefully examine his deed; Japanese legal documents are very tedious and hair splitting which is done for a purpose. It is entirely possible that your friend really doesn't know what he owns, or it may be that he is a Japanese citizen, or it may be that the law has been recently changed, but Rev. Martin doesn't think so.

CRASH OF 1987 & 1989

The Indicator

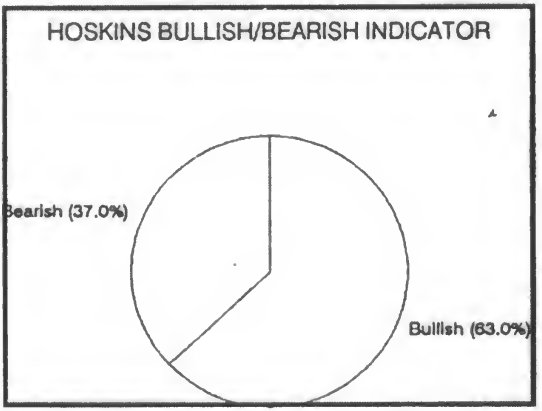
Every economic newsletter writer has an indicator. Most perform indifferently. To avoid week-to-week comparisons I seldom show mine.

The indicator list contains the Prime, M1, Over/Under Indicator, A/D breadth, A/D trend, 7 foreign stock markets, 200 Moving Average, Odd Lot Short Selling, and Dow-S&P divergence. A sum is assigned to each item and totaled. Every Monday I update it.

The Hoskins Bullish/Bearish Indicator is a fairly short term indicator. Just before something gets ready to happen it swings all the way over to one side or the other. There may be only 30 to 90 days warning. Sometimes much less than that.

Six weeks before October 1987 it read 30% bullish. One week before it dropped to 19% bullish. I had advised portfolios to be 40% in cash in case the Fed did not lower interest rates. They didn't, and there was no time to advise further increases in cash before the break. The 40% cash was useful then.

Recently, just before the break from 2800 to 2500 the bullish component read above 60%. This is normal bullish.



Before Friday 13th.

Just after the break the indicator's bullish component read almost 90% before the market climbed again and the indicator receded to its presently normal bullish readings in the 60%s.

I have never seen a reading of 100% either way.

US Steel - Crash of 1962

The stock market of 1962-1963 can be compared with the 1987- 1989 stock market. In 1962, US Steel raised prices. President Kennedy threatened them with dire things. The stock market collapsed - it was the Crash of 1962.

On Nov. 22, 1963 Kennedy was shot. The market dropped. When it opened it went up.

What was the difference in the two?

M1 represents pocket money and money in the till. It indicates how fast it is being borrowed into existence. Over time, it must be borrowed faster than it can be paid back into the banks by interest payments. As a rule, when the M1 starts down - so does the market, and vice versa.

In 1962 the M1 had grown rapidly - too rapidly. When it broke trend (A - prior page), Kennedy's threat was sufficient to crash the market.

In 1963 money was flowing smoothly into the market. The M1 growth trend was firmly established (B - prior page). Kennedy's shooting caused hardly a ripple. The stock market runs on money - not news.

The chart to the right shows that the stock market up-trend is intact.

In 1987, higher interest rates caused the M1 to break trend and start down in early 1987. Later, in October1987, automatic institutional computer trading took over and caused the overpriced stocks to be dumped, and the stock market declined in two days what normally would have taken two years.

Since people aren't computers, it takes longer for them to negotiate loans and borrow money into existence. Therefore, it has taken longer for the M1 to turn up. In fact, it has started up as has just now broken trend(right - point C). Investors guessed that it was going to happen, they haven't waited. They know borrowers are going to borrow now that interest rates are lower. They always do. Investors bought stocks while they were low, and the market has gone up from the October 1987 crash bottom until now. At the present time, the stock market is high, AND, at the very time the M1 is breaking its down trend (C) and is starting up. The M1 indicator crossing the downtrend line and starting up confirms that money is once again flooding the money markets and is expected to again spill over into the stock market causing even higher stock prices.

The 90 day T-bill rate indicator (lower left) is the Fed signal to the banks. When T-bill rates go up it signals the banks to raise interest rates.

When T-bill rates start down that is the signal for them to lower interest rates.

T-bill rates are now going down signaling banks to lower interest rates and make money easy to borrow, which is why long term fixed income securities are recommended. It also points to higher stock prices as money is borrowed into existence and spills over into the stock market.

The October 1987 stock market break wasn't at all like the latest October 13th 1989 market break. In 1987 the economic indicators signaled DOWN! Now, they signal - UP! If you don't buy stocks when news is bad - you must buy stocks when news is good - and that's BAD.

Until the nation's monetary authorities force a change in the indicators - they presently signal higher markets.

FOOD & HEALTH

SOUP: "Campbell Soup is closing 4 US plants and consolidating operations overseas. The move ... will eliminate about 2,800 jobs." WSJ p. 1, Aug. 25, 1989

ED: The US, in time, will have to ban imports from strangers. That will include imports from Campbell Soup who abandoned American workers for cheap labor overseas, but who want those who were left to buy their soup. "If thou has stricken thy hand with a stranger, thou art snared." Pr. 6:1. America may soon feel that it can do without them and their soup.

USSR - FOOD: "A quick tour of a dozen shops ... in Moscow ... reveals that supplies are worse than ... at any time since soon after the war. Basic commodities ... are gone. There is a panic buying. Sugar is rationed ... The flood waters of rationing have reached even the high ground of the capitol. ... consumer co-ops prices scare most customers .. a pound of inferior sausage costing about $10. The free market groans under mountains of vegetables .. but the prices are equally mountainous - up to $20 /lb. for meat and $8/lb. for cherries. With 43 million people getting less than ... $144 a month, and urban earnings averaging $304/mo, most cannot afford that kind of extortion." Soviet News & Views, July 1989 #13.

FOOD RATIONING: "All US military personnel (in the Philippines) have received ration cards for staple foods." Intelligence Update. 9/89.

ED: This military policy is on-again off-again. Still, in light of a possible world food shortage, such things must be watched.

DAILY BEER DRINKERS are 12 times more at risk of colon cancer according to Lancet.. Alcohol drinkers were 4 times more at risk.

(1) "Jesus Christ ... hath made us kings & priests unto God and his Father; Rev 1:5-6. (2) "It is not for kings to drink wine, nor princes strong drink: lest they drink and forget the law." Pr 31:4-5. Deal only with kings. Let strangers, slaves, and establishment workers drink or not as they choose.

SYPHILIS: "There is no clear evidence that syphilis existed in the Old World before Columbus's return, researchers say, and skeletal remains containing syphilitic lesions throughout North and South America provide overwhelming evidence that syphilis has existed in the Western Hemisphere since 3000 B.C.

"The researchers believe that some of the 1490s sailors contracted nonvenereal forms of the disease, all caused by the bacterium Treponema palladium, through skin contact and then transported it to Europe, where it spread both sexually and nonsexually." Insight, p. 53, April 24, 1989.

ED: This Syphilis from the Indians devastated the West. Westerners died by the millions. The bubonic plague from the orient also devastated the West. Half of Europe died. Now AIDS from Africa and Eastern Europe is devastating the West. Tens of millions will die. Westerners are helpless before the diseases brought in by strangers. We die because the Law is violated.

(1) "If ye do in any wise go back and cleave unto the remnant of these nations, even these that remain among you, and shall make marriages with them ... know for a certainty ... ye (shall) perish off from this good land which the Lord your God has given you." Joshua 23:12-13. (2) "When they had heard the law ... they separated from Israel all the mixed (mongrel) multitude. Neh 13:3 (3) "And the seed of Israel separated themselves from all strangers." (nêkar - strange, alien). Neh 9:2. (4) "So shall we be separated, I and all of Thy people, from all the people that are upon the face of the earth. Ex 33:16. (5) "I am the Lord your God, which have separated you from other people. Lev 20:24. (6) "Let us make a covenant (an agreement) with our God to put away all the wives, and such as are born of them, according to the counsel (advice) of my Lord, and of those that tremble (are deeply impressed) at the commandment of our God; and let it be done according to the law." Ezra 10:3. (7) "The stranger that is within thee shall get up above thee very high; and thou shalt come down very low." Deu 28:43

It costs tens of millions of lives to trade with strangers. Those who profit are satisfied with the exchange of lives for money and shrilly condemn The Law that condemns their grave digging business.

BIOLOGICAL WARFARE: Race-specific biological weapons may soon be possible that could kill ... specific races ... said a panel of scientists ... The viruses would be keyed to the specific genetic characteristics of a target population, said Raymond Zilinskas of the University of Maryland. Arizona Republic, 1/19, A-4, copied from Daily News Digest, PO Box 84902, Phoenix, Arizona 85071.

ED: Liberals argue that "this can't be" since there is no such thing as race. They may have to argue this one to death if they are the ones keyed.

RIOTS

BERKELEY RIOTS: "Federal officials have been meeting with city officials, representatives of the NAACP and others to resolve a dispute over whether the police used excessive force against Black students after a dance that ended in looting on the city's main street." NY Times, 8/28/89

ED: Looting's OK - got to watch that excessive force, though.

SOUTH AFRICA RIOTS: Rampaging Blacks were killed in the SA election. Most Blacks were killed by other Blacks. The establishment media reports the killings as White atrocities. More Arabs are killed in Palestine in a week than Blacks killed in S. Africa in a year. The media reports the one as an atrocity, the other as "defense against terrorists". In Palestine the terrorists are 10 years old. Figure the IQ of the reader who believes that!

MORE SOUTH AFRICAN RIOTS: "Thousands of Blacks marched ... The crowd, estimated at 5 to 10 thousand, stretched for more than a mile ... Organizers ... vowed further acts of protest during a nationwide defiance campaign." Durban, South Africa. NY News, 3 Sept 89.

MORE VIRGINIA BEACH RIOTS: One hundred thousand Blacks, mostly college students ("A mind is a terrible thing to waste"), wrecked and looted Virginia Beach for the second year in a row, looting 124 stores, causing millions of dollars of damage, injuring numerous people, and shooting bystanders. The national guard had to be called in to aid police in restoring order. The Blacks claimed that White bigotry, racism, and use of excessive force provoked the Blacks into fighting for their rights. The Blacks threatened the Whites by vowing to return next year for the third year in a row to protest the handling of this year's riots. A third year of having 100,000 drunken, fighting, vomiting, defecating, copulating, plundering Blacks having one more peaceful non-violent college gathering w/dialogue at Virginia Beach may leave the resort a burnt out battleground with hundreds of Virginians unemployed.

The media gives full coverage to Black demands and Black excuses for their destruction. The final vote isn't in yet, but the media is hinting strongly that somehow White racism is at the root of the whole thing. If somehow Whites would only shape up! But, as their T-shirts proclaimed, "It's a Black thing - you wouldn't understand."

DETROIT FLIGHT: "The mayor of Detroit denounced White flight as one of the greatest abandonments of property in history. The total and complete and reckless abandonment of Detroit by Whites was cited as being on the largest scale of any group of people fleeing from another." The Mountain, p. 7, July/August 1989.

Ungrateful - that's what the Whites are!

THE UNASKED QUESTION: Do Whites have the right to be left alone? Well?

DISCRIMINATION: (Brooklyn): "Hundreds of Blacks and Hispanics declared a 'Day of Rage' and shut down the Brooklyn Bridge for hours ... no reprisals. When hundreds of pro-lifers declared a 'Day of Rescue' and shut down a NY abortion clinic for a few hours, they were arrested, charged with contempt and fined $25,000 a day." Letter From Plymouth Rock, Marlborough, NH 03455, June 1989

ED: The thought might occur to a suspicious mind that the race who "looked at the sea for a thousand years and never dreamt a sail" may have had help in orchestrating simultaneous worldwide riots - a much more complex task.

UNFILTERED NEWS

CARS: The top 10 fuel-efficient cars in 1990 are foreign. The 1990 Geo Metro XF1 made in Japan by Suzuki for Gen. Motors gets 53 miles per gallon in city and 58 on highway. The worst gas guzzler will be the 1990 Rolls-Royce Bentley Continental with a price tag of $200,000 and 10 mpg in the city and 13 on the highway.

ED: At the end of WW II an automotive design engineer told me that Detroit had the knowledge, expertise, and desire to build fuel-efficient cars but was prevented from doing so by company directors. To build such cars would put a crimp in the activities of the NY and London controlled Japanese banks recently acquired by allied conquest during WW II. The Japs don't own their own banks - they lost the war - remember?

AF MARKINGS on US planes now cannot be detected at 100 yards. All US military aircraft and helicopters now appear unidentifiable as to nationality. This was true at the last 8 airports I visited in my travels. One can be attacked by either US, USSR, or Japanese aircraft and not know from the markings what nationality was responsible. This is what one would expect if one government ruled all.

NOTICE - CLIPPERS

Readers: I need your help.

As most know, I am writing a book on the "Phineas Priesthood". My research has uncovered the interesting fact that the only time Westerners have been successful against assailants is by adopting their method of warfare. For example, American Indian fighters wore buckskins, moccasins, carried tomahawks, ambushed, and Indian-style, fought men, women and children indiscriminantly.

The News this last month reported that muslims took 19 Western hostages for bargaining purposes. The Israeli's kidnaped an Arab from a neutral country "for questioning." An Arab woman was found "hacked to death in an alley" because she cohabited with Israelis. (The Koran, as does The Law, forbids this [Numbers 25]. It is a capital crime to both religions.)

Israeli instructors showed Colombians how to attack small groups with machine-gun fire from passing autos. There were 4 reported bombings - two car bombs, one aircraft, and one antipersonnel.

Unsuccessful Islamic attacks against Israeli's are reported, just as unsuccessful armored car and bank robberies in this country are reported. The others are censored from view. Therefore, SUCCESSFUL attacks and robberies are NEWS.

This violence constitutes a new form of undeclared warfare. It all sounds strange to our ears. However, we must learn the new way to cope. After all "He showed his word unto Jacob, his statutes and his judgments unto Israel. He hath not dealt so with any nation: and as for his judgments, they have not known them. Ps 147:19-20. Strangers don't know our Law, are not covered by the Law, and only recognize their own law. It must be discovered what law it is that they are using.

It would be appreciated that for the next 30 days readers would clip news items pertaining to this sort of seemingly senseless warfare, and mail them to this address. Thanks.

Chapter 183

COMMUNIST AGENTS DISSOLVE SYNDICATE

Research the land. Whoever holds or controls your land is the guilty party. The struggle for this prize is the reason for almost every war - religious or political - for the past thousand years.

To determine whom we can thank for most of today's problems, we must look into history to see who owned the land in the past and who owns it now. A quick glance will uncover four interested parties. They are:

- 1) ORGANIZED RELIGION: Organized religion obtained one-third of the land belonging to the people for praying their souls out of Purgatory.
- 2) THE KING: The king, or by whatever name the ruler is called, got one-third of the land by employing official usurers as his exclusive, personal agents.

- 3) INTERNATIONAL FINANCE: The international financiers got their portion by manipulating the first two and stealing from the fourth.
- 4) THE PEOPLE: The people, whose land it was and whose land it is, are forced to declare themselves for one of the above competing parties and to hoist the colors of religion, state, or finance instead of their own. In the clash between the contending parties the people are required to furnish the blood, and receive agony, suffering, and slavery for pay.

1 - Organized Religion

Organized religion owned one-third of all the land and one half of all money in the nations of the West.

As spiritual guardian of the souls of the people, organized religion told Christians that when they died their souls would go to a place called Purgatory. This place is somewhere between heaven and hell. A soul stayed there for a length of time depending on the enormity of his sins while alive on earth. A soul could remain in Purgatory for centuries.

The people were also told that the prayers of the righteous could help get these souls out of that place, but these prayers might take many years. It required someone who could be faithfully counted on to stay around for as long as it took. Fortunately, help was close by. All agreed that there were none more righteous than churchmen, and the church, being eternal, could be counted on to be around forever. The food and shelter for those presenting the prayers were expensive. To defray this cost and to make sure the prayer work went forward, a great many of the devout agreed to give their estates to the church upon their deaths. In this manner the church guaranteed the prayers so that the souls could be released from Purgatory. The church received much property in return.

In Britain, one-third of the land and one-half the floating money accrued to the church. The same was true in France, Spain, Italy, Germany and Russia.

The supervision and direction of these enormous holdings required tens of thousands of administrators in addition to the usual cardinals, abbots, and priests. The church was very rich and very, very powerful.

2 - The King

The king was elected to office to lead in war and arbitrate differences in peace. Justice itself was dispensed by peers according to the ancient law of Ten Commandments that brooked no change.

A new king, William the Conqueror, arrived. To raise revenues, he brought international bankers with him. The Jewish Ecyclopedia, England, p. 161 states "William of Malmesbury (Gesta Rerum Anglorum," ed. Duffy, p. 500) distinctly states that William the Conqueror brought the Jews from Rouen to England." This was necessary because Christians cannot tax Christians; but they may tax strangers.[1] These international bankers, being strangers were not covered by the Law,[2] and could therefore lend to Christians at usury, and could take their estates when usury forced them to bankruptcy.

1 LAW: "Of whom do the kings of the earth take custom or tribute? of their own children, or of strangers? Peter saith unto him, Of strangers." (Gr: allotrios - foreign, not akin.) ... Then are the children free." Math 17:25-26.

2 LAW: "He showed his word unto Jacob, his statutes and his judgments unto Israel. He hath not dealt so with any nation: and as for his judgments, they have not known them." Ps 147:19-20

The king received one-half of everything taken in this manner. When the lender died, ALL of his goods obtained by usury went to the king.

The king's wealth grew by leaps and bounds. So also did the wealth of the bankers. The J/E, England, p. 162 further states; "As early as 1168 ... the value of the personal property of the Jews was regarded as one-fourth that of the whole country." This remarkable feat was accomplished in a short 102 years from the time of their arrival.

To keep from having everything gotten by usury seized by the king, many usurers learned the advantages of concealment and secrecy. They learned to drop out of sight by adopting the appearance, manners, and customs of the English. They were virtually undetected. The English landowner was not necessarily English.

The well established and wealthy religion of England found an economic competitor in the king's agents. Land that would in time have accrued to the church went to the king instead by way of his usury agents. To remove this competition the church instituted a campaign to convert the heathen to Christianity.[3] The king retaliated by ruling that the property of any usurer who converted to Christianity would be confiscated immediately. In this way bankers who converted were punished and reduced to beggars. This was to discourage conversions and keep usurers working as the

3 "Go ye therefore and teach all nations ("I am sent but to the lost sheep of the house of Israel." Math 15:24.), teaching them whatsoever things I have commanded you ("A bastard (mixedbreed) shall not enter into the congregation of the Lord." De 23:2), baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." Math 28:18-19

4 "If any man that is a brother be ... an extortioner; with such a one, no not to eat." I Cor 5:11

king's agents.[5] Other actions by organized religion to discourage the activities of the king's agents are related in the Jewish Encyclopedia in the article on England, p. 166, which states:

> (The) "Synod of Exeter in 1287, (forbade) commensality (eating together)[6] between Jews and Christians, and against Jews holding public office[7], or having Christian servants,[8] ... and denied to Jews entrance into churches[9] No 1:51."

These efforts of the church to enforce God's Law paid off. In the face of these church pronouncements few people would have anything to do with the usurers, and, as a consequence, their receipts dropped. Then, too, the king, by utilizing the usury route, had gotten almost all the land that he was going to get from the people. So, in 1290, the king - defender of the faith - determined to obey the sacred scriptures and please the church and the people all at the same time. King Richard I issued a decree that his usury bankers be banished from England. It is noteworthy that

6 "If any man that is a brother be ... an extortioner; with such a one, no not to eat." 1 Cor 5:11

7 "Thou shalt in any wise set him king over thee .. from among thy brethren ... thou mayest not set a stranger (Heb: nokriiy - foreign, adultrious.) over thee, which is not thy brother. De 17:15

8 Ibid

9 *(1) "There shall no stranger eat of the holy thing." Lev. 22:10. (2) "When the tabernacle is to be pitched ... the stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death." during the disagreements between the king and church that the church never charged the king with introducing a stumbling block in the path of his people. (1) "Let us not ... put a stumbling block or an occasion to fall in his brother's way." Romans 14:13. Perhaps they did not want to voice too loudly the punishment required (2) "If a false witness rise up ... ye are to do unto him, as he had thought to have done unto his brother." Deu 19:16-17. Such talk might have been embarrassing, and also might be construed by the king as treason.

3 - The Usury Bankers

The usurers had initially been brought to England to gather wealth for their master, the king, by using the usury system that the king's Christian faith forbade him to use. They had served their purpose and had been discarded.

Their history from this time revolves about their attempt to re-enter England and re-establish the usury practices that had proved so profitable before, without however, the hindrances and restrictions formerly present.

At the time of their attempted re-entry in the early 1600s, the land situation in England (and the rest of Europe) was, as has been related, one third belonged to the king, one third to the church, and one third or less still remained in the hands of the people.

The days of the 1300s had gone when "a laborer could provide all the necessities for his family for a year by working only 14 weeks." There was little land left to the people on which they could make a living.

The bankers' effort to enter Britain was at last successful. It was done by buying a king of their own. Past English rulers had been most unsympathetic to entry pleas, so the bankers gained entry by backing a competitor and financing a war so that he could claim the throne. It worked. As the power behind the throne they prospered more than ever before.

Since that time the bankers have extended their power by using their forbidden usury system, and financing the powerful in their struggles against each other; and by financing the king against the church, king against king, and church against church. In this way the king and the church have been weakened so that now the land that all squabbled over belongs to the bankers.

The king is now but an honorary clerk. He is crowned every four years, then retired with pay as banker controlled papers give his reign either good or bad publicity. Today's priest is nothing more than a "Dear Abby", if his ambitions haven't landed him behind bars. To keep his tax exemption he weekly denies the faith. His Sunday sermon consists of springtime, motherhood, and the latest message arriving from Babylon.

Today's kings and priests are the bankers' hirelings. They no longer contest for the people's land and are content to lick the hand that feeds them. The people look on the first two with contempt and the third with fear.

4 - The People

That leaves two contestants still in the field: 1) the usury bankers, and, 2) the people.

The usury bankers take their orders from one of their own who has the most money and power. The people also know who they are - THEY know that THEY have been appointed kings and priests:

"Ye shall be a peculiar treasure to me above all people ... ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests." Ex 19:5,6

"Jesus Christ ... hath made us kings and priests unto God and his Father; Rev 1:5,6

"Ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a pecular people." 1 Peter 9

Since they are kings they call the most powerful king among them - the King of Kings: He is their leader, commander and general. There is no appeal from his commands:

"The land shall be divided for an inheritance ... To many thou shalt give the more ... to few thou shalt give the less ... the land shall be divided by lot: according to ... their fathers they shall inherit." Num 26:53-55

"The land shall not be sold for ever: for the land is mine." Lev 25:13

They know the usury bankers and the condemnation that has been placed upon them:

"Hath given forth upon usury ... he shall surely die; his blood shall be upon him." Ezek 18:13

Cheer you newspapers! Cheer as your masters corrupt priests and kings and they are condemned and marched to jail! Cheer as your masters retire their bought judges and politicians with millionaire pensions! Cheer as the Soviet syndicate is dissolved to give its promoters the prize they paid for in 1917, and the Tzar's and the Church's land is now openly turned over to the ones who financed their execution.

Cheer and be damned!! That Russian land covered with graves that you waited so long to gather, and the land of Europe and America that you have painstakingly stolen with your wars, mortgages, and usury - you have only gathered it for those to whom it belongs.

When the King of Kings so commands, it will be taken from you and returned to those from whom it was stolen. This will happen because it has been promised, and God does not lie.

AIDS UPDATE

US: In areas where AIDS is common the infection rate of men to women approaches 1:1.

MINORITIES: Blacks or Hispanics furnish almost 40% of AIDS patients.

FLORIDA: A Miami prostitute admitted to a CBS interviewer that she had had sex with 200 men since being diagnosed as having AIDS.

MASSACHUSETTS alone reported 2400 cases of AIDS while the CDC reported only 525 cases nationwide.

COMMUNIST CHINA with the world's largest population has under a dozen AIDS cases. This supports the theory that Soviet and Chinese nationals at Ft. Detrick, Maryland gave the free world this disease (With the World Health Organizations' world wide smallpox vaccination program. Ed.)

AFRICA: Tourist travel is off 47%.

INCUBATION: HIV-2 AIDS virus can have an incubation period of 19 years.

BRITISH Journal of Surgery reported that at the Leicester General Hospital 339 pairs of gloves were checked and 37.5% were found to be perforated. In abdominal surgery, where much is done by feel, the perforation rate was more than 70%. The reason there is no record of doctors infecting patients is the lengthy incubation period.

Your Clippings In Review

The rampant anti-Christianism shown by almost countless individual physical attacks on our people by Blacks and Hispanics nationwide, and the virulent aiding and abetting by the media is shown in the following stories. Individually the storis are just tragic. Together they reveal a new type of warfare.

Historically, American successes have commenced only after failure identifies which enemy tactics are successful, and these successful enemy tactics become incorporated to form new and better tactics.

•MIDDLE EAST: OCCUPIED EAST BANK: Islamic gangs have switched their efforts to assassination of Arabs collaborating with Israelis. This includes officials and prostitutes. (ED: Collaborators present very vulnerable targets.) •PALESTINE: The killings of women and children continue but much of the media has stopped reporting them. •IRAN responded to the American president's executive order allowing the CIA to invade their nation and kidnap their citizens with an identical order of their own to do the same in the US. The arresting officer may be from the ends of the world. Presidential executive orders used to promote only lawlessness, now they promote chaos. •JORDAN: King Hussein's effort to have women elected in his "free" elections was smothered when a female slate of candidates was voted down and a slate of hard line fundamentalists elected in their stead. The Arabs believe that a woman's place is in the tent. •ALGERIA: Kadafy announced that he has stopped supplying weapons to revolutionists. He is doing it to promote establishment-ordered world wide "glasnost". This, plus his personal cowardice (seldom seen in true followers of Islam) following the American air attack that killed his daughter, brands him as only a probable establishment agent, an Arab conduit (the counterpart of the Israeli conduit) for weapons and money fueling world wide revolutionary movements. •EGYPT is holding a trial of 20 members of a group called "Egypt's Revolution." The group has carried out 4 attacks on American and Israeli diplomats between 1984 and 1987 leading to the death of two Israelis, wounding six others and two Americans. The leader, being tried in absencia, is Kamal Abdel Nasser, son of the late President Nasser who was shot down by Shiite Moslems for being soft on Zionism. Included are sons of a former vice-president, a former prime minister and a nephew of President Nasser. The trial is immensely unpopular in Egypt. The defense states that the victims were all either CIA or Mossad (Israeli secret service), and that "Egyptians have got the right, as any Arabs, to defend themselves as one nation in any part of the Arab world." This is the Islamic Shiite mentality in action, and those accused represent the cream of Egyptian society. America's large Islamic population is riddled with Shiites.

EUROPE: IRELAND - IRA acts are front page. In Lisburn, Northern Ireland, a bomb planted under the car of a police officer exploded and killed him. The N. Irish retaliated 12 hours later by shooting and throwing a grenade at a Sinn Fein lawyer. Three hours after this the IRA shot and killed an Irish collaborator. Elsewhere, IRA bombs killed 10 British soldiers in England. •WEST GERMANY:

The IRA shot and killed an RAF British airman and his 6 year old daughter. He was an Indian. •PORTUGAL: Lisbon - Skinheads fatally stabbed a liberal left wing member of the Socialist Revolutionary Party. (This spontaneous anti- establishment youth movement is now world wide.).

BRITAIN's newspapers complain about the growth in Britain of the Hong Kong and Taiwan TRIAD - a secret criminal gambling, loan shark, extortion and world-wide drug gang which traces its ancestry back into the 1600s; the YARDIES, the United Kingdom counterpart of Jamaican gangsters known in America as Posses, dealing in heroin, cocaine, marijuana, smuggling, and arms, and, MAFIA - style gang groups: all closely knit, murderous, and extremely wealthy. Such groups quickly form wherever groups of strangers gather. It is their lawless counterpart to the Lawful Phineas Priesthood. •BELGIUM: - A top Jewish leader was killed by a single shot to the head at close range. No one claimed responsibility. He had Muslim as well as Jewish enemies. •FRANCE: - Three burly armed anti-Christian assassins attempted to beat to death the slightly built elderly French scholar, Dr. Robert Faurisson, the man who initially exposed the six million fraud. The attempt was narrowly thwarted by local fishermen. Badly beaten, he remains in a hospital with broken bones. A French monthly which reported the story was blown up by a Jewish terrorist group calling itself the "Organization Juive des Combat".

LATIN AMERICA violence continues. Lima, PERU - Army troops killed 27 well-armed, well- uniformed, well-fed, Shining Path Maoist guerrillas, who were bountifully supplied with money. This movement has killed 120 mayors, candidates, and local officers this year while many others have resigned because of threats. These uniformed guerrillas entered a University in Ayacucho and blew up buildings. In Huacho a car bomb exploded downtown causing casualties. Government sources say that 15,000 people have been killed thus far. •SAN SALVADOR: A 23 year old daughter of a government military officer was shot. Retaliation immediately followed with a bomb demolishing the home of a left wing politician and grenades were thrown at another. A Lutheran Church, accused of favoring the revolutionists, was bombed. A bomb in return wrecked a pro-government union hall killing 10 and wounding 29, including 2 Americans. Six JESUIT PRIESTS were shot. Government hit squads were accused. The Government earlier confiscated church lands amounting to 40% of the total land area. Communist rebels have promised to return this land to the church in return for church support against the government. This is presumed to be the reason that Catholic Priests are stirring up revolution and are shot for doing so. •VENEZUELA: At San Cristobal five national guardsmen on patrol were killed when a bomb exploded under their truck.

ORIENT: Taiwan - A new supersonic fighter plane burst a tire and skidded off the runway on its first public test flight. This fighter plane is a first, an establishment authorized and ordered plane built entirely of parts made in Taiwan. At present, no U.S. plane can be manufactured of parts made entirely in the U.S.. Taiwan can now do something that the U.S. cannot do. This is ominous.

UNITED STATES: VIRGINIA: Newspapers announce that more than a dozen journalists have been killed or injured in recent months in Eastern Europe, and Latin America. The Israelis complain that unfriendly newsmen commit acts of war the same as enemy soldiers and have banned them from sensitive areas. S. Africa objected to their misrepresentations and now controls them. Other peoples, unable to control them, simply kill them. This is the first time that newsmen have been treated as combatants and are being held accountable for their writings. •CALIFORNIA: Los Angeles - America's intellectually bankrupt liberals now have syndicated a JESSE JACKSON column to further humiliate their publications. •MASSACHUSETTS: Boston - a Black, 6 ft. tall, 30 years of age - forced entry into a white vehicle and shot the family. The local media says the Black community is indignant that attention is called to the event. MINNESOTA: Minneapolis - Black gang attacks on individual White males. The Whites were beaten with bottles and other objects. Some hospitalized with broken bones. •MISSISSIPPI: Pascagoula - a "salt and pepper" burglar team gunned down by an armed property owner. (Large numbers of renegade teams last seen in the 1870s before the backlash started.) •ALABAMA Tuscaloosa - U. of Alabama students were condemned by their Faculty Senate for booing a Black homecoming queen and for flying Confederate flags. MICHIGAN: East Lansing - 6000 students engaged in what the papers called racial rowdiness. It was noted that for the first time attacks by Whites against Blacks seem to be on the rise. •ALABAMA: Adamsville - A suburban Birmingham high school principal and a student were knifed in a racial brawl which occurred at the end of a meeting held to discuss the continuous racial conflict in the school. •NEW YORK: Three Jewish students were set upon by 20 youths as they were leaving a Jewish Student Center at Brooklyn College. The race of the attackers was censored. •MICHIGAN: Detroit - 30,000 firefighters fought 460 arson fires set on one night. Most were set in Black areas. This arson effort takes place every year on Devil's Night before Halloween.

EDITOR: In America, the media spotlights the faults of the victims, ignores the attackers' guilt, and campaigns to disarm the lawful population. This makes them the #2 enemy of law and order. The refusal of the state-approved tax exempt priesthood to teach the Law makes them #3, and strangers who commit most of the crimes a poor #4. The usual whipping boy, the politicians, aren't in the running. They earn their fat paychecks by taking the blame of others and turning a blind eye.

The root is money. Violent IRA operations, British gang warfare, Central and South American arms deals, and American drug operations generate billions. A skilled investigator could trace these massive transfers of money to their destination in a single afternoon. That's why it isn't done.

UNFILTERED NEWS

GOLD is rapidly advancing because of a call to make the ruble "gold convertible". If done, this would stop the yearly sale of between 100-200 tons of Soviet gold on world markets, tending to create a shortage.

Until now inflation has been measured by comparing the inflation of all the world usury-created currencies against each other. They all are inflating by approximately the same amount. This causes the comparison scale to rise together and be relatively unnoticed.

A ruble, convertible 1 for 1, would create a stable yardstick. All other fluctuating yardsticks would suffer. The government of the USSR has no internal debt and relatively little private debt. Our public and private debt is $9.6 trillion.

An actual gold-convertible ruble could theoretically demolish the dollar in time by forcing a comparison.

Practically, gold can inflate only as much as the fed allows dollars to be borrowed into existence to buy rubles or gold. It's quite a balancing act. However, this is certain, all usury- based economies are doomed in the long run. One cannot lend $10 for $11 when only $10 exists without having problems.

THE JAPANESE PURCHASE as much as 10% of new US Fannie May and Freddie Mac securities. (WSJ 11/1/89, C-1.)

JAPANESE investors bought 80,000 acre Selkirk Ranch in Montana. The rush to establish a cattle industry in the western US is just beginning. A group of Japanese purchased another large ranch north of San Diego and is planning to put 200,000 head of cattle on it. They are also buying feedlots and meatpacking plants - essentially an entire production system.

GERMAN REUNIFICATION: The Bush administration worries that an "early and dangerous" German reunification would detract from the planned 1992 economic integration of Europe. WSJ 11/8/89

SECESSION: The USSR's Georgia may be allowed to vote on a referendum to determine whether or not it wishes to withdraw from the USSR. If the communists can do it, it must be OK. Save your Confederate money!

LIFE WITH THE STRANGER: "During a 24-hour period New York recorded 11 homicides, three suspicious

deaths, one justifiable slaying and three other assaults that may yet become homicides." Daily News, Oct 13, 1989

AMERICAN JUSTICE: "How about Jimmy the Preach getting the book thrown at him by 'Maximum Bob', the fed judge in NC! Ivan Boesky ripped off the sheep for far more millions but he had a decent judge. Zsa Zsa slaps a cop's face and gets 3 days! Imagine Suzy Smith doing the same? 3 years is more likely. Who truly believes that there is any justice in the Oo-Ess-Ay!" *Fafnir*l, PO Box 331, Cohoctah, MI 48816

HOLOHOAX STORIES from Nurnberg used as evidence to execute hundreds of German Christians are almost all contained in the book Made In Russia, by Carlos W. Porter. Stories such as "20,000 Jews vaporized" in a secret atomic experiment near Auschwitz, 840,000 Soviet POW's killed by a pedal-driven brain bashing machine, and then cremated in mobile ovens on wheels, shrunken heads, lampshades, human soap. These and many more are related in the sworn and solemn statements presented by American, British, French, and Soviet prosecutors. It is unbelievable that one can read such tripe in this day and age. (Available from The Institute for Historical Review, 1822 1/2 Newport Blvd,, Suite 191, Costa Mesa, CA 92627.

"If a false witness rise up ... Then shall ye to unto him, as he had thought to have done unto his brother." Deu 19:16- 17.

A great many Christians have been executed on the basis of these stories used as testimony at trials. Courts and juries should be reconvened and the credibility of the witnesses telling such stories examined. If they have lied, the Law dealing with false witnesses should be enforced and, in addition, compensation paid to the families of those unjustly harmed.

BUYOUT: The offer to buy The Jerusalem Post came from Australian Richard Pratt, from the US - Aryeh Genger and Mortimer Zuckerman of the US News and World Report, Englishman - Robert Maxwell of the Mirror Group Newspapers, and Canadian - Charles Bronfman of the Claridge Investment Group. (Dow Jones Tape, 7:50 AM, 4-26-89.)

JUSTICE: "A prominent Miami businessman must pay $5.5 million to a restauranteur forced out of business through the businessman ... accusing the restaurant owner of anti-Semitism, an appeals court says." St Louis Post Dispatch, 3-17-89.

GETTING THE LOOT?

DAVID & GOLIATH

"There went out a champion out of the camp of the Philistines named Goliath ... whose height was six cubits (from elbow to fingertip) and a span (hand span)...

"And the Philistine said, I defy the armies of Israel ...

"And David(s) ... sling was in his hand ... And the Philistine cursed David by his gods. ...

"Then said David ... I come to thee in the name of the Lord of hosts, the God of the armies of Israel, whom thou hast defied. ... And David ... took ... a stone, and slang it, and smote the Philistine in his forehead, that the stone sunk into his forehead; and he fell on his face ... and when the Philistines saw their champion was dead, they fled ...

"And the children of Israel ... spoiled their tents." I Sam 17:1-53

One is not allowed to spoil ones kinsmen, when captive, or when killed in battle, because one deals with kinsmen by kinsmen's laws,[1] but one must deal with strangers according to the stranger's own laws because they respect no other. Their law states; "To the victor belongs the spoil."

Today, the Israeli media proclaims that Arab land claimed by the Arabs for more than 1000 years is now Israeli by right of conquest. Arab cities, towns, stores, farms, and homes - with all their contents, now belong to the Zionists who spill the blood of Arab men, women and recently - especially children - whenever they consider it necessary to defend their spoil.

Allah, the god of the Arabs, in turn promises paradise and wealth to the followers of Islam who die to regain this land and spread the faith. The Arab who can take a spoil from the Israeli or Christian may keep it. If he fails and dies in the attempt, he wins Paradise. It is a win/win situation. It is the best offer that many an impoverished Arab living on subsistence fare in a forsaken desert refugee camp has ever had. He feels he has no choice.

Who is foolish enough to expect the Christian to not see, and not learn that what works for the Arab and the Jew will work for him. Sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander - especially when the stakes are high.

1 "He showed his word unto Jacob, his statutes and his judgments unto Israel. He hath not dealt so with any nation: and as for his judgments, they have not known them." Ps 147:19- 20

The King

The Saxon lost his land when the king took 1/3 of it by confiscating the land of rebellious subjects and by daring God by dealing in the capital offense of usury.[2] Forbidden by Law to directly lend at interest to his own kind, he brought in strangers who were usury bankers to lend money to his own people and bring them into bankruptcy.[3] He took half of what the strangers foreclosed and the banker took half. In 102 years the bankers owned 1/5 of all England. In 1290 the King banished his bankers and took all their foreclosed land for himself. The Saxon warrior became a serf on his own land which was now owned by a Lawless kinsman who was king.

The Church's Land

The king's chief competitor was the church. The church got 1/3 of the people's land by persuading the people to bequeath their land to the church upon their deaths in exchange for praying their souls out of purgatory. To keep the spoil the church had to forbid the Saxon to read the Law. The church burned people who did. The church owned 1/3 and king owned 1/3 of that which had belonged to the people.

2 "Hath given forth upon usury ... he shall surely die. " Ezek 18:13

3 (1) "Can two walk together, except they be agreed." Amos 3:3, (2) "If thou has stricken thy hand with a stranger (Heb: zûwr - racial alien) thou art snared." Pr. 6:1, (3) "They shall not dwell in thy land, lest they make thee sin against me." I Ki 4:21

The Church & King Combine

The king grew envious of the church's spoil and deposed the head of the church making himself its head, thereby combining his own 1/3 of the land with the church's 1/3, which now allowed him to own 2/3s of the people's land. The king was now not only king and god's representative on earth, but he was the largest land owner. Almost everyone else was either a serf working on the king's estates or an overseer (nobleman) who saw to it that the work was done.

The king also forbade Saxons to read the Bible to keep them from learning that the king was transgressing God's monopoly Law by owning all this land.[4] He too burned people for snooping around in the scriptures to discover things that they shouldn't discover. Wycliffe, who translated the Bible into English, was caught and burned by the king. Others were too. It is an historical fact that all of the early Bibles had to be printed by individuals without any ecclesiastical, royal, or public help, since the establishment of the day was united to keep the people from learning The Word.

The Geneva "Breeches" Bible, filled with the margin notes of the early reformers pointing out the king's and church's transgressions in detail, was smuggled into the land. It was dangerous, divisive, and the king punished any who bought it. But that did not stop it. It was bought and carefully hidden in every household.

To combat this "pernicious merchandise" he introduced a "Bishop's Bible" of his own which left out the reformer's margin notes. The Bishop's Bible was ignored. The Geneva Bible still reigned supreme. The next attempt was a revision of the Bishop's Bible called the King James Bible. This time, it worked. The Geneva Bible was made hard to get and the King James version easy, so the King's "authorized" version became the new standard. For individuals to own it instead of the Geneva Bible kept the king's equivalent of the FBI and IRS off one's back, and it deprived the people of the reformer's notes which was upsetting to the establishment. People forget, the KJ version was introduced to replace the Geneva Bible and help keep the Saxon from getting excited about "his rights" and to stay in his place.

Reading the Bible at all was the Saxon's first obstacle. Which Bible to read was the next. While the powerful king and his subjects argued, a thief entered by the side door and stole the prize. What prize? The great spoil that made Bible suppression necessary - the king's 2/3s of England's land.

The Banker's Land

The king had used and then banished the bankers after first stripping them of the property they had looted by usury banking. The bankers had no love for the king but they did for his immense wealth.

The current king forbade the bankers' return. He didn't need another competitor for his land, so, the bankers hired a pretender to the king's throne and hired armies so that he could take the throne. The old king toppled, his overseer-nobles and loyal serf yeomen were banished to America where they could do little harm in the wilderness, and the new banker's king took over and ruled for his masters. Now, the bankers had both the king's land and the land of the banished refugees.

The new king looked English, spoke English, and acted English, so he was accepted. But, he too was just a hired overseer. The bankers now owned and controlled Britain. The king was their royal spokesman.

Gathering Still More Spoil

In 1780, 173 years after America's settlement, and 100 years after both the supporters and enemies of the old king had been banished to America, the first usury bank was established in America. Unopposed, the system rapidly spread like a cancer. In a short while its operators took America's land and also control of the media. "True information and knowledge is the key to successful democratic rule." Media control controls men's thoughts, and this automatically controls his political apparatus.

A great war was promoted to dispossess wholesale landowner holdouts in the South. Former freemen were moved to town to work for one of the many banker owned or controlled industries. Other establishment wars dispossessed other Saxons in other lands. They, too, lost their land and moved to town. The landless Saxon was now on the establishment's payroll and must behave if he were to eat.

What A Saxon Today Endures

Matters have progressed as the ancient sages predicted. All Saxons now hold their hats in their hand. Many are in rags. Their foreclosed houses are bundled together and sold in lots by the FHA. A check of the campgrounds this winter will uncover descendants of Saxon sea-rovers sleeping in cars with their families.

To gain cheap labor and reliable voters the establishment floods the land with still more strangers. The Saxon, who cannot afford to send his children to a safe school or live in a safe neighborhood, is still judged rich enough to pay tribute to support these aliens. All the while the masters and their overseers flaunt their wealth on every hand. The Saxon loses his modest home while great homes and buildings are built with usury money. In Virginia, money barons live on thousands of lush bluegrass acres while former bankrupted owners till the soil for them, mow the grass, and tend their herds of sheep.

The Saxon Spur

To the onlooker, all seems hopeless but for one thing. The masters' greed has overdone it. He has it all. He has the church's land, the king's land, and the people's land - and still he doesn't have enough. He must grasp the last penny. He now finds he can make greater profit and gather even greater wealth with lower cost by firing Saxon workers and moving the industries that employed him to other lands. Entire Western industries are leaving. There are educated and skilled Saxons who now feel fortunate to find janitorial jobs to support their families. One may meet an electronics engineer with a Ph.D mopping floors at an airport. There is nothing else for him - almost.

The Saxon's Example

The Saxon sees! If the god of the Jews can approve of their invading another's land, and keeping it in the face of world opinion: if they can shoot down Arab women and children and stoutly maintain that it is their god given right to do so: If they can go to foreign countries and kidnap those whom they claim have harmed them, try, confiscate, and execute them: if they can flaunt Christian Law in the Christian nations in which they live and trade: if they can order their agents in foreign lands to send them reparations from those nations, and;

If Allah can tell Arabs to kill their own people who fraternize with Israelis, if he promises them paradise and spoil for resisting the infidel; does the Christian God promise the Saxon less?

How long can one expect it to take before six men at a time gather at brass altars with drawn weapons?

> "Cause them that have charge ... to draw near, even every man with his destroying weapon ... six men come ... and one man . . . with a writer's inkhorn at his side: and they went in and stood beside the brazen altar ... And to the others he said ... Go ye ... and smite: ... and begin at my sanctuary. Then they began at the ancient men (elders) which were before the house." Ezec 9:1- 6[5]

Does one actually expect an impoverished Saxon to pass by and look over the iron fence at Goliath living unpunished in his mansion, one who is known to have committed capital crimes against God, and yet securely lives on Saxon land and feasts on Saxon wealth? Unpunished crimes are the thing that the Word says brings God's curse on all the people

Luke 22:36, (4) "But if ye will not ... do all these commandments ... ye shall sow your seed in vain, for your enemies shall eat it ... they that hate you shall reign over you ... I will send wild beasts among you which shall rob you of your children ... and make you few in number ... I will bring a sword upon you ... I will send the pestilence among you; ... I will ... cast your carcasses upon the carcasses of your idols ... And I will make your cities waste ... And I will bring the land into desolation." Lev 26:14-35* of the land - the Saxon included.[7] Will not he believe the Word when it says that the removal of the guilty will remove God's curse?[8] Will not the son of Isaac ask why David should pull the plow while David has a sling and a rock? Will not Goliath tell David where the wealth is hidden with a sword pressed to his throat? Do not Goliath's chariots transport wealth daily on the byways and his counting houses hold vast sums? Does not this wealth mount beyond measure to the sky?

To hungry abused men the prey seems so vulnerable, especially men whose Viking grandfathers made their living by desperate ventures.

'Til now, all that has kept David's descendants from climbing the iron fence and spoiling Goliath are Bible stories told by establishment tax-exempt priests who are made tax-exempt for telling the stories. They say that God's Law has been done away. Then, hunger pangs strike and the Saxon reads the Word himself. What he sees are not the words of Goliath's priests.

A fool can see that Goliath is king. His horsemen gallop into the countryside shouting Park Avenue slogans and publish new proclamations on every tree. Instant obedience is required. A lone cry of defiance immediately attracts troops of armored, warlike minions who quickly liquidate the rebel. His overseer-governors, and overseer-judges are busy, the gavels rise and fall, the prisons are full. The overseers speak for their master and their word is law.

The Saxon now finds himself in the same place that the Jew and the Arab find themselves. The god of the Jews tells them that they are justified. The god of the Arabs tells them that they are justified. The God of the Saxon tells him that he is justified.

The people's land that was taken and combined into the king's land and the church's land, is now combined into the bankers' land. All the jealousy, fear, hate, anguish, and frustration that in the past was directed against the king and the church now goes with those who possess this monopoly.

With history to guide, and the present example of both Jew and Arab to instruct, it is possible to predict that the following will inevitably come to pass as sure as day follows night:

The Saxon Dawn

The rivers of Tidewater Virginia are immense. Near Hoskins Creek, seventy miles from the bay, the Rappahannock River is a mile and a half wide. Lower, it is seven miles wide and hard to see across. This is the river on whose banks my forefathers have lived for ten generations. As mountains are to some - this great river is to my people. As a young man, I launched a sailboat in the dead of night out into this river where great men-of-war once sailed. I followed their bearings down the river. The elements caught my sailboat, the ebbing tide rushed strongly in the channel, and the wind from starboard stung my face. By dawn I had sailed into the great Chesapeake. It was glorious. I had sailed the very waters the ironclads had sailed, the tall masted men-of-war, ship's longboats and canoes. For a moment I felt a part of history. In mind's eye I passed on through the great Hampton Roads with its scores of ships lying at anchor, and sailed on into the Atlantic mist.

Sometimes, very early in the morning before the sun rises, the fog hangs low on the ocean. The water is glassy, silent. Not a sound nor a ripple. The familiar sound of the buoy bell and gull are gone. A fog envelopes everything. All is still.

The sailboat had become a grandfather's narrow dragonship - inching soundlessly through the damp fog. Touching the sand bottom forty feet from the beach it quietly ground to a stop. Virginia's mornings can be cold when the fog is heavy. One can touch bottom and hardly see the shore.

Quietly, so as not to make a sound, a leg reaches over the gunnel and sinks into the cold water. The water sends an electric shock through the body. The other leg follows, and both sink into the cold black water. It comes to the thighs, and then to the belt. Standing on tiptoes on the sandy bottom to keep the cold water from rising higher only delays the inevitable. One wishes to be somewhere else - anywhere else. But hunger is master here.

Reaching back into the boat the helmet is cold, wet, and heavy. The great round shield from the side of the boat is next. It too is cold and wet with condensation.

Then, reaching back into the boat the Saxon lifts his ax, balances it, and, taking a deep breath starts to wade to shore. It is time to go to work to feed himself and his family. There is much wrong in the land that must be righted, the table is spread, and the pay is good.

The former engineer looks at his watch, rests his mop against the wall and goes to the restroom. A short while later he emerges in a three piece suit and a briefcase. He too is going to work.[9]

Both believe as their crusader fathers believed before them -

"God wills it!"

THE KING IS DEAD LONG LIVE THE KING!

On November 30, 1989, Alfred Herrhausen, 59, the powerful chairman of West Germany's largest bank, the Deutsche Bank, died in an explosion in an affluent Frankfurt suburb.

The Wall Street Journal in its main article on Dec. 1st said said, "Mr. Herrhausen, the architect of the Deutche Bank's recent expansion in Europe, Asia and the U.S., was ... considered more powerful than his peers in any other country." It went on to say that he "was the personal economic adviser to W. German Chancellor Helmut Kohl," and "Robert Hormats, vice- chairman of Goldman Sachs International, said he was due to have dinner with the 59-year-old Mr. Herrhausen on Monday night in New York." ... "The impact of his assassination is no less than that of a European head of State.' says Mr. Hormats ... 'If there was a voice in Europe that was listened to, it was his.'"

9 (1) "They shall spoil those that spoiled them, and rob those that robbed them, saith the Lord God." Eze 39:10, (2) "Take ye the spoil of silver, take the spoil of gold." Nahum 2:9, (3) "They shall spoil them of the east together: they shall lay their hand upon Edom and Moab." Isa 11:14, (4) "All the cattle, and the spoil of the cites, we took for a prey to ourselves." De 3:7

Herrhousen, completely unknown to the man on the street, was a household name within the ruling clique. World rulers ruling behind the scenes are always unknown until they die. Otherwise, their rule would not be from behind the scenes. His importance was spotlighted by 60 column inches in the Wall Street Journal. War declarations and the deaths of kings and national rulers seldom receive that much press. TV and radio announcements continued every 15 minutes announcing his passing. Parades were held in Germany in his memory.

The one who was dead was very obviously a king.

The first story appearing immediately after his death was that a simple bicyclist with an attached bazooka rocket allowed the escorting car of bodyguards to pass then pointed his bike at Herrhousen's bullet proof car and fired. The missile hit the door next to the banker, piercing the armor, and killed him instantly while sparing his driver.

However it was done, it may be assumed that the group responsible in selecting this important but unknown target from a mass of faceless unknowns is very well informed, both as to their target's station in this world and his movements.

Political violence in Western European countries is almost always blamed on Red Brigades. To do otherwise would be to admit discontent.

It is quite plausible that SOME violent acts are committed by individuals who adhere to communists ideology, but to credit communist violence against Western international bankers to Red Brigades, as is presently being done - stretches credibility. If the communists ever attacked their creator and sugar daddy, the bankers would stop their grants, loans, subsidized grain shipments, new steel mills, chemical plants, auto plants, electronics, computers, the latest weapons, fighter planes, space shuttles, etc. in a minute, and communism would die. No one bites the hand that feeds them. These Red Brigades appear to be routinely given credit for acts that would be embarrassing if attributed to others.

Note the other targets the media improbably attributes to the "Red Brigades":

• July 1977 - Juergen Ponto, chief executive officer of the Dresdner Bank, shot by three assailants;

September 1977 - Hanns-Martin Schleyer, principal spokesman of an association of high ranking corporate leaders - kidnaped and later killed;

• February 1985 - Arms industry executive Ernst Zimmermann - shot.

July 1986 - Siemens executive Karl Heinz Beckurts - killed by a bomb.

October 1986 - Gerold von Braunmuehl, Senior W. German diplomat - shot.

• Now, November 1989 - Alfred Herrhausen, chief executive officer of W. Germany's largest bank - killed probably by rocket.

It could be that there is a group made up of those who do not look with favor on the last dozen or so wars with their tens of millions of dead, each financed by the international usury- bankers:[10] It may be that some have realized that all financing, for right wing and left wing causes, must come from this group. It can come from nowhere else. It may be that such a group is bypassing the smaller fry street activists, politicians, judges, and establishment spokesmen to hit what they consider the soulless monsters responsible - usury-banking, and will not stop their crusade as long as a single one of them lives or any of the group they have chosen for their target lives.

10 "Hath given forth upon usury ... he shall surely die." Ezek 18:13

We shall doubtless hear more of these nameless ones whose actions speak louder than their words and who are wreaking such havoc in the ranks of the world's rulers.

Federal Judge Assassinated

The bombing incidents reached front page with the arrival of the 4th bomb. One of the deceased was 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Judge Robert S. Vance, known as a militant anti-White integrationist. He was widely hailed as being instrumental in helping Blacks to gain control of Alabama's Democratic Party. The establishment is shocked by his sudden demise and expressions of outrage and sympathy were made by the governor and others. The media speculates that drug lords are to blame.

Also killed by a bomb was a Black integrationist lawyer. Two other bombs were disarmed. Another judge in Maryland was badly wounded by a bomb.

NOTE: This regrettable outbreak of violence was predictable. American citizens have lost control of the ballot to special interest groups, are often directly ruled by Federal judges (who, have not been held accountable for their acts), are unmercifully taxed, and when criminally assaulted on the streets their attackers are often slapped on the wrist and released. From this misrule there has been way to appeal.

It can be further predicted with reasonable certainty, that if accountability is not soon forthcoming, that the people themselves will increasingly hold their rulers responsible for their acts, and that small flames will continue to break out one at a time until they can't be stamped out. Then the conflagration will sweep all - as it did before.

JAPANESE WHITE SLAVERY

Rev. Ed Martin is a prison evangelist. He was a missionary to Japan for 15 years and has an intimate knowledge of Japan and its people. He is alarmed by the American media routinely telling Americans that the oriental thinks as Americans do, and consequently they are allowed to get away with things that absolutely violate our Christian religion and Laws. He writes Hope Aglow Ministries Newsletter, P.O. Box 3057, Lynchburg, Virginia 24503-0057.

"My great concern at the moment is the Japanese shanghaiing pretty White American girls, taking them to Japan under the illusion of their becoming movie stars, and once there, selling them to the highest bidder. Some are sold into "White slavery", and some into the porno industry.

"The American girl brings a high price in Japan. They don't speak the Japanese language, so they are virtual slaves of the Japanese men who use them, sell and trade them.

"We go to great lengths to get our hostages out of Lebanon, but about these, our women, who are spirited-away by the Japanese and sold as chattel, nothing is done.

"These girls are our flesh and blood, our treasured possessions, naive, unsuspecting - trying to get ahead in life. At the end of the plane ride they arrive among a strange people speaking a strange language and are totally disoriented. The joy ride is over and stark reality awaits. Their destiny is sealed.

YOUR CLIPPINGS

Several hundred clippings have arrived this month from readers from all over the country. Some comment on local economic matters that in time may affect the whole country, but nine out of ten pertain to the national crime wave - or crime war. The clippings relate a few of the mind boggling numbers of crimes committed against Whites. There were 1,400,213 violent crimes committed by non-Whites against Whites in 1987. The statistics are carried in a Department of Justice publication Criminal Victimization in the U.S., 1987, and are commented on by Instauration, p. 6, December 1989.

The magnitude of this war can be measured against the Vietnam War which claimed 25,078 dead and wounded per year for as long as the war lasted. In the present race war 26,923 Whites per WEEK are killed or wounded by non-Whites. Whites don't react because the media fights for the criminals by censoring their race from the reports.

Pat Buchanan recently announced that non-White neighborhoods are 35 times more unlawful than White neighborhoods. Individual non- Whites can be found who are more lawful than Whites. Statistics, however, point out that the average non-White may be 35 times more prone to lawlessness than a White.

•ALABAMA - Montgomery: Alabama's Black NAACP president Thomas Reed intends to retain his post even though serving a four-year sentence for bribery. Reed was found guilty of accepting $10,000 to help obtain an early parole for a convicted murderer, Anthony Chesser.

•Montgomery: Morris Dees, executive director of the Southern Poverty Law Center which built a $700,000 civil rights memorial, ordered Rev. Ralph David Abernathy off the podium. Abernathy, M. L. King's right hand man and biographer, had described some of the civil rights leader's sexual exploits. Dees, who is Jewish, was displeased over such information being released to the public.

•CALIFORNIA - Los Angeles: Three unarmed white youths were attacked by Hispanic and Black gang members. All were shot in the back, one paralyzed. The LA police arrived, ignored the Black/Hispanic gang and arrested one of the White youths.

•D.C. - Black city council passed a law in black DC carrying a fine 1 1/2 times more than usual for conviction of crimes linked to victim's race, color, religion, or sexual orientation. Black DC will also provide judge and jury. DC visitors be warned. • DC: "Aliens who commit serious crimes - including murder, rape, and drug trafficking - are ... draining law-enforcement resources. ... An alien can prolong a deportation for at least a year ... During that time aliens ... commit new crimes..." St. Louis Post-Dispatch Nov 27, 89.

•FLORIDA - Jacksonville - Fla. Brad Evans, 34, One of four members of the Black Liberation Army convicted of killing two white Jacksonville teen-agers in 1974 to start a race war, has been paroled after serving only 14 1/2 years of a 199-year term. •Seventy percent of those arrested in Jacksonville on disorderly conduct charges last year were Black, while Blacks comprise 25% of the population. •Two policemen were attacked and shot by a black who was killed in return. The NAACP protested the suspect's death.

•GEORGIA - Atlanta In the past week there have been numerous attacks by black gangs on white youths. Also, eight threats aimed at biracial couples have occurred in Clayton County since April (Zimri/Cozbi Num. 25:1-8).

•US District Court Judge Duross Fitzpatrick sentenced Roger Worthy to 15 months in prison and Oscar Simpskins to six for protesting the blockbusting of their neighborhood. Blockbusting a Black into a White neighborhood is a federally protected highly profitable operation used nationwide by unscrupulous real estate operators to force Whites to sell cheaply to real-estate salesmen who resell to Blacks at substantial markups. •Atlanta: Brothers, ages 9 and 11 are charged with making terroristic threats, a felony. They burned a small cross in a blockbuster's front yard. The police lifted their fingerprints from a spray can. •Atlanta: The FBI is being criticized by Black leaders for the corruption convictions of a number of Black politicians.

•IDAHO - Des Moines: Newspapers call for a systematic investigation to see if Blacks have been kept off juries. If such is found to be true they recommended that criminals convicted by non-integrated juries be released.

•LOUISIANA - New Orleans - David Duke, the pro-White candidate who was recently elected to Louisiana's state senate without the media blessing has announced that he will run for U.S. Senate. •New Orleans - The 1891 monument built to commemorate 16 White men who died in the uprising that overthrew the Reconstruction government in 1874 is being removed. •Boca Raton: Letters to the editor protest pro-White popular songs and call them racist. One singled out for condemnation was One in a Million, which has this verse: "Immigrants and faggots, they make no sense to me. They come to our country and think they'll do as they please. Like start some mini-Iran or spread some filthy disease."

•MINNESOTA - Minneapolis police report that North Central Bible College freshman was severely beaten by a Black gang. There have been at least 5 recent attacks on White males by Black gangs.

•NORTH CAROLINA Greensboro; Integrationists gather to honor five anti-White communists killed when they opened fire on a pro-White cavalcade. Seven other reds were wounded in the melee. The one leading the pro-White cavalcade was later discovered to be an undercover agent for the FBI. Six Whites were charged with murder and tried three times. Each time juries found them innocent. Persistence pays, and finally in June 1985, a federal jury found the city of Greensboro, two police officers, a federal informant, and 5 White defendants liable in the deaths.

•OREGON The militant pro-integration Southern Poverty Law Center in Montgomery, Ala. and the ADL have joined forces to file suit against a group led by Tom Metzger who they contend contributed to the death of a non-White. This same tactic was successfully used by this same team in Georgia where a pro-White group was sued in Federal court and fined $7 million. Members of the convicted group had their property and wages attached by the court to satisfy the judgment resulting in a long term master/slave relationship with the courts.

•OKLAHOMA -Lin Davis, 23, was convicted in federal court of 6 counts of sending threatening letters to 2 federal judges - Penalty: 100 years in prison, $500,000 fine. (Overkill?)

•PENNSYLVANIA - Philadelphia - A conservative organization was refused the use of public property to hold a rally in Millville, Cumberland County. They asked the ACLU to help them file suit. Other conservative organizations complain that co- operation with left wing organizations like the ACLU allows them to gain information on conservative operations and is counter- productive.

•TEXAS - Dallas; Five Whites were indicted by a Federal grand jury for attacks on Black and Hispanic people.

•MIDDLE EAST & EUROPE - Iran - Nine hundred suspected drug smugglers face the gallows. One thousand have already been executed. •Palestine - Irritated by militant Arabs killing 154 Arabs who collaborated with the Israelis, an Israeli strike force disguised as Arabs stormed a barbershop suspected of being a possible rebel hangout and killed four of its occupants. This unprovoked attack caused the entire Arab neighborhood to protest providing an excuse for the Israelis to shoot four more. The Israelis estimate that 500 Arab anti- collaborator squads have been identified.

LATIN AMERICA - Colombia - A guerrilla leader, alarmed over government plants in his organization, shot 109 of his 200 man force. Tried by fellow guerrillas, he was removed from command and exiled to the USSR. Panama - U.S. refuses to recognize Panama as an independent state and invades to bring its president before a drug-crimes tribunal.

HEPATITIS: The NY Times of Nov. 9, 1989, p. B- 22, discloses that up to 90% of all SE Asians are hepatitis carriers, and their children are responsible for most of the disease's transmission in schools and day-care centers. The hepatitis virus is spread by biting or scratching. Interestingly, a recent AIDS journal reported that all AIDS patients have hepatitis B. The connection will be interesting when it is at last revealed.

Chapter 185

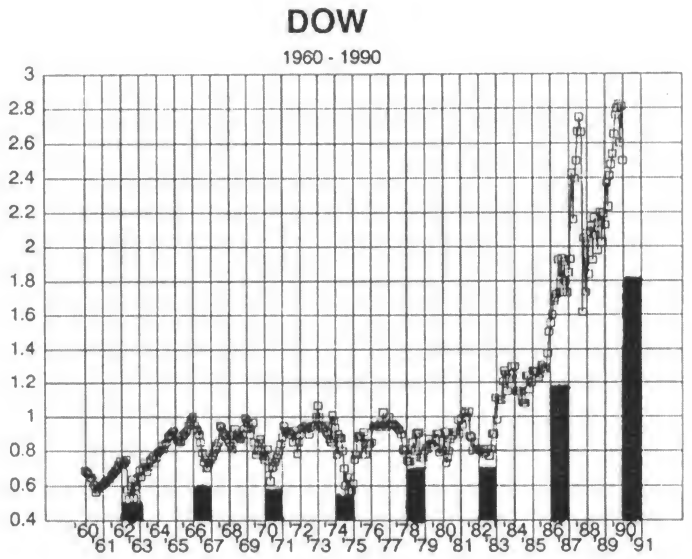
4-Year Election Cycle

When I worked on Wall Street 30 years ago everyone knew about the 4-Year Election Cycle, but no one spoke of it - it was a trade secret.

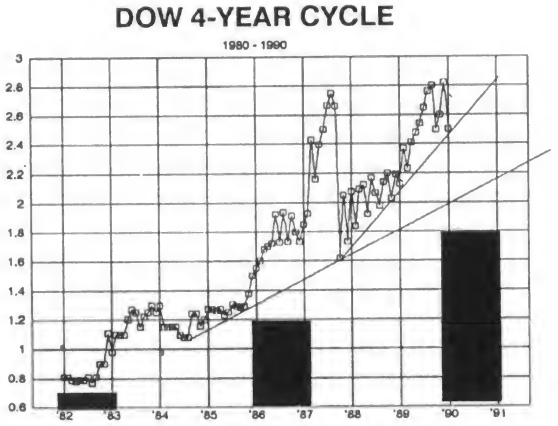
This publication was the first to show it in graphic form for all to see.

In short - the monetary authorities cooperate to get the White House incumbent elected. This is done by opening the money spigots and forcing the stock market higher before election. This makes the electorate happy and not as likely to vote the usury system out of office.

When the election is over and the voters have had a chance to let off steam, the money is shut off to prevent inflation and the stock market collapses. Then it starts all over again. This has been going on for a long long time.



The chart above shows the stock market from 1960 to the present. The black bars represent the usual 4-year crash after election. According to conventional wisdom, since the presidential election took place last year, the stock market should collapse this year.



The chart above shows the stock market from the 1982 4-year bottom to the present. Note that the 1986 4-year bottom looks out of place. At that time the Federal Reserve held the money throttle wide open. They kept lowering the prime lending rate to encourage people to borrow money into existence. With all that money (M1) flowing into the stock market it couldn't crash if it wanted to. So, instead of crashing according to the 1986 historical timetable as so many expected - the stock market continued its climb on into 1987.

In early 1987, the Fed suddenly threw on the brakes. They forced bank prime lending rates (Prime) higher to stop people from borrowing money into existence (M1). In May 1987, the M1 growth rate plunged, but the stock market continued on up under a two year head of steam. It wasn't until August that it peaked at 2809 and then it too crashed. But it crashed in 1987 instead of 1986 as expected.

As much as I hate to say it - the 1987 Crash was actually the 1986 crash - at least for the purposes of the 4-Year Election Cycle chart it was.

1990 DOLLAR

One of the reasons the economy booms is because the establishment lowers the dollar exchange rate to underprice U.S. competitors.

In 1984-85 business was still good because goods were still being shipped that had been ordered when the dollar was low. But in 1984-85 the dollar was very high (see above) and less foreign orders were being written. Since there is a 12 - 36 month delay in filling orders, the impact of a high dollar was just felt last year and now.

The dollar has now been pegged at its present low rate (see 1988-1989). This means that American manufacturers can underprice foreign competition. Shipments and profits should start 12 to 24 months later - this means:

STARTING ABOUT NOW!

YOUR CLIPPINGS

Europe - Britain: • Three million Hong Kong Chinese are eligible for British passports. • Britain's first commercial Asian radio station was launched in November carrying a program which helps young men and women to find mates. • Britain's 1991 census will include race for the first time. • A prayer at a recent Thanksgiving ecumenical service held in London to celebrate toleration stated: "Blessed art thou, Oh Lord, for giving us a discerning heart ... Through Jesus Christ ... and through Mohammed ..."

NORTH AMERICA - United States - • Gordon Muir in the Washington Times said. "Gonorrhea has become the most common reportable disease in school-age children, surpassing chicken pox, measles, mumps and rubella combined." • The Japanese paid $3.4 billion for Columbia Pictures and now Rockefeller Center has been bought for $846 million by Mitsubishi Real Estate Company. • An American Indian group in Warsaw, Missouri uses sophisticated genetics testing procedures to verify Indian descent. The Indian Council says that DNA testing makes possible the determination of Indian blood and to almost the exact percent. It can even indicate tribal heritage. The test allows people to trace their background to qualify for government or tribal programs. The Missouri Ruralist 9/89. (ED: It is believed that this blood testing ability has long been available but suppressed for political reasons to integrate disease carrying segments into our society that Western science would otherwise exclude.) • Detroit - Since 1950 the population of Detroit has dropped from 1.8 million to just 1 million. Three thousand buildings were torn down in the first half of 1989, while 12,000 more remain to be toppled. • Denver has only about 500 energy related industries down from 1800 in 1980. In places it is a ghost town. • From The Mountain recommends that the K return to being a submarine from trying to be a battleship.

Canada - • Indian Sikhs have demanded the right to wear turbans in the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Now, the American Indian members want to wear long braided hair. • Gypsy "refugees" have been apprehended by Toronto and Montreal police with more than $1 million in stolen goods. They all are officially "refugees" and collect welfare. Panama - Noriega, deposed president of Panama, was CIA-trained and on their payroll, and for a long time U.S. backed. ED: Much of this world's mess has been created by those who rule the U.S..

MID-EAST - Afghanistan - • The USSR continues to pour $200 million a month worth of supplies to support their puppet regime. In contrast, the U.S. has cut off the rebels. The Afghan rebels fought for many years with almost no U.S. help. Only recently has the U.S. sent cosmetic aid which allows them to say that they aided the anti-communists. Establishment rulers of the U.S. do not help countries from falling to communism. Communists are establishment agents who confiscate private property to hold for their masters.

ORIENT - Philippines: • Army rebels are demanding that the Roman Catholic Church stop intervening in politics. The attempt by the RC Church to reclaim the 1/3 of the land confiscated by past governments has been a destabilizing influence on governments as they back any contending political party who will promise its return. • China is short of wheat.

UNFILTERED NEWS

NORIEGA is a scumbag - agreed. But, the US invaded a sovereign nation, removed its president in chains, threw him into a dungeon and put a puppet president in his place. The most recent comparable action was 2,000 years ago in the Roman Empire.

The world is warned: No nation or individual, whether England, Canada, or Japan, stands immune from the same treatment. The law governing such things is now trashed. The US now has no legal protest if foreign agents come to the US and kidnap US citizens for trial overseas. This Noriega thing is the law of the jungle. Our government is branded Lawless before the world - and the world is very much aware of it. As individuals, we had better be aware of it too.

HARASSING PHONE CALLS. A friend has received harrasing phone calls. She complained to the phone company. They said that by November there would be a device for sale for $100 which instantly records a caller's phone number after only one ring, and that harassing phone calls should be a thing of the past before the year is out.phone calls;harassing

THE VIRGINIA TAXPAYERS Association called for an investigation in Panama of bank records that would expose the heavy Panama-U.S. drug trade. "We will never get such a golden opportunity to seize a rich quantity of incriminating evidence as is available now from these banks." VTA, Box 45, Roseland, VA 22967

ED: What are the odds that the U.S. government will muscle the banks that rule them?

A FEDERAL JUDGE in Pennsylvania blocked the state's new abortion law from taking effect. The law requires that women notify their husbands and wait 24 hours before an abortion. This judicial decree will be interpreted by some as his license to murder. As events have shown, judges who persist in anti-social behavior must accept assassination as an occupational hazard.

CHINESE FIGHTERS: The Washington Post of 10/29/89 disclosed that Chinese military officers have returned to work with the US on joint Project Peach Pearl, a $500 million program to upgrade Chinese F-8 fighter planes.

ED: Just what we need - upgraded Chinese fighters.[1]

FOOD: A recent phone call to an elevator operator in the Midwest revealed that grain bins there are empty. Food prices are now rising. This may indicate the future availability of food for the American public from food storage that was heavily tapped this year for shipments to the USSR and elsewhere.

"Dear Dick: The announcer on Radio Moscow stated that the rivers in the USSR are so low that barges and ships cannot move. They are importing more US grain than ever before and it is supposed to reach there in January. The Soviets are more dependent on river transport than we are and if they can't move that grain it could spoil and cause famine in Russia next year." C. W. - Ohio

"Dear Dick: Q1: It was Tyndale who was burned - not Wycliffe!

Q2: Do you think the judge bombings are Phineas acts?

Franklin Sanders, The Moneychanger, PO Box 341753, Memphis Tennessee

ED: A1: I stand corrected. I was writing faster than I was thinking.

A2: The doubt comes from notification being sent to establishment media instead of the anti-establishment alternate media. News that would hurt the establishment is never reported in their media unless they are forced to print it (ie. long-time Stalin murders cover-up, Solzhenitsyn blackout, Eisenhower's death camps, Canada's censorship, the Leuter Report, the Farrison assault, the Zundel trials, Israeli censorship of the never ending Palestinian massacre, ANC communist origins, criminal's race, poisoned drinking water given political prisoners at Marion prison, etc.).

We never would have known the true story of Jesse James if he hadn't sent his press releases to a friendly editor who gave it friendly treatment. Other un-James-like stories in scores of establishment books and hundreds of stories are rank establishment propaganda.

The recent death of the powerful German usurer speaks for itself and needs no by-line. "He that hath given forth upon usury ... he shall surely die." Ez 18:8-13.

He sure did.

"Dear Mr. Hoskins: I am a police officer. For your information there is an extremely secretive private national intelligence agency that is not answerable to any public authority. Its name, The Law Enforcement Intelligence Unit. It links the intelligence squads of almost every major police force in the US and Canada." Z. C. - California

"Dear Mr. Hoskins: What about Virginia electing a Black for governor? G. W. - Kentucky

ED: All major candidates in America are media chosen. The media made the Black look good and the White bad. Most Christians stayed home and the Blacks block-voted. All needed for a Christian win was to have fliers and posters with these two quotes: "Thou mayest not set a stranger over thee, which is not thy brother." Deu 17:15, and "Their governor shall precede from the midst of them." Jer 30:21.

"Calling on the Lord" is the only thing Christians haven't tried. Give people a choice, stand aside, and let doubters argue with God.

"Dear Mr. Hoskins: What exactly is communism?" G. R. - North Carolina

ED: "Communism" - a corporate raid - a takeover operation.

Those who financed the French Revolution cleaned up. They gained the 1/3 of the lands of the king, nobles, and the 1/3 owned by the church - 2/3s of the nation. The establishment, to keep the people's eyes off the big prize, encouraged them to kill each other.

The Russian "communist" Revolution gained the 1/3 owned by the Tzar and nobles, the 1/3 owned by the church, plus, a bonus - the 1/3 owned by private individuals. The wealth of an entire nation with a land area worth tens of billions, was seized by "communist" agents and held for those who financed the take- over.

Gulags, firing squads, war crimes trials, and guillotines permanently separate owners from their property. The new owners aren't bothered with irate owners protesting the loss of stolen property. The media blames everything on the dead owners.

Later transfer of property held for the war promoters can be peaceful or nasty. The present transfer in Eastern Europe is peaceful. The one holdout was shot. The "bad" communists suddenly realized the error of their ways, in one month instantly become non-aggressive, friendly, democratic, up to here in "glasnost", and confess their secret sins rather than have them "exposed" at a later date. New owners, agents of the same old establishment, take over management and operation. They recondition and activate their newly acquired property, and money and prosperity start to flow again - with new permanent owners as the power behind the new "reform" government, who are mostly the old government with new titles.

The name "Communism" is the only thing that has faded. The game continues under other names. The Russian Revolution was a corporate raid that wasted 40,000,000 lives, mostly our people.

"Dear Dick: How are the international bankers involved with the recent Chinese fiasco?" O. W. - Wisconsin

ED: Chinese puppet leaders refused to turn their trust over to the financiers who put them in power. Napoleon did the same and look what happened to him. This is why Soviet divisions on the Chinese frontier have been increased from 30 to 165. The establishment gets what it pays for. The E. European communist dictator who held on to his power and position after he was told to step down was shot as an object lesson. Since Tiannamen Square, our establishment leaders are over there every day taking over property from the communist caretaker government. Even our president has multi-millions invested in China. Tiannamen Square reminded China that the establishment can bring about an internal revolution or bring the armed might of world against her. A single establishment marxist agent with a billion dollars to work with can bring about much change. I believe the Chinese have learned the lesson.

Chapter 186

THE UNHOLY TRINITY

Capitalism - Socialism - Communism

There are two basic economic systems - only two.

- 1 - Interest free systems, and
- 2 - Interest based systems.

The interest system is the forbidden one. To prevent people from using it, the Christian religion made it a capital crime.[1] The single exception was when the borrower was a stranger whom one wished to destroy.[2]

---

1 "Hath given forth upon usury ... he shall surely die." Ezek 18:13

Why all the fuss? Simply, in time interest destroys its victim.

In 1782 the United States gained her independence. The usurers of the world flocked to lend her money. The US accepted a loan of 2 million gulden from Netherlands bankers.

A 1782 Netherlands Loan To The U.S. at 10%

1782	$2mil	1890	59,080
1790	4	1900	153,238
1800	11	1910	397,460
1810	29	1920	1,030,910
1820	75	1930	2,673,914
1830	194	1940	6,935,444
1840	503	1950	17,988,755
1850	1,305	1960	46,658,197
1860	3,386	1970	121,019,347
1870	8,782	1980	313,893,019
1880	22,778	1990	$814,157,651

Let us assume that the 2 million gulden equals $2 million dollars, and the loan was at 10%. Let us further assume that for reasons of state the loan was made quietly by executive agreement and only announced in 1990. Can you picture it?

"The U.S. owes the Netherlands $2 million dollars." U.S. Congressmen jostle each other to stand and proclaim, "a debt is a debt, and this debt like any other must be paid! The nation's honor is involved."

Someone then takes time to put $2 million at 10% times 208 years into a computer. The result: "The borrower is slave to the lender." The newly free United States got its freedom only to give it away again. What happened is that interest increased the debt. The U.S. no longer owes $2 million. She doesn't even owe a few hundred millions, not even billions or hundreds of billions; the U.S. now owes $814 trillion dollars! $814 trillion dollars is more than the entire world is worth - an impossible sum to pay because this much money doesn't exist on this earth. You may be sure that the lender had this in mind when making the loan. Since the U.S. can't pay she must make concessions. What concessions? That depends.

This is usury at work. Whoever uses the system will in time enslave the one to whom he lends. This is why the Christian religion demands capital punishment for those who practice it.[3]

CAPITALISM is the system practiced by today's establishment. The word "capitalism" used to mean using capital (money) in business. Through the years it has taken on other meanings. Today it means usury-capital, monopoly, ruthlessness, callousness, wars, bloody foreclosures, rivers of blood, death, and destruction. The word "free-enterprise" has been coined to mean what the word "capitalism" used to mean.

3 To encourage borrowers to participate, a counterfeit Christian religion is financed by the usury-establishment to give it's OK. In exchange for tax exemption, plus perks for the priests, this establishment religion agrees that the Laws created by Jesus no longer exist, or if they exist, one need not obey them. Churches, of whatever denomination, which teach that God's Law is done away and man's statutes have replaced them, are by definition - "state churches." They are bought and paid for. The practicing priests are "state priests." Their god is a strange god not recognized by the Christians' God. The Christian God proclaims (1) "I am the Lord, I change not." Mal 3:6, (2) Jesus Christ the same yesterday, today, & forever. Heb 13:8, (3) "The scripture cannot be broken." John 10:35.

The usury system, as we have seen, grows. It spreads like cancer. It is bound by legal contract and enforced by armies. It gathers all into its net. Unstopped, it devours everything. It is built into today's system. Inability to pay its impossible demands results in negotiating away freedoms in exchange for cancellation of usury-debt. Usury inevitably causes Roman type slavery where the few are master and all others slaves.

The Hardnosed Private Property Holdout

There are always hard nosed holdouts who will not sell, who will not bargain, and who will not borrow at usury. To get their property other measures are used.

The South African gold mines and farms required the Boer War, the plantations of the South and its international commodity trade required a War Between the States, the German commodities for manufactured products exchange-trade with the rest of the world by-passing usury banks required WW II. The remaining independent farms of America required high interest rates, tight money, low commodity prices, and SWAT teams. Independent American business required a 1929, and the Tzar's vast land holdings in Russia required 1918. These holdout problems were overcome one at a time by "utilizing proper planning, perseverance, and attention to detail." Other holdout problems were solved in other ways.

SOCIALISM is a neat system created by private Capitalism to get property not obtainable otherwise.

The Christian religion forbids monopolies. It's fine to be rich. Many of the patriarchs were rich, but monopolies are forbidden.[4] Those who practice monopoly, whether king, church, or citizen, win the approbation of their God and the envy and hatred of those who are deprived of using the land and resources God gave to His people.[4]

This fact is well-known, and well-used by the establishment. They use the Christian Law against monopolies to deceive the people and to feather their own nests.

Municipalities used to own banks and public utilities. They were monopolies or near monopolies to be used by everyone, generating no profit, and designed to give needed inexpensive service. They were well run and did not fall under the monopoly prohibition since they were owned by municipality (or everyone). The establishment wanted to get these utilities to generate a large profit for themselves.

This was the procedure: the usury establishment owned the money system. With their unlimited funds they bought the media. With the media they publicized politicians they wanted elected to run the municipality. They blacked out those they did not want elected. These media-elected establishment politicians mismanaged the utilities to cause public discontent. The establishment media then demanded that these mismanaged industries be privatized. "Privatization" means to sell the badly run municipal utilities at a low price to thousands of public stockholders. While thousands of stockholders bought the stock, thereby avoiding the accusation of "monopoly," the multi-billionaires with unlimited funds bought controlling interest. These newly "privatized" utilities then became well-run, highly profitable, and exempt from media criticism overnight.

4 "The land ... is mine." Lev. 25:20

Example: In England and France there were private banks, large coal companies, steel companies, airlines, railroads, and independent media. The establishment media whipped up a campaign of voter discontent against them and by public demand they were taken from their "greedy" owners and "nationalized."

British and French socialist politicians ran these socialized or nationalized industries badly. The establishment media then demanded that these badly run socialized industries be "privatized." The public was first told that socialism worked, then they were told that socialism didn't work. The establishment ended up owning what it wanted in the first place - private property belonging to someone else that they were unwilling to sell.

Socialism is of the establishment, by the establishment, and for the establishment. Socialism works - for the establishment.

COMMUNISM: Communism is the violent face of socialism. Communist violence is almost the single distinguishing feature that separates it from socialism. This violence permanently separates property owners from their property. Years later there is no one left to file a claim to foul up ownership of property confiscated years ago.

Financed by the establishment, a communist revolt is careful to rest its basic claims on Lawful grounds to avoid the wrath of the faithful. The media attack a private monopoly and declare it to be a hateful oppressive enemy. To help destroy the forbidden monopoly many Christians participate. It is easy to whip up support to take a private monopoly to be later divided among the people. The trigger word is "monopoly."

After the private property has been taken and the owners disposed of, the managers of this confiscated property are the new kings and the formerly private property is the new kingdom. The only things held in common are the people who must accept what they are told by the establishment's media or face the gulag. Christian Laws are banned to make it difficult for Christ's followers to gather and work against them.

Just as with socialism, the commune is mis-managed and the establishment media demands that the common property be "privatized." This doesn't mean the return of the property to former owners. They are dead. Leases, grants, or stock are sold to "the people." Those with establishment backing have money and buy controlling interests. In time the big shareholders buy out the little shareholders and the company goes private. Look around you.[5]

Communism is just another tool in the establishment arsenal.

Conclusion

Today's usury-capitalism is an establishment monopoly. Its exemption from taxes is the pay religions that give their OK to ply the usury trade forbidden by God get.

They use the Christian monoply prohibition to win Christian support to nationalize or socialize private monopolies. They then privatize these seized properties for themselves and grow richer.

5 I don't know who owns some of my ancestors land confiscated for taxes and sold to NY syndacates after the War Between The States. The buying companies have been taken private and issue no reports.

Socialism, communism, and capitalism are the faces of the establishment. All three are establishment agents. Through them the establishment finances revolt, peaceful in the West, bloody in the East; and privatizes the seized property so that they "join house to house ... lay field to field, till ... they may be placed alone in the midst of the earth." Isaiah 4:8

There are two kinds of economic systems - only two.

- Interest free systems, and
- Interest based systems.

AIDS UPDATE

In HONG KONG, a homosexual was given a life sentence for being homosexual.

HEPATITIS-B: The Center For Disease Control announced that Hepatitis-B is now spreading among non-drug using heterosexuals. This is a grave finding. Hepatitis-B and AIDS go together. It is believed that almost 100% of homosexuals carry hepatitis-B and almost 100% have AIDS. It may be that rampant hepatitis is a surface indication of rampant, but undiagnosed, AIDS. Hepatitis-B has an incubation period of 6 weeks to 6 months, while the AIDS incubation period can be three and one-half years or more before blood tests positive. "The increase in Hepatitis may portend something almost too horrible to contemplate." Hepatitis-B is NOT a sexually-transmitted disease and giving shots will probably compound the problem. If there is any hope of surviving this AIDS epidemic, one of the first things that must be done is to stop these inoculations. (Excerpted from The Cutting Edge, p. 4, 6/89, PO Box 1568, Clayton, GA 30525. $41/yr.)

HEPATITIS-B: "Records indicate that approximately 300 million people carry the hepatitis-B virus worldwide, compared with about 15 million carriers of the AIDS virus." INSIGHT, 12/18/89.

Up to 90% of all S.W. Asians are carriers of the highly infectious hepatitis which destroys the liver. S.E. ED: Two years ago we stated that in time it may be necessary for the entire city of New York to be converted into an AIDS colony. Barbed wire, guards, and dogs. Food, supplies, infected patients in - nothing out. Quarantine is necessary if others may are to live tomorrow.

"VENEREAL WARTS can be transmitted from towels and tanning tables ... Dr. Ralph Richart, Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center in NY City, reported they have been able to recover the virus from doctors' instruments, gloves, and even plumes of smoke. The Mayo Clinic also reported 7 cases, all from tanning parlors. If you can get this venereal disease from tanning tables, you can get it from toilet seats. What else can you get from toilet seats?" The Cutting Edge, 8/89.

CONDOMS: "The US govt. has cut funding for a UCLA study on the effectiveness of condoms in preventing the spread of AIDS. Comments reporter Don Baier: 'This is practically an admission that the Koop campaign for condoms is a fraud.'" The Cutting Edge, 8/89.

INMATES: "AIDS is the No. 1 killer in the city jails. ...Some 56% of the 749 inmates who volunteered for the tests had positive results. Because that was not a true sampling, (the figure has been put) at 20% to 25%. Aside from the strain that AIDS puts on prison medical services ... inmates get extremely upset when they learn that an inmate in their section has the AIDS virus." Daily News, 6/8/89, p. 7.

76% OF INFECTED CHILDREN: "Health Secretary Louis Sullivan said ... the government and local communities must do a better job targeting AIDS prevention messages to minorities ... the secretary ... noted that the disease is taking a disproportionate toll on minorities: Blacks, who make up 12% of the US population, represent 26% of adult AIDS cases in the US and 53% of pediatric cases. INDIANS: Gov. Baliles, Virginia's outgoing reconstructed governor of Greek descent, met with Virginia's Indian tribes in the governor's mansion to celebrate Thanksgiving. This is a first. Virginia's House of Burgesses set aside Thanksgiving Day to give God thanks for deliverance from Indian massacres. These massacres killed a large part of the White population who had lived peacefully with the Indians for years.

Today's Virginia Indian resembles his forbears. There are still several women for each man. Warriors traditionally don't work. Their permanent disappearance after an argument is blamed on their leaving the reservation looking for work. SPY PLANE: According to the Houston Post, the Blackbird spy plane has been retired because satellites can do a better job on photographing license plates. ... "Thomas W. SKY SPY: Anglican Church envoy Terry Waite was spotted by spy satellite being moved during Christmas in Beirut. It is said that this satellite can penetrate fog and darkness. Daily News Digest, 4-12-89, copied from American Sentinel.

ED: While the satellite can see and can detect heat, the world is big. The sky eye must know where to look if it is to see. They can't see or detect heat underground, identify whose heat it is inside office or apartment buildings, in cars, under trees, or point out a person in a moving crowd. They can keep an eye on a doorway or a street for weeks at a time. It does little good if the watched doorway is not used. Satellite observation has limitations.

Chapter 187

THE EMPEROR'S NEW CLOTHES

Once upon a time there was a wicked king who was hated by his subjects.

This king was the latest in a long line of kings, each more wicked than the one before. He had killed or defeated all the other kings and taken their money, castles, and lands, and had made slaves of them so that they had to work for him. He had also killed many of their peoples to teach them a lesson, and had taken their farms, too.

After taking their farms and businesses, he built great cities so his conquered subjects could come and live close to the evil king's factories and businesses where he wanted them to work.

In these new cities the people had to "buy" houses from the king, houses which always returned to the king every seven years. The king then "re-sold" the same house to someone else for seven more years.[1] He told his subjects who had lost their homes that they had to buy new ones again and again to be part of the "dream", but when they had almost paid for them and times were hard, the king raised taxes so that they could not pay and their houses returned once more to the king.

There were a few who managed to save and pay for their homes so that they owned them. The evil king laughed, and rubbed his hands gleefully as he moved someone next door to them that they did not like so they would have to move and buy another house with money from the king's bank. The king was very wicked and very very greedy.

King Midas' Touch

The king had three great champions who fought for him. The first champion was King Midas. He made the new king rich by using a secret way to make money that was very old and very bad. It was so bad that all the people had been told never to use it. This secret made everything the king touched turn into gold.

The secret was really very simple. A poor man who needed money was persuaded to borrow from the king. The loan appeared simple and honest, but it was not.

The king agreed to lend £10 to buy a house if the borrower repaid £11, and also agreed to give the king his house if he did not pay. The borrower did not know that the king could make money scarce by simply raising interest rates and making people pay more into his banks so that there would be less for everyone else.

In this way, when time came to pay the loan the borrower could not get £11 because the king had left only £10 still in circulation. When he could not pay he lost his house, or his little business, and the evil king got richer and richer. This 10 for 11 thing so angered God, whose land it really was, that he condemned the evil king to death.[2] The king knew that God had done this but he slyly paid greedy preachers who pretended to work for God to work for him instead, and not to tell the people that God was mad at him. He did not give them gold coins for doing this. If he had, everyone would see and become angry. He paid them instead by freeing them from taxes that everyone else had to pay. The greedy preachers loved this and told the people to obey everything the evil ruler said.

Goliath - The Enforcer

There were always some people who followed the good King who ruled in the good old days and still obeyed his Laws. These people did not honor the wicked new king. This made the new king angry and afraid. He sent spies into the countryside to discover these people who followed the old Laws, and when they were found he brought them before his judges and put them in jail. Sometimes a farmer would quote the law of the old ruler "The land shall not be sold

2 "He that hath ... given forth upon usury ... he shall surely die." Ez 18:8-13 forever: for the land is mine." Lev 25:23, and would not leave his land. When this would happen he would tell one of his sheriffs to go and shoot him, and the sheriff would.

If some of the people fought back, the king would send a great many men who would go and shoot them, and burn them up with fire.[3] This was done to make everyone afraid, and it did. It made them be quiet and pay their taxes, too.

The Emperor's Clothes Make The Man

The emperor hurt people and did bad things, and the people held their nose when they saw him. He used perfume, but the people still said bad things about him and still held their noses. So, the emperor decided to do something about it. Instead of taking a bath and dressing in nice clean clothes he used a magic talking suit that he had taken from some people he had conquered and that was hanging in his closet.

This magic suit was made of paper and the typeface made the wearer look like whatever the king wanted the wearer to look like. One time it would be blue to show that the king was honest and sincere. Another time it would be red to show the king's anger. Another time it would be white - the color of purity and justice. When the king was doing evil black deeds the suit could make him look like he was dressed in white in an instant. The suit also had buttons that could talk and show pictures.

This last part was necessary because the suit changed color so often that the people had to be told what it all meant and the reason for the changes. The king would wear play-clothes when working, and he would have on Sunday clothes when he was doing things he oughtn't. This was very confusing to the simple hardworking people.

3 Mathews objected to rule by strangers; Kahl was in the process of setting up independent townships for bankrupted farmers - townships that obeyed God's Law only. Both were killed and incinererated.

The tailor who furnished the king's clothes had many people working for him, ! 4 ▒ and they worked hard to make clothes the king ordered. In America the clothes made the emperor look like the president. In England he looked like the king. In Japan, the ancient emperor. In the USSR, a Commissar. But, it was just the clothes. The same king ruled them all.

These magic clothes let the emperor persuade his subjects that they actually ruled themselves, that they could choose their own leaders. It was done in this way: In the whole land there might be two bad blackhearted scoundrels who would not tell the truth and who took candy from babies. These two were just the right kind for the emperor. If they agreed to work for the emperor the emperor would give them new clothes and pretty fairy tales would be told about them by the talking buttons, and everyone who gathered about every night after supper to listen would learn to love them.

After the people had been taught to love these two bad men, they were told to choose one of them to be their next leader. The choice was just between the two. No one else was ever talked about except those who worked for the emperor.

4 There are more than 25,000 newspapers and TV stations in America alone. Practically all are combined into about 12 chains which in turn are related to each other in one way or another.

After being elected, the men showed that they were bad by taking the people's money and becoming rich. When this happened and the people began to grumble, it was they who were blamed by the magic talking clothes because they had voted the scoundrels into office. They were told that it was all their fault. In fact, the people were always told that everything bad that was being done to them was their own fault.

The emperor did the same thing in all the lands that he had conquered and ruled. Everyone was allowed to choose their own leaders in "free democratic" elections just like their brothers everywhere else.

The Parade

The bad emperor has three champions who keep him on his throne.

- King Midas - "the gold Touch".[6]
- Goliath, "the enforcer",[7]
- The Emperor's Magic Talking Clothes - "the mouth".[8]

The bad emperor says that the Old Ruler has gone away and is dead. The Old Ruler has not gone away. He is only allowing the latest evil emperor to rule so that He can determine who of his people love Him.[9]

He has watched this latest ruler break his ancient Law. He has watched each of the emperor's champions break the Law. This Law has judged and condemned them. They know this and now tremble fearfully as they await execution of sentence.

In the world of fairy tales the king is always on parade. Watching the parade are those whose eyes The Law has opened, and they see through the paper veil with the eyes of children. They see the emperor as he is. They see him unbathed. He is like a sepulcher in which reside dead men's bones. They say:

See! He wears no clothes!

The emperor hears and looks startled. He clutches his rags about him and, trying to once again deceive, rapidly changes their color. Pretending to hear nothing, he marches on with his champions close about to defend him. But the cry mounts as others begin to see:

"Look! The emperor wears no clothes! The emperor wears no clothes!"

Evidence from accepted authorities showing only 4,237,000 potential victims living in occupied areas during WW II, and that 4,000,000 of these had applied for reparations, made the 6 million myth look silly. The corrupt Canadian court would not allow this evidence to be admitted. Not admitted either was the Leuchter Report by the world's ONLY gas chamber engineering expert proving conclusively that the so-called gas chambers at Auschwitz, Birkenau, and Majdenek had never been used, and could NOT have been used to gas people. The whole thing was based on a lie. Lies are being exposed faster than they can be papered over, but that did not stop Zundel's conviction. Australia's great natural wealth is now the target. The establishment cannot withstand criticism, so it eliminates it.

ALTERNATE MEDIA: The West's "white knight" is its alternate media. Much of it crouches quietly, avoids toes, and hopes for an establishment bone. A plug by a major paper or TV program could bring financial riches and security. To get the plug one must not print blacked-out material - only pretend to. Thus, basic information remains un-reported in many quarters. The alternate- media's only reason for existence is to give its readers something the establishment media will not provide. The fact that it exists makes it dangerous and an establishment enemy.

The acid test for an alternate-media publication? The establishment media will not, that is - "WILL NOT" - tolerate God's Law. Pious sayings by approved homespun TV actors posing as Christians, mumbo-jumbo names, and flakey air- headed talk about "sweet Jesus" is OK, but Jesus' Law WILL NOT BE TOLERATED. An editor has burned the bridge when he quotes - "If a man lie with mankind, as he lieth with a woman, both of them ... shall be put to death." Lev 20:13, or "Thou mayest not set a stranger (Heb: zûwr - racial alien) over thee, which is not thy brother." Deu 17:15, or, "This is love, that we walk after his commandments." 2 Jno 6. Print any of these in a publication and it is forever beyond the pale. It will never get that plug that brings the rainbow's pot of gold unto gold. Until the alternate media's editor chooses sides, he remain's "iffy".

REPORTERS: British reporters are again accused by Cape Town police of inciting unrest in the black homelands. In the past scores of Blacks have been held by other Blacks for hours and then burned to death to furnish "news" for their grinding cameras. Scorched bodies, victims of "necklacing"

Reporters, with their lies, twisted fabricated stories, and insinuations brought on the Boer War, the War Between The States, and World Wars I and II. In my studies and personal dealing with them I have seldom known them to hesitate to twist the truth when they needed to further their aim of taking property from private owners and giving it to their masters. People are beginning to identify them for what they are - agents provocateur, death merchants, dangerous murderers, people who turn a peaceful world into one bathed in blood. Chapter 188

HOW TO CANCEL CORPORATE DEBT

The following article was excerpted from The Nationalist, November, 1988, 30505, Knoxville, TX 37930.

Plant Closings

"Avtex Fibers Inc., the world's largest rayon manufacturing plant, will close down in November throwing 1300 employees out of work in Front Royal, Virginia ...

"Two hundred angry Avtex workers met on the evening of November 2nd, in the union hall, to demand that the company help them find new work or at least pay them termination benefits. But that is not what these workers should have demanded ...

"In 1984, the workers of the Weirton Steel factory in Weirton, W. Virginia purchased the bankrupt company.

They quickly turned it into one of the 10 most profitable steel factories in the country. In the first full year, 1985, worker- owned Weirton posted a $61 million profit ...

"There are laws now on the books that can help them achieve worker ownership. ... There are more than 5,000 employee- owned plants now operating in the U.S., though most are very small ...

"In the future there will be thousands of plant closings just like Avtex ... The union will not advocate worker-ownership because there is no place for a union in such a company. Both the union and management will betray the worker."

Debt - The Principal Problem

The concept of worker/owners is sound. After receiving their land share,[1] working "shares" was the basis of early land and sea trading expeditions, and manufacturing projects. It wasn't until much later, when the workers had had their land taken away that they, given no viable choice, were then stockpiled in cities to become wage-slaves to be bought and sold with the plant.

The benefits of a worker/owner business should be clear to everyone. In the media business it would stop the propaganda abuse of absentee owners who don't care about local conditions. It would stop plants shutting down and moving overseas. The many benefits are obvious, which is why the giant American Airlines and other corporations are trying to convert into worker/owner operations.

This solves one problem, but it does not solve the biggest problem of almost every business in America, which is DEBT! A factory may be poorly run and still make a profit if it is debt- free. A well run plant, heavily in debt, cannot make a single mistake and survive. Whether it is owned by a distant corporation or by worker/owners makes absolutely no difference.

It does no good in the long term if the pilots and mechanics of one of the nation's largest airlines go so heavily into debt to buy the airline that they will be unable to pay the bank's interest and principal and still operate properly. There will be nothing left to buy planes and equipment. Chances are they will soon be forced to bankrupt and the entire airline will fall into the laps of the lenders.

Debt Conflict

No lender wants the debtor to become debt-free and escape his clutches. The traditional debtor/lender relationship based on the usury contract of lending $10 for the repayment of $11 when only $10 exists, always boils down to one of confrontation. In time, the borrower learns that he has been victimized and refuses to pay. The rich lender sends in SWAT teams, police, and even paid armies to collect entire nations. This conflict continues until the people destroy the usurers, the usurers subdue or destroy the protesters, or a truce is reached where the debtors bankrupt, peacefully turn all their possessions over to the lenders, and the system starts all over again with the people as beggars, or wage-slaves, trying once again to buy their freedom. A few are always allowed to make it to encourage the rest to try.

Debt/Equity Conversion

The best choice is to do away completely with the usury system and adopt a no-interest banking system similar to that used by the Arabs. Since this would cause war with the lenders, the next best solution to the debt problem is to "convert debt into equity." This erases the large debt that is the major culprit in most corporate disasters.[2] Converting debt into equity is easily done.

For example: If, on April 2, 1982, ABC Company borrowed $1,000,000, and the company stock closed at $10 on that date, simply divide the price of the stock into the $1,000,000 debt. In this way one obtains 100,000 shares of - $10 PREFERRED STOCK. This stock is given to the debt holders in place of the debt.[3]

Under this new arrangement, if the company makes money, all prosper. If the company loses money, all suffer. In any event the chances of success are immeasurably improved with the removal of debilitating debt.

Think fast, America, a smart decision to do something won't help if it comes AFTER your plant and means of livelihood has been moved to Mexico or China by owners who care less about you than they care about dirt.

2 This ignores the age old argument that usurers are entitled to nothing since what they have was gotten illegally by fraud and as a consequence are under God's sentence of death. "Hath given forth upon usury ... he shall surely die." Ezek 18:13

3 Suitable call dates w/buy-backs may be included. If the lenders refuse - the eternal worker's threat is that the company will never again make a profit.

It's dollars and cents. Face it, there is a limited amount of dirt, and there are unlimited numbers of people.

SOUTH AFRICA'S President De Klerk has his White conservative constituents where he wants them. Immediately after his election he dismantled the National Security system of military and police who kept order in Black townships, and he downgraded the State Security Council which made most important decisions. This neutralized the effect of White opposition parties who are disproportionately represented in the police and military. De Klerk has committed to a test of White opinion, which is likely to take effect as a referendum. In this he has the solid backing of the establishment media whose one-way propaganda is aimed at convincing Whites to turn S. Africa into a Black-ruled Rhodesia. Elections are not scheduled before 1994.

The disenchanted Whites can force an election by the mass resignation of their 41 members of Parliament. If they do, De Klerk can delay elections for six months longer and have a free hand to do anything he wants in the interim. Not having a choice or an effective voice is the reason the Whites are talking about being forced to take up arms. De Klerk is compared to a cancer cell. Something that kills unless removed.

ARCHIE BUNKER: To make White S. Africans look ridiculous, the S. African Broadcasting Corporation has launched an Archie Bunker type program called "People Like Us." The NY Times of Jan 7, 1990, states that S. Africa's Archie Bunker is named Barney Bosman, a building inspector, who "argues that .. antelopes stick to antelopes, and giraffes to giraffes, so people should not deviate from their own kind. ... Barney ... does not confine his intolerance to non- whites; he does not like Jews, Portuguese, etc." Bosman is also down on women.

His son-in-law is a personable up-to-date white integrationist who buys the house next door and resells it to a very upscale mulatto doctor who is obviously superior to Barney in every way. "To avoid inciting or offending Whites" the show is aired at 10:25 on Saturday night when the majority of viewers are black.

If the pilot goes well the same format may be expected to be used next in Australia with an Australian Archie Bunker opposite either a wealthy Black or a New Zealand Mauri, a Canadian Archie Bunker vs. an Indian Sikh, and an English Archie Bunker vs. an educated, intelligent, and wealthy oriental.

The Archie Bunker treatment is effective in portraying in a derogatory manner basic White values that if inflicted on any other race would be found by them to be offensive and unacceptable and probably result in boycott or having the offending TV station burnt down and its personnel "necklaced."

KISSING & AIDS: "Dear Dick: Note the increased incidence of open- mouth kissing on the TV. AIDS is far more likely to be transmitted by this type of kissing than by sex. The media must know better. People are being instructed and encouraged to kiss this way for the same reason that AIDS carriers are allowed to run loose and not be quarantined." J. L. - California

HOMOSEXUAL ATTACKS: NY Post, Jan 26, 1990 carried an article on the recent killing of a homosexual on Staten Island and commented that "We are facing a ... shocking and appalling increase in violence and defamation" against homosexuals.

"HOMOSEXUAL authors are coming out of the closet ... nationwide there are some 37 book stores that cater to homosexuals and at least 150 that have gay sections. Christopher Street magazine even has a gay best-seller list." New York Post, p. 6, Feb 15, 1990.

ED: This establishment-encouraged trend encourages violence. Many of the faithful do not believe that the Law has been done away.[5]

FRAT DEPLEDGES PLEDGE: Pink triangles, signifying "pervert-power," have been sprayed over the campus of the University of Vermont as a warning to a local fraternity that booted a pledge confessing to being a homosexual, a condition condemned by Christians. The university temporarily suspended the fraternity and turned the action over to the Greek Judicial Board, a student panel with punishment power. The board ordered the fraternity to apologize, refund the pledge fee, and to hold in-house education programs about homosexulity.

USSR & ESAU: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Do you agree with the thesis that the USSR is going to aid the Islamic nations against Israel?" G. R. - Arizona

ED: For almost 1000 years the Russian Slavs have fought the Arabs and their kinsmen in one no-prisoner, atrocity-ridden war after another. Now we are told that the past is to be forgotten and the Slavs are going to help their ancient enemy become powerful and a menace to themselves. It strains credulity. There has been too much bloodshed, too much misery. There can be only the sword between the Slav and the Arab. Even the Jews are hated in the USSR because once their Khazar nation allied itself with the Golden Horde against the Slavs.

The Western Nordic must consider his distant kinsman, the Russian Slav, to be a brutally ridden horse, who has been ridden hard and put away wet without feed or water. A cautious sympathy and understanding is certainly in order, but that horse can kick like hell, and stand on your chest while feeding and not notice anything unusual about it.

SLAV vs TURK: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Hundreds of thousands of Bulgarian Turks are arriving in Turkey and elsewhere in Islam after being expelled by Bulgarian Slavs who are backed by the USSR. They are the remnants of Europe's Islamic invaders of 500 years ago. The Slavs also oppress Islamic minorities in the USSR who are now restless as a result. Islam, unable to absorb the mass of refugees, directs the overflow into Western Europe. Europe now has a big Islamic problem. The media in America, blood kin to both Slav and Turk, blacks out this growing problem. It's there, it's big time, and it's going to explode." G. F. - Cyprus

MANDELLA: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: How does the freeing of Mandella in South Africa fit in?" R. C. - Texas

ED: There are six distinct tribes (races) in South Africa. The Whites are one. They are also the police who keep the Black tribes from getting at each other. The largest tribe is the Zulu. Mandella represents another hostile tribe. The Zulus remember what happened in Rhodesia when the establishment backed one tribe into power. The smaller tribe was later massacred. The Zulus expect Mandella to do the same to them if given a chance. In spite of media lies - most Blacks and most Whites don't want Mandella to take over political power. They are afraid of him.

Also, don't forget how most of the Blacks got there in the first place. The establishment brought them in by the millions to work establishment mines. The same establishment is bringing Orientals and Mexicans into the U.S. to man American industry. Mandella has been freed to create revolution. In the revolution the Whites will be entirely displaced. Of course millions of Blacks will die at each other's hands. But, the establishment has never been squeamish about breaking eggs to make an omelet - their omelet.

ESSENES: "Dear Dick: Who were the Essenes? M. K. - Connecticut

ED: One of the three major religious groups active in Palestine in Jesus' day - Pharisees, Sadducees, and Essenes. Many believe that Jesus was an Essene since there is no evidence that the town of Nazareth ever existed, while an Essene group of Nazarites did, and many of Jesus' beliefs are identical to many of the known Essene beliefs. Some speculate that the Jesus was "Jesus the Nazarite," rather than Jesus of Nazareth. The Dead Sea Scrolls are being carefully bottled up through the connivance of Israeli, Catholic, and Protestant interests to protect the status quo - which is - whatever the Israelis, Catholics, and Protestants say the truth is.

CHIEF PRIEST: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Who do you consider the most influential religious leader in the country?" M. W. - California

ED: Easy. The head of the IRS. Most preachers do whatever he wants, no questions asked. Only God and the IRS have this power.

JEFFERSON BIBLE: "Dear Dick: What about Thomas Jefferson's Bible? And did he raise a flock of mulatto children as establishment propagandists say?" M. A. - New Jersey

ED: TJ was a Bible student. He published a Bible leaving out things he believed were scribal insertions. To understand the man you have to read his Bible. Many preachers hate TJ and his Bible because if TJ can ignore everything other than the Laws, Statutes, and Judgments, and the direct words of Jesus, others can too. If a preacher says that the Law is done away and TJ didn't accept his source, the preacher loses his authority, and he is mad!

As for raising a flock of mulatto children, the establishment has told that tale for years. The story has absolutely no truth to it. TJ was a very moral man. He was just as a slave master, even paying slaves for doing the unpleasant job of cleaning privies. He was a thoroughly Christian gentleman who despised the establishment preachers of his day. The establishment keeps the story alive to detract from the fact that he was a leading light in the African Colonization Movement. Take a close look at the next person you see telling the story and consider the source. You'll see what I mean.

ANCIENT BOOKS: "Dear Dick: You keep referring to the ancient books. What are these books?" R. M. - Virginia

ED: The books Jesus used in addition to the ones in the Bible. Jasher, Adam & Eve, Enoch, etc. There's quite a list. These are invaluable in filling gaps in Bible stories. Of course, they too contain scribal insertions. These can be instantly spotted when the insertions violate The Law. The Law is the one thing that has descended from antiquity with no additions.

The ancients agreed that The Word is God. Therefore, tampering with it was tampering with God and was considered blasphemy. The one tampering was subject to be punished accordingly. That didn't stop scribes from trying to get around the LAW. They still do. There are many instances of the attempt, all easy to spot when passed through the filter of the LAW.

FAGOT: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Why are homosexuals called 'fagots'"?

ED: Fagots - a bundle. Fuel for the fires of hell.

IDENTIFYING AIDS: Mr. Hoskins: I am one of your 19 year old readers. My girl friend is a nurse and also works at a '7- 11 Store'. She says that one way to identify AIDS carriers is to look at their eyes. Those infected often have a yellow cast to them which is not usual in young people, and their skin often looks yellowish too. Many also breathe so you can hear them, and take a deep breath every so often. She's married and says that young men and women should have nothing to do with sex until they too are married, and the girl should marry a husband selected by her father. I agree, and I thought you might like to know." H. G. - Virginia

SEGREGATED EATING: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: What was the philosophic reason for segregated lunch rooms and rest rooms in the South - if there was one?" M. P. - Massachutes ties. They furnish most of the fornicators, drunkards, and thieves. Neither are they brothers according to The WORD.[7]

The official state reason for separation was "health". Blacks have long been known to carry a number of communicable diseases that may be passed on by sharing public facilities.

PIERCE - THE ORDER: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I received a copy of that portion of your manuscript dealing with THE ORDER and mailed it back with a few corrections and suggestions. Since my capture I have learned and come to the conclusion that working with others is a sure sign of eventual failure. There are only three men that I would ever work with again. They too, identify with the Laws, Statutes, and Judgments of Jesus Christ and are suffering under the same circumstances that I am.

"In response to your question would I 'work with non-Christians again?' the answer is an unequivocal 'NO!' Not only would they have to be Christians, but they would have to believe in the Law- commands of Yah-Yahshua and their life would have to manifest those beliefs." Sincerely, Bruce C. Pierce, Illinois

BLACK PRIEST: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: What is a black priest?" G. R. - Missouri.

ED: Today, the media refers to Blacks who are priests as "black priests." It used to refer to "warlocks." It also could refer to preachers who taught man's law in place of God's Law. Those who teach God's Law, or The Law, were referred to as white priests. The difference was that of light and dark. The term means many things.

SOLIDARITY: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I have reservations about Solidarity taking the rule in Poland." H. Z. - New York

ED: You are wise! A healthy body will identify an alien disease and instantly attack and expel it. To remain, the disease must first take over the body's defenses. For the Communist Party to relinquish rule without strings to an hostile Solidarity would destroy a 50-year effort. To retain control, they must furnish both ruling and opposition parties. The establishment, the ones who actually rule Poland, are hand-in-glove with Solidarity and the Communist government under a new name. The disease rages there and here.

RACIST: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Just what is a 'racist'? J. M. - Oklahoma

ED: Depends on the speaker. In Haiti, Whites can't vote, own land, or hold public office. The same in most Black African nations, and the Israeli nation. There it is is called a "healthy nationalism." Healthy White nationalism is racism to others who exercise a healthy nationalism of their own.

VIGILANTE: Dear Mr. Hoskins: "What is the difference between a vigilante and a Phineas Priest? R. A. - New Jersey

ED: A Phineas Priest acts in obedience to the Laws of God, to keep God's vengeance and plague from his people. A vigilante acts to protect his own interests. A vigilante may do both.

INDIAN: "Mr. Hoskins: I killed a man and am in the penitentiary. I expect to be paroled. My grandmother was an Indian. I have blond hair and blue eyes. Does the law "No bastard (mixed-breed) may enter the congregation of Israel", prevent me from marrying a "white" girl when I leave prison. Preachers won't give me a straight answer." J.M. - Montana

ED: I have a German shepherd. I call - she comes. One thousand times I call - she comes each time. She has no choice. For 1000 generations all German shepherds before her who did not come were killed or prevented from breeding. She is descended from those who obey.

A "White" man is like the Shepherd. God's Law calls - he comes. He has no choice. For 1000 generations the murderers and rapists among his people were executed by his Law, or not allowed to breed. Few slipped through the Law's net - very few. This trait is so ingrained that strangers may cheat him, rob him, rape his women, steal his children, and kill him. Only reluctantly will he defend himself. This has a limit.

Such is not the case with other strangers such as blacks. They are the result of 1000 generations of those who bought wives by stealing cattle and who rose to authority by murder. Inefficient thieves and murderers did not gain cattle with which to buy wives. They did not reproduce. Like breeds like. Our jails are filled with law breaking blacks. They are the result of selective breeding.

The Indian's story is the same. For 1000 generations they rewarded murder and horse stealing. The best murderer was made "chief" and many wives were bought by the best horse thief. The product is the result of 1000 generations of thieves and murderers. Like breeds like. The jails in the American West are filled with them. A wolf is "ravening" before he tears his first sheep.

You sound like a nice guy. I wish you well. But, in spite of your blond hair and blue eyes and sounding like a nice guy, you murdered a man. If you had not, it is likely your son will (if you have one), or his son. Like breeds like.

This is the reason the Law forbids the nation of the lawful from marrying the unlawful; "Think not that I am come to destroy the law or the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill (the Law). Math 5:17." "There shall no stranger (Heb: zûwr - racial alien) eat of the holy thing (the Law)." Lev 22:10. This is a statement of fact. If we do associate with the lawless the scripture states; "There is no hope: no; for I have loved strangers (Heb:"zûwr - racial alien), and after them I will go." Jer 2:25.

The next part is cut and dried; "But if ye will not ... do all these commandments; ... I will send wild beasts among you which shall rob you of your children ..." Lev 26:14-35.

If this happens and our children are caught and married to strangers the law requires this; "...If the priest's daughter (each of the lawful is a priest) also be married unto a stranger (zwer), she may not eat of an offering of the holy thing (one cannot mix unlawful with lawful). But if the priest's daughter be a widow or divorced, and have no child, and is returned unto her father's house .... she shall eat of her father's meat (repentance must be followed by action); but there shall no stranger (zûwr) eat thereof (statement of fact). Lev 22:10-13"

The greatest curse for us is this - to be forsaken by our God; "... thou hast forsaken thy people ... because ... they please themselves in the children of strangers." Isa 2:6 What to the willful stranger is mere amusement, is to us - death! The Law made our people. We are the product of the Law. The absence of Law destroys us.

You must find one of your own to marry. Your offspring will be like you. If you enter our nation you will bring your 1000 ancestors with you. To absorb you is to absorb your ancestors. Our nation will become like them, lawless. Scripture says that the Word is God. We will have violated and abandoned the Word. Once this happens we will be abandoned by the Word.

In the past many of our nations have abandoned the Word and been destroyed as a consequence. Many of our nations have been saved when the WORD sent the Phinheas Priesthood to end the problem. This is not a matter to be taken lightly.

The WORD and the people created by The WORD bless all. Protect them and they can and will protect you.

Chapter 189

FOOLPROOF SCHEME TO DESTROY A NATION

The enemy has recently kicked off a major media campaign.

The campaign now being waged by TV, Hollywood, magazines and newspapers is to make racial intermarriage socially acceptable.

God absolutely forbids racial intermarriage;

> (1) "Thou shalt not take a wife ... of the Canaanites ... but thou shall go ... to my kindred, and take a wife." Gen 24:3,4. (2) "We have trespassed against our God, and have taken strange (nokriy - alien) wives of the people of the land." Neh 13:23-27. (3) "They have delt treacherously against the Lord: for they have begotten strange (zûwr - racial alien) children." Hosea 5:7. (4) Ezra the priest stood and said "Ye have transgressed, and have taken strange wives ... now ... separate yourselves from the people of the land and from the strange wives ... until the wrath of our God (plague) for this matter be turned from us." Ezek 10:10-14. (5) "Neither shalt thou make marriages with them: thy daughter thou shalt not give unto his son, nor his daughter shalt thou take unto thy son." Deut 7:3. (6) "We have trespassed against our God, and have taken strange (nokriy: foreign, non- relative, alien) wives ... therefore let us make a covenant with our God to put away all the wives, and such as are born of them, according to the ... commandment of our God." Ezek 10:2- 3.

Intermarriage was the single most talked about subject between the years 1865 and 1940 since it lies at the heart of Christianity. Most states followed the public discussion and pre- empted the work of the Phineas Priesthood[1] with laws prohibiting interracial marriages.

After WW II, the media banned public discussion of the subject. The single viewpoint permitted was the one favorable to racial intermarriage. Propaganda, state-religion, judicial and political pressure joined to promote the dubious practice. All done in the absence of public debate.

The question asked is WHY? Josephus answered it more than 2,000 years ago. The answer is more devious than commonly thought. The following is taken from the writings of Josephus, the constant companion of yesterday's student of Christianity.

1 Numbers 25.

Balak's Plot To Destroy The Men[2] Of Israel

Balak hated the Israelites (not Jews), and wanted to destroy them. He went to the wise man Balaam for advice on how this was to be most easily accomplished. Balaam advised Balak, the ruler of the Moabites, that he must do the following in order to destroy the Israelites:

> "If you ... gain a victory over them (the Israelites, then do thusly)
> "Set out the handsomest ... of your daughters ... then ... send them to be near the Israelites ... and when they are enamored of them ... persuade them to leave off their obedience to their own laws and the word of that God who established them ... for by this means God will be angry at them. ... when Balaam had suggested this counsel to them, he went his way." Antiquities 4:6:6

The point made is that strangers, unable to destroy the Israelites openly, tried to make them violate God's Law against intermarriage. If they could be made to violate this law, it would anger their own God who had promised that he would destroy his own people if they ever intermarried with any other people. A remarkable plan, one diabolical in its simplicity.[3] The proof that the plan works is the fact that God's people have been destroyed in every nation where intermarriage with strangers has taken place.

The story continues. A powerful Israelite chief objected to being told what he could do and what he could not do,

2 Strong's Concordance, MAN - Heb: "Adam," to blush red

3 The plot was activated by merely bringing Israel in contact with strangers and letting nature do the rest.

and that he could not sleep with a stranger. And, so, he determined to do it anyway, which was rebellion against God the Word.

Powerful Israelites Rebel Against God

"Zimri, the head of the tribe of Simeon, accompanied with Cozbi, a Midianitish woman ... and being desired by her to disregard the laws of Moses (against racial intermarriage) ... by taking a stranger to wife ..."[4]

"When things were thus ... Zimri arose up ... and said '... Moses, thou art at liberty to make use of such laws as thou art so fond ... but thou shalt not have me one of thy followers in thy tyrannical commands ... thou deprivest us of the sweetness of life, which consists in acting according to our own wills.'" Antiquities 4:6:10[5]

The situation was thus. If Zimri were allowed to violate the Law of God unpunished, God would destroy them. If he were punished, God would spare them. It was a choice between life and death.

Certain of God's people fear God more than man. The next is what followed:

Phineas Acts

"Phineas, a man ... better than the rest of the young men ... was greatly troubled at what was done by Zimri, he resolved in earnest to inflict punishment on him ... to prevent this transgression from proceeding further,

4 A stranger doing the will of God will not attempt to enter into the congregation since the Law states "A bastard (mixed breed) shall not enter into the congregation of the Lord." Deut 23:2. Those who violate the will of God by trying are therefore not brothers.

5 So much for "freedom of choice" among God's people.

which would happen if the ringleaders were not punished ...

"So he came to Zimri's tent, and slew him with his javelin, and with it he slew Cozbi also.[6] Upon which, all those young men that had a regard to virtue, ... imitated Phineas' boldness, and slew those that were found to be guilty of the same crime with Zimri. Accordingly, many of those that had transgressed, perished by the magnanimous valor of these young men, and the rest all perished by a plague,[7] which distemper God himself inflicted upon them... . (Those) who ... had persuaded[8] them to go on (intermarry with strangers), were esteemed (considered) by God as partners in their wickedness ...

"This Balaam ... did ... suggest that advice to them, by making use of which, our enemies had well-nigh corrupted the whole multitude of the Hebrews with their wiles." Antiquities 4:6:12-13

The Phineas Priesthood Is Born

God rewarded Phineas for his act in this manner:

"Phineas ... hath turned my wrath away ... that I consumed not the children of Israel ... Wherefore ... I give unto him ... the covenant of an everlasting priesthood; because he ... made an atonement for the children of Israel." Num. 25:11-13

6 The story is repeated in the KJ Bible, Numbers 25.

7 The continuous warning is that PLAGUE is the greatest punishment for mixing with strangers. Plague kills many more than does war.

8 "If a false witness rise up ... Then shall ye do unto him, as he had thought to have done unto his brother." Deut 19:16-19.

Thus, the Priesthood of Phineas was born. It is the nemesis of evil doers. Owing its allegiance to God only, it cannot be bought, negotiated with, or deflected from its purpose which is to uphold the Laws of God.

To blunt its effectiveness, media policy reports only the evil doers' successes and Christian defeats. In this way they hope to generate a feeling of helplessness and hopelessness in the victim. Never, if they can help it, will they report the work of a Phineas Priest. Who would do evil if he knew others doing so were punished? Formerly, one evil doer could be punished and 100,000 would learn. That is no longer true. The punishment is not reported, and so:

> "Because the sentence against an evil work is not executed speedily, therefore the heart of the sons of man is fully set to do evil." Eccl 8:11

Evil doers, not knowing that others are punished, believe themselves protected and safe, and so they grow worse. Peace officers disclose that Westerners are the victims in nine out of ten interracial assaults. But, the media say that the least violent, the least criminally inclined people in the world, commit "hate crimes." "Hate statutes" now punish those who are least violent. Assault, rape, and murder are to be tolerated as the new way of life. The media protect their deception by censoring the victim's or his assailant's race.

The media dare not disclose the ongoing successes of the Phineas priesthood.[9] To do so would strike fear in the hearts of the enemies of God and cause them to stop their evil ways. The evil ones, not knowing that they are to be punished, continue. The media is therefore responsible for the ongoing violence, for the fact that the punishment of one evil doer no longer warns 100,000. Perhaps this is why the scriptures state that 2/3 will have to die in the last days so that 1/3 might emerge pure. One may rest assured that the Christian God will prevail, and that His priests will be in the forefront.

9 "Vigilantes of Christendom," the name of the writer's upcoming book on the subject.

Plague Comes From God

Each Phineas story dealing with strangers reveals that the plague is God's additional punishment. The inference is that whenever there is unlawful contact with strangers, as surely as night follows day, plague will punish both the offenders and those who allow the offense. Ignorance is not excused.

> "And the anger of the Lord was kindled against Israel ... and he sent a pestilence amongst them.

References to the plague being God's curse fill the scriptures, as are references of God's people desperately making amends to prevent it:

> "Get you up from this congregation ... and make an atonement for them: for there is wrath gone out from the Lord; the plague is begun." Num 16:45-46

Phineas stopped the plague:

> "Then up stood Phineas, and executed judgment, and so the plague was stayed." Ps 106:30

And in Josephus:

> "So he came to Zimri's tent, and slew him with his javelin, and with it he slew Cozbi also. ... and the rest all perished by a plague." Josephus, Antiquities 4:6:12

Strangers - Disease Factories

Because of their personal habits strangers were compared to dogs, wolves, or pigs. They, too, will eat anything and breed anything. They contract disease by their promiscuous eating and breeding habits and spread it to others. Strangers almost always have some special sort of disease that health authorities have to cope with.

Plague-type diseases in the West have ALWAYS started with strangers, and these plagues usually kill from 1/4 to 3/4s of the population. This is one of the reasons that Phineas punished Zimri and Cozbi.

Balik's plan to destroy Israel was diabolical in its simplicity and depth. Make available strange women to seduce the Israelites. This act violates the Law of God, and the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob will destroy his own people because he said he would.

This is the true plan of the enemy. It is the ultimate curse - to cause a people to be destroyed by their own God because they violated His Law.

JAPAN'S LOBBY: The U.S. government is not likely to do anything against Japanese trade practices. Two years ago Toshiba was heartily condemned by Congress for selling military electronic equipment to the USSR. Toshiba went to work. Its lobbyists now include former senior administration officials and congressmen. Toshiba spent about $30 million on the campaign. Last year Toshiba got a mere slap on the wrist. Their campaign paid off. No one has deeper pockets when it comes to influencing legislation in Washington than the Japanese. The day will come when the American citizen will be thankful for a bowl of rice, and the Japanese may choose to supply it with the help of American politicans.

ONE OPINION: W. Va. University banned sale of tobacco on campus in January. It has now approved the ban on smoking in all University buildings campus-wide, except residence rooms. At the same time the university doesn't dare question establishment propaganda.

The establishment erects an umbrella over the cow's head to take its mind off the wolves tearing its hind-quarters. Think "health through smoking ban." Don't think "prohibition of diversity of opinion." "Controversial" is the code name for the existence of a non-establishment opinion. Only one opinion is allowed on campus today dealing with matters branded "controversial." Pro-smokers have ruled for 400 years. Let's see how they make out now since the anti-smoking decree has been handed down. This "one allowed opinion" technique is historically used to rule conquered peoples.

PARA-MILITARY: A feature story on #5 French Television Network on April 3, 1990 showed para-military groups undergoing training in the vicinity of Paris. Their stated target were revisionists - those who expose falsified history. This is unusual. In France para-military groups are forbidden except for this Zionist group, and similar Zionist groups setting up in "Toulouse, Marseille, and Strasbourg and which have regular contacts with the Minister of the Interior." Le Monde, March 7, 1986, p. 8. Copied from The Zündal Report, April 11, 1990.

ED: In the U.S. nothing is said about Black and Black muslim para-mililtary groups in the Northeast and Midwest, Hispanic para-military groups in the West and Southwest, or Zionist para- military groups in the Northeast and West. At the same time almost half the states have laws against such groups, but they are enforced against White militias only. The same thing occurred during Southern Reconstruction.

OCCUPIED: "Dade County, Florida, school board interviewed applicants for school superintendent ... One of the applicants ... Paul Bell ... stated that there should be more Hispanic administrators. Hispanics make up 46% of Dade County public school students and 18% of school administraters. Bell ... also affirmed their support for bilingual education, and added that this means teaching 'Anglos' to speak Spanish. (Another applicant for the job stated that) 'for those who oppose it' (Anglos learning Spanish, they can move to) 'Broward County and elsewhere.'" Border Watch, May 1990, p. 5, AICF, Box 525, Monterey, Virginia 24465

UNDERGROUND? The World Press Review, p. 48, March 1990, carries an article quoting informers who said that Alfred Herrhausen, head of the Deutsche Bank, killed by a bomb last year, was the victim of an underground communist group of 300 in W. Germany.

ED: Communists kill a banker? Kill one of those who financed their rise to power? Get off it! Kill a preacher, sure. Kill someone who owns valuable equity, like a land owner or a factory owner, sure! Kill 'em to get rid of the owner and put the property up for grabs, but a banker? Come on now. The media immediately blamed the killing of JFK on the people of Dallas until the word got out that it actually WAS done by the fed-up people of Dallas, and then, two days later they blamed it on Lee Harvey Oswald, the communist. The media also first reported that the federal judges, who were recently slain, were killed by Colombian drug dealers, and that recent vigilante activity against anti-social elements in Ohio, New Jersey, and Texas was ongoing gang warfare, etc. Don't let the dog know that his bite hurts and then maybe he won't bite. A new age has arrived.

"INSIGHT Magazine joins the ranks with the latest establishment push to make interracial dating socially acceptable. On page 40 of their May 14, 1990 issue they show a picture of a prom with a young interracial couple dancing in the foreground. Also in the same picture is a double exposure of another view of the same couple taken as the photographer attempted to find just the right pose to convince the viewer that integration is "in." Insight's handling of this unscriptual scene is both unfeeling and anti-Christian. They should apologize to their Christian readers and run a series on the historic evils of mixed-marriage.

If they did, that could be dangerous. Corporate donors are required to support both Democrats and Republicans. There is virtually no support given the 3rd parties of the people. PISTOL PERMITS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: It costs $275 to have all the paperwork done and get a permit to own a pistol in NY City. The permit ads have gotten larger since the latest Central Park rapes. Many liberals who speak against private ownership of guns have permits and carry guns." G. W. - New York

ANTI-SEMITISM: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Newsweek, May 7, carried an article on 'New Fears of Anti-Semitism" in the Soviet Union. Question: Are we being psyched up for a new war, not against Communism but against 'anti-Semitism?'" C. B.

ED: Possibly. The establishment media have always charged the Soviets with latent "anti-Semitism" to justify existing Soviet laws that exclusively protect one single minority and mete out severe punishment to skeptics and detractorsss.

WORKING THE RAILROAD SCAM

Railroads

We took Rebecca to the train station. This is the daughter who had the accident. She has completely recovered and with a portfolio of carefully selected photographs under her arm is off to the city to join 10,000 others who are trying for a modeling job.

* * * * * *

It was 5:45 AM and semi-dark. The train station was shabby. Paint was peeling from the walls; weeds growing in the little grassy parks on both sides of the tracks that were so well-tended 40 years ago. Raw dirt from a fuel tank excavation done months ago lay as it was left. All but two windows on one side of the station were broken.

There used to be two railroad tracks entering the station. Now there is one. There were hundreds of yards of covered walkways covering the waiting platform on both sides of the tracks. They are gone leaving no clue that they had ever been there.

Why? What is the reason for this decay, this neglect?

Things aren't always as they seem. Part of the neglect may be due to the railroad's effort to win public sympathy to reduce state taxes. The high railroad taxes imposed by the State of Virginia is the thing that caused the disappearance of all of yesterday's numerous railroad structures.

Taxes have been placed on everything that a railroad has and they are raised to the limit in Virginia. Every inch of track, every foot of roofing, every building. To avoid these taxes the second line of track entering the station was removed. The walkways and unused buildings were demolished for the same reason. The assessed value of the station is kept at rock bottom.

Virginia hates the railroads.

Financing the Railroad

Virginia, and most of the states of the South, has a persecution complex. The reason is because they have been persecuted. The complex was created by the high tariffs before the War Between The States directed exclusively against them, and the looting done during the War; but nothing done before, or during, quite equaled what the railroad owners did afterwards.

Southerners who participated in the war were treated as war criminals and deprived of the vote; Blacks were franchised. The Blacks were the voting majority. They could vote for whatever they wanted and get it - whiskey, lavish homes, women - if it could be bought with money wrung from a conquered people, they had it.

Carpetbagger agents of the northeast financial interests came south to lobby the Black legislators to vote for their private ventures. Railroads were at that time their number one interest.

Bribed Black legislators of Southern cities voted for "needed" railroad lines. It was a boondoggle all the way. Ten million dollars might be voted for the project. The bonds might be taken to New York where they were sold to a bank for cash at perhaps 30¢ on the dollar. The opportunity was there for the bank to immediately turn around and sell the bonds to their customers for 60¢, or 90¢ on the dollar. A quick 100%-200% on their investment.

This left the promoters $3 million in the railroad fund before expenses. Expenses were high. They might constitute $1 million, leaving $2 million dollars. Half of the $2 million fell between the cracks and was never accounted for, leaving $1 million that might actually go into building the railroad line.

After this remaining $1 million was spent and a portion of the rail line built, this railroad construction was donated by the Black governing bodies to the railroad as a gesture of good will. The railroad proceeded to set the rates and schedules. This generous gift benefited only the masters of the carpetbaggers who owned the railroads and the rest of the railroad's stockholders who enlarged their railroad holdings at no cost to themselves. The carpetbaggers, the Reconstruction name for lobbyist, had done their job well.

A $10,000,000 bond issue carrying 10% coupons, due in 30 years, required the White taxpayers to pay interest of $30,000,000. At maturity date it cost $10,000,000 to pay the bond holders. Total cost - $40,000,000 - or more. There was nothing to show for the $40 million. There was one visible beneficiary. The railroad.[1]

This is why Virginia hates the railroads. Almost everything they have in the South was gained by what the old timers call "fraud." This is one main reason for the high taxes, why the stations look shabby. They exist only because of the blood, sweat, and tears of generations of Virginians.

The railroad scam, with variations, was used against the citizens of practically every state in the union. Most of the property that many of them own today was "donated" by "grateful" legislators in their pay.

Land Scam

The land-scam was highly developed by the 1830s. The technique was the same used in Europe to transfer land and wealth from its owners to the establishment. $10 was lent and a compounding debt of $11 was required to be repaid. The tidy foreclosed farms of Pennsylvania, New York, and New England were foreclosed and sold for top dollar to immigrant buyers who were encouraged to come to America just for that purpose.

In spite of media hype to the contrary, most immigrants of that period were far from penniless. Their photos show the quaint styles of the period, but close examination shows warm and substantial coats, hats, footwear, and clothing. Most of them were substantial farmers back home who had long saved for their own land and could make an impressive down payment on American farms that had been foreclosed in the great depression of 1837- 1842.[2]

Virginia farms and plantations were among the most highly developed and most desirable pieces of real estate in the world before the war. The war ruined trade, reducing revenues as much as half of pre-war volume.

Black rulers were elevated to rule and soldiers were posted to keep them there. Carpetbagger railroad and other pork barrel scams mushroomed debt. Farms were taxed to pay the debt. With revenues down and taxes up, foreclosures blossomed like flowers in spring. They took place by the tens of thousands. It was planned that way.

Carpetbaggers persuaded Black legislators to grant tax exemption to northeastern land companies. Then, as land agents, the carpetbaggers attended foreclosure sales buying farms for as low as 1¢ an acre. They accumulated millions of acres of prime plantation land.

Land Scam Worked Again

The Southern land scam continued the Pennsylvania - New England example. The immigration business was promoted to bring in new money and new owners. Good sturdy European farmers were willing to pay $100 an acre for land that would cost $2,000 an acre in their own native lands, and might have cost $800 or more in the pre-war South. The margin of profit on land purchased for as low as 1¢ an acre

2 If people believe disinformation about "penniless immigrants," they will never understand how so many could pay their passage and still afford to immediately move in and take over foreclosed farms. Many of today's Pennsylvania Dutch are descended from Germans who came in the 1830-1850 period to take over foreclosed farms built up by Germans (and British) of the 1740-1790 period.

was substantial - especially when made tax exempt by sympathetic legislatures.[3]

The land scam worked only partially.[4] Most of this cheap southern land obtained at bankruptcy sales could not be sold. It has remained in syndicate hands down to the present day. The reason? White European immigrant buyers DID NOT come to the South. The plan that had worked so well in the North fell apart in the South. The Blacks had learned the full extent of their power.

Tens of thousands of Southern Whites tried to escape the intolerable conditions in the Black-ruled South by moving West. This suited the Blacks who wanted ALL Whites to go, thereby converting the South into an all-Black nation like Haiti. What had been started as a simple land scam developed into Black policy. Whites must go - and this included the Carpetbagger agents of the northeastern money interests who began to be voted out of office and replaced by Blacks.

The Blacks adamantly refused to do anything to encourage White immigrants to come into the very region that Southern Whites were leaving. The Blacks wanted their Black nation in America.

This ambitious course caused a contest for supremacy between the Blacks and the land-grabbing northeast establishment. To gain allies against this new Black enemy which was upsetting the land deal, the establishment's media suddenly declared that the Southern Whites were "victims of an unfortunate misunderstanding." This happened in 1873. From this date the northeast establishment allied themselves to Southern Whites to remove the intransigent and rebellious ruling Blacks. In return for help in removing the Blacks from power they were to retain control of their syndicate land.

3 The falling out between the carpetbaggers and the Blacks is a story in itself and a full chapter is given it in the author's upcoming book, Vigilantes.

4 Immediately following the war Southern banks were closed and immediately reopened under new establishment ownership. The same went for formerly profitable, but then bankrupted, southern businesses.

Black rule was deeply entrenched. It took more than ten years to remove them from power. By that time the prime Southern farms and plantations had grown up in trees and a worldwide depression was under way. The time to sell for top dollar to immigrants from Europe had passed.

Still, the massing of tens of millions of acres of prime plantation land obtained for practically nothing, land which later grew up into hundreds of millions of board feet of prime Southern timberland, land that is now owned by America's great paper companies that are traded on the New York Stock Exchange, is one of America's greatest success stories, we are told.

UNFILTERED NEWS

FRAUD: Who will own the big stuff? The Tzar's land and the Church's land seized by the communists in the Soviet Union? Cozy property transfers at 3¢ on the dollar may disclose a payoff of those who financed the 1917 property seizure in the first place.

NAZI BASHING: "E. German leaders ... at the Soviet war memorial Wednesday night ... ... protest(ed)... neo-Nazism... the demonstrators included Gregor Gysi, the new Communist Party chief ... Last week, vandals painted Nazi slogans on the memorial to Soviet soldiers killed in Berlin in World War II ... The news agency quoted Gysi as saying ... 'we cannot tolerate any form of anti-Sovietism. Our land is in danger and it comes from the right.'" Spokane-Review Jan. 4, 1990, Spokane, Washington.

COURTS: "If the High Court's decisions are indeed the 'law of the land,' where is the legal authorization for such legislative activity? ... the Constitution states: 'All legislative power herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the U.S.'" The New American, p. 24, June 18, 1990.

KING: Arizona governor signed a "King Day" bill which cancels a referendum on the issue. Thus far, whenever the King issue has been presented to the voters it has been voted down.

MALE PROSTITUTION: A Navy computer expert organized a 39-state male prostitution ring. Clients and prostitutes included banking executives, a Cincinnati priest, and a police officer. The network included people from 39 states, two Canadian provinces, South Korea, and Guam. The police stumbled on this while investigating the death from a heart attack of its organizer. (From The Cincinnati Inquirer, May 14, 1990, A-4.)

AIDS COMPUTER VIRUS: A floppy disc claiming to predict chances of contracting AIDS contains an actual computer virus. The program was mailed to 10,000 people and has damaged large corporation computers. Most were sent to European-based corporations, banks, and universities. Chase Manhattan Bank received the disc at its British headquarters in Bournemouth, Britain, but claimed that the virus was detected outside the system so that it never got into their computers. The "sinister software" has a built-in trigger to activate the virus after so many uses. The virus destroys all information on a computer. The disc is said to be "a professionally-designed package" sent by a bogus company, PC Cyborg.

ED: Note the targets. Note also the claim that the virus did not succeed. In a similar case in the U.S. the IRS said that a virus sent to one of their branches did not significantly damage many of their files as the pipeline had reported. It would be interesting to learn just how badly these institutions were in fact damaged.

The Virginia Taxpayers Association recently complained that "the political process in our state has broken down ... hundreds of thousands of Virginians will hear no candidate discussion of any issue ... simply because there's no money to mount opposition campaigns ... With public esteem of Congress now close to an all-time low, it's clear many Virginians would scarcely have less say about government if we were living under communist Politburo rule rather than the present arrangement. Some voters are so disgusted they have stopped going to the polls altogether." VTP Newsletter, 5/22/90, P.O. Box 663, Lynchburg, VA 24505.

ED: The emerging political power in America has subtly shifted from traditional grass-roots "good 'ole boy" political organization to the media. As a result of the inheritance tax wealthy taxpayers are forced to set up trusts to avoid taxes. Banks are named to administer them. Half the corporate stock in America is held in trust. The stock is registered in the bank's name (street name) to facilitate dividend collection; etc. The banks vote this stock, thereby controlling most corporations - including newspapers. Using this control they can suggest which Democrat or Republican candidate the corporation should support, how much his campaign should get, and how much media coverage should be given. The result is public debate on trivial issues for public consumption and government rule without debate on essential matters. The result - thousands of newsletters and a cynical public.

SPEECH FREEDOM? The head of the program on interracial issues at Ausburg College sued Elroy Stock, a major contributor to that college, for emotional cruelty for mailing her a letter advocating racial purity. The suit sought more than $50,000 in damages. Stock admitted sending 100,000 letters to people across the country "to teach people that their racial and religious heritage was being destroyed." Excerpted from Star Tribune, April 21, 1990.

ED: This is the new establishment tactic. While whipping others with suits, they count on the victims being so cowered that they will not retaliate by filing the same kind of suit. Who has not been emotionally damaged by anti-Christian, unscriptural portrayal of interracial marriage and interracial sex on TV, in magazines, and in circulars? This is true emotional cruelty. It would seem that what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander. The courts are no good if they can't help, but if they can, they should be used to protect against harassment, lawlessness, and filth.

MEDIA COMPETITION: The WSJ, p. A15, May 24, 1990 carried an editorial commenting on the killing of seven Arabs and wounding ten others by one Ami Popper. The article went on to accuse the press of commending itself for promptly condemning the act while in fact they should have reported, "Popper kills 7 Palestinians, Then Army Kills 7 More, Wounds 700." The article goes on to list deliberate atrocities - the breaking of arms and legs of chained prisoners, the killings following outright incitement to violence by government leaders, and the wrist slap punishment following celebrations attended by high government leaders to honor the accused and his anti-Palestinian acts.

ED: Popper isn't news. The fact that both sides of the Palestinian issue are being reported is news. The WSJ has begun to produce its own "pro" and "con" on the Palestinian issue, thereby pre-empting hundreds of newsletters and small papers which have come into existence to report what they, and other media like them, haven't thought necessary to report these last 20 years.

It would seem that the WSJ would do the same about South Africa's "apartheid" problem. They should attack apartheid if they wish, but at the same time report that neighboring Black African states exercise an even more restrictive "apartheid" by refusing Whites the vote, political office, or ownership of property except when extremely proscribed. What about Israeli "apartheid" against Arabs? Why is the "anti-apartheid" campaign directed exclusively against South Africans while it is all right for others?

What about their support of anti-hate legislation directed against the American majority, and, at the same time not informing readers that the majority are victims of interracial assault nine times out of ten?

A cynic might accuse the Journal of being forced to report all the news to pre-empt competition, with an eye to returning to one-sided reporting once the competition was removed.

BANG! In April, 1990, a bomb inside an envelope addressed to "tax thieves" was sent to the IRS, but exploded among other tax returns in a post office in Royal Oak, Michigan. The bomb, a primitive device, was spotted as it began smoking among the other tax returns. One postal employee was injured.

REVISIONISTS are asking why there is no demand for Nuremberg-type trials for war criminals on the heels of another discovery of a mass grave containing some 16,000 German bodies near Bautzen in E. Germany. This is the third such discovery in the last few weeks. In Bulgaria another mass grave has been discovered, compliments of the Soviet occupation forces.

Well Mr. President - why no request for trials to clear the air and punish the criminals? How about it, media? Why no request for a Nuremberg trial? Could it be that such a trial might get out of hand and both media and executive might end up in the docket along with the political commissars of the Red Army, for complicity?

"Moscow ... has begun criminal proceedings against the extreme Pamiat (Memory) Society for inciting racial and national, hatred ... Pamiat calls for the 'de-Zionisation' of Soviet society. ... newspaper reports of attacks against Jews in Kharkov and a violent demonstration by Pamiat against Jewish writers at the Central Writers' Club." Soviet Weekly, reported in Soviet News & Views, March 1990, p. 7.

ED: Pamiat members remember that this group was responsible for furnishing a great many of the Bolshevik leaders who installed communism in the USSR, hence the name Pamiat (Memory).

ROCKETS: Iraq test launched a 48-ton rocket. Baghdad will soon join the dozen or so 3rd World nations to be armed with missiles. Iran and Syria have already deployed ballistic missiles, and last year Saudi Arabia bought missiles from China. Libya is also searching for a missile supplier, if she has not already found one. Argentina is Iraq's partner in rocket development. Brazil and India are also heavily into missile development.

ED: The establishment refuses to allow the West to develop anti- missile missiles, or to install bomb shelters. Both the Soviets and China have both anti-missile missiles and bomb shelters. The population of the U.S. and Western Europe is held hostage for their good behavior.

SOUTH AFRICAN EMBASSY in DC news release of March/April 1990 states that the White government will meet with Nelson Mandela (Xhosa ANC) and Mangosuthu Buthelezi (Zulu). They further state that (1) there can be no place for apartheid, (2) ALL South Africans will be full citizens, and, (3) the rights will be constitutionally protected.

ED: This official S. African news release confirms the plan to turn S.A. over to Black rule on schedule. "Anti-apartheid" talk is misleading. Black tribes don't share, they don't cooperate, they don't work together, they don't integrate - they exterminate! The sole concessions are being made by establishment-installed White leaders who are giving up White property and privileges along with the property and privileges of the Black tribes which are smaller than either the Xhosa (ANC), or Zulu tribes. While Mandella's Xhosa tribe has been tapped to rule, the traditionally fierce Zulu cannot be counted out yet. Unless the White Boers of S. Africa organize and enter the contest, one of the two major Black contending tribes seems sure to emerge as the dominant ruler of South Africa. When that happens it will only be a matter of time for the losers, and if the past history of Africa is a reliable guide - the price tag will be high.

LETTERS

BLACK PROPAGANDA: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Locally we have only 20% Blacks, but 60% of the pictures in the paper are of Blacks. It's as if our people don't count." S. O. - Florida

---

POTATO-HOLE: "Dear Dick: I was talking to a lady in Richmond who said your wife was a 'potato-hole Woodson.' What is that?" G. W. - Alabama

ED: Old man Woodson was killed in the Indian massacres of 1622. One of his surviving boys was hidden under a tub. The other in a potato-hole. She is descended from the latter, hence, that part of the family are "potato-hole Woodsons."

MONEY BAGS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Did the establishment finance the French Terror or Napoleon - which? J. C. - Florida

ED: Both. The problem wasn't The Terror, or Napoleon who suppressed The Terror, or the Allies which suppressed him, or the Bourbons who replaced him, or Napoleon III who supplanted them. The same establishment financed all.

The thing that made it possible was that Law violation was tolerated by Christians which allowed usury financing of all sides and resulted in the death of millions of men, women, and children.

REACTION: Preferential treatment shown minorities has triggered the formation of White student unions on college campuses. The first one was formed at Temple University in Philadelphia in 1988 and a dozen more are in the process of being organized. (Excerpted from Washington Times, p. 1, April 26, 1990)

KATYN: Soviet News & Views of May 1990, #9 announced Soviet responsibility in the death of 14,793 Polish officers who were shot after surrendering to Soviet Armies in April-May 1940. This is the first such admission by this Soviet- American periodical. The article goes on to say that the guilty parties - police chief Beria, Merkulov, and their aides were punished, all having been arrested and shot in 1953. The article reminds the reader that "Russians always treated Poles as brother Slavs" and that Soviets and Poles stood together at a Katyn memorial service and that military decorations were exchanged. Nothing is said of reparations to the families of German officers and soldiers who were tried and executed for the atrocity, or of trials for Soviet guards and other functionaries who may have been remotely connected with it. Such treatment appears to be reserved for defeated Western Christians.

HOW TO MEMORIZE THE COMMANDMENTS

Big Ten

I went to the Rocky Mountain Bible Retreat in Colorado to talk about Christian economics. It was crowded with hundreds of families, hundreds and hundreds of teenagers and children. The kids were well behaved and respectful; the people receptive and appreciative. It was fun, more fun than I have had in a long long time. There were almost all the different denominations represented from Baptist, Methodists, to Episcopalian, Church of Christ to Catholics and Mormons, and many in between. It seems that at last Christians have discovered something that they can agree on - obedience to God's Law.

Since I was one of the oldest, on the last day I was asked to give the farewell talk to send everyone on his way. The following was the substance of the talk:

The WORD

There is only one thing that we all believe in common. It is this:

> "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God (The Laws, statutes, and judgments), and the Word was made flesh and dwelt among us."

A king can only be known by what he demands of his subsjects. Whether he is fat or thin, short or tall is only of passing interest - when all is said and done, what the king requires of his subjects is how that king is known.

Our king requires obedience to 10 rules. Under these 10 Laws are the statutes which explain them and the judgments which hand out rewards and punishments for obedience or disobedience.

Let's refresh our memories so that when necessary we can repeat the 10 rules with confidence. They are the only rules that will count in the days ahead.

Let's start with rule #3.

3: Think of a merry-go-round that has three little horses going around in circles. Sitting on one horse is someone screaming profanities.

• 3 - DON'T TAKE THE LORD'S NAME IN VAIN:

In other words, don't ask for things forbidden. Don't ask God to overrule his law of gravity so that you can fly from an 18 story building.

4: Hold up four fingers. Move them from left to right. That's mama, daddy, and the children going to church:

- 4 - KEEP THE SABBATH.

That means - rest. Whatever you do - rest! That's what you are supposed to do.

5: Think of your father. He has a whistle in his mouth and is standing like a policeman. His hand is held out telling you to stop. All five fingers are outspread saying Stop. Jacob honored his father Abraham - Esau didn't.

- 5 - HONOR YOUR MOTHER AND YOUR FATHER.

6: Straighten the tail of the number six so that it looks like a hangman's noose.

- 6 - NO MURDER:

This says no premeditated murder - not no killing. God orders the death of those who commit premeditated murder and tolerates no excuses.

7: Turn the seven sideways and it looks like a key that goes into a lock. A key to a bedroom.

- 7 - NO ADULTERY:

This forbids adulteration of the marriage contract, adulterations of business contracts, and includes basic contracts with God such as the Law forbidding hybrid seed and racial intermarriage.

8: Number eight looks like a double oval window with a top part and a bottom part. Think of a hand reaching in through the bottom half and clutching a handful of dollar bills that belong to someone else.

- 8 - NO STEALING:

9: Turn number nine sideways. It looks like a spoon. A measuring spoon.

- 9 - FAIR WEIGHTS AND BALANCES:

No cheating:

10: Look down at your ten toes. They are cold. Reach down and pull up a cover.

- 10 - NO COVETING:

Don't let yourself covet cars, houses, wives, or anything else belonging to your neighbor. It is a cancer that will destroy you and those around you.

1: Hold one finger up - this is number one -

- 1 - LOVE GOD:

There is only one way that God says for people to love him - . "If you love me obey my commandments." Anything other than obedience to his LAW is ritual.

2: Visualize a two-masted viking ship. On the front of the ship is a carved dragon. The dragon reminds us:

- 2 - NO IDOLS

No idols. No substitutes for these 10 commandments. No modified list of God's LAWS that omit certain laws that keep you from doing what you want to do. Whatever ultimate authority a person obeys - that is his god. Make sure that your god is the WORD. Nothing else.

The Virginia Reel

The other night, after speaking, I was wringing wet. I walked out into the desert in back of the large meeting hall. In the distance I heard the faint buzz of voices - the sound of a fiddle being tuned. By starlight I walked until at last I looked down from the top of a sand dune onto tennis courts.

Under the floodlights on the tennis courts were lined up hundreds of quiet, foot shuffling, embarrassed grandparents, fathers and mothers, teen-agers, and children. They were waiting for the music to start.

There were two little blond-haired fiddlers, a girl age 8, and a boy age 11. These were not ordinary little fiddlers, these children had won fiddling championships all across the country. They stopped their tuning. An absolute silence fell over the crowd. Then the bows touched the strings and they began to play. The dancers were no longer self-conscious and embarrassed. They moved toward each other and bowed, and moved back again. Faster and faster they went. Everyone in step, everyone in harmony. The whole court had suddenly become alive with flashing whirling bodies.

Everyone was smiling. The bystanders enthusiastically clapped the beat.

The dance had started - everyone was dancing the Virginia Reel.

Our Mission

I can't tell you how much this impressed me. It seemed that this was a preview of our mission as we left and scattered over the nation.

God has given us the music in His WORD.

Like children, we are the fiddlers to play His tune in every city, town, and hamlet of America. It is our job to teach the steps of the dance.

In time, all over the nation, boys and girls, mothers and fathers, grandmothers and grandfathers, will gather.

The fiddlers will start.

And America will begin the dance.

But still, over the wild sounds of the Virginia Reel you will hear the faint strains of "Scotland the Brave" to remind us of our grandfathers who signed the Solemn League and Covenant with each other, to obey God only, and, as a result gave their lives obeying these same Laws, Statutes, and Judgments of our Lord and Master - Jesus Christ.

This is the reason most of us are here in this - His promised land. A land which God himself gave to us. A land which we will not give away to anyone else. God's land, our father's land, our land, and our children's land.

This is the prize that we intend to keep - and rule by His Law - Forever!

UNFILTERED NEWS

CHILDREN PROSTITUTES: My daughter joined the scores going to NY seeking a modeling job. She carried the high hopes of scouts, a picture portfolio, and the right introductions. Her meetings were courteous, and several put her pictures on file, but the standard reply was, "Sorry dear; You should have come last year. This is the year for 'ethnics'." This may have been a put-off, then again, this year may be the year for ethnics.

The single thing that impressed my daughter about New York was the large number of child prostitutes, ages 8 to 12, both boys and girls. Some were picture card beautiful. They would stand on a certain corner and cars would come by and stop, they would get in, and would be back in an hour or two. The policeman who patrolled that corner said that he felt responsible, but there was nothing he could do. If confronted by the law, both child and customer would deny wrong-doing. The thing most disturbing to the policeman was that every couple of weeks one of the children would disappear. He said he didn't know what happened to them, but he felt that they were being kidnaped and killed. My daughter said that this sight was the memory that she will carry of her trip to New York City.

SOLIDARITY: The NY Post noted in June 15, 1990 editorial that Nelson Mandela was scheduled to participate in an act of solidarity with the Puerto Rican nationalists who shot up the US Congress in 1954. Also invited to the ceremony was the Puerto Rican nationalist who attempted to kill President Truman in 1950. They noted that the organizers of Mandela's visit are undermining their enterprise by seating Mandela on a podium with assassins.

CREDIT SCREENING BOOM: "A boom in credit screening follows tight limits on polygraph testing that took effect last year." WSJ, p. B1, May 30, 1990

ED: Personal questions asked by polygraph interrogators caused polygraph banning. Industry is now at the mercy of nicely- dressed, well-educated, personable, unapprehended criminals. Intensive credit screening tries to weed out undesirables. It's better than nothing.

IRS PROTEST: "Kenneth White, VTA president, noted that this year was marked by near-record media criticism of the Internal Revenue Service including TV interviews with the author of an IRS horror-story book, 'A Law Unto Itself, the Geraldo Rivera show, Nightline, Roseanne, Money Magazine and a Richmond Times-Dispatch editorial warning that if serious IRS errors were not corrected 'Congress should consider putting a muzzle on some of the agency's police powers to protect taxpayers.' White added 'all these criticisms however have failed to report that persons in the IRS have actually been in violation of specific federal statutes, including Title 26, US Code, Sec. 7214 (extortion), title 18, USC, Sec. 1001 (false and fraudulent documents); Sec. 241 (conspiracy to injure, oppress and intimidate a citizen's constitutional right) and Sec. 1341 (mail fraud), and should be prosecuted therefor." Virginia Taxpayers Association, P.O. Box 663, Lynchburg, Virginia 24505, May 22, 1990

MANDELA: White House spokesman refused comment on reports linking the CIA to the 1962 arrest of Nelson Mandela. The Atlanta Constitution reported that a senior CIA official claimed credit for information that led to Mandela's arrest. The White House official protested that "Our attitude is one of total support." The source later said "I don't like it when people question our motives in regard to blacks." (Excerpted NY Post, June 13, 1990)

ED: Events have shown that the establishment would feed Mandela and all the rest, Black or White, to the dogs if it served their purpose. Blacks know this. While they don't like Whites, they don't like dancing on the end of the establishment's string either.

SCOTLAND FIRE: "The property of Count Adolf de Spoelberg, was destroyed by fire on Sunday 14 October. ... the house was unoccupied at the time. ... Count de Spoelberg lives at Black Corries Lodge, also in Glen Coe." Scottish World, p. 5, Nov. 1989, 305 Madison Ave. Suite 1166, NY , NY 10165

ED: I know nothing of this event or of Count de Spoelberg. I do know of a talk I had with a member of the Scottish Nationalist Party in Aberdeen in 1983. He complained that all of Scotland's land was in establishment hands. One could only build a house on land rented for 100 years. After that, the house and land reverted back to the land's owner. Most Scots, descendants of freehold Scots, live in walkup flats in the cities. The establishment-owned countryside is almost vacant. The Scot who briefed me said that there was a concerted move to burn houses of absentee owners. If absentee owners had houses and land scattered all over Scotland, and would not part with it at any price, and would not live on what they owned, they would not enjoy the ruins they found when they returned. The fire notice above may have nothing to do with this, but it reminded me of the story, and may also be one more straw in the wind.

ABORTION: The Supreme Court concurs in the banning of the Operation Rescue group blocking access to abortion clinics in NY City. This follows a similar ban in Atlanta, and other cities.

ED: This situation could turn nasty. One side charges restriction of trade. The other charges murder. Rough treatment of protesters by police including dislocated limbs and hair torn out by the roots has thus far not dissuaded them. It is feared that the ban may cause the protesters to go after more vulnerable and less painful targets. ie - clinic personnel. There is no way to protect all of them all of the time, and indeed, some of the police have been charged with turning a blind eye, while others are charged with sadistically enjoying inflicting pain on the protesters.

SEX DISCRIMINATION ABORTION: Already there are reports that children are being aborted according to their sex. Boy babies are preferred and increasingly girl babies are killed.

A head tax was placed on every Roman child at birth to help pay the nations debt. The tax was so heavy that girl children were exposed to the elements to die, leaving the boy children who were presumed to have greater earning power. "The more things change ... ."

GENETIC TESTING: The Wall Street Journal, B1, July 9, 1990, carried an article on genetic testing which states that the carriers of Down's syndrome, sickle-cell anemia, cystic fibrosis, Huntington's disease, hemophilia, Altzhimer's disease and many others, may find employer resistance to hiring in the days ahead because of possible costs to industry.

FLUORIDE: "Fluoride is a cancer-causing agent. Various agencies of the U.S. government, in collusion with the American Dental Association have been working to prevent the results of a study linking fluoride and cancer from becoming public knowledge. In 1977, studies showed that fluoridation was linked to about 10,000 deaths yearly. ... It is also responsible for 40 million cases of arthritis, dental deformity in 8 million people, and overall 10,000 unnecessary deaths every year." Spotlight, Feb. 19, 1990, copied from C.V. Report, #29, NSW, Australia

FOOD BASKET POISON: Iowa farmers were warned for the second time this planting season not to use well water poisoned by nitrate fertilizer. It causes blue baby syndrome. (Excerpted from the WSJ, p. 1, May 30, 1990.)

PAMYAT: "A Pamyat leader asserted recently, those 'hidden Jews,' seeking to attack Russian culture from the inside are the nation's most dangerous enemies. ... Economic collapse seems imminent ... We listened ... to fears of famine ... Russians ... desire to find a scapegoat. Inevitably, the old belief in the Jew as the source of the Russians' troubles has re-emerged. ... Seemingly sophisticated and sensible persons asserted that Jews had been responsible for the terror-famine in the Ukraine ... That Lazar Kaganovich, a member of Stalin's Politburo, was a Jew proved the Jews' guilt.

"A leading figure ... Igor Shafarevich, a close friend of Alexander Solzhenitsyn ... has popularized the term 'Russophobe' as a codeword for Jew. ...

"Valentin Rasputin ... just appointed to Mr. Gorbachev's Presidential Council, stated that the Jews 'killed God' and and were responsible for the October Revolution and the mass terror that followed it. (New York Times Magazine, Jan. 28) ... anyone who opposes these views is condemned as a Jew whether or not he is Jewish. ...

"Things are falling apart inside the Soviet Union ... let us hope that the intended victims are able to escape." [Excerpted letter to editor New York Times, May 27, 1990.]

ED: It is naive to think that all of a sudden certain Soviet writers are allowed to turn anti-Semitic. Why haven't certain U.S. writers suddenly turned anti-Semitic? Simple. In the U.S. it is not allowed. In the Soviet Union it is. There it is now state policy.

The Soviet banking system, the Gosbank, is a virtual carbon copy of its American Federal Reserve counterpart. It, too, receives its orders from the overall World Usury System. The Soviet Gosbank rules the USSR under the World Usury System just as the FR rules the U.S.. Anti-Semitism is tolerated because the Gosbank has received orders to that effect. It, in turn, instructs the Soviet government to use its press monopoly to publish the required articles.

The question is - WHY? Why is anti-Semitism state policy in the USSR after 70 years of suppression. Could it be that the Zionists want new colonists for the Israeli state? Possibly. To provide new colonists for the U.S.? Maybe. But, certain suspicious Soviet minds believe that after the Russophobes are gone, an unpleasant surprise might descend on the Russians who remain.

ABC BREAKTHROUGH: Host Sam Donaldson of ABC featured as guest Fred A. Leuchter on "Prime Time Live." Leuchter was introduced as the world's foremost expert on execution methods including gassing. Readers will remember that the Leuchter Report was an on-the-spot investigation of the Nazi concentration camp's so-called gas chambers where millions of Jews are supposed to have been murdered. The investigation found no trace of poison gas. Holocaust critics have long maintained that the Holocaust was actually a holohoax. Just as the Katyn massacre of Poles, complete with fake pictures, is no longer blamed on the Germans, but the Soviets. The Holocaust may soon be accepted as a wartime tale told once too often. ABC spokesmen may be trying to bail out while they can.

But while one story is ending another 50 year old atrocity has come to light. The recent book, Other Losses, reveals that there were in fact death camps. It is charged that a million German POWs died in American and French camps after the war was over. The evidence offered is convincing. Investigations should be conducted immediately and if the charges prove true, those responsible should be punished.

HOMOSEXUALS: Alfred Kinsey reported that 9% were exclusively homosexual. Tom Smith, sociologist at the U. of Chicago, did a survey which shows 5-6% bisexual with only 1% exclusively homosexual. Monthly Aids Update, June 1990, p. 8, Box 14488, Augusta, GA 30919.

RIGHT WING VIOLENCE:"Escalating right-wing violence threatens to postpone negotiations between the ruling National Party and the ANC ... leading to black majority rule." Detroit Free Press, p. 3a, May 30, 1990.

ED: The media doesn't state what constitutes "right wing." More S. African Blacks are opposed to Mandela's Xhosa tribe ruling South Africa than there are Whites opposed. The present deaths are the result of the Xhosa Black vs. Zulu Black struggle for supremacy. Little of the background is reported by America's anglophobe media.

CHRISTIAN BUYERS: Freddy Jackson of Fairfax, Virginia has opened a "Christian Members Buying Plan." The Anglophobe ACLU and ADL say that Brown Lincoln-Mercury discriminates against non- Christians. Virginia's Attorney General said that the plan apparently did not violate state or local law. Jackson admits business has improved.

Three years ago, In Pensacola, Florida, Jerry Harrison, an Exxon station owner, put up a sign reading, "For Christians Only: 10% discount on labor." The ADL complained to Exxon, and the company asked Mr. Harrison to take the sign down. Mr. Harrison removed his original sign but replaced it with "10% discount For Those whom Jesus Loves." (Reported in the NY Times, May 27, 1990, p. 23.)

WATERING HOLE: In parts of the Sahara, natives, to take deer meat with little effort, bait them by uncovering ground springs. Deer congregate at the uncovered water hole. The spring is then poisoned and the deer harvested.

Conservatives, tired of media lies, misstatements, and blackouts, travel far to find acceptable alternate media. Alarmed at the defection, the establishment has launched a number of slick pseudo-conservative periodicals. Printing conservative news available nowhere else, backed by superior financing, these organs often offer a product containing more news for the money. They wean away conservative readers. In two or three years, after having won their confidence, they gradually poison the water by introducing self-hate to poison the reader's mind against his own people.

Beware the poisoned spring. Avoid drinking at a waterhole that has a strange taste or strange tracks around it.

BOYCOTT: Five years ago we predicted that anti- communist El Salvador would remain under the gun for not quietly rolling over and turning the wealth of the nation over to the communists.

The Daily News of June 20, 1990 reports that Red Apple and Gristedes supermarkets will remove Folger's Coffee from their shelves for two months because Folger's buys 2% of their coffee in El Salvador, and that nation is accused by the liberal press of supporting right-wing death squads. Left-wing death squads were not mentioned.

PASSION PLAY: "This year the traditional German passion play at Oberammergau, Germany has been revised: There have been "40 pages describing major changes in costume, sets, and text. The American Jewish Committee, the Anti-Defamation League, and the National Conference of Christians and Jews were instrumental in removing images ... considered anti-Semitic. ... What the playgoer can expect this year is a play that emphasizes Jesus' Jewishness and that of his followers. ... The retention of the 'blood curse' is very problematic ... that's the phrase that says 'his blood' meaning the blood of Jesus - 'be on us, and on our children.' That has been taken to mean that the Jews are cursed ... . The Bible verse is quoted only once in this year's drama ... and only on the condition that a five-page explanation stating it does not apply to only one race and summarizing its role in perpetuating anti-Semitism be printed in the text which playgoers purchase to follow the German-language play." Chapter 192

by

Dr. Ed Payne, Reflections On Medicine Newsletter, Box 4009, Martinez, GA 30917.
March 1990. Copied with permission.

"There are two primary relationships between men and women ... marriage and the brother-sister relationship ...

"Dating is neither one nor the other. The determining factor about dating is its purpose. The intimacy of dating advances it beyond the brother-sister relationship, so the purpose relates to marriage ...

"You may object that the dating relationship can remain on the ... brother-sister level ... after two people 'break-up' ... Such belief ... shows a naive understanding of human nature. Friendships, if they have any substance at all, grow and develop. Between a male and a female it ... eventually generates sexual attraction ... Countless testimonies illustrate this fact. ...

"The progression may be one sided ... The only safe assumption is that all men and women must avoid as much as possible, any situation in which one man and one woman are alone together or work together on a regular basis. ...

"All should seek to prevent ... the 'natural' result of a man and woman who are alone together, especially on repeated ocasions. ... 'Going steady', being 'pinned', or some commitment other than engagement is blatantly out of place ... . Only two outcomes are possible: They eventually marry, or they break up. Most do not marry ... Any pledge ... short of engagement (which should have virtually the same commitment as marriage) is a mockery ...

"The total intimacy of marriage cannot be approached in dating. Problem-solving in this relationship does not have the pressure or the constancy of marriage. Being comfortable with, and being intimate, are entirely different relationships. And, social skills can be learned in ways other than dating.

"The negatives of dating are considerable. Two young people are placed alone together, usually with long periods of unstructured time. After going together regularly, they develop a strong affection for each other. It is only natural that this affection be demonstrated by physical contact. The more time alone, the more opportunity to express these affections.![1]...

1 If young women knew just how easily and strongly young men are aroused, they might be much more discreet and careful!

"To place two young people alone on a regular basis ... is to invite disaster, one of which may be unintended pregnacy. That is not, however the only possible disaster. Sexual intimacies in dating will be a serious problem for future spouses.[2] ...

"Because dating carries such peer pressure, alternatives must be sought. Group activities must always be the pattern. Pairing off, on the way to or from activities should be discouraged and prohibited ... The dangers of dating must be taught in a way that clearly presents personal vulnerability ...

"Youth are generally segregated from adults. Attempts should be made to include both groups in various activities ... everything from 'Trivial Pursuit' to 'square dancing' ... Most important would be the agreement of a core group of parents who see the dangers of dating and resolve to minimize the problems. Then, the 'everyone else is doing it' carries no weight for the teen-ager. ...

"There is little of sound value in dating ... there are ... some potentially severe problems. A peer group of 'non-daters would decrease the pressure to date. Parents would have to provide the social activities that seem necessary to keep young people occupied and interested.

"When should dating begin? ... it should not begin until a person decides that he or she does not have the gift of celibacy and that his or her situation is more or less compatible with marriage (regular job, most or all education finished, a job that does not require frequent travel, etc.) Dating should be the final stages to get to know some one better in order to consider marriage.

"Complications of dating are more prevalent than they should be. Parents of teen-agers and young adults are not fully aware of this problem. ... We need ... to give a message to the world that dating and its problems are avoidable. Illegitimate pregnancies that could end in abortion rarely occur within chance acquaintances but do occur among those who date regularly.

"Pro-life people propose an incomplete answer to the problem of illegitimate pregnancies by legislative action and even crisis pregnancy centers when they fail to acknowledge and teach prevention, that is, the problems and evils of dating. Sadly, they often allow the possibilities of illegitimate pregnancy within their own families.

"We will have little impact on the world until the change begins with us.

ED: I agree 100% with Dr. Payne. Raising six children has shown me that nothing good can result from dating until the child has reached maturity and is ready, willing, and able to marry. That means - able to take on the responsibilities of an adult. It's time to stop the kids from playing house and allow "grown-up marriages", complete with its responsibilities and privileges.

Anything else is playing with fire.

COMMUNISM'S COLLAPSE

by Ernst Zundel, Canada's first thought prisoner.

"Communism collapsed chiefly because it became a victim of its anti-nature policy of 'genocide against the talented ones.' Communism repressed and killed the independent thinkers and innovators because they instinctively knew that they would become dangerous to the ruling gangster oligarchy.

"Those who were shot, tortured, or worked to death or broken spiritually or physically did not and could not reproduce! ... What is missing is the offspring of the intelligent, the creative, the ruling elite. No amount of western aid, money or technology can bridge that gap. ...

"The building of elites is a very slow and tedious process that spans centuries. Soviet bullets snuffed out the lives of millions in split seconds that had taken nature generations to build.

"Now nature confronts the same murderous system with the results of its criminal policy. ..." Zundel Report, August 3, 1990

UNFILTERED NEWS

MANDELA: According to the communist Peoples Daily World for May 31st, Mandela has just been awarded the 1990 Lenin Peace prize.

NEW ZEALAND: After nationalizing the phone, petroleum, steel, and insurance companies belonging to private individuals who had earlier refused to sell, the confiscating government now is selling these same companies to financiers who earlier wanted to buy them but couldn't. This piracy is called "privatization" and is standard operating procedure when the government is bought and paid for and is the enforcing arm of special interests.

ARGENTINA: Argentina's stateowned telephone compnay was recently "privatized". Now, all eyes are on the state owned oil and gas monopoly confiscated earlier from private owners as they in turn are being prepared to be "privatized" to others than their original owners.

NOREIGA: According to the NY Post of June 9, 1990, a Miami federal judge dismissed Noriega's challenge to US jurisdiction, his claims that he couldn't be prosecuted for activities outside the US, and, as a head of state that he had immunity for his actions.

ED: The U.S. is making the scumbag Noreiga look like a GOOD guy. The U.S. kidnaped him - a foreign national - after breaking down the front door of his country and killing hundreds of innocent men, women, and children. The U.S. then installed its own puppet governement. Now, Noriega has been taken out of his own country to a foreign land (the U.S.) and under foreign laws is being tried before a kangaroo court where conviction and punishment is certain. This makes Noreiga's drug hustling look like the acts of a boy scout, assuming, of course, that the U.S. isn't lying about this, too.

NOTE: Today's news reports that the drug charge is being dropped and is being replaced by "money laundering". How about "littering" or "reckless driving"?

DISARMING? Defense secretary Cheney ordered the AF to remove all short-range nuclear missiles from alert status because they might accidentally explode. This affects about 1000 missiles on three types of intercontinental bombers. Safety concerns center on the danger that the missiles contain highly volatile rocket fuel which could catch fire and possibly explode scattering plutonium. Other warheads including the types used on the Trident missile and nuclear artillery shells based in Europe are under review. NY Post, p. 2, 6/9/90

ED: This is an addition to the recent unilateral disarmament treaties. What will the U.S. fight with if the USSR gets back on her feet and decides that the U.S. is the bad guy after all? What if there is another "bad guy" out there?

MOSQUE: A $50 million mosque with a 136 foot minaret will be finished by year end to serve New York's swelling Moslem population. NY News, March 28, 1990.

MEDIA REPORTING: The announcer said, "In S. Africa, a white supremacist yesterday stated that that there may be increased violence." Then in the next breath: "Two bombs went off killing two Blacks and wounding others." The announcer linked by association the events to condemn Whites. "Supremacist" is an anti-White slur. Slander and vilification follow. The audience is supposed to assume that Whites had set the bombs which killed the Blacks instead of the more rational assumption that the deadly feuding between the Black Xhosas and Zulus is more likely to blame. Whites defending themselves would logically direct their attention against renegades and false witnesses instead of Blacks who are only doing what they are encouraged to do by the establishment.

HAS IT STARTED?: Last year one of my son's college friends was driving through Roanoke with one of his friends. They stopped at a traffic light. A carload of Blacks, accompanied by a lone White, drove up, pulled them out of their car and beat them with steel reinforcing rods and baseball bats. Their faces carry the scars.

This last weekend, another of my son's friends with four companions, while in D.C. to see the museums, were set upon by three carloads of Blacks and severely beaten. All required emergency room treatment. Neither of these two incidents was reported by the media.

At Virginia Beach, small groups of Whites are set upon with such frequency by mobs of Blacks that the media has been forced to report it. It is almost a daily affair. The merchants complain that it is bad for business.

Nine out of ten interracial attacks are strangers attacking Whites. Whites are the most gentle race in the world. Their crime rate is among the lowest, if not the lowest. Still, a venomous Saxophobe media portrays them as hate filled and the cause of every confrontation. "Hate Laws" are being passed to punish them if they accuse anyone of mistreating them.

GRAVEYARD NAMES: "The Israeli military has cut back on medical care to Palestinians to such an extent that Arabs are suffering adverse effects and in some cases, death. ... dying Arabs have been turned away from the hospital door. ... horrified Israeli doctors .. have begun to give the Palestinians the names of dead Jewish patients." Cutting Edge.

TUTU: Bishop Tutu, well known South African Black Anglican Bishop, member of Africa's Xhosa tribe, recently met with Jewish leaders in Cincinnati to "patch up differences." Tutu, like Joseph Mandella, won their displeasure by favoring a separate homeland for Palestinian Arabs. The

S. African Xhosa organizion, the ANC, has black leaders friendly to Arab causes. But, the ANC has a Jewish leader, Joe Slovo, who is not. Thus, the U.S. backs pro-Arab ANC Xhosas, the Arabs throw rocks at Jews, the Jews attack black ANC Xhosa leaders who have a Jewish head for their pro-Palestinian stand. The White S. African leader deClerk has deserted his white constituants to ally himself with the Xhosas. The S. African Whites he abandoned are becoming friendly with the Zulus. The Zulus and the Xhosas are killing each other at an astonishing rate. The question foremost in the State Departments mind is simply - how can they turn South Africa over to the communists by getting a Black/White race war started if they can't get all this mess sorted out and stop the Blacks from killing each other? Things are tough all over.

THE PRICE: Articles are appearing more and more frequently in the NY papers about children who refuse to go to school because of fear of assault, rape, and murder. Children also fear walking the streets and the newspaper stories are full of incidents of kidnapping and murder. It appears that the replacement of Christian Law with Lawless statutes is not working.[3]

LAW: The wholesale repeal of Christian Law is making the country uninhabitable for Christians. A jury without the "Law in their hearts" cannot be expected to dispense justice. Strangers are certain to misrule. The choice will soon be -

3 "If ye will not ... do all these commandments; ....I also will do this unto you; .... they that hate you shall reign over you ... I will send wild beasts among you which shall rob you of your children ... And I will make your cities waste." Lev 26:14-35

Law or Lawlessness. Survival or extinction. It will be the day of the warrior.

MARCOS: Implicit in Washington's removal of the Marcos family from the Philippines was a promise not to subject Ferdinand and Imelda Marcos to criminal prosecution. The U.S. once again lied.

CONSERVATIVE ADVICE: A conservative newsletter recently copied the advice given to successful left wing organizations years ago and passed it on to its own supporters:

"No more parades, please. Six or seven recently attracted publicity and caused their own side to be ridiculed. When the foe cannot see you, does not know what you are doing, and frightens itself with its own imagination, you are effective. Unseen, invisible, silent. It must either be that again or the flag should go back into the glass case in the museum where it can be respected in memories. Tight small cells ... infiltrating every other organization around ... quietly doing their work of altering such groups' courses to suit themselves and their own objectives." From The Mountain, June 26, 1990

LOOKING ON: Ed Koch, colorful Jewish ex-mayor of NY City, in his NY Times article of March 18, 1990, took Black muslim leader Farrakhan to task for Farrikhan saying that he had been informed by a Jewish film producer that there was a Jewish conspiracy to achieve world dominance.

This is not more quibbling between Jews and Blacks. It is basically Islamic law vs. Talmudic law. Any agreement between the two will be temporary and passing. The differences that remain are basic and permanent. Each contestant would like to use the other for his own ends, but each knows that in the end there can be no compromise.

POET: Israeli-Arab poet, Shafik Habib, was placed under house arrest to await trial for publishing poems about the Palestinian uprising. NY Post, p9, June 20, 1990.

LAVENDER LIGHTS: It was planned for the Empire State Building to be decked out with lavender lights to honor homosexuals, both male and female, on June 22-24.

HOMOS: "Jim Johnson ... offers a chilling review of the 'gay' nineties ... once civil rights demands are met .... it will be against the law to say anything against homosexual activity by anyone because that will be a crime of hate. To teach anything other than accepted homosexual theology will result in the loss of nonprofit tax exemption." The New American, p. 44, July 30, 1990.

FBI GAY: A gay FBI agent in San Francisco has sued the FBI charging that it irrationally bans homosexuals and plans to fire him. The man had done counter-intellegence work and wishes to resume his job.

GAY STUDDS: Rep. Gerry Studds, publicly confessed homosexual and Massachusetts member of congress, was beaten on a Washington street corner by two men. They knocked him to the ground and punched and kicked him. NY Post, p. 11, June 9, 1990.

WARFARE EVOLVES: Kifah Ghalib, Palestinian guerrilla unit leader, was shot shortly after midnight in his own Palestinian Lebanon refugee camp by assassins armed with silencer-equiped pistols. News, Aug 5, 1990, Lynchburg, VA.

DISABEDIENCE: The New Testament has been translated into Mongolian.

RKH: (1) "Give not that which is holy unto the dogs." Mathew 7:6, (2) "It is not meet to take the childrens's bread, and to cast it to dogs." Math 15:24, (3) "There shall no stranger eat of the holy thing." Lev. 22:10, (4) "When the tabernacle is to be pitched ... the stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death." No 1:51, (5) "These twelve Jesus sent forth, and commanded them, saying, Go not unto the way of the Gentiles, and unto any city of the Samaritans enter ye not: But go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel." Math 10:5,6.

The translator, an Englishman, has a Mongolian wife. "From the lawless comes lawlessness."

"OUTING": The homosexual magazine Outweek identifies homosexuals who would prefer to remain hidden. The theory is that it is great to be gay - so why hide it? The disclosure has stirred up a hornets' nest as Fran Lebowitz, author of two books, complains, "To me, this is a bunch of Jews lining up other Jews to go to a concentration camp." NY Post, p. 6, June 19, 1989.

ISLAMIC UNITY: "Iran's spiritual leader called the stationing of US forces in Saudi Arabia an 'insult' to the Moslem people of that country." Investor's Daily, p. 1, Aug 16, 1990

ED: Iran is the recent enemy of Iraq.

RESTORED?: In the Soviet Union it has been suggested that the long list of Soviet exiles being restored to rights of citizenship and good graces include Alexander Solzhenitsyn.

LENIN: The Soviet communist party appealed to the Soviet people to stop vandalism on statues of Lenin, founder of the Soviet union. Monuments have been destroyed in dozens of town while in some of the Soviet republics the statues are being dismantled by legislative decree.

TRUCE OF THE BEAR:

"When he stands up as pleading, in wavering, man- brute guise,

"When he veils the hate and cunning of his little swinish eyes,

"When he shows as seeking quarter, with paws like hands in prayer, "That is the time of the peril - the time of the Truce of the Bear."

Rudyard Kipling

SPORT: Lynchburg police captured two Blacks from Washington who had been driving through White neighborhoods shooting Whites with silent highpowered air guns. Found in the car were bombs, black powder and fuses. Lynchburg News, A-5, August 4, 1990

BANG - YOU'RE DEAD: In nearby Rustburg three students have been expelled for bringing pistols to class. Lynchburg News, p. B-3, August 10, 1990

MOSCOW BOMBS: Soviet police defused a bomb attached to the bottom of a car with magnets. Similar bombs are being used in Ireland, supposedly by the IRA.

JFK - ANOTHER CLAIM: The son of a Dallas police officer said that his father was one of three who shot Kennedy in 1963 on CIA orders. Arizona Republic, 8/6/90, copied from Daily News Digest 8/15/90.

CIGARETTES: "NJ Supreme Court ruled that warnings on cigarette packs don't protect tobacco companies from liability lawsuits." WSJ, 7/27/90

HARD-LINERS: "American communists are taking a dim view of the increasing number of Soviet revelations about genocide and other crimes ... the Communist Party Peoples Daily World, suggests that such disclosures ... only serve to hurt the cause of international socialism." The New American, p. 44, July 30, 1990.

EQUAL: "The Ohio Civil Rights Commission has determined that city of Cincinnati hiring practices violate state affirmative-action guidelines ... The city's affirmative-action goal is to reduce the number of white males to 38.6% of the work force. The Cincinnati Inquirer, D5, July 4, 1990.

SOVIET NEWS & VIEWS: The July issue of this monthly communist magazine will be its last. I'm sorry to see it go. It was slanted to Red views, but was by far more truthful and straightforward than the reporting of the average establishment paper in the U.S.

WHY FIGHT IRAQ

The letters congratulating War Cycles/Peace Cycles for its 1985 projection that the next place of world conflict would be Islam and South Africa are appreciated but unmerited. That's the way the system works.

Here is the scenario:

In March 1965, twenty years before WC/PC was published, the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace published its report, Apartheid and the United Nations. In this report it was recommended that the UN should go to war with South Africa.[1]

1 Please note the name of the report. It may better have been entitled in liberal-speak "Peace Group Opts for War," or "The Fight For Peace".

The report said,

> "We shall analyze three general categories of action, a show of force, a naval and air blockade and direct military intervention. We shall also look briefly at what might be involved for any military forces being utilized by the United Nations in a period of direct UN rule."

The blockade envisioned required 50 to 60 warships including destroyers, submarines, three to five aircraft carriers with suitable support vessels, and 300 aircraft of fighter and reconnaissance capability.

Direct intervention and the conquest of S. Africa required another 200 frontline aircraft, 200 transport planes, 30,000 men for amphibious assault, 3,000 men for air assault, a reserve of 300 more planes, 60,000 more troops, and 117 additional warships and transport vessels.

Casualties would be between 19,000 and 38,000 killed and wounded. This does not include the S. Africans killed or wounded.

In politics nothing happens by accident. Things are planned - they are made to happen. The invasion plans against South Africa were formulated in 1965 at the very time that South Africa was the stalwart ally and friend of the United States and the West, and the media darling.

Evil Genius

Everyone believes that somewhere an evil genius lurks. The someone who plans wars, massacres, and death camps, sometimes twenty or thirty years in advance. Stories, such as the one above, lend credence to that view. To calmly plot a war that is to take place at a time in the distant future requires a truly homicidal type who will hire like-minded people to work for him. People with no conscience at all.

People can never agree on his identity. He is never mentioned by the media. His (or her) crimes are studiously overlooked by the pulpits, ignored by politicians, and remains invisible to exposé newsletter writers who wish to avoid trouble by collaborating, and perhaps getting a share of whatever there is.

One Dollar Gift

This lending business is important. If one understands this - no other explanation for South Africa or Iraq is really necessary.

Ever stop to think why banks have insisted that state legislatures pass laws so that unclaimed accounts containing $1 that grand-dad set up for his grand-daughter when she was born will revert to the state after ten or fifteen years? We are told that it's because of the paper work, or, because there are starving Eskimos at the north pole who can use that dollar to buy food. But, is that the real reason? No indeed! Not a lick of truth to it. Let me tell you the real story, although it's sort of like locking the barn door after the horse is out - and I mean the horse is really out. The following is one explanation about how it all started.

A Quarter For The Kid

In 1655, Oliver Cromwell let the international bankers into England. They had been banned since 1290, but they promised to be good and do him a favor by lending him a few thousand pounds at 10% for letting them in. He needed the money, so he did. They didn't even require immediate repayment. "Regular fellows" - easy to work with.

The tale goes that while Cromwell was in the bank one day making out a money order for some of his relatives in America, he opened a "savings" account, as an afterthought, for his little niece Prudence. This account paid a guaranteed 10%. Not being a big spender with his own money, he put a quarter in it and sent the pass book to her mother to keep for her until she grew up and went to college or something. It's the thought that counts!

Like little girls the world over, little Prudence was not impressed with 25¢, especially in a bank account over in England where she couldn't get it to buy candy or something. So, she put the passbook in a secret drawer in her dresser and forgot it. Dressers back then had secret drawers.

In 1990, the dresser was a real antique and was still around. Everyone said it came over in the Mayflower.[2]

Anyway, when she was eight years old little Prudence (this was little Prudence 12th) was fooling around in the dresser and discovered the secret drawer holding the passbook belonging to her ancestor.

Not much money, but she took it down to the bank to get the quarter for a jaw breaker.

The teller smiled when he saw 25¢ deposit made back in 1655 and indulgently took it over to the machine to automatically compute the interest. The machine jammed.

2 If all the furniture that is said to have come over in the Mayflower was shipped back to Europe it would take an 80,000 ton Queen Mary three trips to get it all back.

She called the bank manager, Joe, who came over and he too jammed the machine when he tried to compute the totals. Joe then sat down and did some fast computation with the bank's personal computer, and what he saw was enough.

He then called little Prudence XII over and said to her - "Little girl, you are the queen of the world. The banking system, of which this bank is part, owes you;

$18,386,096,562,268.61

That's $18 TRILLION DOLLARS plus a few odd hundred billion, and thats more than the world's worth."

To show that he really knew what he was doing he continued, banker style, not knowing when to quit:

"The annual interest comes to $1,838,609,656,276.86, or, if you prefer, $5,037,286,729.53 a day. That's FIVE BILLION DOLLARS and change. This is what interest on 25¢ will do for you if you keep it in the bank long enough."

Little Prudence clapped her hands. She always wanted to be queen of the world.

Not knowing much about money, little Prudence hired Joe the bank manager to be her agent, or actually, prime minister, since a queen needs a prime minister to run things for her. She played in the yard of her home and he ran the world for her and explained things to her that she didn't understand. Queens don't have to understand everything, you know.

Putting Others To Work

One day Joe went to see little Prudence and while they were playing on her see-saw Joe explained that they would have to get the president of the United States to go to war against somebody. Little Prudence was only eight and didn't understand about such things, so Joe explained that the country was running out of money.

Little Prudence wanted to know why they didn't use some of her's. She had more than $18 trillion dollars. Joe patiently explained that the $18 trillion was the money that the banks and the people owed her. If they had money - they paid her. If they didn't have money they couldn't pay her, and then she wouldn't have any money either.

Little Prudence then said that since the U.S. government owed her a lot of money, and since most of the politicians worked for her,[3] why couldn't she just tell them to make some money and give it to everyone who needed it - like herself, Joe, and some other nice people.

Again, Joe patiently explained that one of the reasons they wanted to go to war was to provide an excuse for the government to borrow money from her banks - not to make money themselves - if they did, the government and the people wouldn't need her banks any more. If they didn't need her banks, then she wouldn't be queen and everyone wouldn't work for her, and Joe wouldn't be able to take care of her banking business and give her extra candy when her mother wasn't looking. That was one of the main reasons they were paying politicians - to keep the country from printing its own money which would keep her from being queen and put Joe out of a job.

Even little Prudence could see the wisdom of not letting the government make money if it meant that they wouldn't need her banks to lend them money and she wouldn't be queen. She liked being queen. Joe like being assistant queen, or manager, or prime minister - whatever.

3 "The borrower is slave to the lender." Prov 22:7

Where Money Comes From

Little Prudence then wanted to know that if she was the richest person in the world, but only had IOU's and no money; and if the banks she owned also owned lots of IOU's but no money, where did money come from and where did it go?

"People try to pay off their IOUs so they don't owe any money and they can't do it.

"The reason they can't do it is because our banks lend $10 and make borrowers repay $11. Once they pay the $10, that pays off part of the debt[4] and then they have no more money, BUT, still owe $1. AND, since they now have no money they must come back to our banks and mortgage more and more property to borrow again and again so their debt gets bigger and bigger and when they run out of property to mortgage, we foreclose and take everything they've got. The people can never pay it off and escape. Neat, huh?

"Their IOU's and their foreclosed property are why you are so rich. You own all the people who owe you. You own them all, and in time you will own all their property. The money isn't important - except when you have to buy something to eat - like now."

4 A $10 payment cancels a $10 IOU, and - poof! Both $10 and the $10 IOU disappear - leaving the $1 debt and no money to pay it.

To a banker the answer was simple. Actually, the little queen didn't understand a word of it. No one ever does understand what a banker is saying. But she knew this much:

"That doesn't sound very honest to me."

Joe, stung to the quick, replied:

"So, it's not honest - it's legal!"

"We've paid good hard earned money to politicians to make it legal, and now they TAX everyone who says it's NOT legal. How's that! Even preachers agree that it's legal. No one ever says one word against it.[5] We are strictly legal, and that makes us honest. The government says so, the courts say so, and we've got sheriffs and soldiers to make it stick. We're protected all around."

Little Pru didn't quite understand this either. But if Joe said so, and he was a banker and made his living doing this sort of thing, it must be so.

"Well Joe, about this war, why do we need a war."

"To make people borrow money into existence when they don't want to borrow - money that everyone needs." Joe explained.

"The people are already in debt. They don't have any more debt free houses, factories, or land. They can't bring us deeds to debt free property so that they can borrow new money into existence. What we MUST have are new debt free borrowers. If we can get a war started, the government can borrow money into existence by issuing their own IOU bonds. That helps, but the country we go to war with - THEY will have to go to their own banks to borrow money into existence to buy guns and ships and planes to defend themselves - and you own those banks, too. After all, no one questions where money comes from."

"Well, if you say so." Said little Prudence. With whom should we go to war?"

"Well, Japan, Germany, Korea, Vietnam, Grenada, Afghanistan and Panama have already been used. How about South Africa and Iraq. They are mostly debt-free. They have debt-free property to mortgage and are able to borrow a lot of money into existence to keep the world money system supplied with money for a long time. If we work it right, like Vietnam, we can string it out 20 years or more. After all, the plans were made back in 1965 and are still good. It will give us the money we need to buy you a swingset to go with this see-saw. The new swingsets are a lot more comfortable."

"Little Pru clapped her hands in glee.

Conclusion

So you see - there is an evil genius - an evil genius that plans to envelop the world in wars, death, and destruction.

The question - who is it?

Is it

(1) the Carnegie crew who planned the S. African invasion so many years ago, is it

(2) Joe the banker, whom people secretly suspect is part of a Jewish conspiracy? Is it

(3) little Pru, the eight year old secret ruler of the world? Is it

(4) the dastardly Oliver Cromwell who started this whole mess with his 25¢ gift at 10% interest? OR, maybe - just maybe - could it be

(5) the system of interest itself?

Until people find the correct answer among the five suspects, and do something about it, we can confidently expect that liberation wars against the evil South Africas and Iraqs of the world to force them to borrow money into existence will continue indefinitely. Or, until the Johnnies, Fritz's, Abduls, and Gooks who fight these wars are all used up - whichever comes first.

As Joe explained to Little Prudence,

"Read my lips, we're strictly legal, we're right, and we've got to look at the bright side. At least, for now, money is once again beginning to be borrowed into existence. Happy days are here again for as long as they last, and you get your swingset!

"Oh Goody!" said little Prudence, as she thought of her new swingset. "I always wanted a new swingset."

Chapter 194

THE STING

Blackmail

Industrial spying, international espionage, and political arm-twisting are done by securing tractable political allies, recruiting compliant agents, securing the services of submissive employees in the camp of the competition.

The key word - one that is never spoken in polite Western society is - "blackmail". Brought to a high art in Communist countries, half the population is blackmailed to make them inform against the other half. In the West, much of the population is "persuaded" in the same manner to cooperate with authorities.

Stripped of decorative verbiage, most corporate, political, and government persuasion is accomplished by blackmail, and blackmail is blackmail the world over. The essence of blackmail is to catch someone violating a social taboo, or catch or trick someone into violating a government statute that carries a hefty penalty - and withhold punishment in exchange for co-operation. It is usually very inexpensive and highly efficient.

I was a competition pistol shooter in the service. I still enjoy the excitement of standing in a line of shooters banging at targets, hearing the sound, smelling the powder, and enjoying the camaraderie. This has been a lifelong interest of mine, although the youngsters nowadays beat me badly.

Recently, I overheard a local politician talking to a friend. The politician had been offered a free .45 automatic pistol by a well-wisher who lived out of state. He was delighted. I know the feeling. Each .45 pistol is different. Different trigger squeeze, different patterns at different ranges - different all around. Pistols have personalities of their own.

He expressed his pleasure to a fellow shooter who was a gun shop owner. The gun shop owner was appalled! He said that that would be committing a felony to receive the gift in the mail from out of state.

The politician didn't know that! Neither did I.

To be legal the person making the gift had to send it to a registered gun dealer in Virginia who would register the gift and then turn it over to the one it was supposed to go to. Receiving it directly from the sender would put the one receiving it in deep trouble with federal authorities.

Recruiting Informants

Another friend, a law enforcement officer, told me that the gift offer had the appearance of being a routine sting operation. "Routine" in that such things were going on all the time. He went on to say that stings are constantly in progress and are directed at anyone who may be of some future use to the establishment.

It may come as a surprise, but it seems that stings at times are directed at those who support the establishment as well as those who oppose its policies. ALL people are fodder for its machine. The establishment has no "friends" - only compliant servants - and anti-establishment people are caught and used to report on groups that keep secrets from the establishment, or merely to set the stage to use the organizations for establishment purposes. This last is especially effective when officer(s) of targeted groups can be compromised.

Congressmen, the leaders of the country, are common targets. Unable to stand ANY adverse publicity, many can be easily caught and instantly transformed into avid supporters of key establishment policy to escape exposure and resulting media smear and prison. A sting involving supposed Arab sheiks showed how easy it is to trap large numbers of them at one time. Holdouts, such as Congressman Hanson, go straight to jail. The few, like Senator McCarthy, who can't be caught in wrongdoing, had to be blitzed by a full media campaign. It would have been far simpler if they could have been neutralized by being photographed with a prostitute, taking a payoff, or dealing dope, or helping a "friend" with an illegal favor.

Farm Loan Sting

Once before, during the farm protests in 1985, a lawyer "friend" from out of state frantically called saying that I had to drop everything and go to Denver. There multi-billion Arab oil money men were meeting with American farmers to make no-interest loans just to help fight the present Federal Reserve monopoly of usury lending.

Fascinated by billions of dollars, and knowing nothing about Islamic no-interest money lending, I was eager to learn about the concept. However, three decades of being sold economic packages by the best in the business caused me to sense something that didn't ring true. At the last minute I backed out. Those who didn't were mostly farmers unsophisticated in economic matters who are still in prison. It was an an anti-farm leader sting and it worked wonderfully well. Ever wonder why there was no farm protest as farmers were losing their farms as in former years? Many of the leaders were in jail. The lawyer still touches down with me on occasion. He's just doing his job. I wonder what they've got on him?

Judging by my own experience, it must be easy to persuade targeted people to violate some statute they know nothing about. Once they have broken the law they may then be given a choice - if they are the kind who can be persuaded to be cooperative.[1]

The Handler

An-FBI agent (and his counterpart in other Federal agencies) is portrayed as a crisp clean cut chap whose job it is to uphold the laws of the country.

Actually, most of his time is spent recruiting (if you want to call it that), handling, training, and directing a vast army of blackmailed agents who, when and if needed, are set to work against others. His job load remains bearable only 1 Order members who considered themselves POWs and refused to cooperate have been given harsh sentences up to several lifetimes. If they had not been motivated by principal and had informed on their fellows most would likely have received a slap on the wrist.

because most sting secured agents remain inactive until a need for their special services arises. Then they are given instruction, training, and are directed to the selected target.

Wherever FBI agents have operated for a time, they have no difficulty in activating scores, even hundreds, of law violators as agents who must go and do whatever they are ordered to do, or face the consequences.

A friend of mine, himself an ex-FBI agent, resigned from the FBI years ago because, as he told me, his whole life was made up of informants, dirty information, dirty incidents, and corrupt social types. The association was influencing his personal life and his home life and it wasn't worth either the money or the personal price that he was having to pay. This is one man's opinion.

Many FBI handlers pay a frightful price for doing this work. Over the years most I have seen have developed a hard, sour, cynical outlook on life that carries over into their private lives. The sharp clean cut exterior demanded by the agency often hides pent- up feelings that can explode wildly in diverse things like a private gun battle in Lynchburg in his home with a daughter's suitor, consorting with whores and being recruited as a Soviet spy, or being charged with possible implication in the disappearance of millions of dollars of operating funds secured by The Order in their operations against the establishment.

An attorney friend told me that to help secure sting-agents - petty, frustrating, make-work laws are often encouraged. These laws create thousands of outlaws the instant they are passed. The establishment can then pick from among the new violators and choose those they want to become agents in exchange for non- prosecution. The result is a harvest of white collar sting- operatives - accountants, lawyers, doctors, judges, and government servants.

Conspiracy Sting

The new establishment catchall toy is "conspiracy". Conspiracy is the ultimate state crime. It is a thought crime. You don't have to do anything, you just have to be guilty of thinking it. Thinking will send you to prison. First touted as the cure for mafia crime and drugs, it is commonly used to imprison pro-life pickets and anyone who can't be gotten by any other means.

A preacher may get upset and say that the president and the whole congress ought to be taken out and hanged for giving away taxpayers' money or for allowing the U.S. to invade a foreign country. If the listener in the congregation does not stand immediately to contradict this statement; both he, everyone else in the room as well as the preacher, may be accused of "CONSPIRACY to overthrow the government of the U.S." That was the reason for the Fort Smith treason trials.

If the powers that be want to make something out of the preacher's remarks, they can. Maybe not today, or next month, or even next year. But, when conditions are right the statement on file can be brought out and brushed off. Sting-agents can be activated who will swear to whatever they are told to swear to, and the case is on. The charge - "conspiracy".

Protecting Establishment Agents

To avoid having their informers discovered, the establishment sharply curtailed most lie detector tests. Such tests are now strictly regulated. Voluntary "stress tests" to check employee reliability are now administered, and must be re-administered frequently since loyal employees can be turned into sting induced disloyal ones from one week to the next.

Precautions Against Informers

Palestinians, to protect against a cloud of Israeli controlled Arab informers - simply kill them. The Order, discovering an informer in their midst, is said to have instantly executed him. In both the foregoing cases, informers were looked upon as a death angel.

Short of such extreme measures, which certainly do not seem appropriate at this time, a few words to the great number of ordinary citizens who wish to avoid the unpleasantness of the everyday sting:

Avoid like the plague those with a questionable past. Those who have committed murder, rape, aggravated assault, deal dope, skim money, etc., have more to lose than someone with a parking ticket. They are easier for the establishment to catch and work with. The largest number of establishment sting-caught informants come straight from the gutter and not only would they implicate you in something you aren't even involved in, they can be personally dangerous.

Personal Habits

The personal habits of the recruited violent criminal are often as repulsive as his crimes. Particularly, beware foul smelling, cursing, drinking, converts to God and country.

Beware those who suddenly appear from nowhere and decide that YOU are his ideal. With a finger on the tape recorder in his pocket he will record your answer to questions he has been instructed to ask so that they may be later spliced into a tale that even your wife would not recognize - but a cherry picked grand jury might. That same grand-jury would certainly believe a story of a plot to overthrow the government when presented with evidence of an arsenal that illegally arrived through the mails.

The Christian is trained to accept what may be a ring of gold from among the flotsam and jetsam of humanity. Today, that pearl may have an implanted detonating device. Beware not only the gold ring in the pig's snout, but beware ANYONE who does not have your standards.

All the infiltrators that I have learned about have a simple plausible story which could not be investigated for one reason or another. Past activities often were said to have taken place in a distant state.

Anti-sting activities can begin by noticing idle people around with no visible source of income and no visible reason for existence. Every county has one or more. They are often either handlers or just permanent establishment watchers.

Among those with whom you are thrown in contact, notice little things, what one eats, drinks, if they wash their hands. The types to avoid are often incredibly grasping and greedy, even while presenting an ivy-league front. To them, tithing is incomprehensible. If they say they tithe - watch what the tithe goes for. In manner, most can't help but be agreeable. They don't really know enough to disagree.

Most avoid deep conversations that could blow their cover. When the knowledgeable person arrives - the sting has pressing things to do elsewhere.

His prominently displayed Bible may carry the price tag and have the pages stuck together. He may not enjoy what he is doing, but it is either that or jail for him. He is deathly afraid of his handler sending him to the gang rapes and beatings of daily prison life.

The Establishment's Slave Army

The establishment has it all and they spend enormous sums to keep it. They intend to keep it. They have recruited a vast army of unwilling slaves - victims of past sting operations.

Watch the newly arrived who hangs on your every word and asks little beyond worshiping at your feet. Be a bit suspicious. Most people aren't that good, that smart, or that wise. What can this person get from you that he can't get on his own with a little study?

If he asks you to mail a package for him - be fairly certain that on the way to the post office you will be stopped, and guess what will be in the package? Guess what the establishment newspaper will say about the whole thing? Who will believe you after the establishment newspaper is through with the incident? This may then be your turn to be offered some sort of "arrangement".

Notice how certain great conservatives in the past have suddenly given up the fight, or switched sides on major issues. Were they convinced that the other side had the right answer? Were they just tired of fighting, just burned out? Maybe. Perhaps they were stung. It is always interesting when one of our red hot conservative politicians, papers, or organizations suddenly cools for no apparent reason and no longer puts up the good fight.

The Plan - The Solution

In the days ahead the establishment will doubtless do what works elsewhere - try to sting half of the population and get them to inform on the other half.

The Communist world has gone through it - it is now our turn. If you set your standards where they should be, and are willing to die for them, make sure your acquaintances feel the same. If they do, you should have little to worry about.

Few things in this world are free - least of all freedom!

EISENHOWER: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I am incensed over the possibility that the Dulles International Airport might be renamed after Eisenhower. I for one remember Ike's relentless and unnecessary destruction of French cities before D-Day 1944, his violation of the Geneva Convention and murder of war prisoners. He was not a gentleman. We don't need his kind remembered!" W. H. - DC

BOTH SIDES: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: How can the lender make money when he lends to both the victor and the conquered? The conquered must default because he can't pay and the lender loses his money." G. W. - Washington

ED: You miss the point. Money is not important to the one who owns the money machine. More money can always be lent into existence. Usury is the machine, the master - not wealth. Land, gold, cars, houses, children. They may be considered only wealth. Money can be borrowed into existence using this wealth as collateral. The usury contract of 10 for 11 will in time ensure that everything the borrower has will belong to the lender. It may take five years, ten, fifty, or 100 years.

In a war where both sides borrow from the same usurer at interest - both are slaves to the lender. The vanquished suffers today - the victor tomorrow. The trap is time - time and compound interest. Using the usury contract - all wealth returns to the lender. Beware the usurer.

EURO: "Dear Sir: What about the European Economic Community? Do you think Euro-currency will replace the dollar as the world reserve currency? I use your newsletter quite often as a basis for my Sunday School lesson." G. A. - California

ED: Usury, the forbidden system, in time causes money to gravitate to a single place. Whoever holds most of the world's IOUs also rules the world. "The borrower is slave to the lender." Prov 22:7 No one knows who the ultimate lender is and can only guess at his strategy. He might be a drunk. He might have syphilis, gonorrhea, or/and have AIDS dementia and be out of his mind. It's not something we are permitted to vote on. If the ruler goes really nuts and decides to destroy the U.S., he could use the world's armies against us. He could send America's armies into a far desert, and then send the world's hordes against a defenseless America. He could drive the U.S. dollar value down to 1¢ causing depression and starvation, and then bring the world's armies here.

Would he remove the dollar as backing for Europe and Asia first to protect that part of his empire? Possibly. His hirelings undoubtedly know a trick that we don't. Right now his system works perfectly - for him. "If it aint broke, don't fix it." As for his being crazy? - yes! I really believe that logically there is an ultimate usurer who is the world's ruler, and if lack of conscience and concern for the suffering he causes is the same thing as "crazy", yes, I believe he is crazy.

BRUCE PIERCE: "Dear Mr. Hoskins; Just finished Vigilantes Of Christendom. Well done! In your next printing I would appreciate it if you would change 'Bruce Pierce was persuaded to testify against himself... ' to; 'Because the FBI threatened to charge and incarcerate my wife and put my three children in foster homes I was left with no choice but to make a statement against myself.' The use of the word 'persuaded' does not represent what transpired. When a man's family is threatened he feels he has no choice. And, 'testify' carries the stigma that I got on a stand in court which I never did. This is a sensitive subject with me. A matter of honor." Bruce C. Pierce - Former second In Command, The Order, Marion Prison.

U.S. INSTALLS PUPPET RULERS

The WSJ of August 16, 1990 reminds us that the CIA in 1963 gave full backing to the Baath Party in Iraq and installed Saddam Hussein as the 'good dictator'. The CIA also went to great expense to maintain the exiled Ayatollah Khomeini in Paris for years while the CIA installed Shah ruled Iran.

A U.S. encouraged revolt in Iran against the CIA's own Shah forced him to flee to the U.S. where he died of cancer. The CIA then dispatched one of its own Air America planes to fly the Ayatollah from Paris to Iran to take power. Once installed, the Ayatolla dutifully attacked the U.S. and became the U.S. media's "bad man".

Iran's U.S. installed Ayatollah then fought the U.S. installed Hussein of Iraq for 8 long bloody years with Iraq using Soviet equipment, and Iran using up the Shah's massive stockpile of American equipment, which was continuously maintained through the conflict with spare parts surreptitiously shipped by Reagan's administration to Iran via Israel while all the time all parties concerned stoutly maintained that they hated each other.

The president of the Philippines, the U.S. backed Marcos, was persuaded to leave on a U.S. Air Force plane following a contested election in which the U.S. media supported his opponent, Mrs. Aquino. He was confined to Hawaii, U.S. territory, where he too, died of cancer. His widow was hassled in court and then released with charges dropped and wealth intact. Collusion rumors abound.

Think about it. Israel, who once launched a "preventive strike" against Syria's nuclear reactor, has long been after the U.S. to fight their Arab enemies for them. Their amen-corner in the U.S. echoes this desire. To comply, the U.S.'s "good guy" Hussein, the man who can't breathe unless told to, becomes "mad man" Hussein (that's what the media actually calls him) because he invaded Kuwait. In righteous indignation over this despicable act, good guy overnight becomes bad guy, and the U.S. sends a half a million man army to occupy oil-rich Saudi Arabia to confront the sworn enemy of the Israelis. All this without a single American soldier having been killed in battle. The stated reason? To "protect" the world's largest source of oil from "Mad Man Huessin."

All agree that the nation which controls the world's oil supply rules the world. What a coincidence it is that America, the nation which has aided in establishing every communist regime in the world, and has participated in installing in office almost every Arab leader - now surprisingly finds herself in control of the world's oil.

Viewing the situation, The Virginia Taxpayers Association commented, "Regarding war with Iraq ... a House Banking Committee hearing on Oct 16 confirmed that 3 billion of U.S. government money was laundered through the Italian Banca Nazionale Del Lavoro in Atlanta in the 1980s which actually paid for the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait. The fact that no federal or state bank regulators acted to stop these massive unauthorized loans to Iraq, at a time when these same regulators were zealous in curtailing legitimate loans to the U.S. corporations and real estate borrowers, has to be suspicious. ...

"On July 25, only a week before the invasion, U.S. Ambassador April Glaspie told Saddam Hussein that 'the U.S. took no official position on Iraq's border dispute with Kuwait. ... two days before the invasion, Assistant Secretary of State John Kelly in congressional testimony confirmed the message to Saddam. ... When asked ... if the U.S. would come to Kuwait's defense if it were attacked, Kelly replied; "We have no defense treaty relationship with any (Persian) Gulf country.'"[1]

If one were a cynic and kept track of what is going on, the Mid- East appears to be a staged soap opera. The cast hired by the same casting company which also engaged the principal players in the Philippine comedy and also the South African tragedy. This last named show needed to have some differences resolved between the principal actors before returning to its Broadway run. The Black prima-donnas were using the spotlight to air their internal family squabble, a no-no in show biz.

All the while, the TV commentator stands on the edge of the stage just as the readers did in the old days to read the plot so the world audience will have some notion of what to make of it all.

Kuwait is playing now, but it isn't the only show in town. It does, if properly managed, give promise of eventually taking in one of the biggest gates since WW II. It may even end up like the profitable long drawn out eight year Iraq-Iranian affair to add realism while at the same time helping the world's economies borrow money into existence to keep things going. Somebody's got to do it. Properly done, the run could last a long long time like the Vietnam show, with offensives going in circles, loudspeaker warning of attacks to come, strategic targets placed off-bounds, and the Iraqis somehow still getting enough war material to look believable and keep up their end of the thing. After all, according to Keynes, war borrowing is the best ingredient for business.

The Mid-East show has a darker side. A serious side. We remember that one of the Christian crusades launched against Islam to secure the Holy Land was strangely mis-directed into a wasteland in the Mid-East where the entire army, without water and resupply, died almost to a man. That army was almost as large as our army now in Arabia. It's not like we haven't had it done to us before.

Think! If we wanted to invade the USSR we would most certainly feign weakness, disorder, and collapse. If the Soviets were stupid enough to believe it, we would then persuade them to move their army thousands of miles away from Europe and the USSR to clear the way for an invading American army. On the other hand, if they wanted to invade the U.S., what more could they want than what they've got? They have at least as much sense, and many more sympathizers in our government to help them do it.

DIXIE NATIONALIST: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I belong to the Southern Nationalist Party.[2] What Dixie needs is her own nation." B. D. - Georgia

ED: As time goes on I believe you will find that the "Dixie" you seek is not a place, it is where your people are. Dixie was a dream that God would not allow. God blessed her - farms handed down for generations, chivalrous brave men and beautiful women, churches and a Godfearing people.

But she tolerated evil in her midst:

1) Strangers in the land:[3]

2) Strangers who ruled over her in the very highest echelons of government,[4]

3) Land monopolies - ten farms were combined into 1,000 acre plantations,[5]

4) Wealthy priests and wealthy churches,[6]

5) Wealthy kings and rulers,[7]

6) The usury system was tolerated.[8]

7) Taxation of her own people,[9] was tolerated, and,

8) "False witnesses" of the media were tolerated, who told lies and untruths to encourage war with their own.[10]

If the South had won the war she would have institutionalized these offenses against God and would have taken them into God's Promised Land to foul the nest. The people must be cleansed - first! They wander in the wilderness waiting to be cleansed for as long as it takes, THEN, they may enter into the Promised Land. To those whom much is given much is required. Until God's people learn to obey.[11]

Choosing to sacrifice rather than obey - she threw the carcasses of her sons and husbands on the altar of "honor". Look at the pictures of the heaps of slain at Gettysburg and Cold Harbor. The 3,000 graves at Lynchburg, 20,000 at Richmond, 30,000 at Petersburg. Look at Arlington! Look at Chateau Theiry and Iwo Jima. Look at Stalingrad! See? The sacrifice. Next to obedience our own bodies are all we have - and it isn't good enough. These sacrifices will stop only when we, the custodians of the Law, obey, and stop the violations which is war against God!

THEY know! This is why "The enemy is eager to destroy all that call upon the Lord. For he knoweth that upon the day that Israel shall repent, the kingdom of the enemy shall be brought to an end." Book of Dan 2:16-17.

Dixie, that promised land, remains a dream forever across the river under the shade of the trees. Like Virginia, it is a state of mind. Your enemy seen before your eyes is not the Yankee. His enemy was never Johnny Reb. The Yankee didn't win the war. He was tricked into helping to push you off your land, and now he too has been pushed from his. Both have been punished for not obeying the Law. The Rebel the more because more had been given to him and more was expected of him. With eyes wide open we both willingly stacked our own bodies and the bodies of our precious sons on the carcasses of our idols and raised not one finger to obey God.[12] God rejected our sacrifice. Obedience, not sacrifice, is the thing required. God punished our toleration of evil.[13]

No longer is God fooling around. To whom much is given -.

"Dear Mr. Hoskins: How reliable is the Gospel of Philip?" R. D. - Missouri

ED: Pass everything through the filter of the Law. If it goes through, keep it. If it doesn't, remember, many of these old manuscripts have been copied and re-copied scores of times. A future discovery of another manuscript of the same writing may clarify it. In the meantime, eat the meat and spit out the bones. God and his Law never change. Count on that.

ASIA: "Dear Dick: American-Asian trade has surpassed American- European trade. Will Asians take over world leadership in the next century?" M. E. - California

ED: Things aren't as they seem. Japan lost WW II. Her banks and most of her large industry were compromised. Japan is a horse driven by world usury banking. Asiatics are by breeding oftentimes smart, but lawless. They don't trust each other or anyone else, which is why their society requires consensus on everything. It works for them, but is oppressive and stultifying. Their technological advances will continue as long as Christianity is suppressed[14] to permit Western concepts to be fed to them by world finance. When the influx stop - they will again freeze in time - locked at each other's throats. It all depends on WHEN the teachings of Christ will be freed from those who are tax-exempted to suppress them. The war is here - not there. The real enemy is of our own household who adulterates the Law for a buck, a hireling that looks like you - not someone who wears a beenie or has slant eyes. If the Law were loosed the stranger wouldn't be here - which is the reason for the big push to suppress it.

IRAQI WAR: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: This war may become a zinger. Today I spoke to a reservist who is being called up in mid-January 1991! PUBLIC SCHOOLS: Dear Mr. Hoskins: There is an ongoing unreported race war in the Atlanta public schools. Blacks, Hispanics, and Orientals vs. Whites. Four white students are believed to have been killed and the schools were closed for one day to permit a cooling period. Police patrol every school." H. R. - Georgia

ED: Lynchburg public schools this past month has had its first rape and the second discharge of firearms. The carrying of weapons by Blacks is reported to be widespread. It's becoming like the days after the War Between The States.

ONE BULLET! "Shouts of 'one settler, one bullet!' rang out ... as about 3,000 blacks attended the funeral ... of a leader of the militant Pan Africanist Congress. ... The phrase

'one settler, one bullet,' refers to killing whites." News & Daily Advance, A-2, Nov 4, 1990.

RAPIST RELEASE URGED: Ohio's State Parole Board recommended the release of the convicted rapist Wayne Dumond. Dumond was found by police after having been castrated by unknown assailants. Dumond has served 4 years of a life sentence.

INDIANS: Headlines: "Killer Of Indians Is at Large In Lawrence, Kansas. ... Four unexplained deaths of Indian men have occurred in this eastern Kansas town. ... There appear to be no suspects. ... the police chief said there were no common threads linking the deaths, and suggested that drinking might have had as much to do with the deaths as anything else. ... KAHANE SLAIN: Rabbi Meir Kahane, Israeli extremist who pushed for harsh treatment and expulsion of Palestinians from Palestine, was gunned down by a lone assailant armed with a .357 magnum. The attacker calmly walked up to the speaker's stand as Kahane was speaking in New York to a Zionist group, smiled, and shot him in the head. Sol Margolis, president of Kach International, the U.S. arm of Kahane's extremist party, vowed, "There will be revenge. We believe in revenge."

VIOLENCE: "Black on White violence has reached epidemic proportions nationwide, yet most of what we hear from the media is condemnation of the relatively little violence that is directed at Blacks by Whites. ... All over the country gangs of young Blacks rove outside of their neighborhoods to seek out White victims for the fun of raping them, robbing them or berating them. This massive crime wave against innocent Whites has not been focused upon by the media, just as when the media ignored the Zebra killings where Black Muslims murdered over 400 Whites in California in the late '60s and early '70s. ... and the media and the System want to keep it that way.... examples, the New Orleans Times Picayune ... 'Roving youth gangs, armed with bottles, bats and chains have attacked French Quarter pedestrians at least four times in the past week, killing one and badly injuring at least five ... In each case, the assailants were black and the victims white.' ... the Lexington, Kentucky Herald-Leader begins ' At least 26 people have been victims of apparently unprovoked beating by groups of three or more attackers since July 1 ... Virtually all the group assaults involved black attackers and white victims... ." The Nationalist, October 1990.

DUKE: On October 6, 1990, sixty percent of the White voters of Louisiana voted for David Duke. Because 27% of Louisana's voters are Black, Duke needed 70% of the White vote. Still, the great majority of the White vote went for a pro- White candidate which shows the trend of the times.

PAN SLAVISM: "Alexander Solzhenitsyn believes Russia has a unique heritage and destiny, and he condemns Soviet efforts to bind dozens of disparate cultures into a single nation. ... Solzhenitsyn ... suggests that Russia, Byelorussia, the Ukraine and much of Kazakhstan, which are inhabited primarily by people of Slavic extraction, should form a single nation and let the other 11 Soviet republics secede." The News & Daily Advance Sept 26 1990, B-9.

Europe

GERMANY: "I just returned from Germany. Things are moving so fast that the pace can only be described as dizzying. The rump part of Germany was united under the tutelage of the victors of 1945, and lost 27% of its territory ... The solemn declarations by the ... vassals of the Allies, to forever renounce German ownership and title ... has created - just like in Versailles ... - new conflict and strife for the future. ...(lost are) territories which the Germans wrestled from the marshes and swamps of E. Europe, many times, centuries ago, before the US and Canada were ever discovered. .... The giant of Russia is stirring, E. Europe is looking for the murderers of their fathers and grandfathers - and they are finding them. ... the Polish authorities have already found one of the murderous NKVD types and are asking for a trial! Those who did the killings of German military and civilians in Poland, Czechoslovakia, and Yugoslavia in the period of 1944-47 will be found, some of their identities are already known ... The Germans are finding ever new mass graves in forests of former "East Germany"; once again, some of the murderers are known. Little wonder that 'Marcus Mischa Wolf', E. Germany's former spy chief ... felt racially persecuted, and left for the Soviet Union after the collapse of the E. German Communist State. So much corruption is being revealed that, according to Russian contacts of mine, plane load after plane load of 'refugees' are fleeing from Russia in the dead of night because they fear a pogrom of unprecedented proportions not only in Russia but all over E. Europe once the Soviet Empire collapses into anarchy and chaos. ... I saw some Soviet convoys in the East and counted the 'mongolians' amongst them, and then I saw the American army convoys on the Autobahns in W. Germany, ... and I counted the racial mix there! I was astonished how white the Soviet troops were as compared to the US forces. ... According to one TV report I saw in Europe, the much- vaunted, computer-operated US main battle tank breaks down an average of every 12 minutes in exercises in Saudi Arabia, so I would not plan any victory parades just yet. What a world we live in!" Ernst Zundel Report, Oct 17, 1990, 206 Carlton St, Toronto, ONT, Canada

INCIDENT AT HOSKINS CREEK

Incident At Hoskins Creek

One of my daughters sells electronic equipment. Yesterday, a man she had never seen before in her life walked up to her and asked "Aren't you Dick Hoskins daughter? Your father and I went to Fishburne Military School together more than 40 years ago."

Now, isn't that something?

One more story. About 20 or 30 years ago I was sitting on a stool in the old drugstore near Hoskins Creek in Tappahannock when an old, old man, all stooped over, white beard, walker and all, called out to me from the booth where he was sitting:

"No Sir, I'm Dick Kelly, John Hundley's boy.

He continued as if I hadn't said anything; "You're Willard Dunbar Hoskins from Hoskins Hill at Dunnsville?" (Dunnsville is about 5 miles away).

I said: "No sir, Willard was my grandfather. He died in 1914 long before I was born." He turned away confused and mumbled, "I thought you were Willard Dunbar."

The establishment tells us every day that we are unique and special and can do anything we want. That's not what I see. From what I've seen in other peoples children and grandchildren as well as my own, it appears that each of us is a very near copy of a certain ancestor. It's in the blood.

Our people expect a certain minimum standard of conduct from those they consider superior types. They don't have to be a Robert E. Lee. Robert E. Lee would be superior if he had never been a general and seen an army. He went by The Rules. The Rules magnify strengths and suppress weaknesses. A mere man becomes part superman. He has superhuman strengths.

In the book By Way Of Deception, the story of the Mossad,[1] the author noted that "Israeli agents can do nothing with those who are on pedestals." Those the Mossad can recruit either drink, fornicate, have money problems,[2] are unhappy with politics, or are unhappy with their families. In effect, anyone who has any of these problems is a potential recruit for the opposition and is a security risk.

1 Mossad - Israeli intelligence and assassination organization.

2 I've met many men, but I never met a man who had enough money. Everyone has money problems. But, if you are willing to compromise your ideals because of money problems - the problem is YOU.

Any of these problems seems monumental to the one with it. Chances are that the weakness causing the problem will remain for the persons entire life. Still, the solution is in the training manual.

These are exciting times. Big things are happening. An army is being recruited - an army the likes of which has not been seen since the days of the crusades. Recruitment bonuses are being promised to those who qualify and join:

> (1) "The land shall be divided for an inheritance ... according to ... their fathers they shall inherit." Num 26:53-55, (2) "And the Lord thy God will make thee plenteous in every work of thine hand, in the fruit of thy body, ... of thy cattle ... and ... of thy land, for good, for the Lord will again rejoice over thee for good, as he rejoiced over thy fathers: If thou shalt ... keep his commandments and his statutes ... For this commandment ... is not hidden from thee ... It is ... in thy heart, that thou mayest do it." Deut. 30:9

Also, penalties are levied against those refusing to obey instructions.

> "But if ye will not ... do all these commandments; ... I also will do this unto you; ... (1) ye shall sow your seed in vain, for your enemies shall eat it ... (2) they that hate you shall reign over you; (3) and ye shall flee when none pursueth you. ... (4) I will break the pride of your power ... (5) your land shall not yield her increase ... (6) I will send wild beasts (strangers) among you which shall rob you of your children ... (7) and make you few in number ... (8) I will bring a sword upon you ... (9) I will send the pestilence among you; ... (10) I will ... cast your carcasses upon the carcasses of your idols ... (11) And I will make your cities waste ... (13) And I will bring the land into desolation. Lev 26:14-35

In a nutshell this is the choice: Join and live or don't and be destroyed.

To qualify for enlistment is no snap. You've got to be a little more than warm and breathing. It is even more strict than the qualifications for enlistment in the crusader armies of our ancestors. The minimum consideration is that a volunteer be unable to be recruited by an enemy. It's no foreign legion open to everyone. A recruit cannot join to escape his other problems. He must first achieve what strangers call a pedestal lifestyle. What good is a recruit that can be turned into a traitor? His personal life must be under control. It's all spelled out in the training manual.

Achieving what others call "pedestals" means that recruits are not likely to be bought, bribed, or intimidated. With this basic requirement he can then join his basic unit. In time the units will be called together into an army. This very special army is the one that will march into the land that has been promised.

The basic unit is six.

Somewhere back in time there was a mailed crusader - who looked just like you. There was a bowman in the forest of Sherwood - who looked just like you. There was a Viking who stepped down into the cold water to wade ashore - who looked just like you. You are the same flesh, the same blood. What our grandfathers did - we can do and do better! We've studied to avoid their failures and learned from their successes, and we have brains enough to follow instructions.

The promises contained in the instructions guarantee that one day soon we will have that untaxed cottage, the land that goes with it that is never to be sold,[3] a family cemetary for a 100 generations of grandfathers, fathers, ourselves, and our children, and a garden to keep us from want in hard times. We can go to town and work or sit under the shade of the tree and read. It's all promised, and its as good as ours - right now.

We just have to sign on the dotted line.

The pay is good and the bonus super. And, frankly, look at the choice!

"I have set before you life and death ... choose life, that both thou and thy seed may live." Deut 30:19

Hammer Passes - A King Is Dead

"A king is dead - long live the King!" Once again these words ring forth. Unlike the last king who died violently at the hands of an unknown assassin in Germany last year - this one died peacefully.

Armond Hammer 92, son of a founder of the American Communist Party, and himself a long time communist sympathizer, had a near monopoly of U.S./Soviet trade as a result of his influence over Soviet leaders. Trade with the Soviet Union was virtually his private monopoly making him incredibly rich. The trade included everything from pencils to copious oil wells in the Soviet Union to extensive coal fields in China. His private plane ignored red tape and took him straight to Moscow where he was met at the airport by a cavalcade of top communist leaders who bowed and scraped as they jostled each other to pay their respects and seek his advice.

In one instance communist incompetence put the USSR

3 "The land shall not be sold for ever: for the land is mine." Lev 25:23 on the road to starvation and a peoples revolt. Hammer arrived in the nick of time with gigantic deliveries of grain which blunted the peoples anger and prevented the overthrow of the communist state and saved his profitable monopoly. It has been said that world communism owes as much to Hammer as to anyone in the world.

Hammer was many years the target of barbs hurled by the American right wing. However, nothing the man did offended Washington. America's establishment cast a tolerant eye on one of their own who was doing his thing and doing it well.

His death has caused the establishment to again pull out the stops with the usual extravagances. Hammer's death is front page USA - prime time TV. The establishment salutes the passing of one of their own. The nation watches in awe. A king is dead.

MEET THE FAMILY: "Dear Dick: I was a captain in the navy for many years. Crew members would ask permission to marry. This was fine in Germany, Australia, or Britain, they are our people.

"I prevented my crew from marrying orientals by talking to them. I just told them that before they got married that I would give him leave to go meet his future in-laws. I told him that his bride-to-be would look just like his bride's mother when she reached the same age. Oriental women are generally ugly as sin as they get older. I never had a crew member make the trip, take a look at his future mother in law, and then come back and marry an oriental bride. Not one. Other captains are doing the same." T. A. - Arkansas

DATING: "Dear Dick: Your article on dating left out one thing - kids should follow parents selection of mates. Parents know what to look for and many tragic matches could be avoided if their advice had been sought and taken." A. W. - South Carolina

ED: I brought my dates home because there were records, piano, photo albums, books, guns, singing, other kids - entertainment. My folks met them all. I really didn't understand that dating led to marriage. I had no intention of marrying at that time. I also wanted to avoid parental criticism of certain of my friends, so I concealed facts about them. When I was 22 I actually asked my folks to pick out a wife for me. The only girls my age they knew were the girls I had brought home. I hadn't been upfront enough for them to really judge.

It is the parents job to tell their kids that life is no popularity contest, the gameplan is - marriage for keeps! There is no such thing as a careless "just for fun" date. Every act in this world is set in concrete - from a "good morning, Sir", to a blow. Singles dating is to be avoided, but groups doing things together under proper supervision is fine. Older teens should be trained to bring these groups home on some excuse or other and be upfront with their parants in discussing each individual afterwards. Kids and parents must put their cards on the table and talk. Parents must be wise enough to listen well and careful in criticising. I was 27 before I found a wife on my own. I was lucky.

WHITE INDIANS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: In the Search For Lost America by Salvador MIchael Trento on p. 93, Chief Brant told a gentleman in 1838 that many generations prior to that date there were White men and women living in North America building mounds and mining. Indian tribes plotted to massacre them. The Whites were all killed and their structures burned. That is why the American mounds have no debris showing what happened. Chief Brant was a high Sachem and was very privy to the secrets of the tribes." H. R. - New York

HAITI TODAY: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Re your Vigilante chapter on Haiti. In Haiti today all forest and vegetation are cut away. There is no wild life and few birds. The land appears to be poor and very dry. Poverty is the norm. Voodoo priests are without Hollywood feathers and bones in the noses. They look like anyone else. In their homes is a altar on which is a skull and often a picture of the pope. Crime is severely punished with prisoners being beaten at each meal time, consequently, there is little crime and few jails. Repeaters are killed. Whites are hated in places and the wise few who visit are careful where they go." A. J. - Illinois

"Dear Mr. Hoskins: I am a veteran of three wars. A short while ago I stood in a group and pledged allegiance to the flag. My words mocked me. For a long time I have been abused by the IRS, the Washington politicians, their minions, and their favored minorities. My kids have been beaten in school, my wife has been mugged, and there is nothing I can do about it. I am learning. My pledge would better have been:

"I pledge allegiance to almighty God, and to the Word which is his name. One nation, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

"A man cannot serve two masters." H. R. - Virginia

CONSTITUTION: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: FDR's nationalization of the militias and sending them overseas for combat violates Article I Section 8 of the Constitution: 'The Congress shall have power: (15) To provide for calling forth the militia to execute the laws of the Union, suppress insurrections, and repel invasions.' Not to fight foreign wars." H. L. - Kansas

KUWAIT: "Dear Richard: Is this potential conflict in the gulf region being orchestrated to enable America to borrow cash yet again into circulation, or has Saddam Hussein stepped out of line. Would appreciate input." H. B. - New Zealand

ED: Kuwait itself is a strategic terminal of the trans-Turkey railroad and is a valuable seaport, besides a source of oil. It became a British Protectorate in the middle of the last century to deny local Middle East powers use of its strategic location. Arabs resent it. On at least two other occasions Britain has had to come to Kuwait's defense against Arab fundamentalist invaders - which is evidently part of an ageement. Bagdad, on the other hand, considers this territory in her sphere of influence and this claim goes back to the Persian Empire. She also considers British dominated Kuwait and Saudi-Arabia to be British pawns. Islamic followers pay little heed to national boundaries. That is a Western concept. To them there is Islam - and nothing else. Islam will be the long-term winner in the present confrontation game. The Israeli country to them is a minor enemy. Islam looks on the entire West as a single devil. Islam's energies will be focused on the task of its destruction from now on. The U.S.'s Arab allies will last as long as the pay holds out - no longer. The "wild card" is the Arab leaders. Most are unbelievably corrupt. But, one day a Saladin will arrive on the scene.

UNFILTERED NEWS

GRAVES DESECRATED: Once again, two Israelis are being held for desecrating 250 Jewish graves near Haifa. Slogans painted this time read "Exterminate the Jews." and The Palestinian state will rise." (Story in Los Angeles Times, May 15, 1990

ED: The 6 million Holocaust blitz and countless ongoing graveyard desecrations have in the past been blamed on Israeli desire to paper over their complicity in starting WW II and to keep the heat turned up on the German multi-billion dollar reparations.

A new reason may have been surfaced in the almost banned book By Way Of Deception, by an ex-Israeli Mossad agent. In the book a dangerous policy is disclosed where Jewish populations the world over are being encouraged to arm themselves to defend their temples and their people against another "holocaust." A slight shift in media propaganda could turn such armed radicalized groups against their hosts. It's has been done before. This would result in a win-win situation for world Zionism: ie. (1) A successful Russian type takeover of the host nation, or (2) if it fails, an expulsion, which would accomplish a major Zionist objective of in-gathering world Jewry to Palistine.

With the holocaust myth at last exposed, the Jewish world populations will learn that they have long been manipulated for the benifit of political Zionism. The Zionists will loose credibility, and with loss of creditility comes loss of control of their own people. That's why the furious reaction by Zionists at each new revelation of the holocaust fraud.

Some American Jews are beginning to realize the consequences of rash plans of this sort and are speaking out against them. Railers against holocaust revisionists may be trying to save more than merely make people believe the unbelievable.

AUSCHWITZ-BIRKENAU: "Plaques were taken down in line with recent historical studies that indicate there were 1.1 million victims ... Previously the plaques ... spoke of 4 million victims." The News & Daily Advance 7/18/90.

ED: This is about the 15th adjustment in the atrocity story. Directly after WW II it was claimed that 38 million died in extermination camps. This figure was reduced in stages to 32 million, 28 million, 24 million, 22 million, 18 million, 16 million, 12 million, 8 million, 6 million, and now newly released Soviet files show only 72,000 deaths at Auschwitz, and these were caused mostly by disease and malnutrition resulting from disrupted food supply caused by air attacks. It is also noted that Hollywood propaganda still spouts the 6 million figure in their atrocity program which includes the now admitted non- existent Auschwitz 3 million. The exterminationists do have their job cut out for them. When they get around to it they must adjust the Holocaust Hoax to make everyone believe in the Auschwitz 1.1 million and at the same time attack the latest 72,000 figure from the Soviet archives. It seems to be a never ending problem. Poor people. Problems, problems. The multi-billion survivor compensation may be harder to justify in the days ahead.

"Replying to a warning by the Law and Order Ministry that such commandos would be 'sniffed out' Mr. Terre'Blanche said 'We have no need to operate under cover. Police are still searching for Mr. Rudolf." S. A. Observer, June 1990.

STATEMENT: Joseph Paul Franklin freely admitted in an interview with KUTV that he shot down interracial couples ten years ago. At his trial Franklin stoutly maintained that he did it in obedience with the Biblical stand on racial intermariage related in The Bible, Book of Numbers, Ch #25.

Franklin, too, no less sacrificed himself, his future, his family, for the security of his people and his faith and is believed by many practicing Christians to be no less deserving of compassion by being pardoned by President Bush as were the three Israelis pardened by President Herzog..

In gathering material for the book, Vigilantes Of Christendom, the author spoke to Franklin by phone. Franklin was well versed in the scriptures and appeared philosophical. He said he had two regrets. First, that he would like to see his daughter whom he has not seen since she was a baby, and second, he would like to receive a certain well known Bible course.

It has recently been revealed that that Marion Prison, where Franklin is incarcerated, the replacement Federal prison for Alcaltraz, has a contaminated water supply. This water is believed to severely affect prisoners over time causing mental lapses and physical deteriation. The last report on conditions there said that no corrections in the water supply has been made and guards bring their own. Many believe that Franklin has suffered enough. His address is: Joseph Paul Franklin, 01517-018, P.O. Box, Marion, IL 62959.

INSTIGATING ISLAMIC HOLY WAR

Iraq Defeated

By the time the reader receives these lines Iraq may have bitten the dust, which would prove once again that a big strong man can beat the stuffings out of a scrawny little weak man. But, of course, quick victory in war is bad for business so it is more likely that the war will go on and on and on and - .

When thinking people heard that America was again invading another country, many had a sinking feeling. They felt that though America may easily whip Iraq, they were witnessing something tragic, that somehow this thing will not come out well - not well at all.

Historically, the warriors of Islam are, in victory, notorious for their acts of rape, robbery, and brutality. Still, the following information from our own U.S. sources can be the thing that over the long pull will make the difference.

Rules For U.S. Military In Saudi Arabia

(Excerpted from The American Christian, December 1990, P.O. Box 8430, Medford, Oregon 97504, Ben Williams, Editor.)

The following information directive was issued to American troops stationed in Saudi Arabia - Operation Desert Shield. Its purpose - to prevent American soldiers from getting into trouble with their Saudi hosts.

> "1. ISLAM: The Islamic religion is the single most important factor in Saudi Arabian life and culture. Islam is based on the word of god as revealed to the prophet Mohammed. Islam's revered prophets also include Abraham and Jesus. Islam's holy book The Quran, is the basis of all religious thought and practice. No public worship of any other religion is openly permitted. ...
>
> "2. ALCOHOL AND DRUGS: The possession or consumption of alcohol or non-prescribed drugs is illegal ... The penalties are quite severe.
>
> "3. INDECENT MATERIAL: Materials ... such as the Sports Illustrated "Swimsuit edition", lingerie catalogs and some women's fashion magazines are considered pornographic in Saudi Arabia. ... Penthouse or Playboy, and videotapes of sexual content and nudity are absolutely forbidden ...Turn them in to your senior non-commissioned officer for destruction immediately.
> "4. SAUDI WOMEN: Islam teaches that women hold a position of special honor and dignity in society and should be closely protected. ... Saudi women dress very conservatively, and dating is not allowed. Don't stare or attempt to strike up a conversation with Saudi women. Any dishonor is cause for severe punishment. ...

"6. CIVILIAN DRESS: American men and women must dress conservatively, particularly in public. Men should wear trousers, and shirts which are not open below the collar bone or sleeveless, I.E., tank tops. For women, skirts should be well below the knee, no pants or pantsuits. Generally, clothing should be loose fitting and concealing rather than revealing - no shorts, no exposed shoulders, no plunging necklines. Likewise, T-shirts glamorizing alcohol or other sensitive subjects may not be worn. Religious jewelry (Christian crosses) should be kept hidden beneath your clothing. Men should not wear earrings.

"7. MALE-FEMALE RELATIONSHIPS: Any public association between males and females is considered inappropriate. Touching, holding hands and kissing a member of the opposite sex in public is considered to be bad taste and could be viewed as obscene. Anything more intimate in public is illegal and is dealt with severely.

"8. PRAYER TIME: Muslims pray five times each day. Respect their religious convictions and give them privacy .... All business and commercial establishments are required to close during prayer calls. Restaurants suspend serving meals. Leave politely at these times, if asked.

"9. MUTTAWWA: The muttawwa (Mah-tah-wa) are "religious police." They enforce Muslim rules including the dress code, prayer time, etc. Some zealous muttawwa will confront Americans. If confronted by a muttawwa, attempt to quietly slip away. If they try to take you into custody, insist on the presence of a uniformed police officer ...

"10. PHOTOGRAPHY: ... Do not photograph people at close range, particularly women, without permission. ...

"12. TIME: Don't be impatient with local people. It's interpreted as a sign of insincerity or a lack of self-control. If you hurry, they may take offense and little will be accomplished. ...

"17. PROFANITY: Foul language is particularly offensive to the Saudi public. ....

"WELCOME TO THE UNITED STATES CENTRAL COMMAND AND SAUDI ARABIA! OPERATION DESERT SHIELD."

Islam In The Past

For a thousand years Islam raided, invaded, stormed, burned, and on two occasions almost overran all of Christendom. One invasion conquered Egypt, North Africa, Spain, and was barely stopped in the heart of France. Another Islamic steamroller from the opposite direction was narrowly stopped at Vienna.

Islamic warriors invaded Spain, Sicily, Southern Italy, Greece, Southern Russia, and most of Eastern Europe. Her corsairs raided the British and French coasts for slaves. Europe had to pay tribute to gain permission to sail ships on the high seas.

Islam brought down and destroyed the world's greatest empire, greater than the rest of the West put together, the Christian empire of Constantinople. Islam is the hereditary enemy of the Christian West.

Shortsightedly, the West and the USSR both used the warlike tendencies of these people to market their expensive military hardware which was paid for with oil dollars. It was a powerful stimulus for world economies.

Then, the Israeli nation which had recently wedged themselves into their midst, complained that this armament was causing her Arab enemies to be too powerful for her to handle. One of them in particular - Iraq.

Iraq lies in the geographic center of Mideast Islam. If her military power were destroyed and the country occupied by a power more powerful than any of her neighbors, the Mideast would then become safe for the Israeli nation, and the rest of the Arab world would also become peaceful in time. As a bonus, the power that occupied the Arab world would also control their oil, and, Europe and Japan who were dependent on this oil for energy. The occupying power (or powers) would exercise indirect control the world.

Iraq become the new Evil Empire and was enticed into making a 4th attempt to re-annex Kuwait. She thought she had done her homework when she naively asked D.C. if there were any offensive/defensive agreements between the U.S. and Kuwait. She foolishly believed the United States when it assured her that there were no such offensive/defensive treaties with Kuwait. The Iraqis took this to mean that the road was clear, and that the U.S. would not intervene any more than they had intervened when the Soviets invaded or suppressed Afghanistan, Czeckoslovakia, Lithuania and Estonia. Iraq felt that America had no interest in Kuwait.

The Peace That Follows

Many strongly suspect that the massive invasion of the Arab world and the attack on Iraq has not been thoroughly thought through any more than the results of massively arming the Arabs in return for short-term economic stimulation was thought through. For that matter, neither was the consequences of giving Arab Palestine to the Jews thought through.

America and her allies can with relative ease defeat and occupy Iraq, if she wishes to forego the economic benefits of an extended police action, and sit on Iraqi ruins for the next 50 years if they desire. Spy satellites can spot Arab military convoys to enable occupying forces to smash them with missiles before they can go 100 miles. But will it work?

Though not understandable by Jewish or Western logic, Saddam Hussein has been faithful to the requirements of the Quoran. If he lives, he will be looked on as one who stood for Allah against the Great Devil. If he dies, he will become a martyr who will in time achieve a place in Islam just below Mohammed himself.

The Great Devil

Islam speaks loudly against the "Great Devil." Who does Islam say is this Great Devil? It is those who attack her. They look with scorn on those whose normal every day acts must be toned down by Army advisory pronouncements - whose normal behavior is offensive to Islamic peoples. The Islamic peoples of the world believe that they are morally superior in most respects to the TV-trained Christian West.

The New Age

This is a new age we are living in. An Islam depending on American and Soviet-made tanks, planes, missiles, and millions of men under arms has proved to be a disastrously weak Islam. A million men with 2nd hand equipment find it almost impossible to kill a handful of invaders. However, one muslim in a truck sacrificed himself to kill 120 invading U.S. marines in a barracks in Lebanon. One muslim in New York sacrificed himself to walk up and shoot Zionism's most militant advocate. One muslim retaliated for the shooting down of an Iranian airliner in the gulf by blowing up an American airliner over Scotland. This is a new kind of warfare - one that F-16s, Patriot missiles, and the latest radar sighting devices can't defend against. It is a defense/offense that has been successful, and one that can go on and on. This matter has not been thought through.

In spite of Islamic shortcomings seen so clearly through Western eyes, Islam considers herself cleaner and purer. Islam sees her men as more dedicated. They prove it by freely sacrificing themselves for their people and to obey the demands of Allah their god.

War's Tally Sheet

America, for oil, for political obligations to special groups, and simple narrow mindedness, has allowed herself to be entrapped in Near East flypaper. Her entry into Islam will be like the German armies flowing onto the steps of Russia. Both Russia and Islam are easy to get into and very difficult to get out of again, intact.

Make no mistake, the Jews have taught Islam to hate with a cold deadly hate. Christendom is now included in this hate. Islam hates while she keeps and counts the tallies. For each of the "faithful" who dies - in time, maybe months later, or years - another barracks will go up in smoke, another plane will fall from the skies, another ship will sink, another hostage will be taken, another leader will die. Christendom will pay, and pay, and pay. Life for life. Blood for blood. Week after week, year after year.

This war that has begun will end when Christendom is at least as morally clean as Islam, more just, more righteous, and her men as willing to die for their God as mohammedans are for theirs'. Christendom's dealings with Islam must become just and fair.

But now, that day will be a long time coming. The thing that must be dealt with is called "Jihad" - Holy War! A thing that Westerners don't really understand, but their memories will become refreshed. It is something that goes on, and on, and on - .

The "peace that follows" may lie generations in the future - on the other side of stacked bodies of sons and husbands.

LETTERS

HOSTAGE SHIELDS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Re Iraqis using hostages for shields. My grandfather served in the 11th Virginia. He was captured at Milford Station, Virginia in 1864, and taken to the Morris Island fort, Charleston Harbor, SC, where he and 100 other Southern prisoners were stood in front of the fort as a human shield to keep the Southerners in Fort Sumpter from shooting at them. They could shoot at Fort Sumpter but Fort Sumpter couldn't shoot back. The story can be found in Personal Reminiscences 1861-1865 by Capt. W. H. Morgan, J.P. Bell, Lynchburg, VA, 1911." B. K. - Virginia

---

BLOODLESS WAR: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Just talked to a high ranking army officer who said that this Iraqi War may be one of the most bloodless wars ever fought." A. H. - DC

ED: Perhaps. On the other hand on a major network I saw a private video clip said to be taken of a night bombing raid on Baghdad. The exploding bombs were like hundreds of twinkling points of light and took place over a two square mile area. The impacts seemed to be as close together as handsful of gravel thrown into a lake. This appeared to my eye to be carpet bombing. If so, the list of civilian casualties in Baghdad may make surprising reading - if ever released.

M.E. PREDICTION: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Just re-read p. 202 in your War Cycles / Peace Cycles. You predicted the invasion of the Near East back in 1985. I've re-read that book 15 times." G. B. - Tennessee

USURY OWNS US: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: If banks refuse to lend money - business will stop. If they lend $10 for $11 without foreclosing existing debt out of existence in depressions now and then - debt will grow so large that people will pay everything they earn to the banks for interest and there will be nothing left for anything else. It would seem that taxes are confessions - that being debt-free is not enough. You must still borrow $10 for $11 to pay the taxes - if you don't, they foreclose. The system owns us from top to bottom - like it or not." J. W. - Ohio

---

GOLD vs SILVER: "Dear Dick: Why is silver/gold spread so wide? P. G. - Nebraska

ED: Gold has been made "backup-money" to "credit" while silver had been made just another commodity.

Interesting story: In the 15th & 16th centuries, gold and silver were traded even in Japan. The Dutch brought in trunks of silver and exchanged them for gold, stripping Japan of its gold and wrecking their economy. Japan then shut down all trade with Westerners, declaring them to be crooks. If you look at it from their point of view - they were.

COMPLIMENT?: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I find your prose excessively verbose, repetitive and too anecdotal. However, I'm indebted to you for introducing me to the concept of Adamic Man and God's Laws pertaining to usury and economics - the real cause of our financial, social and political woes. The first time I read War Cycles /Peace Cycles the scales began to fall from my eyes. I saw the truth in Christ and finally accepted him as my Savior." C. J. - Texas

ED: Thanks. As a side note, most of the founding fathers knew Latin and Greek and had more than a smattering of Hebrew. They knew precisely what they were talking about when they said that all "men" are created equal.

BECKWITH: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Have finally sent my book to a printer. Local and Mississippi legal problems now loom, but are capable of solution too. Phineas for president!" Byron de la Beckwith - Tennessee

ED: Mr. de la Beckwith, scion of an ancient family in America and before that in England, age 70, was tried and released twice after being accused by the establishment of shooting the Black radical civil rights leader, Medgar Evers. The media recently announced that after more than two decades he has once more been arrested and will be tried a third time. It is claimed that two witnesses have stepped forward after having been quiet for 20 years. His book, which will soon be in print, should be interesting reading.

OBEY RULERS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: The New Testament clearly states that one must obey the authorities placed over them. "Obey in all things your masters ... And whatsoever ye do, do it heartily as to the Lord." Col 3:22,23 "Be subject to principalities and powers, to obey magistrates. Tit 3:1 The authorities have the right to order citizens to do whatever they like and citizens are required by God to obey their orders." G. A. - New York

ED: God does not war against Himself. Scripture cannot be interpreted so that some scripture will war with other scripture. God does not fight himself. Chapter 198

THE SEVEN RULES OF DEBT

In War Cycles / Peace Cycles, p 250, are listed Hoskins 7 Rules Of Interest.

1. The money supply WILL be expanded to allow debtors to pay interest on their loans.

Our rulers made a mistake in money management. They allowed the growth of the nation's debt to decline beyond the saftey level. It declined to the point where bank interest payments siphoned off the existing floating supply of money. There developed a monetary black hole - there was almost no money in circulation. This triggered rule #1. The money supply WILL be expanded!

To expand the money supply in a usury society is not easy when the only method of expansion is to borrow money into existence. People do not like to borrow. Keynes, the usury system's spokesman, said that since people will not voluntarily go into debt they must be MADE to go into debt. WAR is the easiest way. People will not spend $20,000 for a new car but, under threat of a vicious, mad, atrocity-committing enemy, they will spend $2,000,000 for a tank to defend themselves - a tank that will become obsolete in 5 years, or will be worn out and will have to be replaced.

Since this is so obvious, it only remains to figure out which nation will produce the most debt from a suitable war. In 1985, War Cycles / Peace Cycles listed three. The oil-producing Mideast, South Africa, and the United States.

The next year the media began to prepare the world for war against South Africa, an effort that failed when the future black rulers of the nation began to squabble among themselves. This left the oil producing nations of the Mideast who were next on the list.

2. It does no good to have unlimited funds in banks. The money must be in circulation where debtors can get it to pay interest.

Certain of these oil-producing Arab nations had unwittingly committed a cardinal sin. They hoarded much of their oil wealth squeezed from the merchants of the world who were forced to borrow money into existence to pay for the oil price increase. World money managers increased the price of oil from a comparatively nominal $2.50 a barrel to an astronomical $40 a barrel. This was the equivilant in magnitude to war borrowing.

The newly rich Arabs were temporary custodians of this wealth.[1] The Arabs couldn't help it. What does a camel driver spend money on after he has built a swimming pool, an air conditioned stall for his camel, bought a Rolls, built a garage to put it in, and a highway to drive it on? Not much. The rest of the money just sat in banks. A no-no in international finance. It requires the proper tool to pry it loose.

3. When money expansion stops, interest rapidly eats up the floating supply causing monetary strangulation and crash.

Number 3, strangulation and crash, resulted from the absence of a Vietnam War, a substitute for the carefully manipulated on-going war between Iraq and Iran, and the reluctance of the oil-producing nations to spend the money they had. Deflation was in progress in the West. But all was not lost. The solution had been planned years ago.

4. Interest will destroy any obstacle to its expansion and survival.

Constitutional restrictions to foreign wars? Nonsense! Not when the media elect the government and you own the media. To get something started all that needs be done is to make someone do something stupid and then shoot him for it. Iraq properly inquired about U.S. interests in Kuwait. American representatives replied that they had no treaty offensive/defensive arrangements. Iraq interpreted this to mean that she could take over Kuwait - as she was meant to. Sucker!

"Mad-man Hussein", "atrocities," "liar," "coward", "chemical warfare," etc., etc. The fellow they were talking about was the same fellow whose Saad Party that put him into office had been financed by the CIA. He was the fair-haired chap who earlier had fought against the Iranian "mad-man Ayatollah."

But now, he was needed in a different role. After taking the bait he marched in to Kuwait, and neglected (?) to turn tail and run at the first sign of wrath from the noble, caesar-like, leader on the Potomac. He stood like a dumb sheep waiting to be sheared - and sheared he was. The ball was carried in a masterful manner by the media, as it always is.

5. Interest requires a heavy tax rate so that money will not be hoarded but circulated to pay interest.

Consider the recent unpleasantness in the Mideast form of tax collection.

6. All users of the interest system - both debtors & creditors - become involuntary slaves of the system.

How did you like the recent layoffs? the recent downturn in building activity? the recent cutbacks in municipal budgets? the reduced pay-checks? Not much - huh? How do you like it now that oil-producing Texas and Colorado are coming to life, the stock market is trending up? and American companies are getting war contracts? Feels better - doesn't it? This is a large part of the reason that Americans cheer as they watch the boys march away once again. It's especially gratifying when the end result shows only a few score of "ours" killed and tens of thousands of "evil empire" dead. "That didn't hurt so much, and look at all the good it did! All for freedom and democracy in the Mideast!"

7. Never will the usurer - or his hireling - show mercy to his victim.

The above needs little explanation or elaboration - . When the world's rulers fear possible reprisals, a President Davis is always locked away to die in the damp side of a Fortress Monroe, or hanged at Nuremberg. Starvation and misery and death will not stop what needs to be done for the system to survive.

Score Card

1. This recent war has forced Saudi Arabia, Japan, and others to put their hoarded money in circulation.

2. It will put both the victim and the assailant in debt to put humpty-dumpty back together again. "Smart bombs" sought out and destroyed expensive buildings, bridges, oil producing equipment, municipal water works, etc., all of which require many billions to be borrowed into existence to have rebuilt. Entire cities have to be rebuilt.

3. It depleted or destroyed Iraqi and Saudi Arabia's multi- billion dollar military stock pile which must be replaced.

4. It used up much of the obsolete multi-billion dollar U.S. military stock pile which also must be replaced.

5. It has "forced" congress to borrow money into existence to pay for the execution of the "just war", and possibly recontruction a la another Marshall Plan.

Side Benefits

The recent war:

1. Cleared a possible military obstacle to millions of Jewish immigrants pouring into Arab Palestine.

2. Took the spotlight off the atrocities being committed against Palestinian Arabs.

3. Took the spotlight off the transfer of hundreds of billions of building and loan assets to the international usury banks.

4. And, it assures that Brushfire Bush will have another 4 years in office to continue doing what he is doing - although almost anybody could be put there as a figurehead to do what he is being told to do.

The Three Cards

1. America's rulers have now played their Mideast card. It has been tremendously successful. Billions upon billions are being borrowed into existence - and happy days are here again - until another "fix" is needed. It is doubtful if this region can be used in the same way again.

2. The South African card is still in the wings waiting to be played. The simple will find it difficult to see how such a small handful of Whites can be used to justify a war to stop them from conquering the world, but, with faith, media hype and ballyhoo, all things are possible.

If a dress rehearsal invasion of Panama or Granada by the army, navy, and airforce of the United States super-power can be media- justified, a full scale invasion of Coney Island can be also justified - much less South Africa which is many times larger than Coney Island.

A cynic can easily envision thousand-plane raids against hostile Johannesburg, the country covered by attacking gunships knocking out poison-gas factories, atomic bomb plants, and camps making soap out of the bodies of the downtrodden natives who were killed for that purpose. That same cynic can easily envision a half- million man invading army being landed to free the millions of starving inmates of South African concentration camps, end the evil medical experiments on the oppressed downtrodden natives, stop their germ warfare capabilities, and end the despicable white-minority discrimination against the majority-blacks who cannot vote in their own country.

Yes, the cynic see how an excuse can be made to borrow billions into existence to prosecute a war against "mad-man somebody" in South Africa - a somebody probably in the pay of the CIA. Of course, this is scraping the bottom of the barrel. After this card is played there remains one more card.

3. The United States.

IMPEACHMENT PROCEEDINGS

The following is from The Upright Ostrich Chairman Henry Gonzalez (D. Texas) of the U.S. House Banking Committee ... has introduced a resolution for the impeachment of George Bush. ... as provided by the U.S. Constitution, Article II, Section 4:

- 1. Bush 'has prepared, planned, and conspired to engage in a massive war against Iraq, employing methods of mass destruction that will result in the killing of tens of thousands of civilians, many of whom will be children ... (which) violates the Hague Convention of 1887 and 1923, the Geneva Convention of 1949, and Protocol I thereto, the Nuremberg Charter, the Genocide Convention, and the United Nations Declarations of Human Rights.
- 2. Bush 'has planned, prepared, and conspired to commit crimes against the peace by leading the U.S. into aggressive war against Iraq in violation of Article 2 (4) of the UN Charter, the Nuremberg Charter, other international instruments and treaties and the Constitution of the United States.

- 3. Bush has 'violated the U.S. Constitution, federal law, and the U.N. Charter by bribing, intimidating and threatening others, including members of the UN Security Council, to support belligerent acts against Iraq.
- 4. In spite of Congressional ratification of the U.N. Security Council Resolution of November 29, 1990, The president has not received a declaration of war by Congress, and ... has declared that he will go to war regardless of the views of Congress and the American people.'"

Ask Rep. Gonzalez or your congressman to send you a copy from the Congressional Record of this fine speech reviewing our descent into such 'king-made' serfdom."

NOTE: The above article is important, but for reasons other than the obvious ones. The writer believes that the Constitution, and other guarantees of rights, exist today in theory only. The reason - the people who created the Constitution to rule themselves no longer rule. In my lifetime, the never-ending appeals to "Constitutional rights" have been futile.

What is a fact is that if a ruler controls the left and the right - he will find it easier to control the middle. If he controls the up and the down - he will tend to control the middle. If he controls the attacker and the defender he will control that which is being attacked and defended.

Congressman Gonzalez is a brave conservative. His words have merit. They are worthy of study. He is one of the few with the nerve to take a stand. It is also true that the selection of Gonzolis to lead the protest of American Con-stitutionalists gives them a Hispanic for a leader. Such a selection violates basic beliefs and ensures that the protest will go in circles - as it was meant to. A control of the right and the left will tend to control the middle.

A Soldier's Opinion Of Modern War

Also copied from Upright Ostrich, Jan/Feb, 1991

I believe in adequate defense at the coastline and in nothing else. If a nation comes over here to fight, then we'll fight. The trouble with America is that when the dollar only earns 6% over here, then it gets restless and goes overseas to get 100%. Then the flag follows the dollar and the soldiers follow the flag.

I wouldn't go to war again, as I have done, to defend some lousy investment of the bankers. There are only two things that we should fight for. One is the defense of our homes and the other is the Bill Of Rights. War for any other reason is simply a racket.

There isn't a trick in the racketeering bag that the military gang is blind to. It has its 'finger men' to point out enemies, its 'muscle men' to destroy enemies, its 'brain men' to plan war preparations, and a 'Big Boss' - Supernationalistic Capitalism.

... I spent 33 years and 4 months in active military service as a member of our country's most agile military force - the Marine Corps. I served in all commissioned ranks from 2nd Lt. to Major-General, and during that period I spent most of my time being a high class muscle man for Big Business, for Wall Street, and for the Bankers. In short, I was a racketeer, a gangster for capitalism. ...

Like all members of the military profession, I never had an original thought until I left the service. My mental facilities remained in suspended animation while I obeyed the orders of higher-ups. This is typical with everyone in the military service.

I helped make Mexico... safe for American oil interests in 1914. I helped make Haiti and Cuba a decent place for the National City Bank boys to collect revenue in. I helped in the raping of half a dozen Central American republics for the benefit of Wall Street. ... I helped purify Nicaragua for the international banking house of Brown Brothers in 1909-1912. I brought light to the Dominican Republic for American sugar interests in 1916. In China I helped see to it that Standard Oil went its way unmolested. - Major-General Smedley Butler.

ED: The uninformed read of another outbreak of anti-Americanism in a foreign country and wonder why the world hates the "ugly American". Pleading ignorance is not enough. Both God and man will hold us responsible, as a people, for the actions of those who have placed themselves over us to rule the nation for their own benefit. The cup is overflowing.

"Dear Mr. Hoskins: As long as the U.S. is in the war - why not nuke the Arabs?" S. A. - Virginia

ED: Nuking the Arabs would end the war - the war now so desperately needed. Peace would mean unemployment, hunger, the works. On the positive side, if the U.S. nuked

Iraq and then took on the occupation and rebuilding of the country, the spending would go on for 10 or 15 years. Perhaps I was hasty. Nuking may have merit. It would save American lives and still allow the spending. Maybe someone should get the Iraqis' input since big bucks would be flowing in their way, too. Need to be democratic - don't want to go off half-cocked on this thing.

"Dear Dick: Just finished reading your latest and best. Some sections more than once. You mentioned Wake Up America by Lambert Schyler. I bot a 50¢ copy in 1940 and still have it. "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I know about the story of Judge Lynch and the court held under the Lynch Tree, but where did 'hanging' itself come from? K. M. - North Carolina

ED: Hanging is an ancient custom. It is to display, not kill. An offender against the king is hanged on a tree.

> "He that is hanged is accursed of God." De 21:23, "If a man have committed a sin worthy of death, and he shall be put to death, and thou shall hang him on a tree, thou shall surely bury him that day that the land be not defiled." De 21:22

2 Vigilantes Of Christendom, Hoskins, Virginia Publishing Company, PO Box 997, Lynchburg, Virginia 24505, $15+$3p&h.

"The man who revileth the king should be hanged upon a tree." Jasher 12:5 (quoting ancient law of Nimrod).

In Christian nations God is king. His Law is supreme. Whoever violates His law and is worthy of death is first executed in a manner that spills blood:

> "Ye shall take no satisfaction for the life of a murderer ... he shall surely be put to death. ... For blood it defileth the land: and the land cannot be cleansed of the blood that is shed there in, but by the blood of him that shed it." Nu 36:31-33, "The earth will not be clean of the blood which has been spilt upon it, but only by the blood of him that shed it." Jubilees 7:27, "Do not receive any present for any blood of man ... for this blood which is spilt causes sin upon the earth, and it cannot be cleansed ... except by blood being shed; and do not receive a present or any gift for the blood of man; blood for blood." Jubilees 21:17

Hollywood's Wild West slow death by hanging strangulation, or modern electrocution, or the garrote used to murder Rudolf Hess do not spill blood and so are forbidden. When the offender against God's law has been executed so that his blood is shed upon the ground, THEN, his body is taken and hanged upon a tree as an example to others.

Traditionally, a man found dead lying on the ground was presumed murdered. If found on a tree - presumed executed for an offense against the king. Investigation determined the truth. The last criminal executed in Virginia and displayed in the manner prescribed was back in the 1930s.

There is a story of Judge Lynch's ancestor back in Ireland who hanged his own son from the walls of his castle for violating a young girl. Even though Virginia's Judge Lynch never hanged anyone, he was descended from a line that had.

The establishment appears indifferent about murder on the streets, but objects violently to executions where the criminal is displayed upon a tree in the traditional manner. You know - separation of church and state: i.e. the separation of OUR church from THEIR state.

"Dear Mr. Hoskins: I knew that Britain invaded South Africa during the Boer War, but until I read your VC I didn't know about their awful concentration camps and the burnings they did while they were there." G. E. - Virginia

"Dear Mr. Hoskins: In your opinion, who is the single most dangerous enemy of the Christian West?" R. C. - South Carolina

ED: Easy! Satan's priests posing as Christians, paid by tax exemption to proclaim that "Christians are saved by grace and forgiven from having to obey God's Law."

They NEVER utter the following and can usually be identified because of their refusal: (1) "We must obey God rather than men." Acts 5:29, and (2) "If ye love me obey my commandments." John 14:15.

Result for the deceived listener: (1) "With harlots and adulterersses shall ye be joined, and the daughter of the Gentiles shall ye take to wife purifying them with an unlawful purification." Testament of Levi 4:17, (2) "Thou hast forsaken thy people ... because they ... please themselves in the children of strangers." Isiah 2:6

For Satan's priest himself: (1) "Cursed be he that doeth the work of the Lord deceitfully." Jer 48:10, (2) "If thou forbear to deliver them that are drawn to death, and those that are ready to be slain ... behold ... doth not he know it? And shall not he render to every man according to his works?" Prov 24:11-12.

Listen past the pretty words of the one calling himself "minister of God" and let him tell you if he speaks for Christ or the ancient foe. The wolf in sheeps clothing is the most dangerous of all.

Chapter 199

THE LITTLE MONKEY

Elevator Talk

One morning thirty-two years ago, I stepped on the elevator to go to the Dupont office on the second floor of the Krise Building where I worked as a stockbroker. The elevator operator was a tall nice mulatto named James. I liked James.

James had his face averted so I couldn't see at first. When he turned I never saw such a sight. He had bandages, cuts, eyes swollen so he could hardly see, and big knots that so disfigured his face he was unrecognizable until he spoke.

I asked, "What in the world happened to you?"

He replied, "I got a monkey on my back."

"What in the world are you talking about?" I had really never seen such a sight outside of a hospital, and then only once.

James seemed hesitant, but then he answered. "Well, you know that there was a fair last night 'cross the river in Madison-Heights. Well, I went."

"There was a ring there with a colored fella' fighting a monkey. It was a big monkey. The monkey was scared and the colored fella' chased him around and whipped him too, and won $10 dollars for doing it."

"Then, the ring master brought out a little monkey and offered a hundred dollars to anyone who could whip him. I figured if that other fella' could whip the big monkey, I could whip the little one, so I was first in line. There was one thing the man didn't tell - It was that the little monkey was the mean one."

"They put a mask on the little monkey so he couldn't bite, and they put gloves on him. Put gloves on me too and let us go at each other. I figured I'd end this fast, so I wound up and hit that monkey as hard as I could. I knocked that monkey for a loop and made him mad. He landed on his feet and came right for me quick as lightning and then I knew I was in trouble."

"He hit me fifty times so fast I couldn't see, then jumped on my shoulders, wrapped his legs around my neck, and started beating me from behind. I couldn't get to him to hit him, I couldn't get away from him, I couldn't get him off my back. When he got tired of that he got in front of me with his legs still locked around my neck and kept beating on me while he tried to bite my face off. There he was a half an inch away from me with his teeth just snapping. The only thing saving me from having my face eaten off was his mask - but I didn't think of the mask. I just saw his teeth!"

"I pushed him off with all my might and made a dash for the ropes, dropped to my knees to crawl under, but before I could get away that monkey grabbed my foot and dragged me back again into the ring and beat me up some more."

"After a while the man stopped the fight and let me go. That's the last time I'm ever going to get into a ring with a monkey. Don't ever let one of them things get on your back - if they do they'll half kill you."

Big-Monkey Saddam

There's a lesson in this. The ring master gave Bush $10 to beat up on Saddam - the "big monkey". Bush tricked him into the ring and beat the tar out of him. Now, Bush is walking around the ring holding his hands over his head telling everyone who will listen how great he is and to vote for him next election. The ring master is even talking about taking big-monkey Saddam and holding a war crimes trial for him so he can beat up on him some more - like Noriega. But:

What is the big monkey Saddam doing right now?

He's fighting for his life against the little monkey. The little one's the mean one. Who's that? Why, the Shiite moslems. They are the mean ones. They are using Saddam's defeat as an excuse to get rid of Saddam, take over Iraq and do things right. Thousands have been killed already and the Republican Guard has all it can do to try to hold the little monkey down. Saddam is a Sunni moslem. There's only one Shiite for every 50 Sunnis, but believe it! The Shiites are the mean ones. All it takes is one.

If "watch my lips" pulls Saddam off the Shiites, they will jump off the mat and wrap their legs around Bush's neck and beat him so that you won't be able to tell James and George apart. Can't the U.S. do to the Shiites the same thing they did to the Saddam Sunnis?

Sure, but with one difference. Sunnis want to live for Allah. Shiites prefer to die for Allah. It took one Shiite driver to drive the truck loaded with explosives that killed 240 American marines. A minute after the first truck exploded, a second truck driven by a Shiite killed 75 French airborne troopers the same way.

Only one shiite placed a bomb that dropped the American airliner in pieces on Lockerbie, Scotland, to retaliate for moslems killed on the Iranian airliner shot into the Gulf by the American navy.

One can kill 99% of the Shiites, and it takes only one survivor to land a back-packable atomic bomb, bought from a drunken Soviet soldier for two bottles of vodka, on a beach in Virginia. From there it is only a couple of hours to Washington. Anybody can walk or drive to within 100 yards of the president at the White House, or walk inside the capitol.

Our ring-master put America in the ring for $10. Now. Let's see how our leaders handle themselves as they go for the $100 prize.

Koran Directions

Most moslems are Sunnis. Many Sunnis believe, as many establishment Christians in the West do, that God's law is done away and they can do whatever they want to do. But the Sunnis are not as bad about this as establishment Christians.

The Shiites, on the other hand, believe the Koran right down to the last jot and tittle written in it. They believe further that there is great merit in dying for their beliefs. Islam has a lot of things going for it, but, some of the things written in it cause concern among non-Islamic peoples.

Following is a sample from the Koran's Book of Repentance.

"Allah will humble the unbelievers." Repentance 9:1

"Allah and His apostle are free from obligation to the idolaters." Repen 9:1

"Allah and His apostle repose no trust in idolaters." 9:4

"Make war on them: Allah will chastise them through you and humble them." 9:14

"None should visit the mosques of Allah except those who believe in Allah and the Last Day." 9:14

"Believers, do not befriend your fathers or your brothers if they choose unbelief in preference to faith." 9:14

"Allah has been with you on many a battlefield... He sent to your aid invisible warriors and sternly punished the unbelievers. Thus were the infidels rewarded." 9:26

"Believers, know that the idolaters are unclean. Let them not approach the Sacred Mosque." 9:26[1]

"Fight against such of those to whom ... do not embrace the true faith, until ... they are utterly subdued." 9:26

"Proclaim a woeful punishment to those that hoard up gold and silver and do not spend it in Allah's cause."9:34

"Allah ordained the months ... four are sacred ... But you may fight against idolaters in all these months." 9:35

1 The Christian religion teaches the same thing. "When the tabernacle is to be pitched ... the stranger (Heb: zwer - racial alien) that cometh nigh shall be put to death." Numbers 1:51. So does the Jewish Talmud. The Talmud says of those teaching the Torah to non-Jews "Such a person deserves death." Sanh. 59a Hagigah 13a. and "A Goi who pries into the Law is guilty of death." Sanh 59a, Pranaitis. Brotherhood means different things in different religions. Christians believe, "Whosoever shall do the will of my Father which is in heaven, the same is my brother." Math 12:50. This excludes those who don't.

"Are they not aware that the man who defied Allah and His apostle shall abide for ever in the fire of Hell?" 9:62

"Allah has promised ... the unbelievers, the fire of Hell. ... The curse of Allah is upon them; theirs shall be a lasting torment." 9:67

"Prophet, make war on the unbelievers and the hypocrites and deal rigorously with them. Hell shall be their home." 9:73

"Those that stayed at home ... had no wish to fight for the cause of Allah with their wealth and their persons. They said ... 'Do not go to war, the heat is fierce.' Say to them: 'More fierce is the heat of Hell-fire!'" 9:81

The "saved by grace" and do anything you want crowd[2] in the West take the Laws of Christianity with a grain of salt. The Sunnis of Islam take the above words from the Koran with a grain of salt.

The Shiites believe them to the letter, and many Sunnis sympathize with the Shiites in this.

Neither do the descendants of Western crusaders take the words of their own Christian God with a grain of salt and they frown on those who do.

The "saved by grace" crowd in Washington may have started something that the god they call upon, whoever he

Jesus said that he came to save them: "I am come to save that which is lost." He also said "I am not sent but to the lost sheep of the house of Israel, and to them only." The lost Christian must recognize his God as master to be saved, but not saved so that he can do away with the God who saved him and do as he likes.

If this is indeed what has been done, rest assured, those who have unleashed the whirlwind will not escape.

MEDIA DIRECTED DEMOCRACY

One of the conditions for peace the U.S. has placed on Iraq is that they adopt a democratic form of government - not a republican form of government, a monarchy, or a single party government - a democratic form of government.

This means that there will be multi political parties whose leaders will be elected by the mass of people.

The mass of the Iraqi citizens will be told for whom to vote by the media. Whoever owns the Iraqi media will then rule Iraq. We in the U.S. know all about that. It is the conquest that follows the conquest. "Democracy" - yeah! Look at us!

BOOK OF DAN: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: "Vigilantes" left a great impression on me. One quote:

"The enemy is eager to destroy all that call upon the Lord. For he knoweth that upon the day that Israel shall repent, the kingdom of the enemy shall be brought to an end." Book of Dan. 2:16-17.

"I have never heard a better summation of the struggle we are now involved in. I cannot find the quote in the book of Daniel. Could you point me in the right direction?"

ED: You can find it in the Book of Dan, also called the Testament of Dan, found in The Lost Books of The Bible & and the Forgotten Books of Eden. Order from your book dealer or from us.

Verse 19 goes on to say:

> "It shall be in the time of the lawlessness of Israel, that the Lord will not depart from them, but will transform them into a nation that doeth His will ... and His name shall be in every place in Israel."

I have found that The Law reads the same in all the ancient scriptures. I Enoch 104:7-11 gives the reason:

> "I point out a mystery: Many sinners shall ... utter falsehood ... and compose books in their own words. But when they shall write all my words correctly in their own languages, They shall ... write them all correctly. ... Another mystery also I point out. To the righteous and the wise shall be given books of joy, of integrity, and of great wisdom. ... who from these shall acquire the knowledge of every upright path."

BLACKS IN S. AFRICA: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Why were there no Blacks in South Africa when the Whites arrived?" N. G. - S. Africa

ED: Too cold. It wasn't until the Whites built shelters for Blacks in S. Africa that they could live there.

SHERMAN THE BANKER: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: The following is one author's response made concerning Sherman's military actions: 'Joshua Abraham Norton, a Jewish San Francisco merchant, borrowed heavily to corner the rice market, then lost everything - land, riches and 'reason.' His banker was William T. Sherman, the same Sherman who nine years later would march a plundering Union army through Georgia. ... A bankrupted Joshua Norton might have understood why his land was seized to settle a debt, but ... (he) would never have understood why the same banker burned Atlanta to settle a conflict already won.' from

Norton I, Emperor of the U.S., William Drury, NY 1986." D. E. - Georgia

ED: A banker could. Sherman, the banker turned soldier, was creating demand. Wherever he went he burned. Whatever he burned had to be rebuilt - rebuilt with money borrowed from the N.Y. branch banks of the people who burned it down. These new banks opened their doors as fast as the arsonists marched out of town. When you see bombs toppling out of airplane bomb-bay doors, don't thing of the dead women and children and destroyed cities and homes, just think of it as creating demand.

MOSES MARRIES A CUSHITE: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Jesus said he would (1) make for himself a people "out of all nations," and in Revelation 7:9-10 it says "I beheld ... a great multitude ... of all nations, and kindreds, and peoples, and tongues ... before the throne." And (2) there is the story of Miriam, Moses' sister, who spent a full week outside the camp with leprosy, stricken by god because she criticized Moses' marriage to a Cushite (Ethiopian woman). What is the reconciliation between these views." J. E. - California

ED: Q1 Most discrepancies can be reconciled by remembering that the word is given to Israel only. "He showed his word ... his statutes and his Judgments unto Israel. He hath not delt so with any nation ... they have not known thee." Ps 147:19,20.. "All nations" refer to all the nations of Israel.

Q2. Moses' sister was punished for spreading falsehood. It is true that Moses did marry a Cushite, but it was not as it seems. The full story is in the ancient book of Jasher. For those who are interested and have not read it, I excerpted the following:

> "Moses ... saw an Egyptian smiting one of his Hebrew brethren. ... and when he saw there was no man there he smote the Egyptian and hid him in the sand ...and Moses was afraid and he said, surely the thing is known! ...
>
> "And it was in those days that there was a great war between the children of Cush and the children of the east. ... So Kikianus king of Cush went forth ... to fight... And when Kikianus went out, he left Balaam[3] the magician, with his two sons, to guard the city ... (Balaam) rose up and ... rebelled against king Kikianus... And the people ... made him king over them, and his two sons for captains of the army....
>
> "And when Kikianus the king of Cush approached his city and ... saw that the walls of the city were built up .. the men were astonished ... and behold, all the gates of the city were closed, ... So they raised a battle with them ...
>
> "At that time ... Moses fled from Egypt from Pharaoh who sought to kill him for having slain the Egyptian. And Moses ... fled and escaped to the camp of Kikianus, which at that time was besieging Cush. And Moses was 9 years in the camp of Kikianus king of Cush ... And the king and princes and all the fighting men loved Moses ... And at the end of 9 years Kikianus was seized with a mortal disease ... and he died...
>
> "In the 55th year of the reign of pharaoh king of Egypt ... reigned Moses in Cush. Moses was 27 years old ... and 40 years did he reign. ... And all the children of Cush ... spoke ... saying, give us counsel that we may see what is to be done to this city. For it is now 9 years that we have been besieging around about the city, and have not seen our children and our wives. ...

3 This is the same Balaam who advised Balak to place the daughters and wives of strangers near the sons of Israel so that they would go in unto them and this would cause the God of Israel to become angry and destroy his own people.

"And they approached and fought against the city and took it ... And Balaam ... and his two sons and 8 brothers fled and returned to Egypt to Pharaoh king of Egypt. They are the sorcerers and magicians who are mentioned in the book of the law ...

"So Moses took the city ... and the children of Cush placed him on the throne ... and they gave him for a wife Adoniah the Cushite queen, wife of Kikianus.

"And Moses feared the Lord God of his fathers, so that he came not to her, nor did he turn his eyes to her. For Moses remembered how Abraham had made his servant Eleaser swear, saying unto him, thou shalt not take a woman from the daughters of Canaan for my son Isaac. ... thou shalt not take a wife from the daughters of Canaan, nor make alliance with any of the children of Ham. ... Therefore Moses turned not his heart nor his eyes to the wife of Kikianus all the days that he reigned over Cush." Jasher 71:2 - 73:36.

There is another story of Moses marrying a stranger and having children by her that the enemies of the Word tell to justify racial intermarriage. The following scriptures lay that story to rest.

"Aaron... saw Zipporah the wife of Moses and her children, and he said unto Moses, who are these unto thee? ...Moses said... these are my wife and sons... The thing grieved Aaron... And Aaron said to Moses, send away the woman and her children... and Moses... did so." Jasher 74:15-17.

Chapter 200

WORLD WAR I CONTENDERS

Before the great war started in 1914, much of Europe was owned by kings, princes, and the Church.[1] These illegal possessions owned by king and church and held in violation of the Law were the sugar that attracted the flies.

1 (1) MONOPOLY - "Woe unto them that join house to house, that lay field to field, till there be no place, and they may be placed alone in the midst of the earth." Isaiah 5:8, (2) CHURCH - PRIESTS - POSSESSIONS: "Thus saith the Lord, Shalt thou build me an house for me to dwell in?" II Sam 7:5, "I am their inheritance: and ye shall give them no possession in Israel: I am their possession." Ez. 44:28, "The priests, the Levites, and all the tribe of Levi, shall have no part, no inheritance with Israel: ... Therefore they shall have no inheritance among their brethren: The Lord is their inheritance." Deu. 18:1-2, 3. KINGS & RULERS: "Let him not have ... abundance of riches ... he may grow too proud to submit to the Laws ...and if he affect any such things let him be restrained, lest he become so potent that his state become inconsistent with your welfare." Antiquities 4:8:17

To capture this vast property a world war was fought - a war costing tens of millions of lives of the cream of the West.

In the midst of the carnage, President Wilson of the United States stepped forward as a peace mediator with his peace plan of "14 Points." The chief point was that the war would be considered a "no fault" war - everyone would go back to square one and there would be no territorial loss or any other kinds of losses. Favorable comment was heard from all sides and it seemed that this was the best plan. An armistice was declared based on these "14 points."

Unlike the armies of defeated American South, Germany's armies were intact. Germany could not be looted as the American South had been - her undefeated armies protected her. This problem was solved by a well planned and well financed communist-led revolt behind the German lines which was triggered by the announcement of the Armistice.

Most of the communist-led rebels were not communists, they were and had been loyal Germans. But, the communist leaders promised them the land owned by their forefathers - the land now un- Lawfully held by the king, the nobles, and the church. In effect, the communists promised the German people to return their own land to them. This was the best offer they had heard, so they followed those who promised the most - the communists.

This revolt caused the German armies to stream back from the front to suppress it, removing the main obstacle to the looting of Germany. While the German army was embroiled with the communists, the Allies welshed and forced the frustrated Germans to sign the Versailles Treaty, stripping Germany and her allies of more than 1/3 of their land, all their extensive foreign colonies, and levying a brutal tribute on them.

There was nothing vindictive about this - both the American South and South Africa had gone through this years before. It was just business.[2]

If the communist coup had succeeded, as it had in Russia, then the German foreign colonies, the King's land, and the Church's land would have been automatically owned by the communist establishment and there would have been no need to pry them loose by the harsh treaty demands that were actually used.

The German Inflation

The Versailles Treaty gave color of legitimacy to what followed.

In addition to the above, reparations-tribute was imposed - similar to the "taxation" by blacks forced on the American South. This reparations-tribute was required to be paid in dollars to the U.S., in pounds to the British, and francs to the French. Germany and her allies did not produce any of these currencies so they had to be borrowed from the banks of her conquerors in order to pay the claims.

The banks, having the money making monopoly, named their own terms. They were harsh. Each day they changed their terms and raised the tally. It cost more and more German marks to buy a dollar, more and more English pounds, more and more French francs. This borrowed money was given to Germany's conquerors to spend as they saw fit.

The bankers, loaded with German tribute money, sent their carpet- baggers/agents to Germany to buy up property from impoverished Germans using their own money. It cost a billion marks for a starving German to buy a loaf of bread. It didn't cost much more to buy his house, his factory, or his farm, and the banker/agents were loaded with trillions of German marks to spend on whatever still had value in Germany.

A protest party emerged in Germany - the Nationalist Socialist German Workers Party - the party of Adolph Hitler. They complained that in Berlin more than half the houses and almost all the businesses were owned by foreigners. The German citizens supported this protest party, and it took political power and proceeded to pressure the foreign property owners to return the property - either sell it back or have it confiscated. This allowed the party of Hitler to control much of the property which had been accumulated by the carpetbagger/banker-agents and before that the Church and the king.

World War II

World War II was fought to reclaim the vast property holdings seized by Hitler's party from foreign carpetbagger/banker-agents, and the property which had belonged to king, nobles, and Church, all of which had originally belonged to the people.

Germany lost. As punishment she was permanently occupied and further dismembered. The occupied W. German part immediately gave up the land and property seized from the Hitler Party - not to the people - not to the church and king, but - to the surrogate bank owners who had bought it in the '20s banker-induced inflation.

In occupied E. Germany things were different. There, the Communist Party had seized their share of the same prize and had farmed it out to party functionaries to milk. They weren't about to share this juicy plum with anyone. Western rulers were tolerant of this communist eccentricity.

Communist greed and incompetence milked the economy of E. Germany more than it could take, and it collapsed. To salvage what remained, the Berlin Wall barrier was pulled down and the bankrupt Soviet-occupied E. German state was incorporated into the occupied W. Germany state to bring back to life.

"They Don't Make Any More Land!"

Land is the ultimate prize. Grasping rulers pass taxes to force small holders to sell to large holders.[3]

It is hoarded into monopolies, it is seized by kings and rulers, it is the prize of wars that kill millions and destroy cities and countries. Land is the ultimate possession that tyrannical kings and priests lust for.

The European land in E. Germany, seized by banker-surrogates during the 20s German inflation, seized from them by the Hitler Party, and later confiscated by the E. German Communist Party, is once again to change hands. It, too, is to be returned - not to the kings, church, and merchants who owned it before WW I, and not to the people from whom the kings and church originally took it, but - SURPRISE - to the banker-surrogates who bought it for nothing during starvation period of the 1920s banker-caused inflation.

Another King Is Dead

The man placed in charge of the property transfer was Dr. Detlev Rohwedder, chairman of the board of Treuhandanstalt ("True Hand Bank" or "Honest Hand Bank") of Berlin.

Herr Dr. Rohwedder was gunned down at his mansion in Duesseldorf while engaged in "privatizing" this "public property" of the now defunct Communist Party of E. Germany. The establishment media once again blamed this on the Red Army Faction. However, the blame was not accompanied by shrill demands for control, banning, or crackdown on the activities of the Communist Party, or any other restrictions that one would expect to be directed against a group which constantly removes prominent usury bankers and other establishment figures from the German scene.[4]

A quarter page notice of the "assassination" appeared in the WSJ, April 8, 1991, C5, which is the page listing the NYSE stock prices. This is one page certain to be read by all who are interested in money. The notice stated:

"In memory of the deceased we ask you to forward any donations to the Siftung Preussischer Kulturbesitz in Berlin.

4 Ezek 18:13

Special account for contributions - Acct. No. 9900 11 470, routing code 100 500 00, Landesbank Berlin."

This announcement ended with what could be interpreted as a "receipt of notice", an address where "donations" can be sent. This indicates that there might be more to the announcement than the announcement.

It appears that another contender has thrown his hat into the ring in the age-old fight to claim the lands of the peoples of the West. A contender who, like his opponent, plays hardball. One who is NOT a communist since communists NEVER kill their creators. One thoroughly democratic in choosing his targets without regard to race, creed, or color, only by what they have done.

The man who owns his own land is a king. Ruling his land Lawfully makes him a priest.[5]

TREASURY BILLS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I see where the government is going to buy high yielding Treasury Bills and replace them with lower yielding Treasury Bills. Does this save the government much money?" G. C. - D.C.

ED: When the government buys outstanding T-bills, the owner is paid in cash. Since yields are down, the owner is faced with what to do with this cash. Chances are that a large part will go into the economy rather than being re-invested into low paying T- bills. This is another way of giving the economy a shot in the arm.

FREE MARKET: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: What does it mean when the papers say that a 'free market' will be imposed on E. European countries." A. B. - Maryland

ED: Practically, it means that those who own the system will be permitted to do what they want to do. A "free market" and a "free enterprise system" are two different cats.

SOUTH AFRICA: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I read your War Cycles / Peace Cycles and am wondering what is the real reason for U.S. and Western Europe's support of African communism and hostility to South Africa?" J. B. - Idaho

ED: To force them into the arms of the International Trade Cartel (ITC). One bloc will have a near-monopoly on natural resources; the other a near-monopoly on technics.

The countries of the world are like a deck of cards - they are shuffled at will and dealt into any desired combination. The common thread of control is - "The borrower is slave." It's the Law. The Blacks are blamed - they only furnish the muscle. The Jews or Japs? - they only furnish the money or the troops. The USSR, Japan, U.S. or the Israeli country? - they are only "spurs" to make the horse jump the fence. WHAT then?

You already know. If there are only $10 in the world and they are lent under condition that $11 be repaid - it cannot be done. "The borrower is slave." Slaves obey. The Law is absolute. Find someone who lends $10 for $11, and you will be in the presence of a hired hand of the the ruler of the world, a small time imitator who will soon be gobbled up, or the ruler himself. "By their acts.... ."

TEACHERS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I had a math teacher who complained that she was forced to teach math. A math teacher in the same school was forced to teach history. Are the administrators crazy?" P. N. - Tennessee

ED: It's hard to believe that it's not done on purpose. I talked to a creation of the public school system yesterday. He didn't know who Captain John Smith was, what a kamakazi was, a Shiite, or a Zionist. He was a junior in a religious college and didn't know what a Phineas Priest was either.

PHINEHAS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: The word "Phinehas" in Strong's Concordance means "mouth of the serpent. Why?" H. R. - Oklahoma

ED: Abraham came from the Chaldees, the Chaldees came from the ancient Sumerians, along with the Babylonians, Hittites, Phoenicians, Indians, Greeks, and Egyptians. The ancient Sumerian translation of "serpent" means wisdom. Perhaps it means wisdom - good or bad - depending on context, similar to the usage of "stranger", which is either good or bad depending on context. The serpent raised on a pole in the desert healed the children of Israel - that's good. The serpent in the garden is bad. Wisdom is either good or bad depending on usage. God created a special priesthood for Phineas and blessed it for all generations. That's good.

INTERRACIAL MARRIAGE: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I was reading the book of Jubilees and ran across the following which merely re-enforces other like scriptures:

> "If there is any man in Israel who desires to give his daughter or his sister to ... the Gentiles, he shall surely die .. for Israel is holy to the lord ... And to this law there is no limit of days and no ceasing and no forgiveness ... And thou, Moses, command the children of Israel ... that they shall not give any of their daughters to the Gentiles and that they shall not take any of the daughters of the Gentiles; for ... it is disgraceful to Israel ... for it is unclean and accursed to Israel; ... for there will be plagues upon plagues, curse upon curse, and all punishment and plagues and curses will come .. and if they blind their eyes to those that commit uncleanness ... then shalt the whole people together be punished." Jubilees 30:6- 13

ED: Strangers bring plague. Plagues have almost destroyed entire nations. Non-venereal syphilis plague came from the Indians of Mexico, bubonic plague from the Orient, black plague from the Mideast. etc. Man, transgressing with "humans", brings God's curse. It's the Law.

ED: The parade of FBI witnesses at the Fort Smith Sedition Trials said so many contradictory things that the jury found it impossible to believe anything they said. At that trial another preacher-informer was said to have prepared the ground by remarks to a grand-jury against those he had first befriended. Sixteen years after de la Beckwith's first trial they brush off the tired old statements by another preacher-informer for a last ditch THIRD trial. The talk should be about double-jeopardy! Or better - about informers. Is it true that almost every FBI informer is an informer to keep from prison himself? Are informer's crimes reviewed by juries? If not - they certainly should be.

PATRIOT MISSILE: "(From) the Pentagon comes word that the Bush Administration is planning to sell the technology for the Patriot missile to the Soviet Union. This is the same Patriot missile that ... intercepted Iraqi Scud missiles aimed at targets in Israel and Saudi Arabia. ...such advanced technologies have for the past decade been restricted to friendly countries." THE NEW AMERICAN, p. 4, Apr 9, 1991.

ED: The red bear menace must be made believable to justify multi- billion dollar defense expenditures. A dissected Patriot will result in a new improved Scud which will require an updated multi-billion dollar Patriot which will require an up- dated ... etc. etc. etc. Smile! It's "the good life."

TOE SUCKER: "Authorities are preparing warrants for the arrest of a convicted toe sucker ...charged with three counts ...

RAPE: The Kennedy clan has once more come to public attention. This time the cry of "rape" is leveled against one of its members. It appears that wherever that family is - disgraceful conduct is reported sooner or later. Those committing many of the acts attributed to the Kennedys are referred to as "white trash" in Virginia. Indeed, history may well refer to the Kennedy clan as the carbuncle on the face of America.

RULE BY PEERS: "The high court ruled in 1986 that when prosecutors disqualify potential jurors based on their race it violates the 14th Amendment's guarantee of equal protection." Miami Herald Apr 2, 1991[6] American Westerners now have no recourse to theIr ancient Law. Oriental plant managers, bankers, and workers arrive daily to direct the activities of Americans. The courts, the government, and establishment churches who allow this put themselves in the position of fighting God.

It will soon become plain that the (Black) African National Congress is a tool of the S.A. Communist Party, and that Joe Slovo, not Nelson Mandela, will dictate the terms of surrender to Mr. de Klerk." Ibid.

WHITE S. African school districts were given a choice of (A) separate schools, or (B) integrated schools. The S.A. media has talked of nothing but the glories of (B) type schools, but this is how the public has responded.

- Of 943 Transvaal schools, only 41 indicated they were interested in (B) schools. By Dec. 1990, only 18 could be persuaded to vote for (B) schools.
- Of 259 Natal schools - 20% voted (B). By Dec 1990 only 2 supported (B).
- Of 720 Cape schools - 16%. By Dec 1990 - only 5%.
- Of 2122 schools in all of S. Africa - only 6% supported integration. From S. A. Observer, Jan. 1991, P.O.Box 2401, Pretoria $13/yr.

ED: This is why the leftists don't dare allow freedom of choice in America, or even referendums. Every time it has been put to a referendum - class (B) integrated schools have been voted down.

AIDS: "The infection spreads at a rate affected by the mores of the community. ... Areas of such depopulation are large enough to have been observed from satellites. ... and a million HIV Positive cases have been predicted by the end of 1992. ... As a doubling of HIV Positive cases every 8-9 months is happening already ... Hospital services would then be overwhelmed in the following year or two. ...Voluntary ... helpers ... would be needed to swell the ranks ... depleted by exposure to AIDS . ... It might become advisable to enroll the HIV Positive community which will then be large and growing ...

"There would be a general and increasing reduction in labor supply. Government services, commerce, industry, agriculture and mining would all be curtailed within a year or two. ... This import could mean a relentless reduction in the population by several percentage points a year for several years to less than half of today's numbers. ...

"One ... effective cure ... to be hoped for ... is a change in the virus itself to a less virulent form. ... a first source of help is the clergy and others who fight sin professionally. ... The (Bible) is full of rules and remonstrances and dire examples of the subject of irresponsible sexual intercourse. ...

"... Never let the power of a force of good women when motivated by challenge like this one, be underestimated. ... The recently abandoned sex laws should be replaced by a much stronger social veto on and ostracism of irresponsible sexual behavior. Spread of infection between races is undesirable as racial barriers can be a useful bar to the spread of new virus strains ...

"The 'sexual liberation' proclaimed recently has been at a terrifying price. It is now time to swing to a puritanical moral outlook ... The wages of sin, are indeed Death ... The dreadful cry, 'Why were we not warned in time,' ... should be anticipated and quieted by urgent and full information and advice now." The Covenant Message

Chapter 201

43RD REUNION

Well, I was back - Fishburne Military School. The place I started doing all those things I had sworn that no one would ever make me do.Everything looked about the same. Gone was the ivy on the walls and the beat-up gray painted WWI machine guns overlooking the parade field. But that was about all. Grass now grew on the gravel strewn parade field that doubled as a football field. That was new. On our football team we were used to hitting the gravel, but other teams weren't. They didn't like being tackled on that field. They remembered Fishburne from the gravel scrapes and scars.

I went to the Foyer and paid my $35 registration fee. Killing time, I looked at the old shooting trophies. Back then, I shot on the 3rd rifle team. Only the 1st and 2nd teams had their names on the trophies, but I recognized the names.

Ten or eleven boys shot better than I could. You could hardly read the engraving through the dirt and grime. The 1940s Randolph Hearst shooting trophies looked so old. I could remember them shiny new.

I went over to a group of gray old men to ask a question - and one of them said - "Hoskins"! It was Murphy from North Carolina. He wasn't "old", he was one of us - one of the class of '47 - and he had a 30 year old wife! Then, one at a time the familiar old faces became young again - time dropped away. "Do you remember the time when ...."

It was 1944. There was a war on. I was 15. The army sent instructors. Battle hardened soldiers. Some had been wounded and their wounds were still open and bled sometimes. They treated us like recruits are treated the world over. We were ROTC and their job was to hammer us into shape before we went into combat. The casualty lists from graduated classes came in regularly. The war was very real to us.

Saturday morning inspection. Get up at midnight Friday, scrub the floor, wash the windows, inspect bedding and clothing for loose strings (called "ropes"), disassemble and thoroughly clean an already thoroughly clean rifle ("Hoskins, rifle serial number?" - "1238012 Sir!"),[1] make the bed, and get an hour's sleep on the floor to keep from wrinkling the bed before inspection ("Hoskins - what is general order #3?").

Marshall was my upperclassman. I had to shine his shoes, get his uniforms from the pressing club, and get cigarettes

1 I can't remember my social security number, or either my armed service enlisted or officer's serial number, but I remember that rifle number!

for him when he ordered me to. I liked working for Marshall. He looked out for his misters. He went into the army the next year and was killed.

In barracks we walked in a tight brace. Fingers touching the belt and elbows almost straight back (try it). We came to attention when addressed by an upperclassman and said "Sir". I was on the football team and also Marshall's "mister" so I wasn't bothered as much as the other misters. I was beaten only once. Tackus told me to find him three cigarettes. There were no cigarettes in school. I couldn't even find one. There was a war on and they were hard to get, so he beat me with a broom. It hurt. Tackus was killed and they never found his body. I saw a letter from Cave. He wouldn't come to the reunion. He said that his memories of FMS weren't fond. He said he had suffered all his adult life from a back injury caused by beatings at school. I remember Cave well.

Machine guns, rifles, pistols, mortars, we could take them down and put them together blindfolded. Everybody could. We could string communications wire, set up command posts, find the best field of fire for MGs. Set out a perimeter. This is what we were taught. It was all we knew. It was our life - like breathing.

We practiced squad tactics. Waynesboro had grown up around the school so we had to march a mile and a half to get to the open countryside. The marching and the singing - the clump, clump, clump of heels hitting the ground, the straight lines, eyes front ("Don't let anyone see you take your eyes away from the back of the man's head in front. They'll know you're a recruit.") - it was great. Often we didn't have time to march out to the country and back again. We had to practice on the gravel parade field to get in the hours required by the army. There was room for eight squads to practice combat squad maneuvers. One third of the field was passably soft, with only a cinder track on part of it if you were unlucky. One third included the gravel football field. The other third was mostly soft, but contained a depression that collected an inch or two of water when it was damp. Waynesboro in winter is always damp.

On command you hit the ground. Lying flat on your stomach you aimed your rifle at "the enemy" who were in the houses across the street. On command you commenced "rapid fire" - pull the bolt back, slam it forward - in one easy movement without taking the rifle from your shoulder or your eyes from the target. Sight, squeeze the trigger, "click", again, again, and again - until "cease fire!".

On command, your section would rise and rush forward. A section at a time. On command it hit the gravel - rifle butt first to break the fall - elbows next. It didn't hurt much. Everyone did it. If you were a tender sort, you taped your elbows. Most didn't bother. The depression was unpleasant only when it had standing water. It was especially unpleasant when the water had a skim of ice on it, and a breeze was blowing to chill you when you got wet. The eighth squad got wet. Every one took their turn. It was fair. There were no favorites or gold bricks. The instructors did their job. There was some belly-aching, but not much. Up! run! down! "splash". Up! run! down! "splash." This was what we did. It was what everyone did.

Class of '47 was taken on a tour of barracks. There were now locks on the doors. "Locks!" Can you imagine needing locks? We left money on tables or on the beds and it was never taken. We went in the rooms. They were nice and clean, but shiny hardwood floors had given way to linoleum.

There were TVs, and no Saturday morning inspection. There were no rifles. To get rifles now for parade boys had to go to the armory and draw rifles. There had been some shootings. Some cadets had sold them. Some other cadets had broken them.

The boys we saw were young, bright faced and polite - on their best behavior. They said their grades had gone way up since coming to school. I went to "my" room and talked to the cadets living there now. I asked where they were from and told them stories of the past. Their faces showed "disbelief," or puzzlement. They didn't understand. They couldn't relate. The school was our common denominator, but there was no "rat line", no "mister" system, no maneuvers, no casualty lists, no beatings. They could now walk outside the barracks in T-shirts. They had black cadets. That's new. The locks arrived with the blacks. It used to be that blacks went to their own military academies. One near Norfolk and one in central Virginia. I was told that most of these weren't Virginia blacks, they came from NY on scholarships. No one knew who gave the scholarships. They had been given a choice of integrating several Virginia schools and had chosen Fishburne. They got more promotions for their number than Whites did. The white cadets noticed this.

It was time for the big review. The alumni passed in review before the cadets, their families, and town visitors. Their review ended as they filed into the stands. There were over 200 alumni with the oldest a spry 97. In the assembly earlier he told us that we "youngsters" had had it easy. That things were "really tough" when he went there. I'll bet they were.

The band passed in review playing "Deutschland Uber Alles." That was new. Then they played the songs of the various services. Alumni that had served in that branch stood while they played. I stood twice. "AF" and "Airborne." The cadet corps then passed in review. They looked good.

That afternoon we were on our own. I drove out to the fields where we used to practice war. Subdivisions now covered them. The banks of the South River where I used to walk by myself on Sunday afternoons and dream of things I would do one day - where I would walk through the tall grass without seeing a soul, was now a park with milling children and families.

I drove to the houses where town families and their beautiful daughters had welcomed cadets so many years ago. The families had gone - vanished. No one knew anyone by that name. Fairfax Hall was a girls' school across town. It was there that I kissed my first girl. I was 16. I will remember THAT until I die. The school is now a corrections center - a prison.

I drove past the small community hospital. It was now a funeral home. I could see the window to the room where I spent more than six weeks - where I got the first penicillin given to anyone outside the armed forces in the state of Virginia.

It happened this way. I was shooting on the range. Something hit my elbow. Something light - like a paper clip. It didn't hurt. A ricochet. Later I discovered blood and a hole. Untreated, it developed into bloodstream infection ("Tough cadets don't go on sick call."). My arm grew bigger than my upper leg and they thought I was going to die. My father was a doctor and he got penicillin for me from a colleague at an army hospital. It saved my life. I was thrashing about out of my head and bent my arm. This caused the tight skin to split open and the wound drained. I immediately started to get better. I talked the pretty young nurse into a kiss. She was the second girl I ever kissed. It all took place right behind that window in what was the hospital.

I drove back. Near a motel was a familiar face. He invited me in. There were half a dozen from '46 and '47 there with their wives. We told old stories and remembered those who had passed on. It was fun. Someone pointed out a cadet weaving back and forth getting ready to walk out into a road. Other cadets ran over and took him in tow. That was new.

Then it was time to dress for dinner. I had driven over from Lynchburg just 65 miles away, so my room was my car. I left while they dressed and drove around a second time until supper.

At the banquet at the country club that night my old comrades and their wives sat together with their drinks. Their faces, wreathed in smiles, were taking on that red alcohol glow. I had taken my first drink of beer at Fishburne the day I reached 18 because I had promised I would not drink until I was 18. On April 28, 1965 I stopped trying to run my own life. I had made a bloody mess of it. I took my last drink in Washington D.C., 10:30 AM, January 1, 1966. It was a Sunday morning. There had been hell between those two dates.

The club served crab, shrimp, and pork. I used to like all of them until I learned that it's not smart to eat scavengers. I had been there long enough. I said my farewells and left early to drive home. Entering my own house I looked at my boys and said, "You boys have it too easy. Robert Byrd!

John Hundley! Put this blindfold on and field-strip this .45!" I think they did it faster than I used to do it, and I learned from professionals.

'47 was '47. '91 is '91. I always felt bad because I couldn't afford to send the boys to military school AND college, and educate the other 4 too, but they seem OK. The acorn doesn't fall far from the oak and it doesn't have to grow on a gravel parade field to grow strong. The promise is that the sun will rise tomorrow.

I think it might do just that.

LETTERS

GERMAN INFLATION: "Dear Dick: I can confirm your words about the German inflation of the 1920s. My mother just told me that my family lost a two-family house for the price of a few bricks." Hans Schmidt, GANPAC - California

INSURANCE FUND: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: The news reported that many banks will be hurt by assessments to increase the deposit insurance fund. Why would banks hurt each other when the taxpayers can be made to pay? G. W. - Maryland

ED: Two reasons: (1) If the taxpayers pay - they might demand control. The one who pays the piper calls the tune. (2) Failed banks are often bot at 10¢ on the dollar by survivors. Today's giants got to be giants by gobbling up weak sisters in the bank bad- times of 1920-1940.

FINANCIAL COUP: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: What do you consider the biggest financial coup of the last 20 years.?" J. Q. - Massachusetts

ED: Hands down it is the legal confiscation of building & loan assets by the international banks at 10¢ on the dollar with the taxpayer picking up the tab (tribute). Billions of dollars of IOUs owed locally are being transferred to international owners. In other words - title to these people is being handed from the local master to the international bankers since the Law states "the borrower is slave to the lender.

IRAQ BOMBING: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: There are few TV pictures of the civilian casualties caused by American carpet bombing of Baghdad and other Iraqi cities and towns. I have been told that the number of civilian casualties is 'humongous' with whole towns lying vacant. The reason given here is that Iraqi land is being cleared for the hundreds of thousands and millions of Israeli immigrants from the Soviet Union. They must live somewhere and the U.S. provided the space. The reason for the carpet bombing against civilians was to kill them and clear the land." J. A. - Saudi Arabia

VIGILANTES: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I was incensed to receive a tape from a Rev. Dan Gayman which attacked your VC. He called it "un- christian" and went on at length to say in essence that we should obey man rather than God." J. C. - Minnesota

ED: Thanks for the tape. The paragraph of his talk that refers to the book follows:

"I hold in my hand a book recently written, by Richard Kelly Hoskins, entitled Vigilantes of Christendom. This book contains a wealth of historical information, but the primary thesis of this book is unscriptural, because the author of this book would have you to believe that God sanctions, that God Almighty approves of those who circumvent, the, ah, chain-of- command, God's authority, and move forward to re-establish, and to re-, ah, to re-establish themselves in their own private authority to right the wrongs of history. We, as a covenant family of people, need to understand the importance of living under Godly authority."

Vigilantes Of Christendom is a history book. It appears that Rev. Dan Gayman has either not read the book, or if he has read it he completely misunderstands its contents. It in no way denies lawfully constituted authority. To deny lawful civil authority is unscriptual. The book simply tells the story of those who react to unLawful rulers, unlawful measures, and unlawful acts. Those who do this use as a role model the Biblical character of Phineas. Phineas is a historical fact. Those who emulate his acts are historical facts. I would be most interested to learn what quotes Rev. Dan Gayman finds objectionable so that I might address those specific points.

Gayman refers to the following:

> "Be subject to principalities and powers, to obey magistrates." Tit 3:1[2]

This quote does not stand alone as Rev. Gayman would seem to imply. It is qualified by other Biblical quotes. Most Christians, including those mentioned in Vigilantes, quote and have quoted these scriptures and apply them to their

2 (1) "Obey in all things your masters ... And whatsoever ye do, do it heartily as to the Lord." Col 3:22,23, (2) "If any man obey not our word ... note that man and have no company with him." II Thes 3:14

everyday life. When these scriptures are used to uphold the Law - all is well; if used to uphold evil - there is certain to be conflict with God and His servants. Conflicts between God and man are resolved by the following:

"We must obey God rather than men." Acts 5:29[3]

It is a matter of historical record that Moses first appealed to man, and after his appeals were rejected - still refused to obey unlawful commands of authorities to do evil. Joseph refused to submit to the advances of his master's evil wife. Susanna refused to submit to the lustful but legal priests. The Maccabees refused to submit to unlawful authority and quietly returned home. John Knox and Martin Luther refused to obey the Pope to close and seal the Bible. The South refused to endlessly submit to the reconstruction rape of their land by Negroes and carpetbaggers when ordered by the federal government to do so. Phineas obeyed God and was rewarded. Robin Hood resisted. Jesse James, after being shot down once while obeying the authorities' order to surrender, refused the second time. Capt. John Smith refused to obey the king and his priests and condemn Virginia to destruction and death. Bacon refused to obey the corrupt governor of the king to permit the Indians to murder with impunity. The Boers refused to disarm on command of the King's governor before facing 30,000 Zulu warriors.

3 (1) "If ye love me obey my commandments." John 14:15, (2) "We know him, if we keep his commandments." 1 Jno 2:3, (3) "Fear God, and keep his commandments: for this is the whole duty of man." Eccles. 3:1, (4) "Not everyone shall enter into the kingdom of heaven but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven." Math 7:21

Christians everywhere believe that civil "authority" that supports and enforces God's Law must be obeyed. But, if authority does evil, if it orders one to disobey God's Word, to murder, torture, abuse, starve, or do other un-Lawful acts, and, misquotes scripture as its authority to order them, one knows the answer of the Christian zealot.

There ARE things Christians will NOT do - not even if commanded to do them by evil authority.

There are many who believe that God allows tyrants to oppress the faithful - to make them choose.[4] They believe that this is why they are pushed and crowded. This is why they are humbled and humiliated. Biblical History says that at some point they will stand and choose whose curse they fear most. They also believe that the day they stand - tyranny over man will be through.

History tells of men in the past have given their lives rather than to disobey the Word. Future history will undoubtedly write of other men who will do the same. Some of them will walk abortion picket lines and be horribly beaten and brutalized. Others will protest in other ways. It is certain that in their hearts they believe:

4 "I created man from the invisible and visible ... I appointed him ruler ... to have my wisdom ... I called his name Adam and showed him the two ways ... and I told him 'this is good, and that is bad' that I should learn whether he had love toward me, or hatred, that it be clear which in his race love me." Enoch 30:12-14

"We must obey God rather than men." Acts 5:29

Many people believe that the faithful will be pushed until they are forced to choose according to their fears, and their reward will be according to their choice.[6]

Once again, if forced to choose sides in a conflict between God and man - there are certain to be those who choose:

"We must obey God rather than men." Acts 5:29

Christians can hopefully obey both, but, if forced to choose between the two - to "obey" God or to obey man - if that is all the choice that one has, one can with reasonable certainty say that there are men who will choose to obey the commands of God as outlined in his scriptures.

As a minister Dan Gayman should know know this There is nothing complicated about it.

PETER COOK, expert on the Federal Reserve, states: "The breakup of Eastern Europe into countless separate political subdivisions will change little as long as they keep their present banking system. Chapter 202

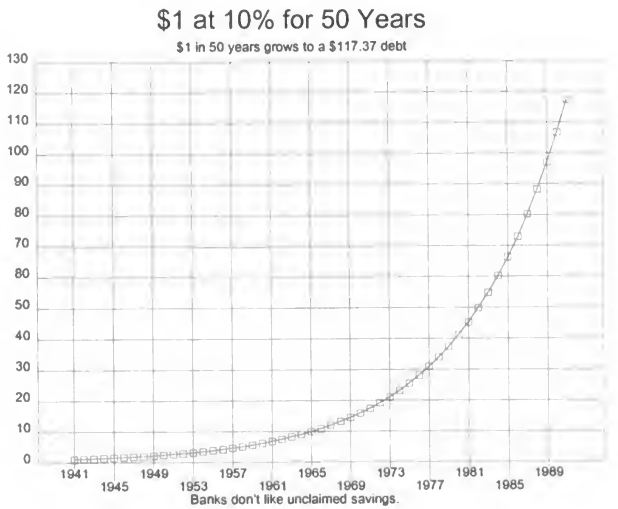
BANK OWNERSHIP

The cry has been heard in the land that economics is too complicated to be understood.

Sorry, that cop-out won't hold water any longer. The story that follows is simple. Your life depends on your understanding it. Understand so you can tell others. Nothing is going to be done about it until people know - know what is being done to them.

A recent report filed with the SEC, Apr 22, 1991, reveals that the Saudis now hold over 5% of Chase Manhattan Bank. This is the second largest Saudi investment made since the war. The largest was a $590 million "investment" in Citibank.

This very probably gives effective control of these two banks to that group. There are constantly stories in the Wall Street Journal of other banks being bought by foreigners.



Control

There is something most Americans don't know. For tax reasons, most of the stock in American corporations is held in trust at banks. When the stock is put in trust at a bank, the bank registers this stock in a "phony name", or "nominee" name so that they won't have to fool with thousands of certificates. It's almost never the name of the bank. A single bank may have several "nominee names." It's legal.

Individual stock owners receive their dividends and stock splits, but the stock, since it is in "nominee name" is voted by the bank. This means that the nation's banks, by voting stock belonging to others, held in trust accounts, control most of the corporations of America. This is important!

RESULTS - Political

Banks, by putting stock held in trust accounts into nominee names and voting that stock as they like, elect the directors of many of America's corporations. These bank-elected directors of America's corporations vote to give money to politicians. These contributions elect politicians who favor the banks that elected them.

TV, radio, and newspapers are owned by corporations. These corporate shares are also held in trust at banks. Banks vote media stock - the TV, newspaper, and radio - and elect their boards of directors. These bank-elected boards of directors tell the media what policy to follow, what candidates to support, and in effect, they own the politicians of America who are absolutely dependent on media good will. If they are good - they get good exposure. If they are bad - they get bad exposure or blackout. In this case they will not be re-elected or receive money from corporations for campaign expenses.

Since foreigners own so many banks in America it is difficult to know exactly which foreign nation controls which media which controls the politician in that area. One might be controlled by the Saudis, another by Mexicans, another by the Israelis, and others by the Japanese. Naturally, since people vote their paychecks, these foreign-controlled politicians will tend to vote foreign interests rather than the interests of American citizens.

Banks today absolutely control the Presidency, Senate, Congress, and most state houses. The Supreme Court is their creation and votes their desires.[1] The banks - through voting stock held in their trust, absolutely control the government of America, most large corporations of America, and through the control of the media they also control the thoughts, economic well-being, and persons of the people of America. An undetermined number of those banks are in the hands of foreigners who in many cases have been given cause to hate America.

RESULTS - Economic

Roman lenders lent money to Roman farmers - and ended up owning their land. It was remarked by a traveler that one could travel for days over the Roman countryside without seeing a single person engaged in useful occupation. The foreclosed farms were resold to debt-free foreigners, who were in turn foreclosed. Roman farmers were forced to join the childless mob in the city and go on the dole. The entire Roman peninsular ended up being owned by 12 families, then at the last, two.

A fight between the last two lenders split the empire into East and West. Roman cities were huge. The cities stockpiled workers from a countryside that had become vacant and non- productive. By the time of Christ, Roman cemetery markers reveal that most of those who had been living in Rome were Greeks and Egyptians. The Romans of Rome had disappeared.

The Greek Solution

Roman usurers lent money to Greek cities, corporations, and individuals. Payment had to be forthcoming or the debtor was enslaved. Greek cities defaulted and entire populations ended their lives as slaves in Rome. Greeks had no way to pay Roman usurers.

To avoid having unproductive vacant cities, the Roman solution was to close the banker-foreclosed and banker-owned shipyards in Rome and move the operation to Greece to provide Greeks with a source of income so that they could pay their debts. The skilled but now unemployed Roman shipbuilders and managers took jobs at local McRomanburger outlets or went on the Roman dole.

Egyptian rulers also in debt to the international bankers had no money to pay. Egypt's product was grain. A deal was worked out. The Egyptian rulers bought all the grain produced by the Egyptian farmers and paid them in Egyptian "IOUs". The Egyptian rulers then sold the grain to Roman grain brokers (also owned by the Roman bankers) at 80% of the going Roman grain price in exchange for hard money that could be applied against their debts. Roman farmers were good - but they couldn't beat 20% discounts. Soon Rome imported 51% of her food, and at the end - 100%. The Roman farmer was manipulated off his land.

Egyptian grain sales gave Egypt money to pay on their debts to the Roman bankers which kept the Egyptian farms operating. Roman farms shut down. Greek ship sales gave Greeks an income to service their debts to the Roman bankers and kept the Greek cities occupied. Roman shipyards shut down. Roman citizens, heavily in debt, were gradually reduced to slaves. Their birth rate plummeted. In time they vanished. When Rome had been drained dry and collapsed, the bankers merely switched base to Constantinople and continued plying their trade with the few survivors and new customers in Europe.

American industry is being shut down and moved abroad. The effect is to give an income to foreign lands to keep bank loans to those nations producing. The rest of the story should develop as it has before.

Easy Money Abroad

For many years the international banks have given preference to low interest loans to the Orient at Western expense. High money rates have slowed the growth of European economies, and low rates speeded growth in the Orient. Europe's industry has shriveled. Oriental industry has boomed. As the West declines to 3rd world status - the 3rd world nations move to the front ranks. It's bank policy.

Inventions

Most inventions, "tomorrow's success", are made in the West. Most Western-made inventions are given by foreign controlled American corporations to their kinsmen in the East to exploit. American secrets that ensure tomorrow's successes are in the hands of the East. It is "their" tomorrows that will be successful. The West slips further and further behind.

IBM, one of the few corporations still believed to be controlled by Westerners, makes their new computer chips in such a manner so that they cannot be used in any other machines. This appears to be their stop-gap solution - a solution for as long as it lasts.

Defense

America has long wondered why the Communist nations of the world have bomb shelters and stockpiled food to defend against atomic attack - while they have none. It is time to stop wondering. Foreigners who control America simply don't approve of Americans having bomb shelters and stockpiled food. You can see why. That's it!

Now you understand why America has forced busing, amnesty for criminals, filth and corruption in politics and media, and unlimited immigration, while surveys constantly reveal that American citizens are opposed to these things. America's rulers are accustomed to filth and corruption. It's a way of life with them. Since they rule, they don't care what Americans want. THEY control things. To them Americans go with the turf and what they want isn't important. They control the turf.

The thing to wonder about is this - what is America going to do about it?

Knowledge

Everyone can see that America's pie is growing smaller and smaller as its factories and industry are being closed down and shipped abroad.

In time, people will be fighting each other to keep a share of what is left of their shrinking slice. There is no way to stop this coming conflict except reform, and, who really believes that the Saudis, the Japanese, or any of the foreigners who control America's banks and industry will "reform" if the "reform" will deprive their own people.

As the slice grows smaller and smaller, Americans of all shades and hues will become desperate, and will tend to turn on other groups to fight for their share. If they do as they have done in the past, they will turn on anyone they believe has helped bring misery on them - the local banker, the media sleeze, and the corrupt politician. Unfortunately for their tomorrows - they are both visible and available.

They have to worry about themselves. Your job is to tell Americans what is happening, and how it happened. Tell them that their toleration - their toleration of evil - has caused ruin to descend on their land. And in the telling - tell them this:

> "It shall come to pass ... the blessing and the curse ... and thou shalt call them to mind ... and shalt ... obey his voice ... then the Lord thy God will turn thy captivity (into freedom)." Deut 30:1-3

The solution is really quite simple. It's been known for 5000 years. It's attracting the attention of the people that has been the hard part. But, not to worry, someone else is attracting their attention right now. Soon, they'll listen.

MEDIA ATTACK ON "VIGILANTES"

I learned a few weeks ago that Delmar Dennis, star witness and accuser of Byron de la Beckwith, collaborated with the establishment media in a series of articles. Interestingly, these articles are being released just before his book is due to be released. Remember reading in VC how the establishment promoted The Prostrate State? A book properly promoted does well. My book VC and HR Newsletter were mentioned frequently although the Knoxville Journal made no effort to contact me to verify what was being said, and judging from the stories, no one had apparently ever read them.

Following is a copy of my letter to the Knoxville Journal.

Editor, Knoxville Journal. Knoxville, Tennessee

Delmar Dennis, the reluctant witness who has now stepped forward to claim that Byron de la Beckwith shot Medgar Evers, now claims the "Phineas priesthood" is after him.

He might as well have said that the "Spirit of Christmas" or the "Brotherhood of Man" is after him. It would have made as much sense. The "Phineas priesthood" is an euphanism for the "spirit of law enforcement," or a lawful Christian society. A good cop is a Phineas priest. So is someone who turns in a drug dealer or stops a mugger from beating up on a little old lady. These people don't belong to an "ultra-violent splinter group" as Dennis alleges. That's ignorant. The Phineas priesthood was established by God as a "spiritual priesthood." It's straight from the Bible. There has never been an organization of flesh and blood named "The Phineas Priesthood" and I doubt if there ever will be.

Dennis makes other claims that are not so funny. One news release says that Dennis says he won't testify. The next release reports Dennis as saying that he knew he would have to testify while he was saying that he wasn't going to testify.

Another release says that Dennis claims that Beckwith said that he (Beckwith) shot Evers. The next says that Dennis now denies it, and claims instead that Beckwith said something else. According to your paper "Dennis said he never heard Beckwith say 'I killed Medgar Evers,' but he did hear him say 'killing that n_____ gave me no more inner discomfort than our wives endure when they give birth to our children. We ask them to do that much for us. We should do just as much." What did Dennis say Beckwith said? Did Beckwith say he had stomach trouble? Or did he say that having a baby causes no "discomfort"? Is a man to be tried for his life on this kind of testimony? Your paper reported Beckwith's wife as saying that Dennis is a liar. Wonder why she would say such a thing?

Now, after making these dubious claims and getting free publicity, your newspaper now reports that Dennis has now gone to Mississippi to sell his $14.98 book. If your articles are true, it appears that Dennis changes his story whenever it suits. Testimony from such a person would seem to be a bit shaky. However, it is good enough thus far to jail a 70 year old man, sell books and newspapers, and help to get politicians elected. Won't it be interesting if Dennis repeats these different stories, all of them, under oath?

I know a little something about the revival of the spirit of law enforcement. I spent 5 years writing a book on the subject called Vigilantes of Christendom, "A history of the Phineas priesthood", Virginia Publishing Company, P.O. Box 997, Lynchburg, Virginia 24505, 424 p., $18/copy. It costs a bit more than Dennis' book, but you generally get what you pay for. Read your Bible on the subject, or read my book, and I believe you'll learn something of the history of America's swing to law and order.

Thank you for allowing me to correct a few of the items in your Dennis series.

Sincerely, Richard Kelly Hoskins

NOTE: Not one of the many letters I sent to Southern newspapers that ran the Delmar stories printed the above letter or a correction. This is how the media rules the minds of the nation.

INTEREST RATES: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Why are interest rates kept so much higher in South America, Australia, Britain, and Italy than elsewhere?" G. M. - Minnesota

ED: It is establishment management of their possessions. "Low- interest" money is available in nations selected to be "hi-tech". "High interest" is charged nations selected to be commodity producers or labor suppliers. The money monopoly rules the rulers of the world. "The borrower is slave."

LAW: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Be wary of the minister who proclaims that God's Law is done away and that anyone can do as he likes. This excuses homosexual acts and all sorts of Law violations. He may have a personal interest in having such acts excused." Rev. H. R. - Virginia

RELOAD: "Dear Richard: I belong to a 'black powder' shooting club. In Vigilantes Of Christendom I read where Lew Wetzel reloaded his musket-rifle on the run. Lew Wetzel was a real man to be able to out-run Indians and reload at the same time!" A. J. - Kansas

VIGILANTE: "Dear Richard: Just what does the word 'vigilante' mean?" C. M. - DC

ED: According to the dictionary: Vigilance: "The state of being vigilant ... Vigilant, watchful, characterized by vigilance. Especially alert to danger. Vigilante: one who serves on a vigilance committee." A neighborhood watch or a family member who is alert to take care of the rest is a vigilante.

BOOKS BLACKOUT: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Your books reveal too much. I think they will be censored in some way." L. N. - Montana

ED: Possibly, but I think not, that is, unless there is a general censorship law passed as has been done in the USSR, China, Canada, Germany, Britain, and Scandinavia. Before I wrote WC/PC and VC, establishment reactions were considered. The John Birch Society used to be media-whipped daily. Membership boomed. Tactics changed. It was blacked out - not mentioned. Membership withered. "Blackout" is more effective. VC, ONR, & WC/PC - all are completely blacked out.

The present favored establishment method used to censor people and publications is called "Monkey Business".

Using "monkey business" Edgar Rice Burroughs could be sued for writing Tarzan of the Apes. It works this way. A coached drunk can be blackmailed by threat of court-inflicted punishment, or rewarded if he will cooperate and testify that he got the idea to wrestle a gorilla (which pulverized him) from reading Tarzan Of The Apes. In the same way Bambi's author can be sued by a reader who can be persuaded to testify that he nailed a hunter as a result of reading the book. Ministers are sued today for quoting the Bible and causing damages that run into the millions. Atheists sue Christians, Catholics can sue Protestants, Mohammedans can sue Jews. There's no end to it. Just because of what their gods teach. It brings everything into absolute chaos - but clever.

From this there is no protection - no "safe" place. Fear of "monkey business" can immobilize one - which is why it is used. However, if it fails to suppress the author or publication it will increase sales. It's a chancy two-edged sword. Frankly, you can't sweat everything. Man threatens, and then does his worst. God tells you what he's going to do and then DOES IT. His worse is much worse than man's worse. "It is better to obey God than man." Choose sides and stay there.

REPLACEMENT: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: When you retire will there be someone that can give investment suggestions? I have a feeling that you are one of a kind." K. M. - Missouri

ED: Thanks for the compliment. Things change. Abolish usury and monopoly and I won't have a job - like needing a horse and buggy today. Christians everywhere are now studying. A new generation is being born. The day of change will come.

Chapter 203

THE KLAN

The first part of the following was taken from Vigilantes Of Christendom and read at the Populist Party meeting in Ashville, North Carolina on July 13, 1991. It is felt that a reminder to others may be in order.

There is so much misinformation written about the Klan that a few words should be devoted to its short history.

The Klan was organized in Tennessee. For a brief time it succeeded in maintaining the peace and was rapidly copied in the rest of the South. The leadership of this police organization was offered to General Lee. His health would not permit the effort, and so he recommended General Forrest.

The new leader was a straitlaced man. "Forrest neither drank nor swore."[1] He was known to have dismissed an officer for immorality. On Sundays, his tent would be converted into a church. Morally, he was superior.

The official story is this: On Christmas Eve, 1865, six penniless veterans met in a law office in Pulaski, Tennessee. They planned a costume party. Ghosts were to be the central theme. On the way to the party, as a lark, they went out and frightened some Blacks who had been causing trouble. They succeeded beyond anyone's hopes. The idea caught on. In 1867, the Ku Klux[2] Klan was officially organized. Villainies committed by Blacks and unsupervised soldiers were dealt with by men in Klan regalia. This resulted in a sudden cessation of depredations. Cowered Blacks and cautious soldiers on private looting expeditions suddenly started looking over their shoulders.

The Klan also attracted the notice of the media. It was just what they were looking for. This media attention began a new chapter in Klan activity within months of its inception.

The Media Uses The Klan

The media had been in a quandary. Their instructions had been to keep the pressure on the South. This was hard to do. The villainous armies of the South were no more. They were unable to picture the kind, gentle General Lee as a ruthless Simon Legree, whip in hand; he was now a worn-out old man, a college president in Lexington, Virginia. It was not believable to picture President Jefferson Davis plotting to poison entire Northern communities; he was a closely guarded sick scarecrow of his former self, imprisoned in a cold damp hole in the side of an earthen bank at Fortress Monroe. His guards had been told not to be gentle. They weren't. The less said the better.

1 The Tragic Era, Claude G. Bowers, Houghton Mifflin Co., Cambridge, Mass., 1929. p. 310

Any of these stories that leaked from the South elicited sympathy, not the needed abuse. For these reasons, the emergence of the Klan was a godsend. For the first time the media had a whipping boy, someone to blame for all the troubles, a group that everyone could hate so that there would be a reason to continue to keep Federal troops in the South, troops who would keep the Republican Blacks in office.

> "The North, reading its family paper, was told that there was no justice for loyalists in South Carolina."[3]

The Klan became front page material. The theme hammered home was "Southerners expound the law of hate." Within weeks of its emergence, it became a Southern phenomenon. Every Negro Saturday night razor fight, every crime, every domestic disturbance was blamed on the Klan.

When there was no crime, the Loyal League sent their own members out in Klan regalia to commit atrocities to be blamed on the Klan. These well-publicized outrages were used as a pretext to organize Negro militias to protect the Blacks and carpetbaggers and push the Whites around. They were also used to produce national anti-Klan laws that were used against everyone in the nation who had something bad to say about Republicans.

General Forrest was presented with a dilemma. He was trying to use the Klan as a Southern police force. But, there was no way at all to respond to the vicious flood of false charges. The South possessed absolutely no friends who could or would take a stand in her defense.

The few dozen Klan successes did not compensate for bad press in the North from the resulting media-smear. Klan-bashing was an ideal way to further persecute the conquered people of the South.

Forrest had no choice. He was apparently beaten. He disbanded the Klan within months of its organization sometime in 1869, ordered all records destroyed, forbade meetings or activity in the name of the Klan, and forbade former members from disclosing any information of Klan activities.

A police force to protect the Southern Whites was still needed as never before. Since a public one was not provided, a private one had to function. It did, but not in the name of the Klan. The South organized, but in no-name organizations. There was no official organization, no records, no membership, and certainly no open membership. Everyone helped in some way. Men patrolled the streets and roads at night. Crime dropped. But, the peace did not last. Violence erupted. Newspaper headlines screamed, "The Klan strikes again!"

The Klan was indeed active. But it was a new Klan, a Klan with an entirely new membership. Its members were radicals, impersonating Klansmen, who worked in close cooperation with the media to furnish atrocity stories. This was a giant step forward in news management.

This outbreak of Klan activity took place in several places throughout the South at once - all minutely covered by the media.

The no-name organizations were from that time at war with this fraudulent Klan, an establishment organization winked at by the occupation officials. Its membership consisted of carpetbaggers, military personnel, and the outlaw element who donned sheets to commit their midnight robbery. Many were the unreported nighttime gun battles between the no-names and the radical nightriders. There were no bodies found, and almost no arrests. Many were the marauders who were uncovered and quietly disappeared. Many were the honest housekeepers as well as the slimy turncoat who just vanished. All records of them just stop. Every Southern family has a family member during that period who just disappeared - usually quietly into a family cemetery at night. There were no newspaper reports of those incidents. The Southerners couldn't report them without retaliation, and the establishment certainly wouldn't. The no-name victories in these midnight affairs were not reported. There were no survivors to report them. Nothing. Just silence.

The bogus Klan was the media's best excuse for a whipping boy. It made many things possible. Anti-Klan laws were enacted in 1871- 72, three years after the real Klan had been disbanded. Atrocities by the bogus Klan continued to be reported with gusto. They were reported even when there was nothing to report. Truth was no barrier to good reporting. There was a lot of money riding on continued occupation of the South.

North Carolina Populist Party Meeting

I was invited to speak at a Populist Party Meeting in Ashville, North Carolina. I have spoken to several Populist Party meetings before. They are good people.

On arriving, I had to pass by a half dozen "skin-heads" stationed at each entrance. These were boys in black t-shirts, black pants, and paratroop boots - and seemed to be between the ages 17-22. They were clean shaven, and very polite. I knew the grandfathers of some. They were stationed there because threats had been made on the radio call-in talk show to the effect that the Populist Party meeting would be broken up. The skins "weren't going to allow a bunch of communists to break up this meeting!" The communists have done it before in North Carolina.

Inside there were hundreds of ordinary Mr. & Mrs. America come to see what the new political party was all about. Constantly circulating were about 20 men wearing t-shirts with KKK or American Nazi Party emblazoned on them. Inside there were numerous Ashville police. They were also nice and polite. There was someone outside with a computer going around taking down the license numbers of attendees. Nice atmosphere. KKK, Nazis, skin- heads, Populist Party, police - . It was so good it looked media-staged.

1869 All Over Again

Was this 1869 all over again or was this 1991? Does the media have a history of using the KKK and the Nazi Party as media-meat or don't they?

Could it be that some "true conservative" hasn't gotten the message? Or, maybe there is somebody who knows what he is doing. It is a fact. In spite of all the South's experience with such things - it appeared to be done to us once again in North Carolina. There was enough "media-meat" present to present a big target to shoot at, and they did. Once again the media had a field day. You could have taken the media commentary of 1870 and used it in 1991 and would not have been able to tell the difference.

No doubt the people in the Ashville area will from now on label the rapidly growing Populist Party in that area as "the party of skinheads, Klan, and Nazis." If this was the intent - it succeeded. If the Populist Party is killed - little opposition to local liberal politicians ramming through more anti-gun, anti- militia, pro-immigration, pro- communist legislation can be undertaken. Could this have been the intent?

The communist party in their rise to power in America, didn't do this sort of thing. They never got out in the streets to give conservatives a target to be abused. They didn't walk around in t-shirts broadcasting that they were "Communist Party USA". They never held news-covered rallies and waved communist flags. At least, they didn't in Virginia. They would have been stomped! In Richmond they listed their name in the phone book one time and received so much abuse that they never did it again. They dropped out of sight, disappeared. Communist party members met privately, joined black civil rights groups, and used them as their vehicle to power. They succeeded beyond their wildest dreams.

What worked for the Communists should work for the KKK and Nazi party. Meet privately and using a low profile work through other organizations like the neighborhood watch, local political party, or PTA. Go with what's going!

If, instead, what is really desired is to raise up a media target and give them a chance to blast the very projects the KKK and Nazi Party say they are for - they are going about it the right way.

Past news articles and court trial transcripts disclose that the FBI has used the KKK many times in the past. FBI paid agents- provocateur have actually led the KKK into violence. The "KKK" or "Nazi" groups in many areas may be nothing more than FBI fronts. The FBI is nothing less than the muscle arm of the current political party in power in Washington. Their paymasters pay them to get what they want, and they are good at getting it. They ought to - they've been at it a long time. In my experience, government agencies will use anyone to advance the political objectives of the ruling powers in Washington. Advertised as non- political - the FBI, the IRS, and the like - are the ultimate political enforcers in America.

In my opinion, the Populist Party in the Ashville area has had a number played on them. For all effective practical political action - it is now dead. It requires a new image if it hopes to be effective in the future.

Think on it. What better way to defeat a project than to have the KKK and the Nazi Party be a visible part of it. We live in a world of political reality. Just as in the 1870s, FBI-encouraged KKK violence has resulted in anti- militia laws and anti-gun laws, and anti-White quota laws. Some help.

For your own personal effectiveness, it may be wise to assume that KKK and Nazi Party visibility is provided with the full knowledge and encouragement of DC, and is used as a whip to in some way manipulate the votes of the American people. There is no way their visibility can outweigh the media damage they cause. It is counter- productive. "There is nothing new under the sun, it has all been said or done before."

HYBRID Wheat

Last fall, I threw an outdated 7 year old barrel of wheat into my old quarter-acre garden. It took root and grew into a healthy stand of wheat.

Tall, healthy, YET, in that whole field of hybrid wheat there was not one single stalk of wheat grain.

Hybrid wheat does not reproduce. America's farmers grow hybrid wheat. They obtain the seed from three or four major seed companies. If anything happens to transport, money, or those seed companies - America will starve! It's good to keep looking over your shoulder. We have fools and knaves governing us.

MODERN ART

"The attack on contemporary art mounted by Jesse Helms ... and others is inescapably similar to that of the national socialists (Nazis). There is the same ... respect for women, religious symbols, national dignity and the values of an idealized home and family. There is the same preoccupation with 'pornography' and the same demand for beauty and an art 'the people can understand.'

"A surprising number of the people with whom I spoke at the County Museum (showing the very same modern art that had been banned in Germany) ... denounced the art as 'ugly' and a 'waste of time and money.' One man told me this 'junk' made him sympathize with Hitler. ... "

"... I've come to appreciate this great art ... These paintings ... are so moving that, standing there with them, I started to cry ... I'm thankful the tradition is being continued here ... We are against censorship in any form ... 'All you have to do is go in there,' he said, (quoting a modern-art lover) waving toward the museum, 'to see that censorship doesn't stop anti-Semitism.' ... (non-appreciation of modern art is equated here with anti- Semitism).

"Joseph Goebbels, I thought, would not like this at all. Neither would Jesse Helms. I held that thought, and it warmed me like a second sun." (Tim Rutten writing in Los Angeles Times, Feb 22, 1991.)

ED: After the family reunion last Sunday, I took family members "teens-twenties" to Richmond's Virginia Museum. Entering, one at a time, the Dutch, French, Russian, and German rooms, I asked the children to be quiet, stand in the middle of the room, and point to the pictures they liked. Without fail they picked the masters. We then went to the modern art section. There was a crowd with a tour guide in front of a ten foot black painting that had a single white line running from left to right. The guide went on and on describing that white line and telling about how wonderful the picture was. I deplore rudeness, but I couldn't help a secret satisfaction as I tried to suppress the uncontrollable laughter of the family children. Later, I explained to them that there are certain people who are different from them, types who like garbage, and they have every right to like it. Garbage dressed up in diamonds and gold is still garbage. It reflects and expresses their inner soul. It is important to realize that these people aren't joking, they really like it. It's really - THEM!

I was wasting my breath. They already knew. And they were eager to get on to the Egyptian and Babylonian sections that they hadn't seen yet.

"Dear Mr. Hoskins: What happens when there is a lot of debt?" R. C. - DC

ED: Business stops. A large debt in time siphons off the floating supply of money in the form of interest before it can be used for other purposes. Debt and interest payments are not useful uses of money. This is why in Christian nations all debt (except to strangers)[4] is forgiven every 7 years and charging interest is punishable by death. It prevents cycles of war and misery.

"Dear Dick: Why doesn't social security run out of money?" A. M. - Illinois

ED: The money you pay into social security is treated as government income and spent. There is no money in the Social Security fund. Money is borrowed into existence from the Federal Reserve banks as needed and paid to the recipients. The government can borrow a trillion or ten trillion as easily as ten dollars. Again: there is NO fund containing social security money.

Q.1: I thought Phineas priests were literal, biological descendants of Phineas."

A.1: Perhaps. Phineas is always held up as THE example to follow - in diplomacy, as general of the armies, or wherever. He is presented as the model to follow to protect his people from the destructive results of violations of the Word, statutes, and judgments. Others followed his example. It would seem that it is an open-ended priesthood.

Q.2: In Numbers 25 Phineas had God's blessing and approval. How does that relate to Abraham, Moses, and the mixed marriages going on at the time of Ezra?

A.2: God's grace and forgiveness. God told Abraham to put away his strange wives and children - and he did. God blessed the act. Moses had strange wives. In the Ethiopian case he never consummated the marriage. In the Mideonite case he put them away. God blessed the act. In the case of Ezra - the children of Israel put the strange wives away. Those with mixed-breed children put them away too, and they were then welcomed back into the family. Grace follows repentance and restitution. If restitution is not or cannot be made - an un- Lawful act is punished by death. No restitution can compensate for murder - the victim is dead. Therefore, punishment is death. A thief restores two- or four- fold - depending. If he doesn't have the items, he works it off. If he "runs" - refuses to make restitution - he dies.

Q.3: What is the best Bible?

A.3: I don't know. Just like most HR readers, I have a dozen or more around the house. The Bible is a collection of books selected by man. It is the WORD in the Bible that is inspired. I have often heard that the book itself is inspired. I try to stay out of it. The question I've always wondered about is; who "inspired" these same men who compiled the Bible to leave out so many books that Jesus quoted from so extensively which also contain the Word? The Word never changes and is everywhere. If all books containing the Word were collected in one place, I'll bet it would create a mountain - too many for a single volume. I'm into the Geneva Bible now. I like the surprisingly illuminating, and sometimes simple, margin comments from the 16th century. The reformers opened the door and showed us the road - and we let the door close. But, in our struggle to open it again, we, too have learned interesting things - as we are supposed to. I like the KJ Bible - knowing that it is gutted. I even like the hated Scofield Bible - knowing that it has bones that must be spit out. But, it has interesting meat, too.

Q.4: Should we eat Kosher meats?

A.4: You don't eat scavengers because of what a scavenger eats. Also, a scavenger does not have the same kind of flesh as clean meat. I don't know what scavenger's flesh does to a man's body - but it couldn't be good. I have heard that pork doesn't hurt Blacks, and that blood doesn't hurt certain Eastern European peoples. I know that the digestive systems of different peoples are different. I've seen Blacks drink milk and eat cheese and get sick. There is much I don't know. I am told that modern slaughterhouses stun animals with sledgehammers and then immediately butcher them. This is supposed to drain most of the blood quickly, and is better than the Jewish Kosher method of draining blood while the animal is fully conscious - which is said to cause trauma in the animal.

Watching what someone eats often tells of that person's level of education and commitment. A plate of eggs and swine for breakfast can tell a lot. It used to be that people would die over what someone tried to force them to eat. See II Macabees 7:1-41, or, Vigilantes of Christendom, p. 447.[5]

LEUCHTER: There are 52,000 engineers in Massachusetts. 37,000 are un-registered and only 15,000 are registered. Leuchter, author of the world famous "Leuchter Report" which proves that no poison gas was used in so-called extermination camps in WWII to kill inmates, made previous attempts to become registered. Each time the Board refused his application stating that Leuchter was not involved in the construction trades and was therefore not subject to registration. Another part of the law exempts those whose products are not available to the general public. Leuchter- designed electric chairs are not available to the general public.

Reversing their stand under pressure from militant anti-truth groups, the state of Massachusetts prosecuted Leuchter for not being registered while others in virtually the identical situation were ignored. Chapter 204

GOD IS DEAD

The electronic preachers of the West have given away their God.

They have done this in exchange for the riches that come with media exposure. Critics describe this giveaway as - "God is Dead." This is the argument:

The Word says:

> "He showed his word unto Jacob, his statutes and his judgments unto Israel. He hath not dealt so with any nation: and as for his judgments, they have not known them." Ps 147:19-20

The Word also says:

> "In the beginning was the WORD, and the word was with God, and the WORD was God." John 1:1 and "The WORD was made flesh, and dwelt among us." John 1:14

Thus, the Word was God, and it was shown to Israel - ONLY.

Judeo-Christian[1] preachers receive the wealth that accrues to national media exposure in exchange for saying that the owners of the networks - the people who do not have the three proofs of Israel - are in fact Israel. This, in spite of the fact that only true Israel can show the three proofs of Israel: 1- Christ's name. 2- Isaac's name. 3- Adamic descent.

"They shall put my name upon the children of Israel." Num 6:27 - "Christian",

(2)* "In Isaac shall thy name be called." Romans 9:7., *Sons-of-Isaac, Isaac-sons, "Saxons",

(3) The Hebrew word for "man" is "Adam". It means to "blush red. "Show blood in the face." Strong's Concordance.

Scripturally, to be an Israelite one must bear not one, not two, but all three identifying marks - "Saxon-Christian-man." Those who don't - aren't. (ALL nations of Westerners were earlier known by the interchangeable names of Sythian - Gothic - Saxon.)

Media access is the pay electronic preachers get to conceal this. They never mention it. Un-cooperative preachers remain in ecclesiastical backwaters where TV cameras and well-filled offering plates never go.

Bible readers know that the Word was given to Israel ONLY, and The Word was God. This says that only Israel has the God of the Bible. Today, "Judeo-Christian" electronic preachers boldly tell "Christian-Saxon-men" that 1 "Judeo-Christian", a name unknown before 1920, is used to describe those who maintain that the Jewish god and the Christian God are the same God.

"Christian-Saxon-men" are NOT Israel, but that the network owners who are NOT "Christian- Saxon-men" ARE Israel.

Thus, they give strangers, who do not bear the three proofs of Israel, "Christian-Saxon-men", a false baptism.[2] They are now proclaimed to be Israel and as such can claim the Word, the God of Israel. Since the scriptures say that Word was shown only to Israel, this means that true Israel (Christian- Saxon-man) now have no god. Lying electronic preachers say their god, the God of Israel, belongs to someone else. If this is true - their "god is dead."

"God Is Dead" - Results

Teaching that God is Dead has far-reaching results. (1) True believers drop away from those who teach such heresies. They have no desire to study Bible scriptures now said to belong to strangers or to follow a stranger's god. (2) With no Word, statutes and judgments to guide them into paths of righteousness, the new Judeo-Christianity religion becomes a cesspool which is endlessly and enthusiastically exposed by the strangers' media. (3) Lawlessness descends like a blanket upon the nation as the people without direction run wild.

At the meeting of hundreds of Christian Covenanters[3] in Spokane and with hundreds more in Colorado, I asked the following questions: How many have belonged to churches in the past? Almost all raised their hands. How many have belonged to two churches? 90% raised their hands. How many have belonged to 3 churches? 80% raised their hands. How many to 4 churches? 40-45% raised their hands. How many don't attend any church outside of their homes today? The same 40%-45% raised their hands.

2 "The ... Gentiles shall ye take ... purifying them with an unlawful purification (baptism)." Testament of Levi 4:17

3 A Covenanter of the 1500s reformation was one who covenanted with God and with his brothers to obey the Word, and none other.

This was an eye opener. These hundreds upon hundreds, accompanied by wives and children, had sacrificed to travel from Alaska and from Florida, from California and from Maine. They had spent hundreds and thousands of dollars to come and sit under the preaching of dedicated ministers from sunup to sundown for an entire week. It was just like the old camp meetings of the 1820s - 1840s after the king's preachers had departed, except today's Christians come farther and probably sacrificed more.

These people had gone to several churches and were thoroughly disillusioned. All were humble Bible students. They listened for long periods, and when they spoke, their faces changed with the certainty of the rightness of their words. Their words were the pertinent scripture. The speakers audience respectfully listened in silence.

Certain Judeo-Christian preachers, un-zippered by grace, and just emerging from or again re-entering the cesspool of their scripture-cursed beliefs, would have felt most uncomfortable in this gathering, having the correctness of their ever-changing beliefs examined through the "filter" of the Word. Having given away their god to another, Judeo-Christian preachers seldom talk about the Word, statutes, and judgments. They are reluctant to stand and have the light of the Word reveal their shortcomings.

My Daughter's Story

My red headed daughter is 21. She attended a Bible study group in the town where she lives and was asked to give her testimony. She did. Afterwards, the group asked this young girl questions for over an hour. The questions that seemed important to the group seemed simple enough to the average Bible student and she answered them with scriptures she had been taught around the supper table at home.

"Love" was the buzz-word that group used to excuse everything. My daughter limited the "love" excuse by defining Love for them - the first time it had ever been done: "If you love me obey my commandments." That was new and shocking. They had never heard that before. "What commandments?" She named them - the 10. One listener stood and declared that this was the first time she had ever heard this. She had been "saved" (agreed to obey God) a few months before and thought that all she had to do was buy a new dress and go to church on Sunday. Object lesson, regardless of age - one quoting the Word "speaks as one having authority." Second - there are lots of people who are struggling to learn and have no one to teach them.

Answering The Question With The Word

Over the years people have sent me questions. I enclosed 30 of these questions in a "hand-out" folder, a copy which is enclosed with this newsletter. I find it useful. If someone is upset over one of the 30 subjects commented upon, I give him the folder with the suggestion to look at what the Law has to say about the thing that is causing his upset.

If his thing is gun control - I tell him to read #11 - "God requires gun ownership," and then walk away. He will read #11 - and go on to read the rest.

On my trip to the west coast last month I talked to a girl at an airport rent-a-car desk. She was upset over violent crime. I told her to read #23; "Murderers merit capital punishment." When I boarded the plane 20 minutes later she was still reading. The man I sat beside on the plane was concerned about taxes. I handed him a pamphlet and told him to read #27, "Taxes are forbidden." When I got off the plane he was still reading.

The Word has power to it. Once someone reads it it is seared into their consciousness. That is why the media seldom dares to print or quote the Word. It damns them, while converting the reader.

The enclosed pamphlet is not sugar coated, nor is it a silver bullet to cure all the nation's ills. But, it does provide some of the Word[4] to help those who have been given nothing to steer them through the reefs of life. The authority of the Word is the thing and the only thing that will do that. Feel free to copy the pamphlet on your own if you think that it will work for you.

It is my belief that last year - 1990 - was the high watermark of liberalism. The Word is now flooding back into the country and great changes will soon result.

From now on it is what "God says" that will be the thing people consider important.

DATING

Dating is a touchy subject. It is the first step into the world of sex. Sex makes babies, causes disease, can cause murder, 4 "His name is called the word of God." Re 19:13. "I will send my word and save thee and thy seed." I Adam & Eve 12:6.

is the basis of happy marriages, causes abortions, and even starts wars. Dating is important.

All men, from 13 to 85, are acutely conscious of the presence of a female. If they are not - they aren't normal. Feigned disinterest wins approval. It is good manners - but disinterest is still feigned. Normal men are NOT at all disinterested - they are VERY interested in females.

Men are perpetually "in season". God made them that way. In a lawful society this "interest" is strictly regulated by custom and LAW.

The female learns about this interest early. She finds it exciting. It makes her feel important - the center of attention. She discovers this heightened male interest while not sharing this interest herself, at least, not to the degree of the male. Females judge this male interest by their own "lack of interest", and figure that it is something they can handle.

While the male is perpetually in season the female comes into season far less frequently. It may be as infrequent as once a year. Sometimes, even longer than that. However, once a female does come into season - she is in season. That's when nature tends to take over.

If parents allow their thirteen year old daughter to date a thirteen year old boy steady - she WILL come into season sooner or later. Then, there are two adolescents "in season", together, unsupervised. To expect mother nature not to take its course is to talk like a fool. It would be far better to allow your 13 year old daughter to date a 23 year old man who has a job and a means to care for a thirteen year old bride. That is certainly something a 13 year old boy can't do, doesn't want to do, and can't really be expected to do.

To allow your thirteen, fifteen, seventeen, or eighteen year old daughter to go steady is to ask for a son-in-law, a pregnancy, wanted or unwanted, or an abortion. If what you want is a 13 year old son-in-law, or a daughter who has just aborted your grandchild, or if want an illegitimate baby, you are going about it the right way. That's the way to do it. It's a sure-fire can't miss condition.

Most young boys know they can't provide. Ruled by nature they may violate a virgin and then break off the affair to avoid complications. If it's your daughter, she may then feel that the only reason that men want to date her is for sex. That knowledge is trouble. If your daughter has learned to use sex to manipulate boys - you've got the makings of a whore on your hands.

Our grandfathers knew that mother nature is served first. Anti- men icebergs don't become mothers. Propagation of the species comes before anything else. That's why yesterday it was always "group parties", "group outings", always chaperons were present - active, watchful, careful chaperons. - non of them "good guys" or "good sports."

Tell your sons and daughters the facts of life. Most don't know. Tell them in plain English that men are always in season and women come into season. It's nature's way. Tell them that when boys and girls are together when both are in season that it is like playing with matches and gasoline. Tell them that you trust them but that you trust mother nature more.

Tell them plainly, lay it on the line. Spell it out. They'll understand. They've got to! Today's system isn't working. The only difference between us and everyone else - is the requirement of the Word. We are different for a reason. Let's obey God and enforce the difference.

While reading either Jasher, Enoch, Adam & Eve, or Josephus, I ran across the scripture that says that inventions are gifts from God. I didn't note it and now can't find it.

Chapter 205

BLACK REPUBLICS

"Black Republics!" This is a term coming into usage among certain law enforcement officers living in widely separated parts of the country. It means - Black nationalism in operation in American cities. I learned this term from police officers attending meetings this past summer.

Many American cities have Black mayors, Black city councils, Black judges, and Black police. These Blacks tend to run affairs in their jurisdictions as they see fit. They build vast housing complexes at taxpayers' expense, run up astronomical municipal debts, and hire Black municipal workers almost exclusively to man their domain. Whites who live there accept the increasing tax load, lack of police protection, and the indignity of being pushed around, or they leave. Increasingly they leave. Detroit is now 74% Black. Other cities are also rapidly becoming Black.

Often, if a White resident or visitor runs afoul an ordinance of these cities, he may find that he will be jerked around unmercifully while offenses of Blacks are often overlooked. This is especially true when an altercation between a Black and a White occurs such as at the scene of a car accident or a robbery, and the officer who arrives on the scene is Black.

In certain areas, outright confiscation of White property is taking place - although it is not called that. A Capetown, Michigan newspaper reports that in Detroit, between July 28 and August 17 - just 21 days, 205 cars were stolen at gunpoint. At gunpoint! A September 27th report says that 20 cars were taken over one weekend.

A gunman selects the car he wants and walks up to the driver stopped at a stoplight, puts his pistol against his head and orders him out. If he doesn't - he's shot. The gunman then gets in and drives away. It's that simple. Arrests are few.

"Officials say they are doing all they can ... Detroit police acknowledge that they have a dangerous trend in the city; several people have been shot and one killed during the robberies. At least one woman has been raped."

One story goes like this: "Kermit Haynes confessed that he pulled the trigger in the first degree murder of Benjamin Gravel ... Haynes, who was 16 at the time, and five others blocked a street with a tree trunk and ordered Mr. Gravel out of his car. Haynes shot him dead ... Chief Judge Dalton Roberson (Black) had the option of sentencing Kermit Haynes as an adult, which would have sent him away for life, or as a juvenile. He opted for the latter, giving Haynes probation until he is 21 ... psychologist's evaluation ...

showed him with 'borderline psychotic features and a 'capacity for vicious delinquent behavior.'"

One can only guess at the sentence such a court would have given a White committing the same acts.

More serious is the epidemic of robberies of White-owned gun stores presently taking place across the country. The Virginia- Maryland area alone has had 44 recent incidents, incidents that have put hundreds of the latest model weapons in the hands of Blacks and have left White dead and wounded store owners in their wake. Recovery of these stolen weapons is almost nonexistent, and what few are recovered are found in areas such as Atlanta and DC which have draconian gun laws that are strictly enforced against Whites.

Past Black Republics

Haiti was ruled by Whites from France and was wealthy. The Blacks were agitated by the French revolutionary establishment and rose up and killed all the Whites on the island. Their property was confiscated and all debts were repudiated. To this day, visiting Whites take their lives in their hands when they venture off beaten paths. Business ventures organized by Whites are few. The ones that have been tried seldom get off the ground because Haiti's rulers constantly change the rules of business. No one needs this when business risks are naturally high.

The South

The South was turned over to Blacks to rule after the War Between The States. They provided city councils, judges, congressmen, policemen - they were the South's rulers. Carpetbaggers sent by the NY bankers were supposed to control their activities and keep them working in the service of the bankers. With occupation soldiers standing by to keep the Whites docile, the Blacks had a field day; confiscatory taxes, arbitrary arrests, beatings, rape, and murder; this was the rule of the day.[1]

In time the Blacks realized they actually had absolute power in their hands. There was nothing the native Whites could do. President Grant's soldiers held them in subservience and Grant couldn't withdraw his troops without risking losing the Southern Black Republican support that kept his party in office. Counting on Grant's support - the Blacks kicked out the White carpetbaggers whom they had elected governors and senators and replaced them with their own elected Blacks. Then they began to single-mindedly start the process of forcing ALL Whites out of the South in order to turn it into another Black republic like Haiti.[2]

Then, the Blacks talked loudly about confiscating all White-owned property - including the newly acquired multi-million acre tracts belonging to the NY banker land companies - companies that the carpetbaggers had been sent down to supervise. This was "off-limits" and caused a banker-Black reaction.

The bankers, to keep their billion dollar bag of Southern plantation property that they had hoped to sell to immigrants from Europe at tremendous mark-ups, were forced to dump

1 The full story is told in Vigilantes Of Christendom, P.O. Box 997, Lynchburg, Virginia 24505, $18/copy, .

2 The term "Black republic" is a play on words. Haiti has never been a republic. It has only been called one.

the Blacks, switch sides, and support the Southern Whites, to try to end Black rule.

European African Colonies

In Africa after WWII, one European possession after another was turned over to Black rule. With few exceptions, individual White settlers who remained have been confiscated and forced to leave. One by one small White-owned businesses found it impossible to operate under business rules that change with the arrival of each new ruler. Most of these Black nations now have laws prohibiting Whites from owning land or voting. The only "outsider" interests remaining are those of the giant international cartels that can bring in foreign armies to protect them. This last is the only non-Black control that exists over Black nations and their rulers. It's very real to the Blacks.

Central African cities that once were bustling business centers under European rule now stand largely deserted. The phones work sporadically. Electricity is occasionally produced and most hospitals are forced to use old-fashioned lanterns. Elevators in buildings don't work so no one lives on the top floors. There is no work and no food so most of the inhabitants have wandered back to the bush to gather nuts and fruit to eat.

Rhodesia, one of the latest to be turned over to Black rule at the insistence of the US and British establishment, is following the same road. The Whites who held off the armed onslaught of the entire world for years, accepted Black rule with American and British guarantees of protection and fair dealing. They have been unmercifully abused and now their "guaranteed" representation in the "Rhodesian-Zimbabwe" government is soon to be terminated. The Black government is talking about confiscating and dividing up the remaining White farms - farms cleared from the bush by the farmers' white forbears.

Probable Future Of America's Black Republics

America's Black-ruled cities may be expected to follow in their steps.

America's cities must be viewed as already lost, never to be reclaimed any more than the African cities have been reclaimed. Right now there are extensive areas in America's Black cities into which Whites dare not venture. Fire trucks may not safely answer emergency calls in these areas. Firemen are shot as they try to extinguish blazes. Life-saving crews are beaten as they try to remove Black victims from car wrecks. The police must enter these enclaves in force.

Richmond's Monument Avenue with its statues of Lee, Jackson, Davis, Stuart, and Maury may soon receive additional statues of Black civil rights activists ("Black nationalists"). Ultimately, one may expect the graves of President Jefferson Davis, Jeb Stuart, and the 20,000 Confederate dead who rest there in Hollywood Cemetery will be bulldozed.

These areas of America, for all practical purposes, are becoming foreign nations. They exist under the usual African system of loose administration by local satraps who rule as they like and who brook no outside interference.

Business Flight

The cancer-like[3] spread of "Black Republics" in America is resulting in "business-flight." High taxes, constantly changing business rules, and lack of police protection cause this. Businesses move for safety reasons, or to follow fleeing consumers to safer regions. They must to survive. As they move, the tax-base of the cities drops and their ability to finance the increasing and already heavy debt, especially municipal bonds, becomes questionable. The unspeakable word - "default" - is again heard. The economic base of America is being de-stabilized.

Possible Future Results

DEBT: the tax-free municipal bonds of the nation's cities will come under pressure to default as cities' tax-base declines and expenses increase. This will cause distress among those holding municipal obligations.

ALLIANCES: As Black nationalism again demands autonomy from ALL others - Zionist and Oriental economic powers may find their economic interests at risk, even their very lives, as the Benson Heights clash between Zionists and Black nationalists illustrates. If so, new alliances may be in the works to ensure physical and economic protection.

MEDIA: The Media, owned and controlled by these groups, may soon present an olive branch and acknowledge that "White" might not be "all bad" after all, and that Blacks may have taken things a bit too far. The establishment ordered their media to switch sides in 1873 - why not again? The problem is the same. If so, there may be a trend to law and order.[3]

DEPRESSION: Under the depression scenario, continuing poor economic conditions may force Blacks in Western cities to scatter into the countryside to eat as they are now doing in Africa. If conditions come to this it will occur under White policed conditions, or it will be done under conditions of open guerrilla warfare tolerated by the establishment - armed forays. The imagination is sufficient to envision this.

3 There is such a thing as matters having progressed too far. This may be one of them.

Conclusion

One must not be surprised at the most extreme political changes that may emerge in the days ahead - changes even on the order of what is going on in the Soviet Union. Uncomfortable as it seems, we must remember - things cannot continue as they are presently, not if we are to survive as a nation under a Christian God.

BLACK NEWSPAPER ATTACKS HOSKINS

The Piedmont Area Journal, a Black publication edited by Charles Mangum, a local Black civil rights activist, ran an article on July 31, 1991, accusing me of speaking to a Klan rally in North Carolina.

The article shot the works. My name was plastered in the title, "Hoskins At Klan Rally", a picture of a flaming cross, and my home address where I might be reached by interested parties. Following is a letter I wrote in answer.

"Dear Sir: On July 31, 1991, your newspaper alleged that I was a speaker at a Carolina Klan Rally. This is not true. Your information source was not correct.

"There was a Populist Party meeting at Reidsville. Col. James Gritz of Arizona was the only other speaker at that meeting known to me besides the Area Chairman of the Populist Party. I am often asked to speak to political, religious, educational, and civic organizations because of my background in economics. Col. James Gritz, the Populist Party candidate, is a former Green Beret, and is America's most decorated hero of the Vietnam War.

"At the Reidsville meeting a few attendees wore KKK t-shirts. Their presence impelled me to devote my entire talk AGAINST the KKK, as the enclosed transcript - reprinted in my own August newsletter Hoskins Report #203, written immediately after the event, will show.

"You are to be commended on your careful watch on radical groups, but, rest assured, I would no more willingly appear at a rally of the KKK than I would at a rally of the NAACP or the Communist Party. I consider them all to be the poison ivy on the backside of America.

"The fact of life is this: Relatively big-time operators like the President of Panama - Noriega, and the party of President of Iraq, were both on the payroll of the U.S. government. If these big-time operators were on the government payroll, then, it may be possible that the leadership of most two-bit left and right wing groups in America are also government fronts; fronts used to drum up support for any policy the government wishes to ram down America's collective throat. History may show that the blacks haven't had a real leader, one not hand-picked by outsiders, since Marcus Garvey, and the whites a leader since Andy Jackson. That's a long time.

"Incidentally, when Martin Luther King died, the government sealed his records for 100 years. Why? Perhaps you don't think that those who run the government might try to manipulate blacks just as they do whites? Thank you for getting this matter straight. Sincerely, Richard Kelly Hoskins - Editor, Hoskins Report"

ED: This is how the establishment works their schemes. The "right-wing" KKK sends a few of its members to a Populist Party rally in NC (the act) and the event is twisted and reported as a KKK rally in a "left-wing" black media organ in Virginia (the reaction). Under pressure of the reaction restrictive laws could be passed. One might suspect that this sort of thing could have been planned in advance. I've known Mangum for 30 years. He doesn't like whites.

NOTE: Word has just been received that the Black newspaper printed my letter and a copy of my N.C. talk printed in the Hoskins Report #203. It was accompanied with the editorial comment that they really didn't know what I was getting at.

UNCLE TOM: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Why is Jerry Falwell and the rest of the electronic ministers called 'White Uncle Toms'?" N.H. - Ohio

ED: The media is Zionist controlled. To gain access to their media the electronic ministers must hat in hand endorse the Zionist's god - that is, proclaim that the Zionists are Israel. Since the Scripture says that the Word was given to Israel only (Ps 147:19-20), and since the scriptures also say that the Word is God (John 1:1), this means that only the Zionists have God. The White Uncle Toms have even invented a new religion to accommodate this belief - Judeo/Christianity. Traditional Christians vehemently deny this. They say that only Christians have the "three proofs of Israel," - God's name - Num 6:27, Isaac's name - Romans 9:7, and adamic descent.

"Dear Mr. Hoskins: Two FBI agents visited me. I was told that I was a target of the grand jury in N.D. investigating the attempted bombing of a federal judge. They also said that someone was talking (I wish I had one month off my 20-year sentence for every time I've heard that). I was offered a deal similar to Gary Yarborough's. I was told that I would be given a sentence reduction and a letter recommending parole to the parole board if I agreed to cooperate with the prosecutor. After telling them that I knew nothing and that I wouldn't cooperate they left, telling me that I would hear from them again.

"On July 17 I was placed in solitary confinement, where I remain at this writing. I have been told that I am about to be transferred again, which in my case is punishment. My family including two small children live less than 40 miles from here and I have been trying to get here for over 4 years. I guess its fair to say that I heard from the two agents again." Sincerely, Robert Jackson #09855- 064.[4]

INVENTIONS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Your reference of 'inventions from God' may be Prov 8:10-12:

> 'Receive my instruction ... For wisdom is better than rubies ... I wisdom dwell with prudence, and find out knowledge of witty inventions.' Prov 8:12."

F.J. - Alabama

4 Robert Jackson was acquitted in the charge of shooting homosexuals in NC, but is serving 20 years for transporting a firearm over state lines, an offense for which others receive probation.

PRIESTS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: If the priesthood was limited to the offspring of Aaron, how can one today, who cannot prove his lineage, be a priest descended from Phineas?" C. L. - Oklahoma

ED: Common sense. My wife and I are distant cousins sharing the same common grandfather just 9 generations ago. Every Christian-Saxon- Man is kin in this same way to every other Christian-Saxon-Man and to our savior Jesus Christ. Jesus Christ is our blood kinsman. We are blood kinsmen to Him and to each other. The descendants of Aaron by this late date, must include in the same manner every single man, woman, and child of our nation. This is what "race" is all about.

UNFILTERED NEWS

DEAD SEA SCROLLS: Over the protests of Amir Drori, director of Israel's Antiquities Authority, a research library in California is making the microfilm the 800 Dead Sea scrolls available to scholars. This effectively breaks the monopoly, held for four decades, by a small number of researchers. (From the Lynchburg News, September 23, 1991.

ED: The initial discovery of the Dead Sea Scrolls in 1948 was a tremendously important event. These writings are said to cover not only the period from the Israelites return from Babylonian captivity to the time of Jesus, but also more ancient books. Scholars have long wondered what St. Jerome removed or added to the ancient scriptures when he was commissioned by the pope to bring the various manuscripts into agreement. Perhaps we shall soon find out.

ANIMAL PROTECTION: "Live aborted babies are now being used to develop serum for immunization purposes, according to a story reported recently in the 'Cleveland Plain Dealer', Ohio, USA.

A doctor in Michigan says the aborted fetuses are injected with virus and kept alive for several hours until its body is filled with disease. The fetus is then killed and the blood used for vaccine.

Doctors say the process "is an alternative to ... senseless slaying of animals from which vaccines were previously made." (from the S. African Observer SACRILEGE: Salman Rushdie said in London that he was "extremely distressed" at the slaying of the Japanese translator of his novel "The Satanic Verses." Hitoshi Igarashi was stabbed to death two years after Iran's Islamic authorities ordered Muslims to kill Rushdie. An Italian translator of the novel survived a July 3 stabbing attack. (From the WSJ, p.1, 7- 15-91

"JUNGLE FEVER is Spike Lee's term for unhealthy sexual attraction between the races. ... when Blacks and Whites go to bed with one another, they are motivated .... by media-based myths about the sexual allure of the other race." NY Daily News, p 45, June 7, 1991.

EXCUSE: On a recent speaking tour a minister explained to the writer the reason for not visiting a prisoner accused of a serious offense. The minister "didn't want to get involved. ... They would have my name and I would have been followed. ... After the third request the prisoner became abusive and threatened me and I'm not going to visit someone who threatens me."

Poor excuses. ALWAYS visit prisoners if you can - regardless of the charge. Don't wait to be asked. A prisoner in the Lynchburg jail had been there for three months. I dropped by to see him on the spur of the moment. I was his first visitor in all that time. Among all his friends in town I was the only one who had visited him, and I wasn't his friend. I didn't like him or the things he did, and told him so. It turned out he had been falsely accused and was being held on a charge for which a jury found him innocent. He had made his allowed phone call and his lawyer wasn't in. He was frantic. I was the one who contacted his lawyer for him. I was the one who brought paper, pencil, and stamps for him to write letters. Little things, but all important to a prisoner. Visit those in prison if you possibly can. Don't assume someone else is doing it. Chances are they aren't. To be deprived of one's freedom is absolutely devastating, which is why the Bible requires restitution or death - not prison.

DISCRIMINATION: "Two White police officers have filed lawsuits challenging ... the promotion of a Black woman officer to corporal. ... Police records show that Harris was made corporal over four White officers, all of whom scored higher." News, Lynchburg, VA. 8-16-91. (ED NOTE: Deut 17:15, Jer 30:21.)

COMMUNISM: Since coming to power in 1917, Soviet communists have killed as many as 62 million human beings.

Where everybody is on the ball, how can anybody score goals?' ... all Israelis are newcomers, they nearly all have the same inducement, and there is a relentless elbowing for position. I have several friends who gave up lucrative careers in London, only to find themselves in penury once they settled in Israel. The only Western immigrants who seem to do well are lawyers, dentists and psychiatrists; lawyers because half of the country is busy suing the other half (including their lawyers); dentists ... and psychiatrists."

TAXES

TAXES: The tax court upheld revocation of the tax-exempt status of a S. Carolina private school because of inferred discrimination. In an area 52% black the school never had a black student or a black teacher and no black student ever applied for admission. The IRS rejected application for tax-exempt status stating that the school must have a clear and convincing evidence that it does not discriminate. Insight, p.44, 4-9- 90

U.N. DECLARATION ON RACIAL DISCRIMINATION

The U.S. Constitution states that both the Constitution of the United States AND international treaties shall be the law of the land.

The U.S. Government ratified the U.N. charter giving both the UN charter and UN proclamations the power of international treaties - and thus of law.

The UN proclamation on race published by the U.N. Office of Public Information, OPI151-63-27884, in January 1964, outlines what the UN requires of its members. YOU judge whether the Constitution or the UN charter is being presently enforced, and what may be next on the agenda.

FRANCE BETRAYED "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I am a White French Algerian colonial refugee living in France. My people colonized vacant N. Africa land, planted orchards, and made the land bloom. DeGaulle gave our land to the Arabs. This land, neglected by the Arabs, is again returning to the desert.

"After reading your VC I understand why. DeGaulle was like your J. Lindsay Almond of Virginia, a Smith of Rhodesia, a deKlerk of S. Africa, a Reagan or Bush of America.

Eisenhower, an American Lt. Col. with no combat experience, was appointed by your Roosevelt over 40 senior officers to command the Allied forces in Europe. In turn he chose and gave recognition to DeGaulle. This American recognition made DeGaulle France's leader. In return, DeGaulle gave away French Indo-China and North Africa. He did what he was chosen to do. Eisenhower was chosen to give away E. Europe to the Soviets, which is why he stopped the American armies. The Establishment chooses obedient servants.

Strangers have flooded into France. The enemy, once in Algeria and Indo-China, now occupies the streets of Paris. There are more moslem births in France than French-Christian births. Traitors have cast down our defenses. France, the home of the Crusaders, has been invaded and occupied by its foes.'" A. Y. - France

"Dear Mr. Hoskins: The Scottish Regiments of the British army touring the U.S. no longer include the Black Watch. Why?" D. McD. - N. Carolina

ED: The Black Watch was originally recruited from Scots loyal to the English government ("German George" married to a Scot) who opposed Bonnie Prince Charlie. The regiment was used to oppress other Scots who wished to secede. Today's Scots are nationalistic, and refuse to serve in that regiment. It is now recruited in England and is manned almost entirely by Englishmen. I was told that the last time they were in Virginia the hotel where the Black Watch and Seaforths were staying was forced to call the police on several occasions to break up fighting between the two regiments. They fought in the restaurant, hotel corridors, and stairwells, on the streets and before and after public appearances. The Queen is even said to have issued a personal appeal for harmony. Evidently it wasn't enough. Frankly, can you imagine a fiery-eyed Scottish mother wanting her son to serve in the Black Watch?

CORAL RIDGE MINISTRIES: "Dear Dick: "I wrote Dr. Kennedy's Coral Ridge Ministries and questioned the fact that the Black nominee to the supreme court is married to a White woman. Here is the answer I received. (ED: The Editor inserted the footnotes.)

race (Genesis 1:25-28).[17] People of different skin color are permitted to marry without committing any sin.[18] However, it is important that they both have faith in Christ,[19] since it is a sin for a believer and an unbeliever to marry.[20]

"Realistically, such couple needs to consider the sinful prejudice in society against marriage between people of different skin colors. They need to make certain that they are willing ... to face such irrational and abominable hatred by prejudiced individuals.[21]

"If ye do in any wise go back and cleave unto the remnant of these nations, even these that remain among you, and shall make marriages with them, and go in unto them and they unto you: know for a certainty ... that they shall be snares and traps unto you, and scourges in your sides and thorns in your eyes, until ye perish off from this good land which the Lord your God has given you." ED: To be fair, if an electronic ministry came out against racial intermarriage, how long do you think they would stay on prime time? "Dear Mr. Hoskins: What is Voodoo?" M. C. - S. Carolina

ED: The Encylopedia Britannica, 14th Ed., Vol 23, Voodoo, p254 states: "The name given to certain magical practices, superstitions, and secret rites prevalent among the negroes of the W. Indies, notably in the republic of Haiti ... obscene rites involving the use of human blood, preferably that of a white child, were considered features of this religion."

In the past my family has had painful and expensive dealings with practitioners of Voodoo. I would advise approaching practitioners with utmost care. Law officers who value their lives: do not enter a room recently vacated by a priest without wearing a gas mask. It may be a question of life and death. Do not treat Voodoo practices casually. Stay away, or view them from a safe(?) distance. Blacks are very susceptible, and I believe that any Black, educated or ignorant, can be made to do the will of a Voodoo priest. Either that or forfeit his life.

BRITISH-ISRAEL: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Where did the story that the Jews are Israel come from?" J. G. - England

ED: It was the story used by Jews to gain entry into Britain. It is important in that, if true, it invalidates scripture. To Westerners, Jews were simply Christ-killers. They were filtered out of Christendom by certain scriptures (John 8:44-47), and their being mixed-breeds also filtered them out (Deut 23:2). Jesus' condemnation banned them (Jno 13:31-35?) and other scriptures forbade them to live among Christians (Ex 23:28). Oliver Cromwell sold them entry into Britain to practice usury (Ezek 18:13) in exchange for needed loans. Manassah ben Israel used the flawed theological argument that Britain contained only 10 tribes of Israel (All 12 tribes were already represented in Britain and the West). He said the Jews were the missing 2 tribes. His argument went on to say that if the missing two tribes of the Jews entered Britain, the 12 tribes would then be re-united and Christ would come. This false argument of ben Israel supposes that the Word, ie. Christ the Word was absent in Britain at that time.[22] The merchants of London wouldn't swallow this theological monstrosity and protested. Cromwell pretended to heed their vehement protests, but instead, quietly let them enter Britain anyway since he needed the money.

The Christians of Britain who bought the "ben Israel story" are called British-Israel to this day. They continue to receive favorable press and support by Jewish interests and also continue to be roundly chastised by Bible students grounded in the scriptures.

22 "And the Word was made flesh and dwelt among us." John 1:14

BANKS & BANKRUPTCIES: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: See if I've got this straight; a bank lends money to a company - the company uses the money for business expenses. Or, the bank refuses to lend money to the same company - it can't pay its bills and goes bankrupt. The bank then lends money to one of its stockholders or front- buyers to purchase the bankrupt company for almost nothing. Whether or not the company is making money or not making money makes no difference. ALL money must be borrowed into existence from banks and this gives them the power of life or death by lending or not lending as they choose. Right?

ED: Yep!

THROWING PEARLS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: The Laws, statutes and judgments were not given to any but Israel. The Scripture teaches further that we are not to "throw pearls before swine" lest they turn and rend us. Does this mean that we are not to give our inventions to strangers?" A. G. - Alabama

ED: Not having been given the Law and not being restrained by the Law - strangers do as they will. Western inventions in their hands are used at a whim. They may even be used to destroy the inventors. The airplane, battleship, and machine gun were given to strangers by Lawless Westerners and are now used to kill Westerners. Western miracle drugs cause strangers to unrestrainedly overpopulate their lands which forces them to starve or migrate to Western lands to survive, which causes us to dwindle in numbers.

Irresponsible use of God's gifts to his people is with reason condemned by the Law. In time, violators will be brought to justice.

COLDSTREAM GUARDS & QUEENS OWN HIGH-LANDERS: At the performances of their bands in Huntington, W. Va., Norfolk, VA, and Durham, NC - they played "Dixie". The crowd rose to their feet and cheered the banned symbol of their fight against oppression. Beneath the surface the oppressed still remember that there was a Camelot. They will rise to cheer the ancient symbol of resistance to tyranny - and the establishment fears it.

DR. BOB JONES SEZ: A letter from Dr. Bob Jones III, president of Bob Jones University, dated Aug 28, 1987, to Mr. Rich Blackstock in Independence, Missouri, contained the following:

"From 1971 until 1983 Bob Jones University was in controversy with the IRS over its tax- exempt status. The Issue culminated in a 1983 ruling against the university by the U.S. Supreme Court declaring that since we held views that were contrary to prevailing 'federal public policy', we would forfeit our exemption. That was their punishment to us for being unwilling to let the state dictate our religious beliefs. The issue was a 1st Amendment freedom of religion issue; and when we lost, all churches and religious institutions lost.

"The court ruled in our case that tax exemption was a subsidy and that religious organizations had to yield their religious beliefs in favor of 'overriding government interests.'" Voice Of The Underground Church, 4828 S. Peoria Ave., 202- F, Tulsa, OK 74105.

ED: This is why churches have stopped teaching the Word, statutes, and judgments. Since the "In the beginning was the Word and the Word was with God and the Word was God", the churches that don't teach (worship) the Word that is God don't worship God. The Supreme Court has taken away their god, replaced Him with tax exempt 30 pieces of silver for their compliance, and they are now social-service, tax-free baal institutions with no god, no reason for existence, and justly deserve the scorn of Christendom's Saxon Men. There is no sin in America that upsets America's government-supervised churches enough to cause them to risk losing their tax-exemption. For them it is - "live and let live." You've come a long way - baby!

Chapter 207

LYNCHBURG'S NEWSPAPER ATTACKS HOSKINS

Richard Kelly Hoskins, author of two best sellers, has published a new book Vigilantes Of Christendom, the story of the Phineas priesthood.

Both book and author have come under fire from the N.Y. Times, Nashville Herald, Lynchburg News, Charlottesville Daily Progress, and other newspapers across America.

What is this "super secret" Phineas priesthood that law-breakers fear, the priesthood that Dick Hoskins has written a history about? Who are its members? Why is America's media so anxious to attack the book and its leading character - Phineas?

What is so important about this Phineas priesthood that newspapers level lengthy front page attacks against both book and author and then not only refuse to print the author's letter responding to their unfounded criticism, but print his address in the article so that those taking exception to his writings will have no trouble locating either him or members of his family. This is playing hardball and the threat is clear. QUIET about God's Phineas priesthood - or some dark night something just might happen.

Then too, what about the freedom of speech and religion that America's left wing media claims for itself? Why don't they extend it to their victims? Their excuse is that Hoskins' answering letter exceeded 300 words. This is a weak excuse. Almost every week the paper classifies "letters" from readers as "columns", letters that are often many times longer than 300 words, and prints them. Perhaps, the real reason is that allowing one to defend himself is reserved for those the newspaper considers "politically correct", or for the rich and famous.

There are only two ways you can find out why the newspapers are trying to drop a paper curtain over Vigilantes, a book that has reached best seller proportions without a single review by an establishment newspaper. You can believe their quotes from people who have axes to hone, their distortions and fantasies - or get a copy of the book and judge for yourself.[1]

One Lynchburg reader says: "Next to the Bible it is the best book I have ever read." Another says: "Thank God that some one has the courage to say what must be said in this day and age. No wonder newspapers are trying to suppress your book." I have a stack of letters almost a foot high - all saying the same.

Order your copy now and find out what the newspapers are afraid to tell you. Find out what the paper curtain of the News, the N.Y. Times, and the rest are trying to conceal - and why! Today's media thrive on dissent, violence, and misrepresentations. It is a world they have helped create. They don't like it, but like it or not, America has once again begun to take tentative steps toward law and order. That's what the book is about.

The Censored Hoskins Answer to "The News"

The letter that Dick Hoskins wrote to the News in defense of his books and himself - the letter which the The News returned to him stating that they would not publish, follows:

Dear Sir: I would like to comment on certain items in a story you ran on the Phineas priesthood, Byron de la Beckwith (accused of assassinating Medgar Evers), and myself, in a front page article In the News and Daily Advance on November 1, 1991.

Today, lawlessness rules the land. Traditionally, when the law won't protect the people - the people will protect themselves against their oppressors. To justify their actions they call on their ancient religious teachings. The Arabs call on the Koran, the Jews call on the Talmud, and Christians call on the Bible.

The Christian Bible says that God created the Phineas priesthood to enforce obedience to the Law, and the Law is the pillow on which Christendom rests (Numbers 25). All Law abiding Christian men are members of the Phineas priesthood. The scriptures hold him up as the example to follow. St. Phineas is the patron saint of law enforcement. He is a Christian spiritual concept. Other faiths hold that their kings are responsible to enforce their laws. Christian scriptures hold that every Christian man is a king, he may be great or small - but he is still a king, and therefore responsible to help the downtrodden, relieve the oppressed, and protect the defenseless.

I wrote a history on the renaissance of law enforcement called VIGILANTES OF CHRISTENDOM, The Story Of The Phineas Priesthood, Virginia Publishing Company, PO Box 997, Lynchburg, Virginia 24505, $18/copy.

The Start Of A Media Hype

An AP story, datelined Jackson, Mississippi, May 24th, and printed in the Knoxville Journal, states that Delmar Dennis, the FBI informer who is scheduled to testify against Byron de la Beckwith (now up for his 3rd trial for the 30-year- old killing of Medgar Evers of the NAACP), states that he WILL NOT testify. He gave as his reason that a super-secret terrorist organization called the Phineas priesthood is after him.

Three weeks later, on June 15, after the news had gone around the world that Dennis had been scared from testifying against Beckwith, the Knoxville Journal reversed itself and said that Dennis had just been kidding. The article reports: "Dennis said he cannot legally refuse to testify, and knew that when he wrote the letter." Of course, this is after his book was ready for sale. Evidently, the AP missed this.

On the same page in the next column to this announcement is another report that says, "Dennis went back to Mississippi Friday, not to go to court, but to sell a book."

The AP picked up Dennis' first announcement and ignored the second. Based on all this activity by Dennis, Richard Kelly Hoskins, described in the article as a "white supremacist", the author of the history of the Phineas priesthood, VIGILANTES OF CHRISTENDOM, came under scrutiny. After all, it is the super- secret-terrorist-organization of Phineas, described in the Hoskins book, that is said to be responsible.

Dennis blasphemes God's institution by calling it a shadowy secret terrorist organization, and saying that it is after him for being a witness. His being a witness is no crime. Thus, God's priesthood being after him would make it unlawful, and God an unjust tyrant.

If in fact Dennis has committed a bona fide crime, he should confess his sin and get right with God. He certainly can't flee where God can't find him, and blasphemy doesn't help.

Dennis coined the blasphemy, the Nashville Herald added their voice, the commonwealth attorney of Hinds County, Mississippi gave it credence by repeating it, the New York Times repeated it again, and the Lynchburg News - once again. A lie repeated five times is still a lie. God's priesthood is not a shadowy terrorist organization. It's in the open where all can see.

The News left the Dennis affair and concentrated on the author. Diligent research on their part uncovered the fact that I wrote OUR NORDIC RACE in 1958 (The name "Our White Race" didn't have the pizzazz). I believe it is the only history of the white race now still left in print. Other races have scores. It has remained in constant demand since it was first written and has been pirated at least 30 times. I have been told that as many as 500,000 or more may have been printed. I don't know. I have been trying to get someone in the media to notice it for years. It only costs $6 from the above address. The News wouldn't begrudge Whites having one little history book - would they? If they would - why?

In spite of what the N.Y. Times says, I'm really not a White supremacist and anti-Black - any more than Mr. Woodrum, who wrote the article, is a Black supremacist and anti- White. Neither am I a racist. I do not believe that any race should rule another. Personally, I prefer my own. Others may prefer their own. I see nothing wrong with preferring one's own. It would be fairer if people were given a choice.

Your article says that I am a "friend and associate" of Mr. Beckwith. I'm sure I met Mr. Beckwith at one of the talks I have given to church groups in Tennessee, North Carolina, or perhaps Georgia. I remember him as a kindly old man who laughed at his longtime persecution by the media. I printed a letter he wrote to my newsletter, in which he commented after reading my book - "Phineas for president," which is another way of approving "law and order" in the office of president. I think that was a very proper feeling. Incidentally, I have also met the Queen of England and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., if you think it matters.

As you say, I write the HOSKINS REPORT newsletter - $24/12mos. In May, I copied a news item from THE NEW AMERICAN magazine, Apr. 9, p29, which stated, "Another potential witness who was not called in the original trial (of Beckwith) is Delmar Dennis ... Dennis said in a book, published 16 years ago, that Beckwith told him he had shot Evers. ... Dennis was a Baptist minister."

I added the editorial comment: "Sixteen years after Beckwith's first trial they brush off the tired old statements by another preacher-informer for a last ditch THIRD trial. The talk should be about double jeopardy! Or better - about informers. Is it true that almost every FBI informer is an informer to keep from prison himself? Are informers' crimes reviewed by juries? If not - they certainly should be." I thought those were good questions. I still think so. The use of captive informers by government agencies to produce evidence to convict hapless people has played havoc with American justice. These are the comments you say Dennis perceives as criticism. I'm sorry he feels that way.

Your article says that the "sources" the media contacted to learn about this new organization, the Phineas priesthood, are puzzled since no one has ever heard of it. This is what one might expect when you remove Bible study from the classroom.

It appears that the aspiring assistant district attorney of Hinds County, Mississippi, eager to justify his politically inspired persecution of Beckwith, accepted Dennis' blasphemous statements like a drowning man clutches a straw, and repeated them. This shows the depth of his education and spiritual development. He's now reportedly diligently looking for a "Phineas priest". All true God-fearing men are members of the Phineas priesthood, but they are not members of the priesthood that the assistant district attorney is imagining in the dark shadows of his mind. Perhaps some kindly person will take pity and talk to him.

Your article quotes a Mr. Halpern as saying that, "It's conceivable that someone could act on the suggestions in Hoskins' book." Yes, it is conceivable that someone might act on one of the Biblical quotes in my book. Not likely in certain circles, but conceivable. But, if that person acts on a Biblical command in an unlawful manner - the law abiding men of Christendom appointed by God to enforce his laws will be on him like ducks on a June bug. Count on it!

Your article of November 1 called my writings extremist. I am not an extremist. Quoting Biblical scripture is not extreme. I quote scripture in all my writings. For Christians, telling the truth and dealing fairly is the Way - and to them the Way is the natural way.

Thank you for quoting someone who said that he doesn't think that I am dangerous. I don't think you are dangerous either. Neither do I belong to any extremist organization. Not the Nazi party, ACLU, NAACP, Communist Party, KKK, ADL, Democratic Party, Republican Party, right wing, or left wing organization. I belong to a Christian service organization that distributes Bibles, a nature preservation organization, a couple of genealogical organizations, and teach two Sunday schools. I have made a point to distance myself from all organizations that might be considered controversial to prevent being mentioned in a derogatory manner in the newspapers. Now I find that one only has to write an unpopular book they wish to censor.

I have met as many extremists as you have. As a writer and historian I have interviewed many of them. I have spoken on the same platform with scientists, blacks, healers, Jews, communists, Catholics, right wingers, and goodness knows who else. But, hey - this is America! Remember?

You say that I doubt that 6 million died in the HOLOCAUST - as if an honest doubt were a crime. An Israeli historian doubts. He recently stated in the Jerusalem Post that only 3.2 million Jews died in WW II from all causes. The old Aushwitz camp markers claiming almost 4 million deaths have been replaced with ones claiming a fraction of the earlier figure, and Poland claims that most of them were Polish. The Soviets have recently released the Auschwitz death certificates captured from the Germans - 75,000 of them - that's all. A leading British historian says that he believes the whole story is nothing but wartime propaganda that has not died. Which answer is the truth? Which is permissible? No deaths at all? 75,000? 3.2 million? 6 million? or what? Would it make your paper feel better and make me "politically correct" if I said I believed it was really 6 million? Why can't I believe another figure if I feel the first one is in error? The Lynchburg News seems to have many answers - tell me what I should believe so that I too may become wise.

Yes, you are correct again. In 1985 I wrote WAR CYCLES / PEACE CYCLES. $10/copy. It too can be gotten from the above address if people really want to see what I actually said. It is the economic history I learned while working on Wall Street, a story vastly different from the one told by the media. In it I predicted the Mideast War which has just been fought, the present anti-South Africa crusade (launched for economic reasons), the four-year-economic cycle, the massive bank failures now taking place, the 50-year cycle, the coming collapse of the municipal bond market, the next commodity collapse, and the next bull market in stocks. Over 20,000 copies are in print and it is still selling well. And, almost every comment in it about Jews is from Jewish sources. Could you write a history of finance and not mention Jews?

Your front page headlines label me as extremist, yet you quote as a source for your information the Anti-Defamation League, Klanwatch, and the Center for Democratic Renewal." These are some of the most extremist groups in the entire country. Radicals go to radicals to get radical opinions - conservatives go to conservatives to get conservative opinions. The FBI ran an exhaustive investigation on me and cleared me for top secret while I was in the service. I've been investigated and cleared - has Mr. Woodrum? - have you?

In the meantime - God is blasphemed, Mr. Dennis sells his books, the assistant district attorney of Hinds County gathers votes, I'm labeled a white supremacist, the media gets grist for its mill, and Mr. de la Beckwith languishes in jail, and Beckwith is deserving of better treatment. At least, he is deserving of a speedy trial - and waiting 20 years to get it is certainly pushing it. In fact - it's disgraceful. Sincerely, Richard Kelly Hoskins

Editor's Note: I think that if you plan on getting any of my books you had better go ahead and do it. Remember - it is the day of The New World Order - and that kind of order is fully capable of censoring both books and the authors that wrote them.

LETTERS

INTERVIEWS: "Dear Dick: What do you advise when a newspaper reporter wants to interview you?" R. C. - Lynchburg

ED: The job of the establishment press is to suppress dissent. It is everyone's potential enemy. Beware. Their smiles and pleasantries are fly-paper. Don't be fooled - they are hired mercenaries paid to do a hatchet-job. If they don't do it well they will be fired and replaced by another who will. Give written answers if at all possible, and keep a copy. Keep a tape recorder handy. In my 63 years I have seldom met an establishment reporter whom I would consider honest and straight (except for the reporters on the old Lynchburg News and the old Richmond News Leader). The new owners of the papers demand things that twist reporters into what they are - and what they are isn't pretty. Bank robbers and pimps appear to have a more honest occupation. Pity them, one day they will have to face their maker and they won't be able to lie, twist, and distort their way out of that interview.

7000 BANK FAILURES: "Dick: Didn't you say in War Cycles / Peace Cycles that the present 14,000 banks would merge and bankrupt down to 7,000? L.M. - D.C.

ED: Yes. Since then they are already down to 11,000 on their way to 7,000.

DAVID DUKE: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: What do you think of David Duke?" - H. H. - California

ED: What I am about to say is important.

The only way an aspiring white politician can secure media coverage today is to promise the minorities access to his women.

David Duke on the Donnahue Show said that he would not like it if his daughter married someone of another race, but he would still accept her if she did.

The scriptures teach:

"If the priest's daughter also be married unto a stranger (Heb: zûwr - racial alien), she may not eat of an offering of the holy thing (The Word). But if the priests' daughter ("Ye are a ... a royal priesthood." 1 Pet. 2:9) be a widow or divorced, and have no child, and is returned unto her fathers' house ... she shall eat of her fathers' meat; but there shall no stranger (Heb: zûwr) eat thereof." Lev 22:10- 13.

Duke, a self-proclaimed "born-again-Christian", took the media's litmus test on racial intermarriage and passed. He passed the media test and failed God's. "By their acts ye shall know them." Now he gets media coverage and the resulting underdog sympathy vote.

The chapter "Plot To Destroy Israel" in Vigilantes relates the identical story occuring in another time. Refresh your memory by reading the story from the scriptures - or the condensed version in Vigilantes, p. 27.

Remember, Duke was a KKK man. I have warned you about the KKK. I spent the summer speaking against it. I regard both the KKK and the Nazi party as federally controlled fly-paper organizations designed to trap the unsuspecting. Active membership may equal to a prison term. The suppressed truth is that the Federal government ran the KKK in the South after the War Between The States, from 1869 until the late 1870s, which is why Southern intellectuals flee these type of organizations. In the 1920s the re-born KKK became acceptable only because it was strictly a political organization. It was then destroyed by the media when radical agents provacateur infiltrated and committed atrocities in their name. The present KKK is a 1869 type in my opinion. It's all in Vigilantes.

JUDGE NOT: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: 'Judge not that ye be not judged.' Doesn't that have a deeper meaning?" A.Z. - Florida

ED: WE judge not - God's Law judges. We suffer injuries and slights to ourselves, for which God holds us accountable if allowed to be committed against His Law.

BY WAY OF DECEPTION: "Dear Dick; Don't you believe that the book By Way of Deception is part of "the deception?" J. J. - Georgia

ED: One must consider the facts. A disgruntled Mosaad agent writes a book. We are told the Israeli government tried to block sales. Widespread publicity resulted. The book is banned at first in U.S. by Jewish distributors. Then, released by the same Jewish distributors in a new popular paperback at a low $5.95 and sold in supermarkets to reach the masses. The public, reading the book, learns that Jewish neighborhoods world wide are tightly organized and armed to the teeth. Is this true? People could quickly become frightened into becoming anti-Jewish. The Zionists would then prosper by the resulting Jewish immigration to the Israeli nation. This could be the answer. The Zionists use and abuse the Jews disgracefully, and the Jews are stupid to permit it.

THE SOUTH WAS WRONG: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Just finished Vigilantes of Christendom. I finally read a Southern view of the War Between The states. If the South was in the right - why didn't God let them win?" S. R. - Minnesota

ED: "To whom much is given, much is expected." The South knew right but tolerated evil. While not practicing usury as others did - she tolerated it in others. She abandoned the African Colonization Plan when confronted with radical abolition (see Vigilantes). She tolerated 1000 acre plantations (land monopoly). She tolerated strangers in her government. There was ingrown evil in the South and little was being done to correct it. The same applies to South Africa and Germany. It required fire to burn it out. We obey God totally or we don't. God says he will punish us fearfully for violating his Law. Examine the blackened ruin of these lands, and ponder. He will bring the sword, flame, and famine again and again and the bodies will be stacked high. He promised and it will happen. The choice? - repent or suffer and suffer. Count on it.

LIVING IN NY: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: You just don't know what its like being forced to live here. I drive a hack. A car full of quarreling blacks drove up beside me. Two black women were fighting in the back seat. One grabbed at the other, she shrieked like she was being killed, and her attacker threw something in my open window in my lap. It was her eye." Chapter 208

MEDIA CONTROL & Robert Maxwell

For many years it has been suspected that much of America's media had fallen into the hands of foreign interests. In the absence of evidence - the "3 Proofs Of Media Control" was substituted. 1) Does the media print Christian Laws as in former days? 2) Does it carry horoscopes forbidden by the Christian religion? 3) Does it approve interracial marriage also condemned by the Christian religion?

The recent book The Samson Option has blown away the smoke and confirmed the worst scenario. Robert Maxwell, monopoly media mogul, was identified as working for the Israeli Mossad and the highest personages in the Israeli government.

The question now is - is it in the national interest to have vast segments of the media under the control of agents of foreign governments? This question must be addressed if America is not to continue a mere puppet of a foreign government - a puppet told what political opinions to hold, told what approved thoughts to think, told who her enemies are, when to fight them, and accept the outrageous moral behavior of foreigners as normal.

The Reason For It All

There is only one economic system forbidden to Christians - the Usury system.[1] Usury is when one lends $10 for $11 when $10 is all the money in the world. Since the 11th dollar does not exist - additional concessions must be made by the borrower. These concessions are couched in deceptive terms, but the end result is slavery.[2]

The Christian religion brands usury a capital crime.[3] Periodically in history, usury-abused people have revolted and have driven out the usurers. Usury, while extremely profitable, can be dangerous.

To practice the usury trade safely it is necessary to:

1) Have friendly rulers. In a democracy, media ownership insures political rule. The media gives obedient politicians publicity and they are elected to office. Rebels are blacked-out or smeared as events dictate.

1 "Unto thy brother thou shalt not lend upon usury." Deu 23:20

2 "The borrower is slave to the lender." Prov. 22:7

3 "Hath given forth upon usury, and hath taken increase ... he shall surely die." Ezek 18:13.

2) Usury must NOT be discussed. Discussion is prevented by: (a) paying Christian priests with tax-exemption to be silent. (b) erecting a paper curtain to deprive rebels a voice. This is accomplished using the usury monopoly to buy a media monopoly to protect it.

This monopoly consists of thousands upon thousands of newspapers because there ARE thousands upon thousands of newspapers. For management purposes this monopoly is broken down into divisions. Each division has a manager. Robert Maxwell was such a manager.

Robert Maxwell - Manager

Robert Maxwell, born Labji Hoch, son of Czech Orthodox Jewish peasants, arrived penniless in Britain in 1940. He told stories of saving nickels and dimes and in time he owned newspapers worth billions. Unlimited financing became available from the international usury banks. This enabled him to buy up media in Eastern Europe, Western Europe and the U.S.. He referred to himself as "a self-made man."

He was just one of several having a similar run of luck. Rupert Murdock of Australia, the mysterious Mr. Kluge of Charlottesville, Virginia, and the newly rich owners of a dozen other media chains have also had the same run of "good luck". Their common denominator - they all present the same point of view, and this point of view is almost without exception - anti- Christian and anti-White.

A Whack in Time?

Mr. Maxwell was found dead - floating in the Atlantic. The first story said he had a heart attack. His doctor and family protested that he had no history of heart trouble. Murder was suspected. A Canadian TV announcer said he had been shot.

Since his death the media has had a field day by revealing that Mr. Maxwell had his fingers in the corporate till. He has been accused of transferring funds out of the newspaper empire he was managing into the coffers of his own private corporations. This is considered a business "no, no." It must have made the bankers who financed his media empire very upset with him.

Second: A new book, The Samson Option, by Semour Hersch, revealed that Maxwell was linked to the Mossad.

Israeli Media Network Uncovered

An article in Criminal Politics, p.2, November 1991,[4] states, "The most serious accusation of the Hersch book was that Maxwell ... as an Israeli intelligence agent, used his worldwide media conglomerate and borrowing power to slant stories so as to place the nation of Israel and Zionism in a beneficial light. ... How many OTHER Mossad agents are working for the U.S. wire services, The New York Times, The Washington Post and, other Maxwell firms here in the U.S.??"

Those who have long wondered why newspapers in Britain, South Africa, Australia, New York, California, and Virginia all carry the same stories, use the same slogans, have the same editorial policy, and slant the news the same way may now be able to stop wondering. The media that looks alike, talks alike, carries the same articles by the same writers, and is uniformly anti- Christian, and anti-White, may logically be assumed to be influenced, if not owned, by an anti-Christian source.

If this is so, it also explains the increasing numbers of concerned and responsible Jews who are becoming alarmed over the militant and extreme positions taken by their zionist kinsmen and are exposing their activities. Hersch, the author of The Samson Option,[5] is a Jew. The author of By Way of Deception, the book that disclosed that the Israeli Mossad is encouraging Jewish populations world-wide to arm against their host nations, is a Jew, and there are many others.

Municipal Newspapers - Municipal Banks

Vigilantes tells how the media dis-information caused past wars and how the past wars benefit usury banks. The evidence is conclusive and damning.

Something can be done about it. Information is not a private commodity, especially if spoken by a foreign agent - one who may choose to be your enemy on a whim. Unbiased "news" is needed by everyone to arrive at correct decisions. It affects all the people. "News" is no different from a water utility, a bus utility, or a gas or electric utility. As such, the media utility should be bought by local municipalities and operated by them. A local municipality may be corrupt to the core, but corrupt opinions are preferable to opinions of a foreign power that may or may not have the interests of its host nation at heart.

5 The Samson Option is an analogy to Samson's pulling the temple down on himself and his enemies. The recently- exposed massive nuclear capability of the Israelis allows them the option of using it against anyone. The book relates that the USSR was targeted. Is the U.S.? Or Europe? Once again it must be asked why media-elected politicians refuse to provide their constituents with bomb shelters and anti-missile missiles.

The Banking Monopoly Cure

Money lending is a monopoly. One is forced to use the usury- banking monopoly in the same manner that one is forced to use the news media. Either that - or starve. Usury banks by the nature of lending $10 for $11, can never serve any interest other than their own. This irresponsible behavior can be corrected by the same solution used to correct media abuse.

Banks should be bought by the municipality. No-interest municipal banks are an ancient phenomenon in the West and have served the people handsomely. No-interest Arab banks are a present reality.[6] They work! Municipal banks will work, too.

The above solution of municipal media and municipal banks is a good one. However, it must be acted on.

If it is not acted on, the present system should at least be made efficient. This can be done by abandoning the sham of public elections, and let the monopoly media managers appoint members of congress directly. It would save the taxpayers money, time, and effort. Nothing basic would be changed - it would simply be a public recognition of what actually is going on today.

6 War Cycles / Peace Cycles, Virginia Publishing Company, P.O. Box 997, Lynchburg, Virginia 24505, $28/copy, covers the history of no-interest municipal banks.

THE DAILY PROGRESS SMEAR

The Charlottesville Daily Progress took Lynchburg's News & Daily Advance article, which had been taken from the N.Y Times article, added a few wrinkles of their own, and printed a four page story which lumped me together with a "Grand-Dragon" of the KKK. Following is my answer - which they did not print:

* * * * *

The Daily Progress: Charlottesville, Virginia, November 21, 1991,

Dear Sir:

Your front page article attacking America's Christian movement for Law and Order took the twist that I thought it would take when I refused to give you an interview. Now that you have your pound of flesh, let me correct a few of your inaccuracies.

1- I do not "travel widely to promote the Christian Identity Movement." "Christian Identity" is not mentioned in any of my writings. I am not this thing you call "Christian Identity".

2- You quote the N.Y. Times as saying that I am linked to Byron de la Beckwith as a friend and associate. I have met Beckwith. I believe that trying a man 3 times on a 30-year-old charge is insane. I printed letters from him in my newsletter. I have also met the Queen, England's prime minister, and John D. Rockefeller, Jr. This doesn't make me their "friend and associate."

3- I met Pastor Butler of the Aryan Nations Teutonic Unity group from Hayden Lake one time. He came to hear my talk to a church group in Spokane. I spoke against the KKK and the Nazi Party - both organizations which I consider to be FBI fly-paper fronts designed to first incite and then entrap well- meaning patriotic Americans.

4- Your story lumps me with three others. Eustace Mullins, whom I know, having spoken on the same platform with him, Dr. William Pierce of W. Va, whom I don't know, and a Mr. Roy Lackey, Grand Dragon of the KKK, whom I have never heard of before. This is the old ploy of "guilt by association."

5 - You quote radical non-Christian sources in your attack against Christians:

> "Ye shall not ... fight against your brethren the children of Israel." I Kings 12:24 "Thou shalt not avenge, nor bear any grudge against the children of thy people." Lev 19:18.

This means that Yankee and Southern Saxons may not fight. British and S. African Saxons may not fight. German, Danish, Australian, or Swedish Saxons may not fight. Most certainly Christian newspapers should not attack Christians on the word of non- Christians. The violation of the Law results in wars among our own Christian kind. The reason I travel and talk is to present the Law to those with ears to hear.

If your readers would like to read for themselves what I actually say about what the N.Y. Times refers to as the "super- secret-terrorist Phineas priesthood", who are actually Christendom's God-appointed guardians of Law and Order, they may purchase a copy of my book, Vigilantes of Christendom, the Story of the Phineas Priesthood, from the Virginia Publishing Company, P.O. Box 997, Lynchburg, Virginia 24505, 472p. hb, $18/copy. Sincerely, Richard Kelly Hoskins,

DAN GAYMAN AGAIN

"Dear Mr. Hoskins: I have a booklet in my hand by Dan Gayman. It is another of his attacks on your book Vigilantes Of Christendom" and he is sending it everywhere. G. W. - Kansas

ED: The Gayman booklet is a standard establishment attack containing standard establishment doctrine. One can substitute "taxes", "tariffs", or "immigration", in place of "law enforcement" or whatever, and it will read the same. Write Gayman for a copy so that you can study it. Note that by changing a few words and names one can use the format in any age against any subject or anyone displeasing to the king. Basically, it is the establishment's standard guidelines of why the establishment can veto anything they wish to veto and say that their god says so. This booklet promotes the present king's position loud and clear - which is:

* Obey the ruling king, his principalities, and his judges, and all those he has placed over you - or face the consequences.[7]

The answering argument is also always the same - which is:

"True. But this assumes that the king's rulers are Godly men." If they are unGodly then one must still love the Word which is God.[8]

7 (1) "Be subject to principalities and powers, to obey magistrates, to be ready to every good work." Titus 3:1. (2) "Obey them that have rule over you, and submit yourselves: for they watch for your souls, as they that must give account." Heb 13:17

The above argument is now clearly defined. One claims one thing - the other something else. Both quote scripture. Who then is to be obeyed - (1) the king and his tax-exempt priests, or (2) God the Word who is believed by his followers to be KING OF KINGS? The followers of this King say that it hard to serve two masters. One will be hated and the other loved. One king remains only if allowed to do so by the other. If the most powerful king objects, then the weaker king will be banished. The "banishment" process really draws the line and gets his followers up-tight. All parties now know what is at stake. Today, Christians believe their KING OF KINGS has been banished by the king of DC.

Now, with the sides drawn, the arguments used follow the same ancient ritual almost word for word, ie., "Who will determine what 'God's will' actually is?"

The king of DC says that he and his priests will determine God's will. The counter argument is that ALL MEN are kings and priests and that God the Word is revealed in the scriptures and the scriptures alone. They believe that ALL MEN, as "priests and kings", will read, decide, and take responsibility for deciding correctly.[9]

Many believe that this is the basic substance of the disagreement between Gayman and Vigilantes, the story of 8 "We must obey God rather than men." Acts 5:29. "If ye love me obey my commandments. John 14:15. "This is love, that we walk after his commandments. 2 Jno 5,6. "We know him, if we keep his commandments. 1 Jno 2:3. "Fear God, and keep his commandments: for this is the whole duty of man." Eccles. 3:1. "Not everyone shall enter into the kingdom of heaven but he that doeth the will of my Father." Matt 7:21

9 (1) "Ye shall be named the Priests of the Lord." Isaiah 61:6. (2) "And ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests." Ex 19:6. (3) "Jesus Christ ... hath made us kings and priests unto God and his Father." Rev 1:5,6. (4) "Ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood." 1 Peter 9

the Phineas Priesthood. Should one obey the king? the KING OF KINGS? - or can they obey both? The supporters of one king present their argument - then the other side responds. It is a very important discussion. Everyone knows the consequences. If the king of DC becomes angered - the followers of the KING OF KINGS will face prison or death. And of course, it follows that if the followers of the KING OF KINGS prevail - the punishments written in the scriptures will be the rule.[10]

Since Gayman's position will receive abundant media support, the following arguments presented in Vigilantes will again be noted:

* What will the people do when they believe, rightly or wrongly according to one's own religious persuasion, that the rule of the KING OF KINGS has been set aside? What will they do after appealing to the current king's principalities and judges and have received no redress? It is a fair question.

* John Knox appealed to both church and king. Where did he get the authority to defy both?

* Capt. John Smith fought the murdering Indians after being refused authority to do so by both king and church. Where did he get the authority?

* Nathanial Bacon gave his life to fight the Indians who murdered his friends. He did this after his petitions to do so were refused by the king, the governor, the priests. Where did he get his authority?

10 "When the enemy shall come in like a flood, the spirit of the Lord shall raise up a standard against him." Isaiah 59:19. "The enemy is eager to destroy all that call upon the Lord. For he knoweth that upon the day that Israel shall repent, the kingdom of the enemy shall be brought to an end." Book of Dan 2:16-17.

* The Sons of Liberty punished those obeying the Navigation Acts after their countless petitions to the king and his government were refused. Where did they get this authority?

* The Concord militia fought the king's soldiers. Patrick Henry defied king, governor, and priests and spoke treason. George Washington took up the sword. Where did they get their authority?

* The Covenanters refused to say "God save the king" and give glory and honor to a man when they thought that glory and honor belongs to the KING OF KINGS alone. Where did they get their authority?

What is going on today is nothing new. The very same things went on yesterday and the day before. The king says it is his divine god given right to permit whatever conditions he desires to permit. The people who follow the KING OF KINGS protest. Will tomorrow be different?

As for Mr. Gayman's booklet. He says that Phineas, law enforcement's patron saint, was specially commissioned for his task by God. It is true that Phineas was a king and priest. It is also true that the scriptures say that ALL obedient followers of Jesus Christ are kings and priests (Ex 19:6) and are chosen by God .[11]

Gayman infers that there is something special about Phineas being descended from a special priesthood and that this gave him permission to uphold God's Law. The answer to this is - after the passing of 100 generations - all Christian men are now descended from the ancient Levitical priesthood of Israel by blood diffusion that is inherent in the concept of nation. All are spiritual priests and physical priests by blood descent.

11 "Ye have not chosen me but I have chosen you and ordained you." John 15:16

The key thing that demolishes the Gayman argument - that Phineas had gotten some special authority to uphold God's Law - is that Phineas was chosen and rewarded AFTER he upheld God's Law - not before. The priesthood named after him was formed after he PROVED himself - Not before. His OBEDIENCE was rewarded - not his TALK.[12]

Vigilantes merely tells the history of those, who in times of lawlessness, made the choice to obey the KING OF KINGS, by what they believed to be the obedience that their God desired. It presents a theory that will be proved or disproved by time - not talk - . It projects that men will do again what they have done before if lawlessness continues to threaten them and their land.

The author of Vigilantes makes two further predictions - both predictions based on past history. 1) The world hasn't heard the last of the Gayman arguments, and, 2) that men will first try to reconcile the demands of this king and his priests with the demands of the KING OF KINGS for as long as they can, and then they may choose to do what their fathers chose before. Men have difficulty serving two masters (Luke 6:13), although some try.

ED: I have been inundated with telephone calls from well wishers. People stop me on the street, shake my hand, then launch into a tirade against the newspaper. I received one single negative comment - from my employer of 33 years.

As for my address in the paper - nothing has happened. If it does - neither Robert Woodrum who wrote the article, or Robert Wimer, the editor who refused to carry my letter of explanation, will be expected to claim responsibility. They didn't do anything wrong - it will be "the crazy" who did!

DUKE FALLOUT: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: My name was printed in the local paper because I gave $5 to the Duke campaign. Already I have received death threats." F. C. - New Jersey

MORE DUKE FALLOUT: Dear Dick: My best friend was fired from a bank because he gave to the Duke campaign and his name was printed in the newspaper." G. R. - Virginia

ED: Ask yourself - why do the papers, everywhere, together, for the first time, carry lists of donors to conservative causes? Why risk a White backlash for the sake of such small return? - firing small people from jobs - making them desperate - unless workers for a political revolution are being given an incentive - a backlash is being purposely created? Could a N.Y. jury's finding the alleged slayer of Rabbi Kahani innocent of murder be a harbinger? Kahani was a symbol, the radical- extremist founder of the Jewish Defense League. The personification of violence himself. Could this played down third page story be the signal that the century-long Black/Jewish alliance has ended? Have Blacks once again become too independent to be controlled by Wall Street and need to be put in their place? Does the establishment once again expect us to do it for them? If this is what all this means - it is a replay of an old theme. Read Vigilantes, starting p. 257. "There is nothing new under the sun. It has all been said or done before."

"Dear Dick: What do you think of the Bo Gritz candaidacy for president?" H. R. - Nebraska

ED: Bo Gritz, Populist Party candidate for president, to expand voter appeal just announced that the "alternate life style is not his choice", but that he fought for the right of freedom of choice for all people which includes homosexuals. In essence, the king asked him to eat swine so that the people would do the same - and he did. Let the Word judge.

Christian leaders must be like Mattathias - willing to die for the Word which is God. They are not free to commit blasphemy to please the king or to win votes because they are the lesser of the two evils. If they follow another god - they should get NO support at all.

HIGH SCHOOL OPINION: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Our high school class has your last newsletter about the Lynchburg newspaper attack on your books on the bulletin board. We all agreed that the newspaper wasn't fair." A. L.

- Lynchburg

MEDIA ATTACK: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: No one has ever exposed the media the way you did in your book. It was your expose' of their complicity in starting wars that caused them to jump Vigilantes and you. They printed your address in hopes that some unstable kook might take it on himself to kill you, someone who can't be traced to them. They fear that when people discover that husbands and sons were and are killed by wars started by media lies and dis-information, the owners, editors, and reporters will find themselves in the trenches with everyone else. So far as I know your book is the first one to hold them accountable." D. S. - Mississippi

MORAL SUPPORT: "Dear Dad: In the background you hear a medley of 'Onward Christian Soldiers' and 'Dixie': 'Congratulations, Sir! Now you may take your place among the honored and hallowed few who have taken a stand for Christendom.' Sent with love and enormous moral support. Your favorite eldest daughter." E. G. - Virginia

GENTILE: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Who is a gentile?" V. D. - Virginia

ED: A gentile is what you are not. Japanese are gentiles to the Chinese. The Chinese are gentiles to the Japanese. We are gentiles to Jews. Blacks and Jews are gentiles to us. Paul was sent to the gentiles because that's where the dispersed Israelites were. You are not allowed to mingle with gentiles lest you learn their ways (Ps. 106:35-36).

UNSAVORY IMPORT
Bribes & Kickbacks

"BCCI, a unit of BCCI Holdings (Luxembourg) S.A. is 77% owned by the ruler and government of Abu Dhabi. ... because of alleged widespread fraud, it isn't clear to what extent these assets and liabilities are genuine. ...." WSJ, p3, July 7, 1991

"The recent collapse of the Bank of Credit and Commerce International (BCCI) and the allegations of unsavory or illegal practices that followed can have repercussions throughout the economic fabric of the U.S. ...

"The practices of BCCI that are of questionable legality in the U.S. are traditional in many other nations, including those which are major buyers of products made or grown in the U.S. Nowhere is this more true than in the Orient and the Middle East ...

Business Ethics

"From the beginning of mercantile history, the Baksheesh - payment of a kickback - has been a customary part of every major transaction, including the transfer of money from one place to another. For centuries when they were colonial rulers of such nations as India, Burma and Persia, the British tried to stamp out these practices, but eventually just began looking the other way - because they had no choice if commerce was not to be interrupted.

"The French, Dutch and Portuguese also discovered this painful fact and reluctantly made the necessary adjustments in their ethics of doing business. This is why branches of leading banks in London, Paris or Lisbon were not found in any of the major colonial cities. An entirely different form of audit of the books was required in the colonies because of entries that would lead to criminal prosecution at home! ...

"... If a bribe or kickback is required to close a deal or if funds must be moved to a secure neutral location, that's only part of the game.

"Likewise, the buying of public officials through use of a bribe - the baksheesh - is a customary cost of doing business, a necessary form of insurance against interference or unwelcome scrutiny. ..." Harold E. Wills, Acres U.S.A. 10008 - 60th Terrace, Kansas City, MO 64133.

* * * * *

America's Dilemma

Foreign money has bought our Congress. Japanese business considers it a business expense to earmark funds to American public relations firms to make the increasingly visible Japanese presence more palatable.

After proper laundering, money also finds its way to Political Action Committees (PACs) which aid "deserving (read corrupt) politicians".

The face of America is being changed. Its political system is being bought and paid for. It is being used by alien powers to advance their own selfish interests. Foreigners now have quicker and more effective access to our political system than Americans do.

Strangers are alien to Christian Law. They do not recognize it. A verbal agreement sufficient for business in the West is better than a signed agreement under the jurisdiction of strangers. Observe the following:

> INDIA: "The Supreme Court on Thursday withdrew criminal immunity granted to Union Carbide in the 1984 Bhopal gas leak that killed nearly 4,000 people. ... Union Carbide agreed with the government of Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi to pay damages totaling $470 million ... The settlement called for all criminal cases against the U.S. based multinational to be canceled ... Gandhi's successor, Prime Minister V.P. Singh, challenged the settlement and said Union Carbide should pay far more ..."Lynchburg News, A3, 10-4-91

The above news article states that the signed and sealed, hard and fast official agreement between Union Carbide and the government of India, to drop all charges against U.C. in exchange for $470 million, has been nullified by a stroke of an Indian pen.[1]

1 "Make no league with the inhabitants of this land." Judges 2:2 "Thou shall make no covenant with them." Deut 7:2. "If thou hast stricken thy hand with a stranger thou art snared." Prov 6:1-2.

Again. Strangers do not recognize the ancient unbreakable Christian Laws. Their statutes are whatever their latest ruler says they are. The plants and Indian trade of Union Carbide are now ransom for the payment of as much as India can milk from the company. History shows that Western business ventures in lands of the stranger can be only temporary. In time, they must be abandoned or they will be devoured by the host company.

This is why Christians are enjoined not to put themselves under the jurisdiction of strangers. Most don't if they can help it. Even aliens feel safer when doing business where business agreements can be enforced by Christian Law and force. Witness Hong Kong under British rule. (But British rule is soon to terminate there.)

Indian strangers who are now flooding America are bringing their business ethics to this country. Japanese businessmen are corrupting our politicians. All of them are corrupting our clergy by offering them exposure in the media they control, and sometimes outright cash contributions in exchange for finding nothing wrong with the presence of an alien god in America.[2] American employees, forced to work for them to keep from starving, quickly learn that they are expected to approach with hat in hand. Unfavorable comment is equated with disloyalty. Disloyalty is punished by dismissal. Dismissal results in extreme hardships for one's family. Ask those who are forced to deal with them if you would learn.

2 "Who is a liar but he that denieth that Jesus is the Christ? He is anti-christ." 1 John 2:9. "For many deceivers are entered into the world, who confess not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh. This is a deceiver and an anti-christ." 2 John 7

In time, we may expect the complete withdrawal of all business ventures from foreign lands, and a backlash of resentment against alien presence in the West.

Before this happens we may also expect a very large proportion of business in America to come to a standstill due to the un- enforceability of contracts with aliens.

AMERICANS KILL 1 MILLION

Germans Murdered After Surrender

It's official. It was on national TV Sunday night, May 19, 1991. Channel A&E. The establishment says in effect that we can believe it now. Shown were aerial 1945 fly-over movie clips of PW camps stretching for miles. Extensive close-up footage of starving soldiers. Vast cemeteries practically unmarked. Close-up shots of nice looking German boys that look just like our boys - starving to death.

No shelter from the rain, no buildings, no tents; mud; stories of no sanitary facilities - the stench; stories of hundreds of bodies dragged out to be collected every morning of those who died of starvation and exposure during the night. Little German kids in uniform - said by the announcer to be thirteen or fourteen - though they looked younger, faces pinched from starvation, slowly dying, bravely smiling; no water, no food, eating grass, dying in the mud - all this - AFTER THE WAR WAS OVER. It was on national TV.

Accessory To The Fact

The establishment media knew about it, they knew from the first. They were the ones who took the pictures and they are the ones who have been sitting on them for over 40 years - ever since 1945. They took the pictures of the American death camps at the very time they took pictures of the German leaders at the Nuremberg trials being lynched by a kangaroo court. It was all done in cold blood. The media knew. They knew. They recorded both events at the same time. The one they showed - the other they concealed.

If the media had shown this footage to the American people, the American people would have sent Eisenhower to the gallows along with a thousand Washington politicians - instead of into the White House. The people would have known that he was bad instead of good. We would have been spared his selection of another like himself - Chief Justice Earl Warren - and the Warren decrees, the decrees that have torn the country apart. We would have been spared a second invasion of the South by federal troops at Alabama and Little Rock. America's cities being turned into Black Republics, and schools nothing more than racist propaganda mills.

Concealing information of this sort is the same thing as giving out false information. It is the work of a false witness. A false witness does much harm. This is why the Christian religion has a law dealing with false witnesses.[3]

Making The Documentary

Staging the TV documentary was easy. All the media had to do was go to their bulging archives, slap together a

3 "If a false witness rise up against any man to testify against him that which is wrong ... Then shall ye to unto him, as he had thought to have done unto his brother ... And those which remain shall hear, and fear, and shall henceforth commit no more any such evil among you. And thine eye shall not pity; but life shall go for life, eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot." Deut 19:16- 21

quickie with clips selected from tens of thousands of feet of film of on-the-spot footage of the actual event. Then, interview middle aged German soldiers who survived, and back this with the testimony of American soldiers who were guards and saw it all - and there you have the basics.

The media - to try to retain their credentials as an impartial judge, the media showed the pro and the con. The side they want believed was given first. Next - the rebuttal. The individuals denying the event were close to the ones actually responsible to the ones actually ordering the holocaust. If anyone knew, they must have. This meant that they could be implicated.

We are talking about wholesale murder. One could almost see the hangman's noose swinging in the background - waiting for the murderers of the innocent - those who knew of the mass murder and concealed it - concealed it for half a century. Their testimony wasn't convincing. They had that "caught" look. They were aware of the situation and that they might be the next subject of an inquiry.

The book that initially publicized this, Other Losses, has gone through six printings in Germany. The Germans know. The establishment now permits the Germans to discreetly mention "the incident", as long as the mention is accompanied by confession that "they too did the same thing."

The probable cause for the release was not discussed - that the atrocity precludes U.S. interests from cutting in on the E. German plum.

LETTERS

AIDS IN AFRICA: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Our lecturer just returned from Uganda. He said that AIDS has wiped out the age group 16 to 30. It has disappeared. There are 30-year-olds and older but the younger group is gone. Coffin making is a thriving business. He also said that witchcraft works better for Blacks than the modern Western penal code." H. B. - Virginia

BO GRITZ REPLIES: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I do not support the homosexual alternate lifestyle. I do not support 'gay rights', I do not support their so-called lifestyle being taught in our schools and I will not defend them in any manner except one. As President of the U.S. it is my chief responsibility to safeguard our Constitution. To me, the Constitution was divinely inspired and we must, as a nation, return to the Constitution. Homosexuals, as American citizens, are entitled to the same rights as any other American, not additional rights, but the same rights. What two consenting adults do in the privacy of their own home is none of the federal government's business. Many states have laws against sodomy and those laws should be enforced and the Supreme court should allow those laws to be enforced as a matter of states rights. Those are state matters, not federal matters. If a community is in favor of homosexual activity and supports it with its laws then that community will be judged by God but the federal government via the Constitution has no right to interfere." Bo Gritz, Box 472 HCR 31, Sandy Valley, NV 89019

ED: Well said. However, getting back to the original quotes; if you will fight to the death for their right to practice their lifestyle, because it is protected by the "divinely inspired Constitution", and God made a divinely inspired Law that stated that he will destroy the nation that practices this homosexuality - we've still got a problem. Tell us, upon assuming the office of president, how will you use the prestige and power of that office to quickly root the sodomites out of the fabric of the nation before God destroys it. Or, can you root them out and still fight to the death for their right to practice their lifestyle? Or, if two things are "sacred" - which is to be considered the most "sacred"?

Your letter adds that if one does not support Gritz he will be forced to support an evil such as Bush.

One time I interviewed Sen. John Warner for Virginia's Conservative Voters League. He was running for re-election. I questioned one of his stands. He told me that if I didn't support him - our only alternative would then be to support his opponent who was extremely liberal. I believed John Warner and encouraged the League to support him, and he was elected. He now consistently votes the liberal line. If we had withdrawn support in the beginning and allowed his opponent to be elected, his opponent would quickly have worn out his welcome.

The lesson: With God's Law - there is no such thing as "lesser of the two evils". Better a blood-soaked Joseph Stalin than a smiling Ian Smith or congenial DeKlerk who opens the door to the barbarians. Only fools commit to the uncommitted. To survive it must be the Word Of God, or nothing. Compromise means death. Prove your commitment - irreversibly alienate the enemy so that he will hate you to the death - and the Faithful will love you.

POLITICAL SUPPORT: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Who should we support politically?" - R. S. - Washington

ED: Let the candidate tell us. A political candidate need take just 3 simple stands. 1) Abolish usury. 2) Root sodomists from the land. 3) Outlaw racial interbreeding. Such a stand will burn the bridges - and will win God's approval and the devil's enmity. There's nothing difficult about it. Let's see if any of today's candidates will step forward to grasp God's banner. If he burns his bridges - go to work for him. I wouldn't raise a finger to help a politician who promises anything less. God has already promised to destroy us for what we are now allowing to be done in this land of his. Utter destruction is about all we can stand right now. We don't need somebody else adding to it.

AUSTRALIAN FOOD POLICY: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: The government has just passed a law to restrict what we can grow in our own backyards. If you intend to sell what you grow you can't grow it. We are even forbidden to collect rainwater to force us to buy it. By Dec 31, 1991 we will not be allowed to own semi- automatic rifles, and all guns must be licensed. They are now pushing a law that all cars over 7 years old are to be taken off the road. How much longer will we have to wait!" S. J. - Queensland, Australia

HOSKINS NOT IDENTITY: "Dear Dick: In your answer to the Daily Progress you stated that you weren't this thing they call 'Christian Identity. If you aren't - what are you? K. D. - Indiana

ED: I asked the Lynchburg's News reporter, Robert Woodrum, what he meant when he asked me if I were "identity". He replied: "Someone who believes that the White people are the master race who hates everyone else because they are inferior; that colored people are not human, who believes that the Jews are the children of Satan, and that there was no Holocaust." This was his definition of "identity".

That's when I told them that I wasn't one of those. I am a "Covenanter". Of course I believe that people of color are human - "hued-men". I don't believe that one race should rule another. And, about the Jews, I only believe what Jesus said about them. When he asked me what that was, I told him to look it up. I also believe in the Christian Holocaust. Tens of millions of Christians have been brutally murdered in the wars started by international finance. I really don't know anyone who fits the media's definition of "identity". When I told him I approved of Christian Zionism - he didn't want to hear it. It was all I could do to get in that Christian Zionists want the same things for themselves as the Jewish Zionists want for themselves. But, of course, without all the bloodshed and misery.

IMMIGRANTS AS ASSETS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: What economic purpose do millions of penniless immigrants serve?" G. O. - Kansas

ED: From 1865 to 1885, the establishment foreclosed much of America. Foreclosed former owners, saddled with crushing debt, were unable to borrow more. Penniless but debt-free immigrants were imported and financed to buy foreclosed property. A penniless, debt-free immigrant is more valuable than many former owners saddled with debt. "There's nothing new under the sun." See Vigilantes, "Reconstruction."

ABORTION CLINIC CLOSES: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: A few weeks ago a man entered an abortion clinic here with a shotgun and shot several clinic personnel. He then left. The doctor has since moved away and the abortion clinic has shut down permanently. I don't know if your local media carried the news." R. P. -Missouri

ED: It hasn't. Another letter writer reports that the porno-parlor in N.C. where the homosexuals were shot closed down and has not reopened. The marxist media hasn't reported that either.

MEDIA PROTECTING CRIMINALS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Why doesn't the media print the race of criminals?" - M. W. - Virginia

ED: The occasional isolated incidents of violence against the establishment or its agents is blown all out of proportion to "guilt-trip" continued anti-Christian legislation - just like the 1870s. Establishment-approved violence, on the other hand, is suppressed.

Drumfire media reports of anti-black discrimination incites Blacks to kill Whites. Because of this there are Black groups that require a White to be killed or raped before they will accept a recruit. N.Y. is only one place having an epidemic of anti-White crime.

Strangers murder hundreds of Whites throughout the West every day. Reports giving their race is suppressed. This information alienate public opinion. The establishment's media uses impressionable street strangers as their whip to gain political and social objectives. Statistics showing White murders, when lumped into overall crime statistics become meaningless. Mention of this holocaust is suppressed. To the Mossad-controlled Maxwell media types, comprising thousands of papers, the ongoing anti-Christian holocaust is treated as a non- event. To them - we are just meat.

On the other hand, when a drunk with a KKK card in his pocket shot into an empty building one night - it was widely reported. The media called this event - "terrorism", "prejudice", "religious intolerance", "intimidation", "anti-Semitism", and "conspiracy". All this to describe an event in which there was no victim and no injuries.

Our people are killed wholesale every week, their blood washes the streets - the alien media is ordered not to see. A man shoots into an empty building and it is is reported as almost being an international incident. The media are false witnesses. One day they will be called before courts of justice to account for their anti-Christianism.

BIBLE INTEGRATION? "Dear Mr. Hoskins: We know the many quotes against racial integration. Please explain this one. "Neither let the son of the stranger, that hath joined himself to the Lord, speak, saying, The Lord hath utterly separated me from his people ... Even unto them will I give in mine house and within my walls a place ... Also the sons of the stranger, that join themselves to the Lord, to serve him, and to love the name of the Lord, to be his servants ... and take hold of my covenant." Isaiah 6:3-6. J. L. - Oregon

ED: This verse was used to justify keeping Black slaves on plantations - where they were "within my wall", as vs. the Bible verses demanding complete separation - separation such as freeing them and placing them in their own nation of Liberia in Africa - under White Christian protection.

The key to correctly dividing what is said above is to know what is meant by certain phrases such as: "Love the name of the Lord." "Love" is defined "If ye love me obey my commandments." John 14:15. The "name of the Lord" is defined: "His name is called The Word of God." Rev 19:13-14. The verse "take hold of my covenant" is a wrapper. It repeats the command - to obey the Law.

Thus, the stranger who "loves" (obeys) the (Word of God) "name", is acceptable within the limitations of rest of the statement - "a special place". There, he is to be protected and allowed to enjoy the fruits of Law obedience, and there he will still love "obey" the Law prohibiting integration found throughout the rest of the scriptures - because the Word is God. John 1:1, John 1:14.

It is simple to determine if converted mulattos, Hispanics, Arabs, Jews, and other mixed race peoples really LOVE the Word which is Christ. They will obey the Word and not try to enter since the scriptures say: "A bastard (Heb: mamzêr - mixed breed, mongrel) shall not enter into the congregation of the Lord." De 23:2. If they are just pretending to obey - they will try to enter. The margin note written by the reformers in Geneva Bible 1599 states; "This was to cause them (Christians) to live chastely, that their posterity might not be rejected."

A stranger demanding integration in the name of God is a false witness heralding death and destruction. God has always destroyed Israelite nations that integrated with strangers - as he promised he would. The list is long - India, Egypt, Babylon, Persia, Greece, Rome, Mexico, Carthage, and recently Constantinople, Portugal, most of the White nations in Africa, most of S. America, Haiti, Mexico & Central America, Rhodesia, S. W. Africa, Mozambique, and most recently - Russia. The faithful and fearful of Israel remember:

> "Thou has forsaken thy people ... because they ... please themselves in the children of strangers." Isaiah 2:6. "Receive a stranger into thine house ... and will turn thee out of thine own." Ecclesiasticus II, 11:34. (Apocrypha), "There is no hope: no; for I have loved strangers (Heb: "zûwr" - racial alien)." Jer 2:25. "I am not come to bring peace but a sword." Matthew 10:34. "If ye be ... obedient, ye shall eat the good of the land: But if ye refuse ... ye shall be devoured with the sword." Is 1:19,20

Practically, strangers find it almost impossible to obey the Law over an extended period because of millennia of breeding their lawless with their lawless. When God's Law is universally enforced, strangers quickly remove themselves from its reaches - or suffer its punishments. If God's Law is not enforced, they take over and destroy. One way or the other - never both.

RUSSIA TODAY: "Dear Dick: Just returned from Russia. People talk openly now and the papers are very critical of the Soviet system. They were shocked to learn that there were more people in prison in the US than the USSR and that the US holds political prisoners." W. J. - Louisiana

SHARPSBURG BATTLEFIELD: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I was with your tour group this summer that toured the Sharpsburg battlefield. Did you say that most of the Confederate dead were not buried until 15 years after the war?" A. G. - Montana

ED: When the stench from the unburied dead got so bad it became a health menace - a thin layer of dirt was thrown over them. The next summer the farmers plowed them up planting crops. The next several years were spent collecting exposed bones and throwing them on the edge of the fields. Sharpsburg fields were ringed in white. Years after the war Virginia was allowed to crate up boxloads of these bones and take them home. The last bones weren't buried until 15 years after the war. The same thing happened at Gettysburg and other battlefields left in possession of Union forces. Union soldiers weren't responsible. They got on well with Johnny Reb. It was government policy. Those who rule the U.S. government hated us then - they hate us now. There are those who would celebrate to see our people all over the country - dead.

Chapter 210

WAR OF THE GODS

Separation - 20th Century Imperium

The gods are angry and no longer wish to share their people with other gods. Christian scriptures teach that in the last days the following will happen:

> "They will each turn to his own people, and each one will flee to his own land. Anyone who is found will be thrust through, and anyone who is captured will fall by the sword. Their little ones will also be dashed to pieces." Isaiah 13:14-16

After WWII India ejected the Christian God and his peoples. Then, the seething masses of Hindus and Moslems launched a holocaust against each other, killing millions. India was divided - Muslim and the Hindu. Pakistan was born - ruled by Allah, and India - ruled by the Hindu gods.

We hear much of the Vietnamese boat people. The media conceal the fact that practically all are Chinese, settled in Vietnam centuries ago, who are now fleeing for their lives. Vietnam is separating.

Much of 5th century China was Christianized. Confucianism and other Chinese gods united and drove it away - killing the survivors. Christianity was strong in Japan in the 14th century. The Shinto god exterminated it. A nation's god does not willingly share his people with other gods.

In 1912, a few Westerners of Spanish descent living in Mexico fled to America. The rest were exterminated by dusky machete- wielding followers of the reincarnated Huitzilopochtli - the bloody Aztec god of war.[1] The Mexican god posing as "Christ", had been Huitzilopochtli all along disguised in a Christian mask. He now rules from Mexican churches and government offices. Westerners running afoul of Mexican law are not confronted with the Law of Christ - they are confronted with the law of Huitzilopochtli, suitably toned down to prevent intervention by irate foreign nations.

An alien god lurking beneath the surface of an otherwise Christian nation made his presence known in Russia in 1917. He allied himself with the ancient Slavic gods[2] to exterminate the followers of the Christian God. While shedding the blood of their ancient Western rulers, they also shed the "Christian" label. Their old gods felt comfortable with a new name and a new ritual - "communism". Today, the 1 Some of the bodies lying in the streets were dismembered Aztec style.

2 The many Slavic gods had been combined into one god and renamed "Christian" by the "Orthodox Church".

name "communism" has been shed, and the Slavic gods are considering re-adopting the name "Christian" - but "a horse by any other name is still a horse."

Following WWII, the Slav forced Westerners to flee from most of Poland, Rumania, Yugoslavia and the entire Slavic eastern Europe. In the Balkans the slav gods are now making their people separate from the peoples of Allah - the Mohammedan god.

In Egypt, Algeria, and the rest of North Africa, areas long settled by Western peoples, Allah has flexed his muscles. Western Christians fled to Europe. The few remaining are proscribed by Islamic law. Most cannot vote or own land.

In Black Africa Westerners have fled or have been exterminated. S. Africa is now separating into Christian and non-Christian. Even the Black nations within Black Africa are sub-dividing themselves, each with its own ancient gods, each with god having different laws. Law incompatible with those of other Black gods.

Christ The Word - the Western God, is shunned. Preachers tell us that in Korea he flourishes. But, missionary boards neglect to say that this Christ has been combined with Buddha, Confucianism, and Taoism and the new religion called "Christianity" has slanted eyes. Only the terminology and ritual can be recognized as Western.

The Zionist God

Like the other gods, the Jewish god,[3] is unacceptable and his people proscribed. Scattered, they selected the Arab land, Palestine, for a homeland[4] and place of refuge. The conflict between the Jewish "En Soph" and the Arab's "Allah" rages.

The leaders of this Jewish ingathering call themselves "Zionists". They consider themselves to be shepherds of World Jewry. They are armed and can defend themselves and the Jews under their command with tanks, planes, missiles, and hydrogen bombs. They have at their disposal the most powerful mercenary armies in the world. They are proof against any enemy on earth. To them, this is necessary for survival. They depend on no one except themselves.

The slavic gods of Russia, who first allied with the "En Soph" to destroy the Christian God, have now predictably turned on their former ally as they turn on all strangers. The Jewish god of the Babylonian Talmud is hated. His ways and his teachings are despised. Jews are fleeing to refuge - leaving ruins behind. The ruins are blamed on them.

The same is true in the vast domains of Allah. Few remain where once many lived. The Arabs feel that the Jews have abused the hospitality extended them and they are no longer welcome. Few remain in Slavic Poland. Few remain in

3 The essence of the Jewish god is the "En Soph" - the unknowable. Not based on Law - as is Christianity - Talmudic Judaism is forever being changed by their Rabbis and is thus adaptable - and unknowable. Thus, the Jews, when referring to Judaism mean the Jewish people themselves in their entirety.

4 "With every opportunity - cry ever more loudly: Jews, go home! ... when the dam bursts and the Western flood sweeps wildly over the nations, no one will save you. In the end, only Aliyah, only the haven of a Jewish homeland." Meir Kahn Meir Kahn Speaks, Feb, 1983.

Christian Germany. Japan, which once banished Christianity, is now in the process of attacking the Talmudic control of their finances. A flood of Japanese books attack what the Japanese god considers the evils perpetuated by the Jewish god.

The scattered Jews of the world living among alien peoples see the trend of the times. Their leaders have taken a land to receive the unwanted. They have prepared for what is happening. The handwriting is on the wall. Their rear guard Zionist defenders present a militant posture to those they consider potential enemies, but it is nothing more than that - an active rear guard action. "Separation" is the 20th century Imperium. Gods are at work. Scripture is being fulfilled. It is happening as prophesied. The gods are calling their people home - and they are fleeing to the protection of their own kind everywhere in the world.

Phineas Priesthood of Christendom

Christendom points to its leaders and defenders with pride - Jesus Christ, King Arthur, Sir William Wallace, Richard the Lion Hearted, John Knox, Captain John Smith, George Washington, Andy Jackson, and Robert E. Lee. All fill the Phineas role model as protector, leader, and example for Christendom. All followed the Word. All followed the Christian Law.

Other Gods Protect Their People

Other nations elect their hero types - "Father" Stalin ruled the Slavs. Begin ruled the Israelis.

Begin

Begin - a Zionist-type copy of a Christian Phineas is an interesting study. The Encyclopaedia Britannica states:

"Begin, Menachem, (Wolfovitch) b. Aug 16, 1913, Brest-Litovsk, Russia, ... Zionist leader and prime minister of Israel (1977-). ... law degree ... U. of Warsaw 1935. Active in the Zionist movement ... went to Palestine in 1942. Begin joined the militant Irgun Zvai Leumi and was a commander of that group from 1943 to 1948. ... Begin joined the National Unity government ... the Likud Party won ... and ... Begin formed a government as prime minister."

Begin's more outstanding terrorist accomplishments are listed as follows:

1946, April 25: Assassinated several sleeping British soldiers in a military car-park in Tel Aviv. July 22: The King David Hotel dynamited: 91 nurses, soldiers, and Arab civilian employees killed; more than 100 maimed or seriously injured; many crippled and blinded. Dec. 1946: Kidnaped and tortured three British soldiers. 1947: March 1: Plants bomb in office of the officers club in Jerusalem killing 10. April 18: Bombed Field Dressing Station, killing 1. April 20: Bombed Red Cross convalescent hospital. July 12: Kidnaped and torture-murdered by slow strangulation with wire, two sergeants, Mervyn Paice and Clifford Martin, both 19; he then boobytrapped the bodies. 1948, February: murdered three wounded police officers in their hospital beds in Jerusalem. April 10, 1948: The Deir Yassin Massacres. Begin organizes raid on Arab village of Deir Yassin; murdered 254 peaceful, unarmed villagers as a deliberate act aimed at driving Palestine Arabs out of their homeland. The victims included 25 pregnant women with their bellies ripped open, 52 mothers with young children, and sixty other women and girls. The Red Cross found the bodies of 150 women and children stuffed down a well.

In 1946 the Palestine Police Force offered $45,000 reward for Begin - DEAD OR ALIVE!

Ariel Sharon, also 'earned his spurs' for brutality as a terrorist when he 'was responsible for the October, 1953 massacre of 66 Palestinians in the attack by Israel's notorious Unit 101 on the border village of Kibya. (TCM, Jan 1983).

The vast majority of American Jews have absolutely no sympathy with such goings-on.They are safely, profitably, and peacefully ensconced in their host country. They don't like Zionist "crazys" rocking the boat. It is no wonder that so many of them are taking active stances to distance themselves from the Zionist role model.

On the other hand, radical Zionists, whose declared purpose is the "ingathering of Jewry", whether they like it or not, do all they can to turn the host nation against the quiet Jewish residents. By Way Of Deception the book written by the first Mossad agent ever to defect, reveals that the Mossad is helping to arm Jewish communities throughout the West. He describes it as a "win-win" situation. Local Jews can defend themselves if necessary in case of being attacked, or, if the arming is discovered and enrages the host nation - the surviving Jews will be deported to Palestine. And, that is the objective of Zionism in the first place.

The hotheaded radicals copy their hero, Begin, and Zionism becomes ever more militant to force Jewish people to ingather to Palestine. Articles pointing this out sometimes slip under the paper curtain.[5]

The Tulsa Tribune's - Thody Priesthood

A front page article from The Tulsa Tribune, dated 1-28-92 was sent in by a reader. The article headlined: "Robberies tied to supremacists - 'Priesthood' leader due sentencing today." It continued,

> "A little-known white supremacist group is bankrolling a war against the U.S. government ... Thody said he adopted the Priesthood name after he read Richard Kelley Hoskins' 1990 book 'Vigilantes' ... He predicted ... the group would commit more bank robberies ... kidnapings and assassinations as part of its assault on conspirators - '90% Jewish' ... Thody said his concepts of war and the Priesthood were seeded well before he discovered Hoskins' book. ... Thody said his imprisonment has had no effect on the Priesthood's activities ..."

The above describes the Zionist-type organization of Begin rather than the Christian Phineas Priesthood of George Washington.[5]

The Thody statement states:

1) He is leading a war against the U.S. government. This brings forth the charge of sedition. If believed, it will bring down the wrath of government.

2) That his alleged "nationwide" organization planned (a) to kidnap and murder conspirators whom he identifies as being 90% Jewish.[6] This statement of intended kidnapings and murders presents an ever present threat that will justify long-time surveillance of what will be called "hate-groups". (c) His threats will undoubtedly be used as justification for Zionist-written state and national "anti-hate laws", (d) And, his threats present sufficient reason for extremist Zionist groups to once again destabilize and frighten ordinary Jews so they can be hit for substantial contributions. The contribution part is how so many of these organizations became wealthy and their leaders multimillionaires - which by itself is reason to generate never-ending strife between Jews and their host nation.

5 "By their fruits ye shall know them." Matt 7:20

2) That he alleges that his parents are Christian ministers. This should help instill the false idea that Thody's "Priesthood" is "Christian" and not a copy of a Begin-type terrorist group.

3) That he shares common views with the KKK. This smears the "Priesthood" with KKK comparison.

4) That he apparently is not aware that his statements would be used by a pro-Zionist media to compare the Thody kidnaping-assassination group (if such actually exists) with the Christian Phineas Priesthood depicted in Hoskins' Vigi-

6 The Christian God called the Assyrian king "His servant". He directed "First cast out the beam that is in thine own eye." Matt 7:5, then, Go ye ... and smite ... and begin at my sanctuary. Then they began at the ancient men (elders) which were before the house." Ezek 9:1-6. Christians believe that their tormentors are God's "Assyrians" - His servants. God Himself is leading them against his own people. Christians are ordered "... begin at my sanctuary." The problem is an internal problem - unLawful Christians - not the alien. The wolf is not blamed for being a wolf. The worthless watchman is blamed. He is the enemy.

lantes - a comparison that puts the Christian God on trial.[7]

Other Unbelievable Aspects

Other suspicious items are: (1) Thody, one of thousands of bankrobbers in the country, gave up a short prison stay with parole, for a lifetime in prison. He confessed to things not necessary. Does one injure himself without obtaining something in return? (2) The media kept Thody's operation "top-secret" from the nation's public for a long time. Why? (3) The government sources contacted by the N.Y. Times had no knowledge of such a Phineas Priesthood. Why not?

The Robert Maxwell Syndrome

The Robert Maxwell syndrome may help explain part of the mystery. Robert Maxwell was the owner/manager of an enormous worldwide chain of newspapers and related media. It was extremely biased in favor of Zionist causes. The bias was explained when it was recently discovered that Maxwell was an assumed name and that he was an agent of the Mossad - Israeli secret service.[8]

Is this same thing going on in America? Are events concealed behind a Maxwell-type paper screen, and viewed 7 Not even the Crusader heroes of yesteryear were bold, brash, and irreverent enough to add "Phineas" to the names of their battle-proven organizations. The protective neighborhood watches in the lawless post-war South didn't either. They were "no-name" organizations. Thody named his - The "Phineas Priesthood". This couldn't have been done to help the cause of which he alleged he championed. Why was it done then?

8 Maxwell was given a state funeral by the Israeli government as a reward for services rendered. He was buried there, and his funeral was attended by all the high Israeli government officials.

through the glasses of a foreign secret service? Has America caught the "Maxwell Plague"? Is it possible that the newspapers that report the same news, misspell the same words, have the same columns by the same extremist writers, all supporting the same policies, all with the same politics - are directed by the same source? - a Maxwell type source? If so, it means that a foreign someone is playing with America's mind - putting alien thoughts in its collective head, giving it politicans to vote for, recommending projects to undertake. This networking might explain how a picture of Hoskins in overcoat and hat, taken in a freezing steel barn at the Kansas Farm Rally in 1985, found its way easily into a "Hoskins bashing" article by the CDR in Atlanta in 1992.

"Kelley" - Zionist finger?

The reader may find the next item interesting. Hoskins middle name is "Kelly". It is always spelled Kelly - except when the "Center for Democratic Renewal" in Atlanta, Leonard Zeskind, research director, is quoted. In their never ending hunt for a bogeyman to frighten other Jews with, they often get the cart before the horse, so it might be expected that their articles would misspell it "Kelley". Kelly was never misspelled before - only in CDR releases. If an article about the Phineas priesthood spells it "Kelley" - chances are you are reading the "official opinion" from a CDR release.

Most mainstream American media admit up front that their description of the Christian Phineas Priesthood was not obtained from Christian sources, but a pro-Zionist source. They even name the source - the CDR. The CDR is a pro-Zionist organization which delights in attacking Christians.

Christian media, which are truly Christian, would not carry Zionist propaganda. It would carry Christian truth. If a newspaper insisted on carrying Zionist propaganda - would it not open itself to the charge of promoting alien propaganda? - much like the Maxwell media? The CDR Phineas description is very strident. One might say that it is so strident that it resembles Begin and Sharon more than the gentle Phineas role model presented by George Washington. If you were a Jew, and you were told that a Begin type organization confessed to murders, assassanations, and kidnappings was after you - would you worry? You bet you would! It might put you in the frame of mind to kick in big money to stop it.

Conclusion

The imperium of the 20th century is separation. The gods of the world are separating their peoples. The process is filled with conflict, accusations, misinformation and disinformation. Entire populations are being moved. That which is right with one god - is wrong to another. Peace will come when the gods banish the last rebel. Gods require obedience from their people. It is the White God and the Black ones that now direct the separation of their peoples living in the American cities - the separation that makes Black Republics and White countryside.

Each god has a Phineas type to enforce his will. The Black has his, the Hispanic - his, the Jew - his, and the Christian - his.

The Heroes of Christendom are its role models - its Phineas Priests. Zionism's heroes lead their state. They are awkward copies of the Christian Phineas. What they are is revealed by what they do. The god of the "Thody-Priesthood" is revealed by what they say their objectives are.

The imperium of the 20th century is separation.

"They will each turn to his own people, and each one will flee to his own land. Anyone who is found will be thrust through, and anyone who is captured will fall by the sword. Their little ones will also be dashed to pieces." Isaiah 13:14-16

CENTRAL BANK INTERVENTION: "Dear Richard: Explain 'Central Bank Intervention.' David Lane, 12873-057, (Member of the Order)

ED: When it is reported that a central bank has intervened to prevent its currency from declining it simply means that the U.S. has ordered the foreign government to borrow U.S. dollars into existence to inflate their own currency - which is an indirect way of inflating the U.S. economy. The nations of the world do as they are told or "Desert Shield" gunships arrive to make them.

AGAINST CHRISTIAN LAW: The average time in prison for convicted U.S. murderers is 2.3 years; rapists 80.5 days; robbers 27 days; burglars 5.4 days. Hate crime, civil-rights violations, and gun control can produce penalties 5 to 10 years." American Way Features Africa 311/100,000, and the U.S. tops with 455/100,000. Most other nations, including the communists ones, are not even close. U.S. Black males furnish 3370/100,000 - 5 times that of S. Africa. Such statistics provide ammunition to Black separatists wanting their own homeland, while giving ammunition to White separatists who want theirs.

SATANIC VERSES: It has been three years since Salman Rushdie's Satanic Verses were condemned by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini as blasphemous and an insult to Mohammed. In 1989 the offices of the printer "Penguin" were bombed. Several of those who translated the "Verses" into other languages have either been killed or dangerously wounded. Rushdie remains in hiding under guard. It is with trepidation that the media continues to malign Allah and his Prophet. A god has arrived on the scene as great and as powerful as the media's god. The prayer "Allah is great, Allah is merciful" fervently passes the lips of one billion humans each day. To them - he is. The media would fight - this?

REQUIREMENTS FOR OFFICE: "Whoso killeth any person, the murderer shall be put to death." Chapter 211

ZEUS - GOD OF GODS

Rome conquered many lands. Most conquered lands had their own god. Each god had laws for their people to live by.

Rome wished to win the good will of each nation they incorporated into the empire, so a great display was made of accepting their god into the ranks of existing Roman gods - as an equal. A new temple was built for each in Rome. Rome had many temples and many gods - all were treated as equal.[1]

1 GOD: "In the specific Christian and monotheistic sense; the One object of supreme adoration; the creator and ruler of the universe." Oxford Eng. Dict., Vol I, Oxford Univ., 1971. POLYTHEISM: "Belonging to many gods. Belief in, or worship of, many gods (or more than one God)." Oxford Eng. Dict., Vol II, Oxford Univ., 1971

The Newly Conquered God

Upon the completion of the conquest of Palestine by the Roman army in 87 A.D., a great victory parade was held in Rome. The parade was many months in preparation. There were countless floats carrying miniature re-enactments of the sieges and battles that had occurred in the recent war. Tiny figures stormed walls that were exact duplications of the real event. Witnesses to the actual events were interviewed and the scenes were made as accurate as could be fashioned by the most expert craftsmen of the day. The displays were later placed in the temple built for the new god.

Marching along with the floats were hundreds of the finest specimens of the conquered warriors so that Romans could see for themselves the enemy their heroic soldiers had been fighting. Also paraded was loot gained in the fighting - gold, silver, and precious works of art. And:

> "At the last of all the spoils, was carried the Law of the Jews (Judeans). ... After these triumphs were over ... Vespacian resolved to build a temple .... he also laid up therein, as ensigns of his glory, those golden vessels and instruments that were taken out of the Jewish temple. But still he gave order that they should lay up their law ... in the royal palace itself."[2]

The Romans believed that the most important capture of the entire campaign was the Law of Israel , naturally, it represented their God.

2 Josephus, Wars of the Jews: 7:5:5-7

Polytheism's Solution

Rome's religious system was designed to cope with the introduction of new gods. Each newly conquered god demanded obedience to its laws. This could not always be allowed. Many times the laws of one god violated the laws of another god. Chaos resulted if opposing laws were enforced - all at the same time.

The Greeks, confronted with squabbling gods, had Zeus[3] to referee. "Jupiter" was the Roman Zeus. The Roman emperor was his representative on earth. He saw to it that each god received his fair share of justice - but no more. The gods were treated as fairly and equally as possibly under the circumstances. It wasn't a perfect arrangement - but with the help of Roman swords and lions - it worked.[4]

The Old Priests

The priests who served the old gods learned quickly. To insist on obedience to their old god was something that could put them at odds with the Roman emperor. That could be dangerous. They could be ridiculed, fined, imprisoned, maimed, crucified, assassinated, or fed to the lions. Disobedience could be serious.

To avoid unpleasantness, most priests like the Egyptian priest of Isis, quietly became "Zeus-priests"[5] - avid supporters of the Emperor. The Emperor's most recent iconoclastic decision was eagerly acclaimed and immediately incorpo-

3 ZEUS: The referee of gods - therefore, the chief god.

4 ZEUS ENFORCER: One who enforces Zeus-law.

5 ZEUS-PRIEST: In polytheism, any priest who accepts the ruling of Zeus which overrides the laws of the god he has proclaimed to represent.

rated into their religious rituals. Retaining the name, robes, and terminology of their old gods, they discarded his laws and the spirit of the old god disappeared from their sermons. Instead they taught the Zeus-creed of "OPPA".[6]

The priests of Rome found no evil in the land to condemn for which the Emperor could be held responsible. When the Emperor ruled that child murder was acceptable (exposure of newborn girls to the elements to die - or given to the dogs to be eaten) - the priests agreed that it was all right. It had not been all right before - but it was all right after the Emperor said it was all right.

The Emperor did many other things that were formerly "unlawful". He decreed mutilation punishment; he decreed unbearable tax levels; he approved monopolies; he approved land confiscation; he approved the killing of hundreds at circuses at the Coliseum. When the circuses killed disobedient priests - the surviving priests found nothing wrong with that either. Rome's priests found the Emperor innocent of every evil visible anywhere in the empire. There was no evil to condemn - except the relatively insignificant transgressions committed by ordinary people in everyday life.

When the Emperor made his horse a god - they agreed that that too was a very wise thing to do and they incorporated worshiping the Emperor's horse into their dogma and worshiped it along with their own god.

These gelded creatures - these Zeus-priests - became 6 OPPA: O - obey the laws. P - pay your taxes. P - pay your tithe. A - attend service every time the doors open. The strict Isis temples also forbade smoking, drinking, dancing, and carrying on with temple whores - a religious ritual with certain of the other gods.

useless to their parishioners. Isis and the other gods they represented were helpless and hopeless. The individual gods, bearing different names, became nothing more than a mirror image of the great Zeus man-god in Rome - the Emperor.

Congregations quietly drifted away. The gods of Rome gradually fell into disrespect and the temples gradually emptied - just like the "tall steeple few people" churches of America. Tourists to Rome noted that many great and marvelous, but empty temples, were covered with graffiti. Even the state scorned the useless priests as "has-beens", and in time they were forced to seek employment elsewhere in order to eat. They had stood by and allowed their old god to die. He was dead. His temple stood vacant as a monument to the fact. Zeus, the god-of-gods, had refereed the gods' disputes, ruled over them, and had taken their place. Zeus' representative on earth - the Roman emperor - now spoke for all the gods. He was god on earth.

The Christian God

The new god who had just been added - the Word - the God of Israel whose capture had been so prized by the Romans, caused problems from the first. He was the Word - he was the laws that he demanded his followers to obey. These laws were set in Roman concrete - they couldn't be changed by Zeus-court decree. This God demanded exclusive and absolute obedience from his people. He promised wonderful gifts to the obedient - and promised to kill them if they disobeyed. This was a nasty sort of choice. There was already Zeus in the background demanding the same thing - obedience to his ever-changing decrees - or death!

If the Emperor allowed the Christian God freedom to rule his people - it meant that other gods of Rome would demand freedom to rule their peoples. Then, the gods would once more be all powerful over their peoples and Zeus would be no longer needed to referee between them. He would have no reason for existence. He would become just another legend for the Roman history books. Even the world renowned Olympic games in his honor would cease.

Further, if all the gods ruled their people free from interference from other gods - it would require separation. Separation required separate living space for each group so that they could practice their own rituals and customs - the opposite of EMPIRE togetherness.[7]

Christians who loved (obeyed) their God - the WORD - and treated him as all powerful and above all other gods were naturally looked upon as traitors to the Roman Zeus. To protect himself the Emperor was forced to seize "the obedient" and feed them to the lions - for blasphemy against himself. Obedience to the Word Made Flesh resulted in disobedience to Zeus. The Romans complained:

"Our gods are common to all men, and yours ... belong to nobody else but yourselves." Antiquities: 4:6:8.

The Christians replied:

> "There are many nations ... all are his, and over all has he appointed spirits to rule ... but over Israel ... he alone is their ruler." Jubilees 15:23 [8]

7 Once the gods of a Roman type empire - USSR, Yugoslav, Chinese, or U.S. - reject "Zeus-rule", the empire fragments into its component parts - each part ruled by the laws of its own god.

8 "We must obey God rather than men." Acts 5:29

Zeus - America's Referee

America was founded by Christian people. Christians reverenced their God - the Word Made Flesh dwelt among them and directed their actions. The Word required that rapists and murderers be put to death. It was the Law and so they were. Sodomites were anathema - they were banned. Interracial marriage was forbidden - it was not tolerated. America's God of Israel repaid His people by favoring them and the land, and it flourished.

Then, evil men introduced other gods. Each god brought his laws. One of these evil laws was the forbidden "usury contract".[9] The evil ones spent much gold to get important men to say it was all right. When challenged they took the dispute between their god's law and the Law of the Christian God to a Zeus-court. Zeus ruled that that the Christian Law was unlawful and that usury was lawful. This was now the legal Zeus-law of the land.

This done, the priests who followed Zeus instead of God the Word, immediately agreed that it was all right because Zeus said it was all right. In this way America was soon conquered and its Christian people brought into slavery.[10]

After conquering America, usury moved to other lands and used the same usury-contract to conquer them and their peoples. Each conquered land had its own god. Each god was recognized by Rome. They each demanded obedience

9 "Hath given forth upon usury, and hath taken increase: shall he then live? he shall not live: he hath done all these abominations; he shall surely die; his blood shall be upon him." Ezek 18:13. "Unto a stranger thou mayest lend upon usury; but unto thy brother thou shalt not lend upon usury." Deu 23:20 to their own laws. Most of their laws clashed with the Word of the Christians.

10 See War Cycles/Peace Cycles, the Biblical story of Usury. Virginia Pub. Co., P.O. Box 997, Lynchburg, VA 24505, $28/copy - and what happens when the Law is disobeyed.

Conflicts between the gods began to rage. The decisions of Zeus were desperately needed to maintain order. He judged these conflicts. His Zeus-judges wore black. Petitioners quietly stood with bared heads when they entered - something even Christian priests did not require. Zeus-judges were called "your honor". Disrespect of them or their Zeus-law was called "contempt" - and severely punished.

Zeus-police stood ready to enforce Zeus-law and were paid with Zeus-taxes. Zeus-priests blessed Zeus-judgments and added them to the commandments contained in the Word.[11]

"Toleration" of Evil

Some Zeus-priests suffered condemnation by Christians who never ceased to remind them that they were violating Christian Law. It was an embarrassment. The scriptures said not to do a certain thing and they were doing the thing expressly forbidden. They defended themselves by quoting scripture out of context, and when that didn't work they said that the Word was done away, that the Word was something that one need no longer obey.

Then, having done away with the Law that condemned them, they were free to keep Zeus happy. To further justify themselves they again delved into the scriptures and located the "tolerance" that one Christian is commanded to show

another and applied it to unLawful laws.[12]

Many Christians, seeing the teachings of these zeus-priests as a way out of a dilemma, converted to Zeus-Christianity,[13] as other religions had done. In this way Zeus-Christianity joined "Zeus- Judaism" with lip service claiming to worship "one god" - but actually giving obedience to Zeus - the ruler of gods. They saw God's promise to destroy them as being distant, and the terrible might of Olympus as something near, very visible, and immediately threatening.

Zeus, the arbiter of gods, decreed solutions unlawful according to the WORD. Zeus-law decrees that rapists and murderers may no longer be executed. Murderers serve 2.3 years, rapists 80.5 days, robbers 27 days, and burglars 5.4 days. The Christian God is treated as impotent. He is now less than the rest of the other gods who heap contempt and derision upon him.

Zeus Orders Open Borders

Zeus has un-barred the gates to hordes of other aliens and their gods. Aware Christians say that the anti- Christ[14] planned for the West to be a melting-pot - a cauldron of 12 "Sin is the transgression of the law." 1 John 3:4, "He that committeth sin is of the Devil." 1 John 3:8. Vigilantes Of Christendom, page 176 relates the dispute with the English king who favored Black slavery. VPC, P.O. Box 997, Lynchburg, VA 24505, $18/copy.

13 ZEUS-CHRISTIANITY: Similar to today's "Judeo- Christianity", a recent media-created religion in which the Christian god, the WORD which is God, is given to those who deny Christ, to be their possession. Thus, the Christian God is given away - or - "The Law is done away" (See Censored Bible Teachings, (phamplet), P.O. Box 997, Lynchburg, VA 24505, 100/$10.

14 "For many ... confess not that Jesus Christ (The Word) is come in the flesh. This is a deceiver and an anti- Christ." 2 John 7 trouble. A planned disorder so the West will have many warring peoples and many warring gods and that Zeus will be required forever as a referee to keep a semblance of peace.

In this maelstrom of "toleration" - none is happy.

Zeus Planned Chaos

There is chaos in the land. The reason:

1) Integration - Many gods and their peoples forcibly integrated and forced to live in the closest proximity. The result:

2) Chaos - The gods and their peoples fight for living space - space in which the rights of their people and their god are protected from other peoples and their gods.

Integration is an irritant. It causes riots, revolutions, wars, and chaos. Those most offended become the most violent. "Integration", the thing used to cause dissension, is proclaimed by Zeus to be the "ideal" that will restore the peace banished by this same integration. In the meantime:

"A Man-God referee is needed to enforce Roman peace - to keep people made hostile from killing each other" - "Someone" must referee the world's integrated and now warring gods and their peoples.

Zeus, the god of gods sits firmly in the judgment seat. He has released the rest of the ancient gods from bondage and they now prowl the land. Hercules directs his thunderbolt when commanded against hapless lands and innocent peoples, and from under the sea "Poseiden" lurks. "Eros" exposes her bottom for all to see, and Mercury races to and fro mouthing disinformation. "Cupid" and "Apollo" meet with Bacchus and Pan in the very halls of Olympus. "Pan", especially is the new darling - with his pipes, hooves, horns and "rough sex".

The only law is the law of Zeus - it goes to the highest bidder and can be and is adjusted to suit any need whenever necessary. Ten thousand new statutes are issued each year - adding to the thousands passed last year - each adds fuel to the chaos. The law is what Zeus's latest interpretation says the law is, and that will be soon changed to cope with the next crisis.

Suffering Gods - Suffering Peoples

The wishes of the gods are never fully granted. None are happy with Zeus' decisions. All feel oppressed.

The African god[15] demands that his people receive freedom from punishment when his children infringe the laws of other gods. Black peoples are ignored and suffer perhaps more than the rest. Zeus fills his prisons with them for offenses that their own god considers trivial. Black Voodoo[16] demands blood sacrifice. Voodoo witch doctors and their kindred sects are forbidden to ritually sacrifice a rooster, but the Jew is given freedom to Kosher-kill live animals and slowly bleed them to death. Zeus allows the one and forbids the other - both at the same time.

15 The Black god has many names. Often, under a "Christian", "Mohammedan", or "Jewish" veneer he still controls his people through ancient customs and rituals unknown to outsiders. Generally, strong Black rulers have the support of, or are themselves, "holy men".

16 "The name given to certain magical practices, superstitions, and secret rites prevalent among the negroes of the W. Indies, notably in the republic of Haiti ... obscene rites involving the use of human blood, preferably that of a white child, were considered features of this religion." Voodoo E/B 14th Ed Vol 23, p254.

17 The ancient god of the American Indians, encountered by early Christian colonists, was a fearsome god who required pain to eat.

But, the Jewish god[18] suffers differently because his people are unruled and scattered. This god requires that murderers be treated humanely.[19] The Word of the Christians demands strict punishment[20] AND, promises to severely punish those who fail to carry out His commands.[21] Selecting the Jewish law would please them, but would condemn Christians to death at the hand of their own God.

The American Indian needs the drug "piote" to worship his god.[22] Zeus first denied, now approves its use for them, while denying it others who claim to need it. Thus, Zeus again denies it to one and approves it for others of his different subjects - both at the same time.

The gods of the Orient suffer - the Hindu has his "caste" system ignored - and the Buddist demand to participate in and form part of government is ridiculed. The Shintoist with his many gods and holy places is scorned, as is the muslim. All feel oppressed and discriminated against - all suffer - all

18 The essence of the Jewish god is the "En Soph" - the unknowable. Not based on Law - as is Christianity - Talmudic Judaism is forever being changed by their Rabbis and is thus - unknowable.

That capital punishment ... was stigmatized as "murderous" if it condemned to death more than one human being in the course of seven years. ... are angry. All the gods and their people blame each other.

Everyone must turn to Zeus for protection - unjust Zeus who manufactures conflicting laws by the thousands each year - and must manufacture thousands more to generate more "justice" the next year. Zeus is the only refuge now available to prevent each from being devoured by hostile gods and their hostile people. All must seek "Zeus-justice".

Zeus Law - Is It Legal?"

Is Zeus-law legal? Yes, it is legal. Un-Lawful, but legal. Zeus declared it legal. He has his police and soldiers to make it legal. A violation guarantees punishment. One either recants or he may be punished with prison or death.[23]

Will Zeus-law last? It may last as long as it lasted before. When Zeus gives to one god - he takes from another. When all gods are angry and their people deprived of the staples of life - then will come the day of reckoning.

It requires no great mind to see why today's prophets predict the splintering and fragmenting of the house that Zeus built. The Soviet-Yugoslav solution is being predicted for America. Only loyal Zeus-priests and their Zeus-followers say that they believe that Zeus is strong enough to force both integration and the suppression needed to hold his world together.

The faithful of all religions see the empty churches. They see and fear the violence - the coming famine - the coming sword. They want to be free. They want to return to the worship of their own gods - to be again ruled by laws which are to them simple, just, and true. They want to worship in peace without fear of being killed, imprisoned, or abused.

The signs say they will get their desire. Robins and buzzards have arrived in Virginia - both at the same time. It is the nature of robins to stake out territories and fight for them. In more than half a century I have never seen more than 6 or 8 robins together at one time. Now, for the first time in the memory of living Virginians, five thousand robins at a time have arrived - in the middle of winter.

Never before have I beheld more than a dozen buzzards circling at a time. Now, circling Virginia skies are hundreds.

Never before have buzzards been seen in such number. Never before have robins been seen in such number. The sign of death and birth - the sign of the end of one thing and the beginning of something new. Both arrived at the same time. A new age has arrived for those who have eyes to see.[24] occupation and looting. The visible KKK of the 1870s, by its very visibility and existence, was an admission that it was bogus. Actual KKK organizations were NEVER called KKK organizations.

The same applies today. To justify anti-Western laws and looting there must be targets for the media to bash. It is my belief that today's KKK, Nazi, and lately - a Thody Phineas Priesthood - neatly fill the bill just as in the 1870s. It is my belief that these groups are set up to provide a media target to generate propaganda. Time may well prove most of them to be nothing but Federal sting operations set up to entrap the unwary who are fed up with the never-ending media-led assault on Western civilization and its Christian God.

S. African Referendum

White S. Africans went to the polls and voted 2-1 to allow DeKlerk to transfer rule to the Blacks who outnumber the Whites 10-1.

Disbelieving the results, I called a S. African active in conservative politics and asked the reason. He was stunned also. He said that from the people he had talked to at the polls he thought the reverse to be true.

He said that the upset must have resulted from the Black threats, the belligerent mass Black parades; the 100% establishment media support of Black rule; the threats of what would happen to the Whites if they dared anger the Blacks; the universal fear created by the media that permeated the country - and the absolute impossibility to answer media arguments that cascaded down in a torrent. This is what did it.

I have two observations. God the Word identifies the enemy:

A: 1- "The borrower is slave to the lender." Prov. 22:7. Therefore the lenders - the international banks - rule. 2- With their unlimited wealth they have bought a "Maxwell-Media" monopoly to advance their interests. 3- This "Maxwell-Media" shields the nation's true rulers from discovery, is a "false witness" to the people, and rules by giving exposure to compliant politicians. It is a false witness.[25]

B: 1- "Whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved." Rom 10:13. Until Christians call upon the Lord - until they hold up his Word[26] - until this is done - there will be no victory against the enemy of Christendom. Christians must say with bumper-stickers, posters, letters, and every way they can:

"Thou mayest not set a stranger (Heb: zûwr - racial alien) over thee, which is not thy brother." Deu 17:15, Jer 30:21

With the voice of the Lord spoken in the land - then - the following will happen:

"My sheep hear my voice ... and they follow me." John 10:26,27

But FIRST - Christians must "call upon the Lord". He requires it. It proclaims us - it proclaims Him.

Chapter 212

HATE LEGISLATION Prevents Victim Protest

Legitimate Protests Called "Hate"

Parade Magazine, on April 20, 1992, carried a story by Elie Wiesel (pronounced the way it looks), native of Transylvania, internationally known Nazi-hunting, Nobel Peace Prize winning, Boston University Professor of Humanities. The subject was "passion", and the article was illustrated with a picture of German skinheads, whose faces were said to be contorted with "passion". They appeared to be protesting something. But what?

Germany - 5000 Casualties A Day

Germany is in the throes of a crime wave - a massive crime wave. The figure repeated time and again by natives and visitors is that one in ten Germans became a victim last year of either murder, rape, robbery, or assault. Germans tell me that MOST of the crime is committed by alien immigrants. They are identified as Turks and North African moslems.

The media will not put a figure on the number of victims but, instead, they tell the Germans that while things might be a trifle bad - the immigrants have it worse - that half the crime they commit - they commit against themselves. Somehow, immigrants becoming victims of immigrant-crime are supposed to make the Germans feel guilty. They are blamed for having a country where people can be assaulted. While made to feel guilty, they are also made to feel grateful that while things are bad - they would be much worse if the entire weight of immigrant crime were directed exclusively against them.

Take a hand calculator and you will quickly get an idea of what "one person in ten is a victim" really means.[1]

There are about 80,000,000 Germans in re-united Germany. The one in ten who are victimized represent 10%. Ten percent of 80,000,000 generates 8,000,000 victims. That's a lot of victims - especially when compared with pre-war Germany which had almost no crime. There are 7 million immigrants - mostly Turks and north African muslims, many of whom are Black. These, combined with other races already ensconced in Germany, constitute perhaps as many as 10 million. Perhaps more.

1 One in ten is the figure most frequently mentioned by people I consider knowledgeable.

If only half the crime is committed by them - instead of MOST as is charged - they are responsible for committing 4 million crimes. And, if half of the 4 million is directed against their own people (if the media can be believed), this would make them responsible for the other 2 million crimes committed against Germans.[2]

Simple Math

Pencil pushing reduces 2 million to a figure more easily understood. There are 365 days in the year. Two million divided by 365 days produces 5,479 Germans who are victims of the aliens each and every day. (Don't forget - there are three times that number of crimes being committed in Germany at the same time.)

Almost every time a Turk or a Black is beaten, or a foreign shelter is attacked by irate Germans, that incident is media- labeled in a front page extravaganza - "Outbreak of Neo-Nazi Hate!" "Hate!" "Hate!"

The newspapers are upset over the fact that skinheads and others are beginning to protest their own mistreatment and their protests are called - "hate". Could it be that the Germans are becoming upset that 5,479 of their people fall victim to the aliens each day and it is the Germans who are called "bigots" and "hate-mongers", and it is the immigrants who are called the "victims of hate"?

2 For the benefit of this article, the Germans themselves also theoretically commit 4 million crimes. This figure is highly suspect. My informants state that it is far more likely that the foreigners commit 6 million or more crimes instead of just 2 million crimes used as statistics for this article.

Truth In Media Law Needed

The law requires food and drink to be labeled as to its contents. It is time that the same laws be extended to cover the poisoned information dished out by the media. It should be compelled to tell the truth. If they can run stories and print pictures of almost every one of the two or three hundred Turks and North Africans who have fallen victim to irate Germans, they should also be required to print the pictures of the Germans who have fallen victim to these same infidels - some 164,383 every month.

The media should be compelled to label their poison just as cigarettes are labeled. Something to alert the reader that what they are about to read may be dangerous, such as:

"Reader Attention!"

"Believe at your own risk! This article may carry lies and mistruths. Fair media reporting is required by law to correct past media lies, distortions, discrimination, disinformation, racism, bigotry, and false information which has been believed and which has plunged the world into numerous wars and has had adverse affects on countless millions of readers."

Information on which one must base decisions that will determine life and death is at least as important as food and drink. Otherwise, an entire people may die just because they don't know that a crime-war is being waged against them.

European Victims - 14,000 Daily

"Maxwell-type" world media chains churn out daily lists of ten or twenty casualties resulting from the on- going Balkans "war". When this slow-motion skirmish begins to become stale, the papers churn out other stories of the hardships and discrimination bravely faced by more work-seeking foreigners arriving in Europe. Their criminal activities once they have been admitted are blacked out.

The German story is Europe's story. There are three hundred million people living in Europe - some 200 million of whom are Westerners. Using the same methodology - 10% or 20 million Westerners fall victim to criminal attacks a year. Half of the crimes, or 10 million, are committed by the strangers and half of the 10 million are committed against Westerners. Thus, the White Christian population of Europe suffers about 14,000 attacks daily at the hands of the stranger within.

America's Victims - 12,000 Daily

American newspapers and TV endlessly run clips of the regrettable incident where four White policemen beat a Black.

To do this the media has to step over hundreds and thousands of bodies of White men, women and children to find a flyspeck on an iceberg. Whites are virtually ignored to concentrate on an incident in which a Black is a victim.

It is media policy to conceal the criminal's race. But, in spite of their "paper curtain" - certain information still manages to slip through.

Truth At Last, #353, P.O. Box 1211, Marietta, Georgia 30061, carried Pat Buchanan's answer to the media's charge of White "Hate crimes". They reported Buchanan on May 7th as saying:

1) Blacks commit 8 times more assaults than do Whites
2) Blacks commit 9 times more rapes than Whites
3) Blacks commit 14 times more murders
4) Blacks commit 19 times more armed robberies
5) Black neighborhoods are 35 times more violent than White communities.

6) There were 629,000 interracial attacks committed in 1985. Some 9 out of every 10 attacks were committed by Blacks against Whites.[3]

Blacks make up 12% of the population. Still, Blacks make up 46% of the nation's prison population. Nearly 1/4 of all Negroes ages 20 to 29 are either in prison, on probation or on parole, which compares to 10% for Hispanics and 6% for Whites. Most interracial crime is overwhelmingly committed by Blacks against Whites.

These figures in themselves present a different picture from that the media would have us believe, and, Buchanan merely touched on Hispanic crime while leaving out Oriental and Indian crime entirely. If total "stranger-crime" were honestly reported, we might be dumbfounded to discover that as much as 85%-90% of all crime in the United States is committed by strangers, and much of it (if not most) is committed against Whites.

About 250,000,000 people live in the U.S. Some 180 million are Westerners. A one in ten victim rate produces 18 million crimes against them yearly. If strangers commit only half, this is 9,000,000. If half of them are committed against Whites it results in about 12,000 crimes committed against Whites by strangers each and every day.

Once again, the California incident where the Black was beaten by White policemen is regrettable, but, what about the more than 5 million Whites who have fallen victim to strangers since that incident occurred? Don't any of the rapes and cold blooded butcheries suffered by Whites merit the same careful tear-jerk treatment?

3 ED: The actual figure is many, many times this "official" figure. Most crime is underreported and un-reported - unless it is violent or involves a great deal of money. Rape is seldom reported because the media tries to print the victims name - to discourage reporting. Vandalism and petty theft is so commonplace as to not be newsworthy, and reporting seldom produce those guilty. The daily beatings and robbery practiced against White children in the public schools cannot be reported because there is no way to protect against retaliation.

S. Africa, Australia and New Zealand - 1,700 Each Day

Nelson Mandela continues front page. His wife has been accused of killing a Black. We are told of the suffering of that Black's family. That is front page. Blacks kill Blacks - 20 at a time, that is front page. What is not front page is the media- encouraged assault on Whites. This same media policy is true in Australia and New Zealand.

In these three nations reside some 25,000,000 of our people. Australians are being victimized by Orientals and Blacks, New Zealanders by Maoris and Orientals, and S. Africans by Blacks and Indians. The same methodology produces 625 thousand Westerners in these countries falling victim to crimes committed by strangers - about 1,700 per day - every day. The media exudes sympathy and support for the aliens who are responsible for the crimes, and conceals their race to protect them from public reaction caused by their crimes.

Our Tribute - 30-Thousand A Day!

Europe furnishes the infidels 5 million victims. America and Canada together furnish another five, and Australia, N. Zealand, and S. Africa more than a half-million: total - almost 11 million yearly.

Eleven million divided by 365 days in the year means that each day about 30 thousand of our people fall victim to the strangers in our midst, and this may understate the true

Thirty thousand men, women, and childrn - THIRTY THOUSAND A DAY. Either pay the tribute or suffer "media bashing" and the threat of armed intervention by armies suzerain to our enemies.

Media Complicity

The media refuse to recognize this Western suffering. They abuse those who protest the spilling of their own blood. They call them "bigots" and "racist". They smear anyone who dares protest his injury and hurt. It is almost usual for a mugging victim to find the editor has trashed his letter of protest. It was not "politically correct". A ruined blockbusted stab victim may be ridiculed as a "bigot" for complaining about immigrants. Rape- victims are often accused of "encouraging the act". A father of a murdered child who verbally protests and calls a stranger a name - may himself be convicted - the protest being called a "hate crime". If one writes a book decrying the breakdown of law and order - the media brand the author "extremist". If a father whose daughter has been gang-raped and whose attackers walk free after a few days in jail writes something on the sidewalk in protest - states like Florida will sentence him to double punishment.

The chains of Maxwell-type media - media which may be owned or controlled by agents of foreign nations - call Whites who protest the crimes committed by strangers against them - "racists". Their protest is called - "hate". They are "haters"! The media ignore the 30,000 daily victims. It is their scorecard of success for that day. Not verbalized, but obvious by their actions, the media treat the casualties as the tally one naturally expects from a WAR. They are winning and the Whites are losing. "Westerners are getting what they deserve!"

Conclusion

All things have an end. Either the Christian God has forsaken his people and doomed them to extermination at the hands of alien tormentors led and protected by the media - or the Christian West will call on its God and its God will hear and save it.[4]

The scriptures declare:

"Whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved." Rom 10:13

The scripture says:

"His name is called The Word of God." Rev 19:13[5]

The Word says:

"If a false witness rise up against any man to testify against him that which is wrong ... Then shall ye do unto him, as he had thought to have done unto his brother ... And those which remain shall hear, and fear, and shall henceforth commit no more any such evil among you. And thine eye shall not pity; but life shall go for life, eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot." Deut19:16-21

4 "When thou art in tribulation ... even in the latter days, if thou turn to God and shall be obedient ... he will not forsake thee ... nor forget the covenant of thy fathers." Deut 4:30-31

We hurt, we suffer, we call on our God for deliverance. God hears the cry of anguish. His Law is absolute. The "Word made flesh" rose from the dead and is alive - He walks the land.

The day will come when trials will be held for those guilty of committing crimes against God's people - those guilty of protecting criminals, those guilty of refusing to punish them, those who conceal their crimes - they all will be punished according to God's Law! He sees the 30,000 sacrifices heaped daily on the alter of Baal.

God has not forgotten. All our Christian duty requires us to do is to Love our enemies as well as our friends - as our God commands us to do.

"If ye love me obey my commandments." John 14:15

SELLING CARS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I would like to know how the Japanese can sell a car cheaper in the U.S. than in Japan?" - O.R.- Idaho

ED: Portfolios Investment Advisory, sister publication to HR, covered this recently. The Japanese don't think the way we think. Success is measured by the number of people a company employs and the low cost of their goods. They have dealers and subcontractors that are really unnecessary but are traditional - and they provide employment. In Japan the manufacturer will sell to a major distribution-dealer, who will ship his cars through a shipping-dealer, who will send the cars to a reconditioning and cosmetics grooming-dealer, who will send to another, and another, and another before the car reaches the Japanese showroom. Each stop raises the cost to the consumer. To sell in America they manufacture and ship directly to the American dealers - at half the Japanese cost. It's the Japanese way of doing things. They expect Americans to do business in Japan, step by step, the Japanese way. A confrontation between the two systems is guaranteed at some point. Unless one side or the other gives - the result will be chaos for the Japanese, or the complete draining of money from America.

HI-CRIME AREAS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Maryland is a high- crime state. I was driving through when I was pulled over for a license check. The officer saw a pistol in my car and put me in jail. I was required to post a $15,000 bail to get out. This is how high-crime states guarantee their criminal's protection and ensure that their areas remain 'high-crime.' Be warned." W. C. - South Carolina

SOVIET DEBT: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Could the collapse of the Soviet system be due to their inability to generate more debt?" G. T. - Washington

ED: Governments can generate unlimited amounts of debt - if they like. They can also create unlimited amounts of scrip (tallies). The communist system was right to provide scrip for internal use, but wrong in its inability to provide goods and services for the scrip they created. The good news is that the scrip is still useful for starting fires. More good news is that the starving ex-Soviets are not saddled with internal state- created debt - only their own. There is still something to be cheerful about - but you have to look to find it.

WELFARE: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Is it good for government to involve itself in welfare of ANY kind?" G. T. - Washington

ED: "The land shall be divided for an inheritance." Num 26:53-55 "The land shall not be sold for ever." Lev 25:13-28 By use of forbidden taxes, usury, and monopoly - Christians have been robbed and herded into towns. The farm-kingdom given by God to his people now belongs to the establishment which holds them illegally. The city was established to stockpile plundered victims. It must feed and house them to keep them manageable. The Word is again being heard after 500 years of silence. We understand what is meant when we say - "Never forgive!" "Never forget!" "Never again!" Never again will we sit quietly by and not protest while our God is defamed and his people robbed.

THE S. AFRICAN FIX: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Note how the White S. African vote that turned the country over to the Blacks was set at 68% to 33%: 2:1 + 2%., enough to override any veto. If you've ever tried to assemble a 2:1 vote on any issue you'll know how hard it is - but easy if you fix the vote. One protest candidate in the U.S. received 50 to 100 votes in a number of precincts near the Canadian border, but never more than 9 votes from city precincts - an impossibility because that was where his strength was. The voting machines were simply set to not register the next cam if the vote went over 9. There is no way the establishment will allow itself to be voted out of power - not while they control the voting machines." S. R. - New York

SWITCH HITTERS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Last week I watched both King Juan Carlos of Spain, and Governor Bill Clinton put Yarmulkes on their heads. Jews consider wearing the Yarmulke a sign of submission to their God. For a goy (non-Jew) to do it is a sign of submission to the special Laws (Noahide law) that the Jews expect non-Jews to obey. These two are stupid, or they have ceded their Christianity in exchange for the laws of another god. I saw a picture of DeKlerk of S. Africa doing the same thing." R. H. - New York

KIDNAPING: "Dear Sir: Is imprisonment the same as kidnaping?" K. G. - North Carolina

ED: "He that stealeth a man, and selleth him, or if he be found in his hand, he shall surely be put to death." Ex 21:16

"If a man ... (steal) any ... of the children of Israel, and maketh merchandise of him, or selleth him, then that thief shall die." Deut 24:7. "Let death be the punishment for stealing a man; but he that hath purloined gold or silver, let him pay double. If anyone kill a man that is stealing something out of his house, let him be esteemed guiltless, although the man were only breaking in at the wall. Let him that hath stolen cattle pay fourfold ... excepting the case of an ox, for which let the thief pay five fold. Let him that is so poor that he cannot pay ... be his servant to whom he was adjudged to pay it." Antiquities 4:8:27

"Is imprisonment the same as kidnaping?" Christian Law requires "restitution" or "death" - one or the other. It's cut and dried. The need for temporary "holding tanks" is limited, and for a full blown prison system - non-existent. To hold a person instead of the Lawful "restitution" or "death" is "man-stealing" or kidnaping. Those who rule over us must be aware of the possible consequences. The Law dealing with "man-stealing" is severe. Only the very brave or the very stupid fight God.

GOD WILL TAKE CARE OF IT: "Dear Mr. H.: What do you say when someone sees a wrong and washes his hands of responsibility by saying - 'God will take care of it." F. W. - W. Virginia

ED: In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God and the Word was God." John 1:1. The Word which is God contains the solution to every problem, the punishment for every crime, and it tells who is to enforce the punishments. The scriptures say: "The hands of the witnesses shall be first upon him to put him to death, and afterward the hands of all the people." Deut 17:5-7

The anti-christ children of the evil one rule today.[6] They will kill you if you enforce the Law and try to keep back God's vengeance from this disobedient land. So, until the suffering of the people forces a return to God's Law, verbally protesting when the establishment violates God's Law is the prudent course: "In case anyone of their own blood should attempt to confound or dissolve their constitution (laws), they should take vengeance on them, both all in general, and each person in particular ... if they were not able to take such vengeance, they should still demonstrate that what was done was contrary to their wills". Antiquities 4:8:45 God requires some sort of action from those of his people who witnesses evil. If all one can do is "speak" then one must speak to "demonstrate that what was done was contrary to their wills".

Chapter 213

STRANGERS HATE "CHRISTIANITY"

"Christian" Charlatans Disobey God

"Christians" who violate the WORD are Christendom's great enemy. Great evils result from their trespasses.

Christianity promises health, healing, prosperity and plenty - to those who obey its teachings. Its head, Jesus Christ, the "Word made flesh", gave strict instructions to whom his teachings were to be taken and to whom they were not to be taken.

> (1) "These twelve Jesus sent forth, and commanded them, saying, Go not unto the way of the Gentiles, and unto any city of the Samaritans enter ye not: But go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel." Matt

10:5,6., (2) "O children of Israel... You only have I known of all the families of the earth." Am 3:1-2, (3) "I was sent to the lost sheep of the house of Israel, and to them alone." Matt 15:24.

He warned of the consequences if they were shown to anyone else:

"Give not that which is holy unto the dogs ... lest they ... turn ... and rend you." Matt. 7:6, Matt 15:26

Anti-Christ promoters have from the earliest days taken Christianity for their own special thing - having fallen from heaven expressly to pave their road of life with gold. No sooner than Jesus was out of the way than they re-packaged the The WORD to re-sell to those that Jesus expressly said that it was not to be taken to. Promising blessings, healing, and riches, to those proscribed - they proclaimed their revised teachings throughout the Mideast and then into India. Saturating these areas, they sold it across Asia and on into China and Japan. By the 5th century most of the known world had been "Christianized". It was a phony Christianity, an unlawful counterfeit Christianity, but the "establishment church" insisted on attaching un-scriptural teachings to their brand of Christianity because it increased their power and wealth. They still do.

#1 Reason - Dangerous To Disobedient

Historians of ersatz Christianity feign mystification as to why - one by one - the nations of strangers which had enthusiastically embraced "Christianity" - turned their backs and walked away from it. Japan and China proscribed it, then the tribes that roamed the great Gobi, Iranian, and Arabian deserts turned away - one by one. Next, Indian Christianity withered as did the North African brand.

What happened? The truth leaked out! The counterfeit church, cloaked in robes, crowns, and impressive ritual, had broken the express commands of Jesus by taking Christ's teachings to strangers after he had told his disciples not to do so;

> (1) "He that saith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar and the truth is not in him." I John 2:4, (2) "Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God." 2 John 1:7,11, (3) "Not every one ... shall enter into the kingdom ... but he that doeth the will of may Father ... Many will say ... have we not prophesied in thy name? ... And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you." Matt 7:21-23.

The strangers had found out. Who wants to follow someone who claims that he has been authorized by God - while at the same time - he is breaking God's laws? Who wants to follow a religious leader who brings hurt and misery and not good?

Christianity - A Death Sentence

Christians accept the death penalty for murder, homosexuality, rape, and kidnaping as just and right. This is the punishment ordained when God created the world. That's the way things should be. This simple acceptance for genuine Christians is extreme for gentiles, to most of whom these acts are not crimes, but merely a way of life.

The anti-Christ missionaries promised much - but the rule book that they brought with them said that the looked-for promises were forthcoming - ONLY - if God's commandments were obeyed. This condemned a large number of the new converts to capital punishment. Even more distressing, certain of the new converts became "power happy" and started to enforce the death penalty for acts that earlier had been acceptable.

Christianity changed overnight from a blessing to a curse. Life became dangerous. The popularity of this new religion ebbed as fast as it had grown. The natural state of the genuine Christian became a life-threatening experience to the gentile.[1]

#2 Reason - The Bible Says NO!

The Bible, Christianity's instruction manual, in addition to expressly forbidding its contents from being shown to strangers, also states that "God created man."

God Created Man

The new gentile converts who read the Christian Bible found that one of the first verses in the Bible stated "God created man".

Independent and intelligent gentiles seldom stay under the thumb of ersatz Christian priests whose job it is to explain away inconsistencies and make black look white. The establishment priests can be proved to be fakers and phonies by scriptures from their own Bible.

This knowledge produced outrage among Black nationalists such as Elija Mohammed and Malcolm X. Entire gentile nations - the Ottoman-Turks, Khazar-Turks, and Jews - had read the same verse years earlier. They know that they are not the "man" the Bible speaks of.

1 In this context, a Japanese is a "gentile" to a Chinese. An Arab is a gentile to a Jew. Arabs and Jews are gentiles to Christians.

"Christianity Is The White Man's Religion"

The accusation heard around the world and thrown at substitute Christianity every day is that "Christianity is the White man's religion". The following verse cannot be answered by counterfeit Christian priests. It can be considered one verse which permanently alienates the gentile from Christendom.[2]

"God created man." Gen 5:1

There are many gods. The God that made man is the one described in the Christian Bible in the following manner:

> "In the beginning was the WORD, and the word was with God, and the WORD was God." John 1:1 and, "The WORD was made flesh, and dwelt among us." John 1:14

The scriptures say to all who read that The Word - the Laws, statutes, and judgments - is God. Jesus Christ is the Word made flesh who dwelt among us. The scriptures say it many different ways: "His name is called The Word of God." Rev 19:13."

In the verse "God created man", the connecting word "created" means just that. The last of the 3 words is - MAN. The word "man" is the Hebrew word "adam". Anyone who bothers to go to Strong's Concordance will find "man":

2 The UN proclamation on race OPI151-63-27884, Jan 1964, is a condemnation of Christianity. If the UN proclamation is enforced, as appears likely, it will suppress the Christianity as taught by Jesus. The reason? If Christianity is allowed to develop free of alien heresy it will completely rule the world. Gentile rulers feel threatened. To protect themselves they have set up counterfeit Christian priests to be their spokesmen. These spokesmen attempt to nullify Christ's teachings by quoting a few scriptures out of context.

MAN: Heb: Adam - "to show blood(in the face), ie: to flush or turn rosy: - be (dyed, made) red (ruddy). Strong's Concordance. "Man" is the Hebrew word adam. Adam means to "blush red".

"God created man" means - God ("God the Word" - the laws, statutes, and judgments) created man (he who "blushes red"). Or: "The Laws, statutes and judgments created a being who blushes red."

Thus, it is obvious to those who will see just how God the Word made "adam-man" in his own image, fulfilling the following scripture:

"God said let us make man in our image. So God created man in his own image." Gen 1:26-27

The WORD Removes Deviants

God the Word forbids murder, rape, and kidnaping. God the Word directed that all adamic people who murdered, raped, or kidnaped - were to be put to death.

Man obeyed. For 1,000 generations all murderers, rapists, and kidnapers were put to death. Like breeds like. Today's adamic peoples are descended from 1,000 generations of those who have gone before who have put the "lawless" to death. They are the remnant - descended from the faithful - they are the "lawful".

In the army I had difficulty in training some men to shoot at man-like targets. Once taught - they did well - but they were reluctant. Ordered to shoot innocent people - most would protest. God the Word who made "men who blush red" made them "in his own image". Like God - "adam-man" will not willingly murder, rape, or kidnap. The Word made them that way - in his own image. Left to himself, adam-man ensures that only those of his own kind will remain to carry on in God's image for all time. To do this he merely enforces the Law by removing those who offend the Law. There are strict penalties levied against lawbreakers as well as those who refuse to enforce God's Law.

Of course, if the Law is not enforced and the lawbreaker does not receive the proscribed punishment - Mr. and Mrs. America Goody-Two-Shoes will be punished for tolerating lawlessness. "Toleration" of evil is violation of the Law - just as committing a crime is a violation of the Law.[3]

The two things that turn gentiles from Christianity are the "harsh" restrictions placed on their behavior, which they are seldom told about beforehand, and to add insult to injury - the clear Biblical instructions proscribing those who do not bear the "three proofs of Israel" - 1. God's name, 2. Isaac's name, 3. Adamic descent.

Breeding The Wolf

Most non-adamic peoples of the world are ruled by leaders who have killed many people, or, have stolen many horses, cattle and camels, and are able to buy many wives and have many children. Like breeds like. The result of this selective breeding is easy to find. Look in the prisons.

In Texas and California the prisons are full of Mexicans.

3 (1)"Let the saints be joyful ... and a two-edged sword in their hand, to execute ... the judgment written: this honor have all his saints." Ps 149:5- 9. (2)"Cursed be he that doeth the work of the Lord deceitfully, and cursed be he that keepeth back his sword from blood." Jer 48:10. (3) "But if ye will not ... do all these commandments; ... I also will do this unto you; ... ye shall sow your seed in vain, for your enemies shall eat it ... they that hate you shall reign over you; and ye shall flee when none pursueth you. ... I will break the pride of your power ... your land shall not yield her increase ... I will send wild beasts among you which shall rob you of your children ... and make you few in number ... I will bring a sword upon you ... I will send the pestilence among you; ... I will ... cast your carcasses upon the carcasses of your idols ... And I will make your cities waste ... And I will bring the land into desolation." Lev 26:14-35

In New York, Washington and Chicago they are full of Blacks; in Washington state they are full of Indians. Like breeds like. It is the law.

The non-adamic world views "adam-man" as a harsh police force who are always interrupting and interfering in their business and their fun.

On the other hand - the world viewed by adam-man consists of "adam-man" - whom they consider relatively Lawful, and non adam- man, the hued-man (human), who commit most of the crime. The lawless are compared to wolves. They are clever, smart, skillful, and deceptive - they must be to survive. But, they are what they are. They are descended from a thousand generations of wolves - murderers and robbers.

One may go to the end of the world and find a wolf - and throw a sheepskin over him, and baptize him and call him a sheep.[4] One may make him believe that he is a sheep and tell everyone that he is in fact a sheep. But, he remains what he is - a wolf. He may act like a sheep, but when the day comes and he smells blood, then - woe betide the flock.

The strangers of the world have no illusions. They know what they are. They know the difference between a wolf and a sheep and they don't apologize for being what they are. They would have it no other way. They are comfortable serving the purpose that they were put on earth to serve.

They also know who and what a "man" is. The educated among them understand the meaning of the words "In the image of God made he man (Adam)." Gen 9:6, that Adam-man is made in the image of HIS God - not THEIR god. They are wolves - man are the sheep. If the WORD - the laws, statutes and judgments of the sheep were forced on them - most of them would be condemned in short order. The Law would punish with death many of the things that wolves do every day.

4 "Gentiles shall ye take to wife purifying ... with an unlawful purification (baptism)." Testament of Levi 4:17

To avoid this threat, he must either flee the lands where the Christian God rules or fight Him on his own ground.

Sensing a showdown - an Armageddon in the making - the wolves have opened the gates to the sheep fold to the wolves of the world. The sheep are attempting to flee this way and that.

For the sheep - survival means that a new way to live must be found. The scriptures say:

> "When thou are in tribulation ... even in the latter days, if thou turn to God and shall be obedient ... he will not forsake thee ... nor forget the covenant of thy fathers." Deut 4:30- 31[5]

SOUTH AFRICA REPORT by J.M.K.

DeKlerk had Saatchi & Saatchi, the internationally known London advertising firm, to plan his campaign.

The media onslaught was something to behold. Many large companies, banks, and the civil service told their workers what was expected of them.

Our side felt numb when the results became known. I just felt anger. We took the posters down the next day and the right wing parties held a main council meeting. Mr. Mariaas

5 "It rained fire and brimstone ... and destroyed them all (the sodomites). Even thus shall it be in the day when the Son of man (the Word made flesh) is revealed." Luke 17:29

told us the struggle continues. The "NO" voters can be seen as the core of the nation, be they English or Afrikaans speaking. In many instances young people defied their bosses, like the young man who works for Toyota. When addressed by the management in the auditorium, he got up and walked out. It takes something when a job is so hard to come by if you are White.

Some places told their workers where and how to vote and the day after handed them their dismissal letters. The economy is getting worse.

Debt and the wishes of the lenders lie at the heart of the problem. Our trouble started when John Vorster borrowed from international banks to finance the upliftment of Blacks, and that story continues. Millions go down the drain with nothing to show for the expenditure.

The TV announced that a plane load of rich Russians had come to look at investments. I have been told that you had to be one of the favored few to get rich in Russia.

Blacks are coming over the borders daily. The murder of Whites continue at a frightening rate, and in the last three weeks the Zulus and Xhosas have squared off and have made war zones out entire areas of S. Africa.

Most churches here are establishment churches. They only preach what is "politically correct". Even a charismatic church like Rhema, which claims to have 15 thousand members, is a fully integrated business oriented church - a stepping stone to the New World Order.

South Africa is full of the descendants of Huguenots, and Scottish and English Covenanters, but few honor their forebears and speak of "God's Law". And, almost NO ONE has called on, or pledged, to obey the name of God (the Word). As a consequence, God's punishments - the AIDS plague and the sword - have descended on the land. It's fearful. No one knows what to do - they don't know what God requires of them. And, the preachers can't tell them. They have either been bought, or are too ignorant to know themselves.

We are being forced to study the Bible ourselves since there is no one else to turn to.

ONE BLOOD: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: What do you make of "And he has made of one blood every nation of men to dwell on the face of the earth." Acts 17:26." H. L. - Texas

ED: Esau has long used this verse. "In the beginning was the Word", "God made man", "I am not sent but to the lost sheep of the house of Israel," "No bastard (mixed-breed) shall enter the congregation of Israel forever." God does not fight himself. All scripture must be interpreted to harmononize with other scriptures. The Bible is adam-man's history book. The "every nation of man" refers to every nation of adam-man - Heb: "he who blushes red." It particularly refers to the descendants of Jacob- Israel because the Word (God) was given to Israel only, "He showed his word ... his statutes and his Judgments unto Israel. He hath not dealt so with any nation ... they have not known thee." Ps 147:19,20

Esau tries to make Israel believe that the blessing has been given to him. He gives media exposure to those who will say that Esau is Israel, that God the Word has been given to Esau. The "one blood" argument is one of his oldest red-herrings. He wants you to believe that "nations" mean EVERYONE and that his blood and yours are the same. It isn't.

"I loved Jacob, and I hated Esau, and laid his mountains and his heritage waste for the dragons of the wilderness." Malachi 1:1-3. "Esau was a designing and deceitful man, one who hunted after the hearts of men and inveigled them ... and in the course of time went as usual to hunt; and he came as far as the field of Seir, the same is Edom. ... And Esau there saw in the land of Seir the daughter of a man of Canaan, and her name was Jehudith ... And Esau took her for a wife." Jasher 29:20-23* and will try to kill them the instant their back is turned.

Esau is a wolf. He has killed many and stolen much. To keep his loot he must keep never-ending guard against victims bent on revenge. Part of his loot is being constantly invested to broadcast to past and future enemies that the wolf is no wolf, but a lovable sheep, a different kind of lovable sheep, at worse - merely a wolf in sheep's clothing. "Esau was a designing and deceitful man, one who hunted after the hearts of men and inveigled them." Feeding in the midst of the flock he forever directs the flocks' attention from himself to a distant, dangerous but imaginary enemy. It is Esau that leads the chase against shadows and away from himself. Victims devastated by Esau's contrivance often turn out to have been other sheep who have been lied about. Esau feels no remorse for inflicting injury on them. He ignores his victims and points his media at still other new enemies.

The Scriptures tell this ancient and ever continuing story. Esau is safe only when the scriptures remain closed. Open them, and - scripture upon scripture, precept upon precept, our understanding is built - and the solution disclosed.

ATLANTA CONFLICT: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Abortion supporters driving by in cars shot BB rifles and threw bottles at abortion protesters. Bands of Blacks hunt down single White girls and rape them. STATUES, PICTURES, & WINDOWS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: What is the difference between the Catholic statues and Protestant pictures and windows of Jesus?" A. K. - North Carolina

ED: None. The 2nd commandment forbids "likenesses" because any substitution for "the Word made flesh" will in time become the object of worship - and not the Word - the laws, statutes, and judgments.

ED: There are more than 30,000 incidents of murder, rape, robbery, and physical abuse directed against Whites DAILY world- wide. This doesn't count "threats" - a thing so common as to be a non-event. In America, there are 12,000 anti-Christian attacks DAILY. There are documented cases of Jews and Blacks writing on their own buildings and getting national media coverage, while almost nothing is done to advertise the plight of tens of thousands of defenseless White victims who have legitimate complaints, who are actual bleeding victims of assault. The holocaust against them is carefully hushed up by the national media, while at the same time, it pulls out all stops to bash Whites who have the nerve to protest their treatment. White- bashing is the national sport of both the media and communist- leaning politicians. Either the governments - local, state and federal - will protect the White citizens of America or the law- abiding citizens of America will be forced to protect themselves.

Chapter 214

THE SHEEP AND THE WOLF

There are sheep and there are wolves. A sheep is a sheep. A wolf is a wolf. Wolves eat sheep. That's what they do. Sheep try to keep from being eaten. That's what they do. Wolves think it is unreasonable for sheep to complain. But, of course, that, too, is what they do.

The Sheep

Sheep are predictable. They all act the same way because that's the way they are bred. They tend to congregate and follow a shepherd. The shepherd leads them to green pastures. The sheep graze, grow fat, and produce mutton, wool, milk, cheese, and skins.

Obedient sheep obey their shepherd and tend to live lives which are productive and plentiful. Sheep who disobey their shepherd may wander from the flock and be injured.

Many die in the teeth of the wolf.

The smell of sheep is distinctive. They possess scent glands between their cloven hooves and leave their scent wherever they walk. Their urine and droppings also leave a distinctive odor. Sheep ranges are distinctive because of this. Sheep scent alone is sufficient to frighten most predators away from the flock. It is the area protected by the Shepherd and his dogs who will attack predators.

The Shepherd has strict rules. For countless generations he ruthlessly culled his flock. Sheep showing aggressive traits permitting them to attack and kill other sheep have been quickly eliminated. The result is that today it is almost impossible to find a sheep who will kill another sheep. Like breeds like.

While predators have countless ailments, sheep have few, and NO hereditary diseases. Most serious diseases they catch are brought in by outsiders, and these have sometimes been known to almost wipe out a flock.

When in danger sheep are led into the sheep fold by the shepherd.[1]

The Wolf

The best killer and the best fighter becomes leader of the wolf pack. Behaviorists call him the alpha wolf. He mates with a female who is the best fighter among the female

---

1 "Sheep of the pasture" bear the three proofs of Israel: (1) God's name - CHRISTIANS - "They shall put my name upon the children of Israel." Num 6:27 (2) Isaac's name, SONS OF ISAAC - ISAACSONS - SAXONS, "In Isaac shall thy name be called." Romans 9:7, and (3) Adamic descent. "Man" in Strong's Concordance is the Hebrew "Adam". "Adam" means to "blush red". "Show blood in the face." Genuine Israelites (or Christians) can produce all three proofs. "CHRISTIAN"-"SAXON"-"MAN".

wolves. She is called the alpha female. The alpha female rules the pack in the absence of the alpha male. Other members of the wolf pack do not breed. The male and female alpha wolves mate and have many pups. This is one way pack leaders can be identified.

The total pack usually numbers between two and 8, although they may number up to 36. Lone wolves may leave to seek a hunting ground of their own. If he can find an unoccupied hunting area and an unattached female, a new pack may form. If not, his life is hard. Wolf packs do not welcome other wolves in their territories and will fight to keep them out. These fights can be deadly.

Social status in the rigid wolf pecking order is revealed by observing smiles and bows when wolves meet - the subservient wolf makes more of both. After meeting - wolves look away and seldom look directly at each other again. A "direct look" means - "fight".

Wolves communicate within the pack, and communicate with other packs as prey is chased from one hunting area to another hunting area where they cannot be safely followed. Hunting tactics and strategy are sophisticated and individual members cooperate to "team chase" quarry. When the kill is made, the alpha wolf eats first. Wolves can be injured or killed in disputes over the remainder.

The leading cause of death among wolves is other wolves. The next most frequent cause of death is disease caught from contaminated diet since wolves are scavengers. Death from parasites is next. Last is death inflicted by the prey.

Sheep Types

Like the wolf - the Christian is the result of selective breeding. His shepherd is God the Word.[2] The Word tells him what to eat, what company to keep, and, demands that murderers, kidnapers, and rapists be put to death. For 1000 generations violators have been put to death. Like breeds like. Consequently, it is extremely difficult to find a Christian who will commit murder. Most Christians follow the wishes of their God and the result is that most are Law abiding, long lived, and have all they need in the way of worldly goods - neither too much nor too little.[3]

"Night Wolves"

"Wolves of the night" usually kill their prey in a climate of sheep-ignorance - their ignorance of what is safe and what is dangerous contained in the Word. "Night" is the Biblical expression for ignorance.

Alpha wolves become pack leaders because they kill many other wolves and kill much prey. "Human-wolves" become pack leaders when their killing ability justifies leadership. Most are also excellent thieves who steal many horses and cattle and are able to buy many wives and have many children. Like breeds like. An inspection of the jails of the west show them loaded with red- wolves. An inspection of the jails of the east show them to be filled with black-wolves. Wall street jails are full of tan trade-wolves. Wolves invariably run afoul of the law contained in the Word. That law was made for sheep. Sheep are sheep, Wolves are wolves. Sheep Law was made for sheep - wolves

3 Give me neither poverty nor riches ... lest I be full, and deny thee ... or lest I be poor, and steal, and thus take the name of my God in vain." Prov 30:8-9 obey their pack leader. Like breeds like.

Wolf Lifestyle - Diseases

Wolves are riddled with diseases. In addition to all usual diseases they often have their own exotic diseases. The black-wolf has a distinctive blood disease and is susceptible to TB, the tan trade-wolf has up to 30 diseases of the nervous system peculiar to him alone. Sheep, contacting wolves, have brought plagues back to their flock that have been disastrous.[4] AIDS is the most recent disaster. Testing disclosed that wolves are almost the sole plague carriers. To prevent alarming the flocks of sheep to the fact that wolf contact is dangerous, carrier-testing and identity- disclosure was outlawed. Doctors insisting on mandatory testing and quarantine risk being labeled - "anti-wolf".

Wolves are predators. Predators are hunters. Hunters travel light. Most seldom own anything that will hamper their chase from place to place. Their possessions usually are things that can quickly be converted into items easily portable. They tend to live in temporary apartments rather than home-folds, and keep their wealth in T-bills, cash, or corporate stock which can be instantly converted to cash, deposited in the back pocket, and off they go again! The "stock certificate" is their contribution to economics.

Sheep, having become used to associating with strangers not of adamic descent, often continue to try to place the stranger by identifying his place of birth. Sheep can usually 4 Non- venereal syphilis contracted in Mexico killed upwards of 50% of the population of Europe. Bubonic plague brought in from the near east killed 2/3s in many areas. give lengthy personal histories. On the other hand, a wolf's background can seldom be verified. Most say they come from distant places and tell stories that can't be confirmed. "My family was in the military - we came from all over." Seldom can cover stories be verified. "I am an independent entrepreneur and manage my own affairs." "I am a retired builder." "I am a dentist from Milwaukee." The recently invented "lie detector" created havoc with wolf cover-stories. An anti "wolf-hate" law had to be passed to severely restrict its use. The lie detector was a wolf disaster. Until its advent the sheep had no idea that the harmless wolves wandering on the sheep's range were anything other than harmless. The lie detector removed the sheep-spoor and revealed the wolf. The cover had been stripped away.

Wolves are seldom successful farmers. Farming is against his nature. It is a discipline that chains him to the soil, forces him to conserve and ration, and deprives him of the freedom to rest in the sun and run with the pack at night.

When they do farm - which is infrequently, their bushel per acre production is far below that of sheep.[5] Most times they are forced to hire sheep to do it. Their idea of hell is farming. On their own they can take a productive farm and reduce it to a desert in a remarkably short time before abandoning it. Their antipathy to the soil is a trademark of the wolf.

5 "And the Lord said ... the voice of thy brother's blood crieth unto me from the ground. And now art thou cursed from the earth ... When thou tillest the ground, it shall not bring forth or yield unto thee her strength; a fugitive and a vagabond shall thou be in the earth." Gen 4:8-12

Wolf Mercy

Wolves often toy with prey like a cat with a mouse. "Mercy" or compassion is not in the vocabulary of a predator. Prey may be kept alive for a purpose. If no purpose can be found - they are liquidated.

Sheep ranges invaded and then abandoned by wolves are discovered to contain innumerable sheep mass graves. The allied wolves of the east are supposed to have liquidated 35,000,000 of their own kind in their Gulags, in addition to killing most of the remaining sheep who still lived there, and great numbers in the lands they occupied for relatively short periods.

POWs in sheep camps suffered the normal attrition of prison life - about 3%. POWs in wolf prisons suffered between 50% and 100% deaths. In Afghanistan the wolves lost 14,000 men in combat, AND, over 300,000 casualties suffered in training and physical abuse over the same period. Wolves themselves cause most wolf causalities. This is the way wolves live.

Wolf Greetings

Sheep greet others as equals.[6] They make quiet requests and seldom blow car horns to demand right of way. Female sheep are honored and permitted to go first; doors are opened for them. Sheep even help wolves when they hunger or suffer disaster. All of these acts are pronounced "commendable" by the Shepherd, BUT, these very same acts are seen as signs of subservience in the eyes of wolves.

---

6 "Ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, a holy nation." 1 Pet. 2:9

A wolf covered with sheep scent may act as a sheep while among sheep, but he reverts to wolf behavior when among wolves. In the wolf community - car horns blare demanding right- of-way, arguments rage over a price charged, people shove and try to break in line, and, females must definitely help themselves. An opened door elicits no "thank you" from the female wolf who stalks through. It is her due from an "inferior" who admits he is inferior by opening the door in the first place.

A car with a flat tire stopped on the roadside is signal for a "sheep-in-armor" to offer help, but, to a wolf - it signals possible "prey".

Wolf Intelligence System

Wolves post sentinels. They insist on having at least one of their member in every club, school, and church. Every tentative plan discussed by the sheep is instantly known to the wolf pack before most sheep know them. Political organizations for the sheep are supplied with funds through wolf donations. Sheep who "dance with wolves" are elected by the "wolf-talk" monopoly. It is the job of those who dance with wolves to open sheep-fold doors for the wolves and to keep them open.

Where the wolf-economics reigns supreme,[7] the wolf's media also reigns supreme. It would be stupid of them to air any other opinion than their own wolf-howl. Wolf monopoly media ensure that individual sheep data banks receive nothing anti-wolfish. Media monopoly creates a political monopoly ruled by the media[8] in place of the rulers required by the Shepherd.[9] Sheep may vote for anyone they like, but, the only ones they know about are the candidates who dance with wolves - the ones given media publicity. The sheep complain that "there is no difference between political parties." Surprise!

7 Usury is a contract considered fraudulent from its conception - where the victim promises to repay 11 when only 10 exists. Repayment can only be made by taking from another victim - but a victim is required. (Ezek 18:13)

The wolf knows exactly what sheep say about him. Self assured, he doesn't bother to deny the charges. Instead, he repeats them and charges the speaker with "wolf-hate", a serious charge when wolves are judge and jury and also levy punishment. Wolf mercy is a proverb.

Anti-Wolfism

To keep the pack from wandering and in hunting condition, pack-leaders continuously regale their packs with stories of the awful fate of the wolf who was betrayed by Little Red Riding Hood. Wolves are kept paranoid. All they can think of is that the woodsman may believe Little Red Riding Hood and take his ax and cut the wolf open so that the previously eaten grandmother can escape. This cheerful bedtime story for sheep is a reoccurring nightmare to wolves who see nothing at all amusing about it.

Wolves know EVERYTHING about the prey. They

8 "Thou mayest not set a stranger (Heb: zûwr - racial alien) over thee, which is not thy brother." Deu 17:15

9 "Thou shalt set him king over thee ... from among thy brethren ... thou mayest not set a stranger over thee who is not thy brother." Deu 17:15 spend a lifetime learning his strengths and weaknesses and gathering information. They know his history. Pack leaders almost all have law degrees. They study his religion. Many know scripture better than most preachers. For the wolf, it's a question of life or death - to the preacher it is just a job. They know the sheep prophecy of the time when the rams will unite and emerge from their sheepfold shoulder to shoulder. This is another reason for the "fear" that identifies wolves.[10]

To avoid the woodsman's ax, wolf scouts are always testing the water. "Who do you think is responsible for the L.A. riots?" "Who do you think is responsible for rise of red communism?" "Who do you think is responsible for the recent war in the middle east?" To relieve the tremendous pent-up tension they almost "beg" the sheep to cry "WOLF"! If someone does - their worst suspicions are confirmed. They run to spread the dreaded news, "Someone has spotted a WOLF! They know! They know! All is lost!!" Chaos reigns temporarily as wolfdom goes to "red alert". Eerie howls rise into the night - warning howls - howls calling "strays" and "stragglers", calls that trigger wolfdom's well rehearsed damage control. It is a wolf ritual practiced again and again, over and over. Every Saturday "wolf-howl", and countless wolf periodicals carry clips of past "prey uprisings" and warn wolves - "never again!" The story of Little Red Riding Hood has lost none of its horror. The self-righteous wolf howl complains to the world that wolves are 10 "'Be trembling and quaking.' Then Cain trembled and became terrified; and through this sign did God make him an example before all the creation." I Adam & Eve 74:24-25 oppressed - "ANTI-WOLFISM must be stamped out!"

Converting Wolves Into Sheep

Wolves must get close to sheep to eat them. To do this they roll in sheep urine and droppings to disguise their odor and then calmly approach the sheep as if one of them. The sheep, seeing a strange visitor[11] are alarmed for a bit until they become used to the new arrival. Then the wolf may walk safely into the sheep fold[12] and take his time choosing his prey.

The easiest method to get into the sheepfold is for the wolf to become a sheep. This difficult feat is performed by having one who dances with wolves throw a sheepskin over the wolf, repeat magic words, and sprinkle water on him. It is then pronounced to the world that the wolf has become a sheep and is entitled to all rights and privileges associated with becoming a sheep. He may now come and go in the sheepfold as he likes.[13]

A minister recently told me this story. A friend of his took a wild orphaned wolf pup and raised him in his home like a dog. He ran and frolicked, and grew up like any other 11 "Stranger" has two meanings. Strong's Concordance lists the word in the Hebrew usually under "gêr" (1616), "zûwr" (2111), and sometimes "nokrîy" (5237). The "zûwr" (2111) stranger is the enemy, he is confrontational, one to be avoided. (1) "There is no hope: no; for I have loved strangers (Heb:"zûwr - racial alien), and after them I will go." Jer 2:25. (2) "Receive a stranger into thine house, and he will disturb thee, and turn thee out of thine own." Ecclesiasticus II, 11:34. The "gêr" (1616) stranger is the kinsman from afar. The one from a different political subdivision, but one to be accepted with open arms.

12 Wolves smell differently from sheep. Those who have worked or served with them in the army can tell you. The lack of deodorants reveals a difference that is VERY noticeable.

normal dog. One day the man cut his hand chopping wood. It bled. He went into his house and fell asleep in his chair. While asleep the wolf licked his bleeding hand and tasted blood. The man was awakened to growls - "wolf growls". Opening his eyes he found his 100 pounds of grown puppy-dog-wolf standing directly in front of him with his teeth bared, and looking directly at him. His blood ran cold. He slowly slipped his hand into a nearby drawer, withdrew a pistol, and killed the wolf.

A wolf is a wolf. A wolf pup raised as a dog is a wolf. A part wolf dog is a wolf.[14] A baptized wolf is a wet wolf. Magic words said over a wolf can only make a magical wolf - not a dog. Like breeds like. God made the sheep and god made the wolf. He who dances with wolves is paid to fool the sheep, but God is not mocked.[15]

Evil Eye

The old sheep-rule is this; "Never trust someone who will not look you in the eye." It is a way of identifying a wolf. This is not foolproof. Some sheep are shy, and wolf pack leaders will look ANYONE in the eye. But, it is a good rule-of-thumb.

But if two wolves stand eye-to-eye, one may end up lying on the sidewalk outside a N.Y. restaurant with bullet holes

14 "A bastard (Heb: mamzêr - mixed breed, mongrel) shall not enter into the congregation of the Lord (Israel." De 23:2

15 (1) "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." Matt. 28:18-20, (2) "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature" Mark 16:15 This refers to the scattered sheep. The Law still holds: (3) "Go not unto the way of the Gentiles ... But go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel." Math 10:5,6." (4) "I was sent to the lost sheep of the house of Israel, and to them alone." Matt 15:24 in him. Among both dogs and wolves, the eye-to-eye look means - "fight". Black-wolves do it regularly in boxing matches to "psych" their opponents. Different strokes for different folks.

The "evil eye" is virtually unknown among sheep, but it is part of wolf-life. The "eye-to-eye" look of a pack leader or someone else important can bring disaster - a physical, economic, or social disaster. A compliment from one with the "evil-eye" about a baby may cause its death. To avoid these unpleasant effects many wolves will not look a person in the eye.[16] Many, even most, wolves wear charms that resemble a half moon, a hand with 4 fingers and the two middle ones retracted, crosses, or simple pieces of iron. It keeps away the "evil eye".[17]

Wolf Religions

Sheep look to their "Shepherd". The wolf looks to his pack leader. The pack leader leads the hunt and the pack downs its prey. The ultimate provider is thus - the wolfpack. They are their own messiah - their own savior. The wolf's god is a combination of pack leader, whose word is law, the pack, and the wolf himself. It could be no other way.[18]

"Hollywood" is a glimpse into wolf-heaven. The never ending delightful story of wolves forever killing opponents, pulling down prey, wolves copulating, or passing gas - "Oh what fun - what rapture"! Dirty filthy talk! No sheep laws - no sheep rules. Wolf heaven! This is as good as it gets! It's what people want!" The wolf can't imagine anyone wanting to waste time watching a flock of sheep eating grass and going "baaa"!

Every sheep household must listen to the wolves' nightly "wolf-howl". It is all that is available. Wolves use it to promote their wolf-approved brand of sheep-dip religion. Sheep-televangelists who "dance with wolves" are selected and they are given prime time. The wealth they receive is payment for persuading the flock to open the sheepfold so wolves can come in. With straight faces they admit that grandma has said that she has big teeth - "the better to eat you with", and a big nose "the better to smell you with", but the reason for that is because she is a "sinner". The wolf is really grandma and not a wolf. "She just needs to be saved."[19]

Coming from a televangelist it tends to set sheep-minds at ease. Certain sheep, the one not tightly wrapped, believe these fairy tales and open the doors to turn the sheepfold into a smelly wolf's den and pig's sty with sheep-bones scattered about. The televangelists coldly say whatever is required to stay on the air. They are well paid and content. The sheep pay the price. It is some small comfort to watch the false shepherds led to jail one by one.[20]

Wolf Training

Wolf pack leaders, deal with sheep-law, so almost all have law degrees. They have to know sheep rules so that they can know where to go and what to do and what not to do. Wolves don't use this training for their own use since most have no law but obey "policy" - the policy of their next level up pack leader.

Wolf Strategy

The wolf must gain entry into the sheepfold if he is to eat sheep. This obstacle is the first to be surmounted. To pass gate-watching rams they can either don a sheepskin to fool the gatewatchers, or pay the gatewatchers to let him pass.

The protective Word of the Shepherd must be driven from sheep schools, courts, and wolves must be planted in the seminaries to teach the sheep. Confusion is the object.

Then the gates must be opened to allow the wolf packs to be recruited from outside, more wolves make it easier to deal with the flock. Any type of wolf is suitable for this work, white, yellow, or red, since all are united to hunt sheep. Electing sheep who dance with wolves guarantees the open gate.

All that is then needed is to keep the sheep occupied until all is complete and it is too late to stop matters. This is accomplished by paying black robed legal and religious sheep to mesmerize the flock until time to slaughter them.

In all this it never occurs to the wolves that if the sheep die they too will be doomed. There will be nothing left to eat and the wolves will inherit a desolate continent the way it was before the sheep arrived and cleared pastures.

Imperium

The great commission given the sheep is to go into all the world and tell the sheep that obeying the Word of the Shepherd saves them from being eaten by wolves. The next is to learn the ways of the wolf to keep from being eaten.

Wolves kill, rend, eat and destroy. Sheep build, create, gather, and help. Sheep do one thing - wolves another. A sheep is a sheep. A wolf is a wolf. Sheep do not wish the wolf ill, they just don't want to be eaten. But, in spite of sheep wishing wolves the best - the fact is that wolves eat sheep. That is what they do - and those sheep taught by the Shepherd are acutely aware that that is what they do.

HELP! - STOCKHOLDER LIST NEEDED

In 1841 the 2nd Bank of the U.S. failed. The list of stockholders was made public and it was discovered that most of the stock had British owners.

Does any reader have, or know of the location of the list of names of those stockholders? A historian, whose credentials I respect, believes that those stock holders were not Rothschild agents as has so often been suggested, but agents of the Church of England.

Chapter 215

BATTLE OF THE CATALONIAN FIELDS

The year was 451 AD. A million men faced each other. The opposing lines stretched into the distance as far as the eye could see, and on and on for miles and miles. Still there was not enough room for them all. In places, companies and regiments stood behind other companies and regiments, a hundred men deep, waiting for a place in the fighting line. In other places they waited five-hundred deep.

This was the heart of France - The Catalonian Fields. The destiny of Christendom lay in the balance. If the Hun invaders won, Europe was theirs - and the Huns always won.

Sitting on their horses beneath horse-tail banners, the Huns and their subject-allies the Ostrogoths, Gepidae, the recently allied Franks and Vandals, and many other Teutonic tribes, awaited orders from their unconquerable leader - Attila.

Catalonian Fields

Atilla, his Huns and allies were stopped by the allied Visigoth and Roman armies. A million men fought and perhaps half died on this one day. In places men fought on piles of bodies 30 feet high.

Opposite, beneath their eagles and behind locked shields, the Roman infantry awaited the commands of their leader, Aëtius. Today, when facing the Hunnic cavalry, they would have cavalry themselves, the absence of which had earlier severely curtailed their warfare against the illusive Hun. A treaty with their long -time enemies, the Visigoths, commanded by their bold leader Theodoric, brought these formidable warriors to the field and provided the Romans with a mobile guard for their vulnerable flanks. The long lines of these mounted Gothic northmen waited, the pennants on their upraised long-lances fluttered in the breeze.

Both armies inched closer and closer together as newly-arriving units of the Hunnic army jostled and crowded for places in the front line - contingents that never seemed to stop arriving. Men were crowded shoulder to shoulder, front to back. The quick flashing maneuvers of the Hunnic cavalry were unthinkable in this crush of humanity - there was no room for their famed lightning maneuvers.

The Huns

The Huns themselves were described as having a yellowish skin, long arms, large chests, and narrow, slanting eyes. Many of their warriors had skulls deformed in childhood by a wooden board fastened tightly to their heads.[1] Other Huns were European types that could only be distinguished by their clothing and weapons. They were not European, however, their ancestry usually contained Hunnic ancestors.

Their arms consisted of bow, lance, lariat, sword and whip. There were three types of arrows - arrows for long, medium, and short ranges. The short-range arrows were the heavy armor piercing type. The traditional Hunnic tactic against an enemy was to shoot arrows at him until he fell into disarray, or was fretted into an ill-advised charge. Once his solid lines were broken, with small groups lured away from the protection of their fellows, the Huns quickly closed on them. Mounted foes were lassoed and pulled from their horses, or his horse was made to fall by locking his horse's legs together with a Hunnic whip. When the main body of an enemy was thoroughly demoralized and disorganized, the Huns charged with lance and sword to administer the coup-de-gras. The Hun style of combat appeared to be a wide open melee - but was in fact carefully thought-out and disciplined.

Hunnic chariots were like the chariots of other nations. They had vanquished their enemies on scores of battlefields. Javelin throwers, standing next to drivers, used the wild 30-mile-an-hour sling-shot chariot charge to heave javelins long distances into a massed enemy. The chariots then quickly circled back and repeated the performance. The enemy, without the advantage of the 30-mile-an-hour javelin boost, had to patiently endure the attack without being able to reply. At best, they could try to to hit these rapidly moving armored targets with bow and arrow - which was like trying to hit an American Indian on horseback. Today, there were no traditional chariot maneuvers. There was no room. The sky grew black with arrows loosed ten thousand at a time, one after another, for almost ten minutes, until each Hunnic archer had fired off his supply of 60 arrows. Then the chariots were ordered forward. Wheel to wheel, with no room for maneuver, they dashed straight at the Roman lines - closer and closer. Unable to maneuver left or right, they careened wildly until the horses impaled themselves on the spears the Romans had implanted in the ground in front of their lines as protection from such attacks. Following in the chariots' wake, the Hunnic cavalry thundered down on the Romans - thousands upon thousands of horses and men - to pile up on the wreckage of the chariots.

Down went horses and men. Stumbling to their feet, the smaller Hunnic warriors, clad in leather armor, wielding spears and stone axes, now without their quick little horses to take them out of danger, or shields to protect them from sword cuts, climbed over piles of their own horses and dead to get at the Romans.

The Romans

The Roman soldiers were Roman in name only. They were Germans recruited into the Roman service and trained to fight as Roman infantry. Shoulder to shoulder - rectangular shields held at eye level - short swords darting out at the faces of the shield-less attackers, they fought in lines three deep. The front line fought only five minutes before being replaced by the second line, which was replaced five minutes later by the third line.[2] The Huns, unable to fight their traditional battle of maneuver, or being able to retreat because of the press of bodies, were forced to fight the Roman infantry in the type of battle the Roman legions were trained to fight best - in an infantry line that rotated ever-fresh fighters to the front. The individual Huns fought until exhaustion prevented them from raising their arms, and then they were cut down to be instantly replaced by another Hun, who suffered the same fate a few minutes later.

The Visigoths & Ostrogoths

Visigoths were faced by the Ostrogoths. The Visigoths were allied to the Romans - their enemy for the last 70 years. On the other side the Ostrogoths were allied to the Huns. The Goths, both Visigoth and Ostrogoth were East Germans - the same people as the West Germans who served in the Roman-Germanic army.

The newly-developed Visigothic cavalry was the ancestor of Western chivalry. Events had forced them to develop their own style of armor, armament, and tactics that became the standard of Western Chivalry. They were protected with steel helmet, leather armor reinforced with steel plates, and shields. They were mounted and armed with long-handled throwing axes, long steel- bladed swords, and long lances. Physically larger than the Hun, they achieved their best results when they charged boot-to-boot en masse against an enemy which had gotten into a position where they could not quickly retreat. Such a charge created rubble and consternation in its wake. As quickly as they had charged, they turned and executed quick retreats to safety behind islands of their own heavily-armed infantry whose rear ranks doubled as archers - archers who gave as good as they took. There, they were safe from entangling lariats and endless flights of armor- piercing Hunnic arrows.

Their cousins in the service of the Huns, the Ostrogoths, were armed in Hunnic style - light leather armor and helmet, lance, curved sword, lariat, and whip.

The Battle

Neither army retreated. What followed was described by the Gothic historian Jodanes simply as "ruthless, manifold, immense, obstinate."[3] The opponents stood toe-to-toe all day long. There was no retreat. The piles of slain grew - five, ten, twenty deep in places. The armies struggled back and forth on hills of human bodies - at the bottom were the horses, chariots, and riders of the first attack. These had disappeared from sight - covered with the bodies of the slain. When the sun set Attila had lost 300,000 men of the horde.[4] Other estimates of the number of dead start at 162,000. Attila had lost the first and only battle of his career. It was a decisive loss. The Goths lost their king, Theodoric, but the West hung on to the victory. The next day Attila took the remnant of his army across the Rhine to his base in Pannonia - but it wasn't over.

Attila's End

Attila's battle losses in France were heavy. Withdrawing across the Rhine River, he returned to his Pannonian home. In the spring of 452, he sallied forth to sack Italy. Famine and epidemic forced him to halt after plundering Po Valley cities. It was then he received Pope Leo I, who had been sent as an emissary of the Roman Emperor. Following his own maxim of never revealing secret negotiations with the enemy, Attila never revealed the agreement he reached with Leo I. However, he shortly returned across the Alps.

In 453, he took Ildico, the daughter of a Germanic chief whom he had executed for revolting against Hunnic rule, for a wife. Attila indulged himself in wives. He had 300.

The next morning he was found dead in a pool of blood. The story the Huns passed about was that he had burst a blood vessel. The rumor persisted that Ildico, to revenge her shame of being taken by a stranger, killed him.[5] 4 Leadership Secrets of Attila The Hun, p. 73, Wess Roberts, Peregrine Pub. Co., Rohnert Park, CA 94928, 1985.

To allow the world to believe that Attila had been killed by a woman was something that the Huns could not allow - which may account for the burst blood vessel story. History does not tell us what was the subsequent fate of Ildico. It does say that she may have accomplished what the combined armies of the West could not.

When word was received that Attila was dead, the coalition of Germanic tribes subject to the Huns revolted. After a succession of battles, they defeated the Huns in Pannonia at a major battle at the Nedao River in which 30,000 Huns were slain, including Attila's oldest son.

While the German tribes revolted against Hunnic overlords, others took service in Roman armies. The Ostrogoths left and took service with the Eastern Roman Empire, thereby depriving the Huns of their long-term services and reducing them to just another despised warring tribe of outlaw strangers.

Germans now openly speak of the 1 million Germans starved to death by the Americans after WWII was over. ENGLAND depends on its fishing fleet and has always kept its coastal waters to itself. The EC was asked to rule on a request by the Spanish fleet to use that area. The EC ruled that there is no such thing as English waters. The Spanish fishing fleet is the world's largest and has fished out the Mediterranean. English waters won't support two fishing fleets. SCOTLAND nearly kicked the traces, as you no doubt heard. A question of time. In Munich, GERMANY, 10,000 natives can find no place to live. The government has taken all available rental property for immigrants. Continuation of the Oktoberfest, held in Munich for the past 150 years, is in doubt. The 200-acre ground is occupied by hundreds of immigrants. In FRANCE, immigration and racial integration are becoming stubborn public issues. Media attacks don't work any more. An intelligence chap here reports that American prep school Jews send their sons to WISCONSIN camps to be trained in handling mortars, grenades and automatic weapons. What have you heard?" O. D. - Paris

ED: Rabbi Meir Kahane in his book The Jewish Defense League, stated that there had been a training camp in New York. This is the first I've heard about camps in Wisconsin.

NAZI PARTY & LAND: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I've noted from your writings that you have reservations about the Hitler party of Germany. Why? I've read their platform and it beats both the American Democratic and Republican platforms. Germany was also first out of the 1930s depression. Their roads, ships, and planes were the best in the world." O. K. - Arkansas.

ED: The party of Adolph Hitler criticized the Jewish banking monopoly but did little to break it up because it was defended by the world media and by Christian evangelicals who profited from being boosted by the media.

Neither did he address the LAND monopoly of the Catholic Church nor the land monopoly of the German Protestant nobility protected by the Lutheran Church. To this day this monopoly ties up giant tracts of German land promised by God to his people. THAT is the key question - and we are talking about most of the land area of Germany. The question of who will own the land has caused Europe almost 1,000 years of wars and millions of dead. The strife won't go away until it is resolved. How can the land be divided as ordered by God if it is tied up in monopolies organizations who give lip service but refuse to obey the Word which is God. Religious politicians continue to stir the pot hoping to get Church land back.[6]

It wasn't an accident that Protestant East Germany was given over to the tender mercies of the Soviet Slavs after WWII - a la "St. Bartholomew's Day" and Catholic W. Germany wasn't. It wasn't an accident that the communists confiscated the protestant estates that they had earlier taken from the Catholic Church, who had first taken them from the people. It isn't an accident that the present Catholic Pope is a Polish Slav able to make deals with Polish Catholic politicians. It isn't an accident that there is a truce of long

6 LAND DIVIDED: *"The land shall be divided for an inheritance ... To many thou shalt give the more ... to few thou shalt give the less ... the land shall be divided by lot: according to ... their fathers they shall inherit." Num 26:53-55. "The land shall not be sold for ever: for the land is mine." standing between the Catholic Church and communism.

Today, the German Protestant princes fight to retrieve land their ancestors confiscated from the Roman Catholic Church during the Reformation. The Catholic Church got this land from the people in exchange for praying land owners out of "purgatory". The new Polish state confiscated the German Protestant land and holds it in escrow for concessions from the Catholic Church. The Catholic Church has made some sort of deal with them to get partial or entire possession of the land they consider theirs.

When the smoke clears, the only ones who will be shafted once again will be the people - regardless of religion - whose land it is. The Shepherd says the monopoly of these religious and political leaders is wrong. The land is to be divided among God's people and never ever to be sold.

VIGILANTES IN ENGLAND: "Dear Richard: Just finished reading your excellent book Vigilantes of Christendom.[7] I must say you gave me a history lesson that I never learned in school. I'm beginning to see things as they are. Every once in a while a book makes you tingle and Vigilantes is such a book, even though it says nothing the Bible doesn't say. The foreigners pouring into Britain are making things difficult. I see incidences of people beginning to defend themselves against outrages protected by the government." M. J. - London, England

HOSKINS BOOKS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: It's perfectly clear! The media came down on your book Vigilantes Of Christendom because it exposed its complicity in starting wars and promoting genocide. U.S. ARMY IN GERMANY: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: The American army appears to be doing everything possible to make the Germans dislike them. The Soviet menace has disappeared, but the American army holds maneuvers including tanks and heavy weapons which go crashing through fields and forests, up village streets, and they do it without informing the Germans or asking their permission. Jet planes fly low at high speed over villages, stampeding livestock and smashing windows and dishes. The Americans are acting as if this were 1945 and they were the newly-arrived conquerors.

"Even the American-selected German politicians and judges have started being polite to the German people, something they have not done since 1945. They must wonder what will happen to them when the American army goes home and will no longer be there to protect them." A. M. - Germany

L.A. RIOTS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: You haven't given an explanation for the L.A. riots." R. M. - California

ED: "There's profit in dissension." Guaranteed loans are being made to rebuild a billion dollars worth of property that the bank-controlled media[8] incited the Blacks to burn down the city. While Blacks and Whites hassle each other they don't have time to sympathize with the thousands being daily foreclosed and evicted by usury contracts. Then too, in times of chaos - the organized few can control an unorganized many. Witness the wolf packs' takeover of Russia.

WHITE HORSE: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: The scriptures say: "And I saw heaven opened, and beheld a white horse; and he that sat upon him was called Faithful and True, and in righteousness he doth judge and make war." Rev 19;11. The symbol of the Saxon is the white horse. It this the meaning?" R. K. - Virginia

ED: That is my belief. The traditional symbol of the Saxon has always been the white horse. Pennsylvania and German barns, sails on Dutch boats, and Danish t-shirts, bear the white horse. The scriptures continue: *"And the armies which were in heaven followed him upon white horses, clothed in fine linen, white and clean, And out of his mouth goeth a sharp sword, and with it he should smite the nations." "MAN": "Dear Mr. Hoskins: In Genesis 1:27 'God created man in his own image ... male and female created he them.' In Chapter 2: 7 "God formed man of the dust of the ground ... and he took one of his ribs ... and made he a woman." Are these two separate distinct creations of 'man'?" G. M. - Illinois

ED: The book of Jasher is quoted in Samuel. The rest of the book was left out because of space. I believe the 1st and 2nd chapters of Genesis are different books, now treated as chapters of one book. Both tell the same story, but from different sources. The reader is supposed to go to originals for details - if he can find them. Whether Eve was made at the same time as Adam or from his rib is unimportant when compared to the fact that God (The Word) created man (Adam- he who blushes red) in his (the Word's - the laws, statutes, & judgments) image. Now, THAT's important! "Ribs", "Adam", and dust are just detail when compared with the message - which is always and forever - the "Word!"

Five hundred counter-demonstrators made the Robb effort look puny. The News, a typical media organ, found no comparison in this with the LA King affair.

This is about the umpteenth time a Tom Robb debacle has helped the opposition and the trillionth time the media has used such antics to justify and incite increased wolf attacks on the sheep. The 1868 KKK knew better and would have had something to say to the likes of Robb.

KISSINGER'S PLANS FOR GERMANY: Henry Kissinger recently stated: "One of the greatest challenges could result from the 'new definition of Germany's role'. The US could be forced, with devastating consequences, to step in and re-establish equilibrium. Germany has become so strong that the existing European institutions cannot manage by themselves to guarantee a balance between Germany and her partners. It would be in no one's interest if Germany and Russia should see each other as the main allies. If both powers should draw too close to each other the danger of hegemony, or supremacy, arises." Kissinger continued: "Without US involvement, Great Britain and France would not be in a position to guarantee the political equilibrium in Europe. Without U.S. influence in Europe, Germany would have 'no anchor to counteract nationalistic temptations". When faced with a choice of a Western partner, "Russia would probably opt for Germany than for France. Therefore, it would be vital that France, via the EC, retain her veto power over German politics and that NATO with the US as the chief power, remain strong."

RUBY RIDGE MURDERS PART I

Marshals Ambush Mountain Family

You will find the following story hard to believe. The final acts have still to be played. For the past week I have been speaking at a church conference which had attendees from the county in Idaho where the shooting occurred. Each day, church members would report to me news from family members living nearby. These reports were almost the only news available for several days because of the almost complete news blackout. Rumors were rife. They still are. Truth is there, too - but it is difficult to find in the establishment announcements. Since people have been left alive, "damage control" press releases are now beginning to appear.

Press Release

"It's a white Rodney King case," said Red Beckman, two-time Montana gubernatorial candidate, referring to the murder of the thirteen-year-old Weaver boy in north Idaho by federal marshals.

"We demand that the child killers be arrested - all of them - and held for murder. Whites are entitled to the same rights and considerations as Blacks in this nation. If this were a Black child that had been murdered, the federal marshals would already be in jail. We demand a federal grand jury investigation by an independent body. As it appears, Mr. Weaver was a victim of a federal set-up. The justice department's hands have been tainted in this matter." concluded Mr. Beckman.

Aug 31, 1992, 10 a.m. Monday: A week of confusing, contradictory, and shocking events. A phone call to Colorado this morning gives this latest scenario as the most probable events of the shootings on the Weaver mountain. It is information which supposedly came from Col. Bo Gritz' talk with Weaver yesterday in Gritz' effort to save Weaver's life and the lives of the remaining members of his family. Weaver and Gritz served together in Special Forces in Vietnam.

The Latest Story

The Weavers were in their cabin - Randy 44, the mother - Vicki 43, her 9- month-old baby, a daughter 16, a son Samuel 13, a daughter 10, and a visitor named Harris 24, who had stayed after having brought food.

After 18 months living on the mountain there was an ongoing shortage of food. Hunting provided much of what there was. The dog began to bark. Weaver 44, Harris 24, and the boy Sam 13, grabbed their hunting rifles thinking that the dog had started up a deer.

Sammy rushed out first and was first to run into an armed stranger sneaking up to the house in camouflage dress. The stranger shot the dog. Anyone who will shoot a dog will shoot a man. The culprit was a federal marshal destroying private property while trespassing on private property.[1] The boy shot at the stranger. Weaver, hearing the shooting, fired his shotgun as an alarm and called for everyone to run to the cabin.

The boy Sammy turned, and on his father's own property was shot in the back and killed as he ran to shelter. Harris shot the killer.

Weaver and Harris crawled out in the dark and took the boy's body to an outbuilding where they washed and wrapped it to prepare it for burial.

Unknown to them, the assailants had not gone away. They had crept even closer to the cabin. When Weaver and Harris went out to get Sammy's body to bury it, the marshals tried to kill them. Weaver was shot in the arm. The mother, having lost her son, came to the door with her baby in her arms to see the cause of the disturbance. A government sniper aimed carefully and neatly shot her between the eyes. It was a good shot. Fragments from the exploding bullet emerging from the back of her skull seriously wounded Harris.

Harris surrendered last night. His wounds were festering. He gave himself up on guarantee from Col. Bo Gritz that the marshals wouldn't kill him. Randy Weaver won't come out of the cabin. He does not trust the word of the marshals.

The cabin is surrounded by 800 marshals, two tanks, numerous armored personnel carriers, and helicopter gun-ships fly by constantly. Randy, at this writing, is in the cabin with his three daughters aged 16, 10, and 9 mos. The body of their mother is with them. In an outbuilding lies the body of Sammy, aged 13.

1 "If he ... hath spoiled by violence (mugging, armed robbery) ... he shall surely die, his blood shall be upon him." Eze 18:10-13.

What's Going On

I've written this article five times. When I think it's finished - another story emerges. It is the result of the establishment- imposed news blackout. No one was allowed up the road to find out the truth. Armed guards stopped you. The FBI spokesman walked down the road once a day this past week to read a prepared statement, and then turned and walked back the way he came. He seldom said anything believable. The proof is that there are all sorts of local protesters with signs saying things like "Weaver today - you tomorrow!"

The background story heard most often is that the FBI wanted Weaver to become an informer for them. He refused. An "acquaintance", actually an FBI informant posing as a friend, dropped by with a couple of shotguns. Weaver inspected them and handed them back. The informant took them to the FBI who dusted them and found Weaver's fingerprints.

Even then, it depended on where you measured - the gun (or guns). One way they were (or was) 1/4 inch longer than the other making it legal - the other way made it an illegal shotgun. Illegal shotguns are called "sawed-off shotguns". "Sawed-off shotguns" get you 5 to 10 years in a federal prison. The person receiving such a sentence HAS to act as an informant for the "requesting" agency or he must actually serve the time in jail for the full 10 years, or however long the sentence is. It's an offer difficult to refuse.

A federal warrant was issued charging Weaver with selling an illegal weapon. Weaver bristled. He said he was being framed. He ignored it.

If the FBI wanted Weaver, they could have gotten him any Sunday when he drove down to church. Everyone knew that. The story I was told was this: One day Weaver was driving down the rocky winding road from his cabin on the mountain when he saw a pregnant woman standing by a disabled car. It had its hood up. He stopped to help, and men in hiding rushed out, caught, handcuffed, and dragged him before a federal judge. The judge released him on a $5,000 bond.

He went back up on his mountain to his family and refused to come down again because he didn't want to inform on his friends or to go to jail for 5 or 10 years either. He naively demanded an apology from the feds. His friends in the neighborhood sympathized and took him supplies so that he wouldn't have to come down more than necessary. They knew him because he had run for sheriff and was almost elected on a ticket of enforcing only those laws the people wanted to be enforced.

Media Conditioning

For the past 18 months the media has dropped a squib in the newspapers weekly about the man in the cabin in Idaho who is up there defying the government. The American public has been kept aware that he is there.

The media has also reviled him. He has constantly been described as "a potentially dangerous ex-special forces anti-government white supremacist, living on a mountain top in northern Idaho, defying the government of the United States."

Having made the point, the media now addresses him as "Supremacist" Weaver - instead of the usual "Mister" Weaver, or Randy Weaver.[2]

Speculation Is Rife

The establishment says that seven marshals were flown in to merely "recon" the area. That's nonsense. They meant to "get" Weaver. To recon an area you send a couple of scouts. Seven men have tremendous firepower. It is an assault team.

The media refuse to discuss the parallel between the Rodney King case and the Randy Weaver case. The inference that must be drawn is that if Randy Weaver were Black the marshals would be in jail now charged with murder, but since he is White - he doesn't count.

Stories are told of people hearing gunfire as Weaver well-wishers run into patrols of marshals in the mountains. No one I have called has confirmed this.

There are stories of helicopters dumping a thin gaseous substance on the cabin that was blown away by the wind before it reached the cabin. This story was followed by another of people being removed from their homes in a five-mile radius. When they returned they found their cats and dogs dead. Strange as it seems - this story will not die. I have heard it half a dozen times.

There is another interesting story. It is reported that a couple of enterprising newsmen climbed a tree on a nearby

2 If "mister" is to be superseded by "supcmacist" as a title of address, the question arises - does this apply only to whites, or does it apply to others also? What docs one call a black panther or a Zionist? or a newspaper creature? Are they "mister" or are they referred to as "supremacist"? or is it to become an optional greeting?

hill and kept the cabin under surveillance with telescopic lens. They were discovered at the same time a helicopter sprayed kerosene on the cabin. Nothing happened. The newsmen were threatened and told to leave. That's the story, but they are supposed to have the incident on video. Make of it what you will.

Another story says that Belgian paratroops training in a nearby state have been put on standby in case they are needed - although what they are doing with the 800 marshals who are presently at the site right now I can't imagine.

Still another story says that the feds have raided a "survivalist" group in Georgia and confiscated their guns.

School opening is being delayed in the nearby towns. They have been commandeered to handle the hundreds of arriving marshals.

Story Leaks Out

Someone called and told me that Peter Jennings in his nationwide broadcast said that it looked like Weaver was set up. Someone else called to say that Paul Harvey is reported to have offered to pay all Weaver's legal expenses if he will come out of his cabin and turn himself over to the federal authorities.

Why?

The question that defies an answer is WHY? Weaver was charged with a misdemeanor. You are not supposed to kill someone because of a misdemeanor. This Weaver double-murder is messy. Especially in an election year. It's going to be hard to explain. There are live witnesses. Otherwise it appears to be a repeat of the farmer Arthur Kirk incident. Kirk was shot down in his own doorway. Later witnesses noted toe dragmarks showing that his body had then been dragged into the yard where it was found in a pool of blood. A dead man's heart stops - he doesn't bleed much. Kirk bled a lot - he had been left to bleed to death - his heart slowly pumping blood onto the ground. The story the establishment gave the press was that he had charged out the door firing his weapon, but the empty shells were found at the left rear of the body. Ask a marksman how that can be.

Gordon Kahl's case was similar. He was shot in the back of the head. The story the establishment told in his case was that he and the dead sheriff had a face-to-face shoot-out. It's hard to get a bullet in the back of the head in a face-to-face shoot-out.

The Election Year Explanation

One cynic speculated that D.C. kept the "Weaver card" on ice for 18 months to try to get the Black vote - just before election. Instead of a nice quick vote-getting story of a strong government squashing a "white, anti-government racist", the "Weaver card" fouled up. This particular subject won't die. The case has been turned into a White Rodney King Case and the Bush administration really doesn't want a Black Rodney King Case and a White Rodney King Case - both at the same time this close to election. This is why the story was blacked out over most of the nation.

Politics - As Usual

Rodney King, a Black, was beaten and received the support and backing of TV, radio, and newspapers day and night from that time on. The media, Bush and Clinton, and the nation's church leaders who howled for the police hides, have nothing to say so far when the victim is White.

Monday, Aug. 31, 1992: The TV just announced that "Supremacist" Weaver has just surrendered. When asked who this Col. Bo Gritz is, the one who served with Weaver in Vietnam - instead of saying that he is America's most decorated soldier the media said that he was someone connected with the KKK.

Point of Law

1. The marshals responsible for trespass with intent to kill or kidnap with force, and the actual murderers themselves, must be brought to justice:

> "If he ... spoiled by violence (mugging, armed robbery) ... he shall surely die, his blood shall be upon him." Eze 18:10-13.

> "Ye shall take no satisfaction (substitute) for the life of a murderer, which is guilty of death: but he shall surely be put to death." Num 35:31

An argument that it is unknown who fired the fatal shots won't hold up either. Being at the scene and not firing a weapon is no longer a defense to the establishment. Gordon Kahl's son and his friend were at the scene when Kahl was ambushed and was forced to kill two marshals when they opened fire on him. The federals gave his son and his friend 135 years in prison when they had not drawn or fired a weapon. They cannot do less to the responsible marshals - including those who did not fire their weapons - assuming there were any who didn't.

2. Those responsible for framing Randy Weaver and those responsible for sending the marshals up on that mountain must be lawfully dealt with:

> "If a false witness rise up ... Then shall ye do unto him, as he had thought to have done unto his brother." Deu 19:16-19

Conclusion

The Word - IS GOD, John 1:1, John 1:14: Word violation is "anti-God" - an infidel act. The Word has been broken several times in the Weaver case. Call your representative in Congress and demand that justice be served.

Both "Bomber" Bush and "Sleeze" Clinton appear to be Black supremacists - they demand justice for Rodney King just because he is Black but are strangely silent in the case of the murders of the White Weaver mother and child.

The pronouncements of Bush and Clinton can make this a "White Rodney King Case," or their silence can tell Whites that they are second class citizens deserving no respect - from them.

As tragic as it is, the lost lives of the mother and child of the Weaver family will be not be wasted if America will repent.

The choice is clear. God's justice will be administered, or He God will administer it - to all concerned, including onlookers. Justice is everybody's business.

O.K., Mr. President. The ball is in your court. What about Vicki and Sammy? What are you going to do about it?

KIDNAPING & PRISONS

Stonewall Jackson executed a quick march to Harpers Ferry to which he lay siege and took many thousands of Union soldiers prisoner. Tables were immediately set up and Union prisoners filed by giving their names, regiments, and their word of honor not to fight again unless properly exchanged. This done, they were free to go home.

The Confederate captors on their way north and former Union captives on their way home marched together until the Confederate army turned off on the road leading to Sharpsburg, whereupon they waved "good-by" to their enemies and parted ways. That's the way it was done.

Col. John Singleton Mosby, (Mosby's Rangers), and Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest, among others, captured thousands of union prisoners, prisoners who were immediately paroled. Parole was standard practice in the Confederate as well as the Union army. Releasing prisoners on their word of honor was an accepted part of warfare to avoid violating the charge of "kidnaping".[3]

> "He that stealeth a man, and selleth him, or if he be found in his hand, he shall surely be put to death." Ex 21:16

> "If a man ... (steal) any ... of the children of Israel, and maketh merchandise of him, or selleth him, then that thief shall die." Deut 24:7

Thousands of prisoners captured during the early part of the War Between the States were released on parole. President Abraham Lincoln instituted slavery by prohibiting the release of prisoners.

The hardships of prison life cannot be described, even when conditions are good. When conditions are bad prison life is indescribable. One must experience them first hand. Union officers in Richmond were being kept prisoner because of the Lincoln policy. Their life became increasingly difficult. They asked their Confederate captors to release them so that they might go and see President Lincoln and try to persuade him to change his mind. They gave their word to return to prison if their meeting with the president was unsuccessful.

3 Parole does not excuse breaking the law against fighting kinsman "Ye shall not ... fight against your brethren the children of Israel." I Kings 12:24 "Thou shalt not avenge, nor bear any grudge against the children of thy people." Lev 19:18. One counseling war against kinsmen, unless specifically ordered by the WORD, is the one who is the enemy. The law against kidnaping is clear:

They were released and went to Washington where they saw President Lincoln. Lincoln adamantly refused to parole prisoners. Rebuffed, the Union prisoners lived up to their word and returned to Richmond to endure the living hell of prison life.

More than 50,000 men died in PW camps, North and South, as a result. Their deaths resulted from their slavery. Lincoln instituted the capital offense of kidnaping.

Kidnaping Prohibition

The scripture states that Israel was not to make slaves of Israelites. Josephus was asked about the treatment of captives taken from Syrian forces who were Israelites drafted into the Syrian army. Josephus gave historical examples and told them to release the Israelites they held prisoner and give them food and raiment for their journey home.

> "Obed ... complained that they ... make captives out of their kinsmen ... to let them go home without doing them any harm ... So the ... men took the captives and let them go, and took care of them, and gave them provisions, and sent them away to their own country, without doing them any harm." Antiq. 9:7:2.

During the Boer War in S. Africa at the turn of the century the British took the wives and children of the Boer fighters and put them in concentration camps where they died like flies. The British were instituting the system of slavery. Who was to blame? It was Queen Victoria - the head of the Anglican Church - who was responsible. Every church dignitary, every church official who did not speak out against that atrocity was also responsible for the deaths of every one of those women and children. It was the CHURCH who was responsible for not ending it. It was the CHURCH who was responsible for standing by and letting this thing happen. The "Christian" churches of the world didn't even PROTEST!

In my opinion - this is the great "Whore" spoken of in scripture. It is the churches. It is the Catholic and Protestant Churches who are equally guilty. People blame the Jews for everything that happens, but it was the Christian Churches who were the false witnesses. It was the churches.

A short time ago the Soviets had Gulags all over the Soviet Union. They were full of sheep who died like flies. Millions died there. 35 million are supposed to have died. The country that has more prisoners per capita than any other country in the world today is none other than the United States. The law states that there are not to be slaves among Israelites. There are two punishments set forth in the scriptures. Restitution - and if restitution cannot be made - such as in the case of murder, rape, or kidnaping - the offender is to die.

> "Let death be the punishment for stealing a man; but he that hath purloined gold or silver, let him pay double. If anyone kill a man that is stealing something out of his house, let him be esteemed guiltless, although the man were only breaking in at the wall. Let him that hath stolen cattle pay fourfold ... excepting the case of an ox, for which let the thief pay five fold. Let him that is so poor that he cannot pay ... be his servant to whom he was adjudged to pay it." Antiquities 4:8:27

They are the two punishments, and they are the only two. There is no place for a jail other than a holding tank to dry out the drunk or to hold for evidence.

Today's slavery in America is certain to bring down the curse of God. God said that he would bring down many curses including the plague and the sword. God is faithful - his Word is true. He will.

UNFILTERED NEWS

FLORIDA LAW: George Loeb and Harold Mansfield had a car accident. Mansfield (Black) is said to have come after Loeb (White) with a brick. Loeb shot Mansfield. Loeb, described by the media as a "White supremacist," was given life imprisonment. The media did not say whether or not Mansfield was a Black supremacist. (Story in The News, 8-13-92, A2.

ED: The question arises whether or not Loeb was given a life sentence simply because he was not "politically correct". Florida has a very bad record in regard to abusing the civil rights of its citizens. If you do not "think" the way you should - you are abused.

MOSCOW RACE RIOTS: The shooting of Gideon Chimusoro touched off a riot by Blacks in Moscow. Students smashed windows, overturned cars and hurled firebombs, according to witnesses. The riot was started when Chimusoro kicked a dog and was reprimanded. It is unknown from the article whether or not the Russian who shot Chimusoro was also a White supremacist, but he has been charged with abuse of authority in spite of Moscow's chief prosecutor's protest that the policeman was only doing his job. (Story on wire reports 8-13-92.

ED: It is unfortunate how ignorant people all over the world insist on discriminating against Blacks. Really, someone should speak to the authorities in Moscow, Johannesburg, London, New York, Los Angeles, Atlanta, etc., etc., etc. The human race still has so much to learn about "love" and "tolerance".

LETHAL INJECTION DEVICES: Fred Leuchter, criticized by the media since publishing the results of his investigation of the Auschwitz "gas chambers" that proved that the Auchwitz gas chambers contained no evidence of homocidal gas, is now being criticized by the media for trying to market a lethal injection device in the U.S. It sounds really wicked the way the media says it, "trying to market a lethal injection device", but that's what Fred Leuchter does - he makes electric chairs and lethal injection devices. He is considered THE authority in the U.S. No one else builds electric chairs, and few make injection devices. But, everyone knows how the media is.

AUSTRALIA CIVIL RIGHTS: "'Human Rights Commissioner Brian Burdekin predicts an avalanche of anti-discrimination complaints in Queensland following new legislation which came into effect there last night. ...

Queensland's new Anti- Discrimination Act bans discrimination on the grounds of sex, marital status, pregnancy, race, parental status, breastfeeding babies, lawful sexual activity (including sodomy and prostitution), age, disability, religion, political beliefs or trade union-activity. ... the tribunal has the power to issue orders and ensure they are enforced by the courts.' RUBY RIDGE MURDERS
Part II

Opening Note

The "White Rodney King Case" flashed across the sky briefly, and then plunged into the blackout of the media ocean. Many glimpsed its two-second passage. The Weaver killings shone longest in nearby Spokane, where hundreds of her citizens had journeyed to stand in picket lines in nearby Idaho. They were available to tell the true story of what really happened. Since the cat was already out of the bag there, the coverage was extensive - compared to other places, and extended into entire newspaper sections and included colored pictures, on the scene interviews. It was informative and appeared to be mostly truthful.

Except for this area, the news coverage has consisted of dis- information, misleading, sketchy, limited, or back-page stories. The media has informed everyone in the nation how White LA cops beat Black Rodney King. Most of these people still haven't been told that federal marshals ambushed and killed a White mother and her 14 year old child, and at this writing no charges have been placed against them.

The killers, unlike the LA police, were not arrested and held for investigation. The murder scene was roped off and reporters and photographs forbidden. Whatever dark deeds that were to be done on that mountain were to be kept secret.

When protesters blew their cover, the killer team were quickly flown out of state before their pictures could be taken or questions asked, and then they were released to mingle among the public. Some suspect that this hit team may have killed others in like manner in the past. If they have, the public is entitled to know that the government maintains such a group on the public payroll. It is alleged that the bodies of the slain were cremated to avoid 2nd opinions, and that the only report that will be produced will be paid for by the same ones who paid the salaries of the ones accused of killing the victims.

Quick Recap[1]

The dogs picked up a scent and ran out the house. It had happened on the mountain many times before. Randy Weaver 44, his son Sammy 14, and Kevin Harris 24, grabbed their rifles and followed. A chance to kill a deer was split second decision - something that had to done right then. Randy ran down the road, and Sammy and Kevin ran through the woods to try to catch the quarry in a crossfire. The dogs were not chasing deer, they had caught the scent of men - armed intruders on the mountain.

1 Jack McLamb, former law officer and editor of "Aid and Abet", Law Enforcement newsletter, accompanied Bo Gritz, candidate for president, to the top of the Weaver mountain. McLamb was present and heard Randy Weaver's side of the story. Pastor Pete Peters' tape of his interview with McLamb is available from Scriptures For America, P.O. Box 766, LaPorte, CO 80535. His report of conditions there agrees in most part with the information carried in last month's HR #216.

They were a hand-picked strike team, led by a Lt. Colonel, specially trained to take out important targets. Not trusting local marshals, this special group had been secretly flown to Idaho from the east coast and were dressed in camouflage to conceal their presence. Any establishment operation led by a Lt. Colonel is a mission of first importance. There were six, not seven as reported by HR. Kevin and Sam ran into this formidable force just as they started killing the Weaver's Golden Lab, "Striker". The dog was Sam's - he was a work dog used to haul water to the cabin in the winter's 10-foot snow drifts.

The presence of intruders on the mountain was a surprise. They had come in stealth - not openly. Their identity was unknown. They were trespassing on private property. They were heavily armed, and they were killing Sam's dog. The newspaper says that they pointed a gun at Sam and Sam shot at them to protect himself. They shot him in the arm. He turned to flee, and they shot him in the back - clearly not the use of minimum force.[2] Sam, age 14, fell dead. Kevin returned fire and either he or Sam killed the Lt. Col. leading the strike force. If this marshal, Degan, had not been killed it is extremely doubtful if anyone would have ever known his name, or about his high rank. The presence of such high establishment brass identifies the Weaver ambush as a priority government operation.

2 "FBI regulations specify that agents can fire only if their lives or those of others are in danger, Tubbs said. "We can't shoot at fleeing felons." The Spokesman- Review, Sept, 4, 1992, Spokane WA. (This might explain the reported cremation of the bodies - no evidence.)

The Weavers stoutly maintain that the initial shots fired defending themselves in the first ambush were the only shots fired by them during the entire time. All the rest of the shooting was done by the federals in their continuing attempt to kill the Weavers.

Sam's body was retrieved, prepared for burial and placed in a nearby outbuilding. Kevin Harris and Randy were ambushed again when they went to the outbuilding where Sam's body lay. A bullet went through Randy's arm emerging from his armpit. They instantly fled to the safety of the cabin. Vicki, Randy's wife, her 9 month old daughter in her arms, held the door open for the men. Randy rushed in, followed by Kevin. While she was standing there presenting a stationary target, a federal sniper coolly shot her between the eyes. She fell dead. The bullet that passed through her head exploded and the fragments seriously wounded Kevin Harris in the arm and punctured his lung.[3]

In the house was Randy - wounded, Kevin - seriously wounded, Sarah 16, her sister 10, and the baby 9 months. The mother's body, Vicki, was covered by a blanket and lay under the table for 9 days. It was all they could do for her.

Bo Gritz and Jack McLamb arrived at the bottom of the mountain and asked to speak to the Weavers. Gene Glenn, the FBI agent in charge would not see them. He refused to see them for 2 1/2 days. He sent word that he was "too busy."

During this entire time neither the marshals nor the FBI had been able to make contact with anyone in the cabin. There are no "negotiations" if one cannot talk. The occupants of the cabin refused to talk. They had a reason. McLamb's interview revealed that they had sent a robot device called a "R2D2" to the cabin. It had a big red television eye and in a claw it carried a telephone. The FBI kept telling Randy to pick up the phone. McLamb said that Paul Harvey also was part of the problem, he too on his broadcasts kept asking Randy to pick up the phone - that if he would come out and pick up the phone that Harvey would pay for his lawyer.

The drawback was that the "R2D2" contained a built-in 12 guage shotgun. Whoever picked up the phone had to trust

3 An inquest by an "independent" agency will have to determine if the bullet was a dum-dum bullet - a type forbidden by the Geneva Convention. An "independent" psychiatric evaluation will have to determine the mental and emotional profile of the agents now reeruited by the FBI - agents who at a 50 foot rock- throwing distance will coolly shoot a woman - one presenting a still target holding a baby in her arms - between the eyes. Does he look like everyone else? Did he have to pass a certain psychiatric evaluation before being hired? Who trained this chap? Should these types be in law enforcement or should they be in prison? Were they reeruited from prisons? Are they permitted to mingle with the public without being identified with signs or bells or something? Are they uneaged just before being used, and after doing their thing, immediately whisked away to be reeaged? Perhaps such information will be presented at his trial.

the people at the other end - the same people who had killed the mother and child - not to kill the one who used the phone. The Weavers chose not to trust them.

At The Road Block

Secrecy reigned on top of the mountain. News was censored. Rumor was rife. Just as it was before the Kirk and Mathews killings, family members were forbidden to try to talk to the one besieged. The daily FBI reports were ignored by growing numbers of protesters gathered at the bottom of the mountain.

The "Bo Gritz For President" News Release[4] of Sep 1, 1992 states that "ATF Agent Ahern stood pointing his H&K MP-5 submachine gun at Col. Gritz's back. Gritz' supporter, Don Stewart of Portland, Oregon, jumped between the gun and Col. Gritz, and told the agent to take his finger off the trigger and point it elsewhere. After briefly turning the weapon away, ATF agent Ahern again pointed the loaded machine gun at Col. Gritz. Col. Gritz walked away."[5]

The same release stated that "Idaho national guardsmen now became unarmed upon demand by the FBI ... as federal authorities became seemingly concerned about guardsman sympathy turning into mutiny."

A disturbing theory has been advanced that the Weaver killings were planned - planned by the same planners who killed a half million Iraqis.

Supporters of this theory note that the Weaver thing has been slowly built up by the media for 18 months. Conservatives have become aware that something was brewing on the Weaver mountain. It is theorized that Weaver and his family were supposed to have been deliberately killed. The news of the killings would cause Weaver supporters to gather. It would then be simple to incite them to riot - giving an opportunity to shoot them down - people the media would call "right-winger", "neo- nazi", "White- supremacists", "terrorists", "racists", etc. In other words, an act of terror was planned to show the country that the new world order had arrived and that there was nothing anyone can do about it. That's why it is claimed that the marshals were whisked away before they could be questioned. That's one theory, anyway.

The FBI who replaced the marshals, smarting under charges that they murdered a mother with a child in her arms, insist that they had the right to kill her. The Spokesman-Review, Friday, Sept 4, 1992, Spokane, WA writes:

"They (the Weavers) fired at the FBI helicopter and that's when the FBI guy was given permission to open fire" at occupants of the cabin. ... As the craft buzzed over the Weaver cabin, sources said, three occupants were spotted near the front door and were believed to have fired shots at the helicopter.

"... Two sources said they believed Vicki Weaver was one of those firing at the helicopter, which apparently wasn't hit. At that point - because lives of FBI agents in the helicopter were in danger - a supervisor gave permission for the sniper to open fire from a vantage point, believed to be about 50 feet from the cabin. The agent, using a .308-caliber sniper rifle with scope, was part of the FBI's elite Hostage Rescue Team which surrounded the cabin. Team's snipers cannot fire without permission from a supervisor, according to those familiar with its operation."[6]

Citizen's Arrest

Eric Lighter of Honolulu, Hawaii and retired Lt. Col. John Salter of Missoula, Montana contacted Gritz and advised him of the technique of "Citizen's Arrest" which has been used with great effect on office holders in Hawaii who were believed to be corrupt. The information was faxed to Gritz, and Gritz was told how to use it. Gritz then invoked warrants for "citizen's arrest" on (1) FBI Director William Sessions, (2) FBI on-site over-site chief Gene Glenn, (3) Idaho Governor Cecil Andrus, and (4) Henry Hudson, D.C. director of the U.S. Marshal's service. Delivery of the arrests are being made to federal grand juries in Idaho, and at least a dozen other states.[7]

Gritz then went to the barricade and attempted to deliver the arrest warrants to the federal officers on guard there. They refused to accept them. He then placed them under a rock and walked away. They had been "served".

The Idaho county attorney pronounced them illegal. However, one half hour after being "served", the FBI swat operation backed off and agent Gene Glenn agreed to meet with Bo Gritz and allow him to talk to Weaver. Evidently there is much more to this "citizens arrest" than first meets the eye. It appears that it may be a weapon that both Convenanters and Constitutionalists may be able to use in the future.

6 The FBI case at the Sedition Trial at Fort Smith was thrown out of court because it was said that the witnesses the FBI presented were "unbelievable".

7 Ibid p. 2

It was from this meeting with Weaver that the public first learned that Vicki had been dead for about a week. When Bo released this information at the bottom of the mountain there was almost a riot at the barricades. The "macho" ATF men had been strutting their stuff, sub-machine guns hung around their necks "communist style", and they had pointed them at people, and had looked them in the eye. They had won no friends with their antics.

The crowd, learning that the feds had killed Vicki, too, now ignored Bo. The protestors were getting nasty and the situation was explosive. Many believed that the feds wouldn't stand aside as the LA police did for the rioting Blacks, but they would kill the Weaver supporters. Bo grabbed a big "skinhead" named Pat and told him to get the other skinheads and maintain order. Pat and his friends went up to the biggest men on the picket line who were standing eye to eye with the feds and told them to stand down "or else"! They did. McLamb said that all he knew about skinheads were the things the papers had said about them, but he said that these skinheads were the most helpful people there, and their actions probably saved a lot of lives.

While Bo was talking to Randy later on the mountain, the talk was evidently being transmitted in some way to the rest of the 400 feds on the hill. The FBI didn't want the Kahl subject discussed, but Weaver chose that subject and so that's what was discussed. McLamb said it was the first time that most of the feds had heard anything about the Kahl killing. It was mentioned that the operation against Weaver and his family was costing 1 million dollars a day. Weaver said that the money should be spent on investigating the Kahl case. This is the thing that seemed to make the biggest impression on the fed besiegers. McLamb said that Randy Weaver was "very very well read". He also described Weaver as "delightful", "knowledgeable", and "highly intelligent".

Kevin Harris, the only witness to the killing of the 14 year old Sam, other than the marshals who killed him, appeared to be dying. He was allowed to come down escorted by McLamb. Kevin, distrusting the FBI, insisted that McLamb go the whole way to the hospital with him. No one in the cabin trusted the feds. A couple of days later the rest of the family came down.

Details

McLamb said that the general feeling was that without the protesters at the bottom of the mountain that the Weaver family might be dead now.

The same Aug 1, 1992 "News Release" stated, "A 20- gallon blue plastic drum was filled from a diesel truck ... and then placed aboard the FBI helicopter. The FBI helicopter then took-off and flew toward the cabin when a news reporter and local separatist scout stepped out from beneath the trees and made sure the pilot saw that he was being photographed. The pilot then circled two times and landed. The film evidence of this event survived ... and is in safe hands. The diesel fuel was to have been poured on the cabin ... and ... set-off to make a fire bomb that would easily consume the cabin and all its occupants... The news reporter who photographed the attempted fire-bombing has been arrested for 'obstruction of justice'."[8]

No list of names and addresses of the out-of-state marshals has been given to the public, as was done in the case of the LA police beating. No list of the federal grand jury, with addresses, who indicted the entire family. This was also done in the case of the LA jury that found the LA police "not guilty". Complaints were heard at the roadblock that there is one standard of justice for Blacks, and another for Whites.

The shootings apparently have a history. One rumor still alive is that Randy Weaver was offered $20,000 if he would attend the Aryan Nations church and inform on them. He agreed and went - twice. Finding that Aryan Nations knew what they were talking about and were not as the FBI had painted them - he refused to cooperate further.

The fact that a Lt. Col. was leading the 6 man strike force might have a bearing on a strange 1985 document that Weaver filed at the local courthouse. In this document Weaver stated that he feared for his life, and that if he were killed it would not be an accident.

Things Learned

America has a "White Rodney King Case" that is being ignored by both the media and Washington. This is a very emotional national issue and it has the potential to sway enough votes to swing the election to the political party that makes use of it. But, it is NOT being used. The Weaver killings are being treated as a non-event. This reaction could only happen if using the case had no political value. It could have no political value if the election had already been decided. This would be an interesting conclusion - since it indicates that the up-coming election is a "media event" only, and has no real value.

A "citizens arrest" procedure made its appearance. It appears to be something feared by public officials and may offer relief from official abuse.

In the future, public protests and picket lines may be the only way proscribed people can be kept alive.

When being led from the cabin, the feds closely questioned the children about possible "booby traps" being left in the cabin. They seemed quite concerned about this.

The skin-heads appear not to be as they have been pictured by the media. They behaved admirably. This may indicate a use for them beyond what is media-taught.

The establishment refuses to define the terms "White supremacist and "racist" that they so freely use to smear anyone not actively working for world racial integration. Their avoidance of the words "Black supremacist", "Yellow supremacist", "Latino supremacist", and "Jewish supremacist" indicates that the terms are to be used exclusively against Whites. This selection of Whites as the "common enemy" indicates that the establishment itself is "anti-White", and now feels so secure with their power that they make no effort to conceal the fact.

This too is interesting.

KILLERS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: The papers here say that Randy Weaver posted a notice at the court house in 1985, which reveals that he expected the FBI to try something like this. The same Feds that he said back in 1985 would try to kill him flew a SWAT team in from another city. They didn't walk in openly like Bo Gritz did. They apparently didn't even try to send information to Weaver by one of the many visitors to the mountain.

This has more of the appearance of a Mafia assassination attempt than an attempt to handle a misdemeanor. Why secretly import a special team armed with sniper rifles from out of state? If things were above-board - there would be no hesitation NOW in revealing their identity. I'll bet that if the feds haven't already changed the names and identities of these killers of women and children we would discover that each of them has a dozen notches cut on his rifle. It would be interesting to put them on a witness stand, with liar detectors, and find out who else they have killed on their little side-trips across America - people who didn't have hundreds of friends to picket and advertise their plight to the rest of the country. It's not all that difficult to tell the difference between a man and a woman, or a child and a man. Hunters are required to distinguish between does and bucks every hunting season. To shoot a boy in the back when he is running for his life and shoot a woman in the face while she is standing still with a baby in her arms is not sporting. Bucks have horns, women have long hair, wear dresses, and often carry babys in their arms. The marshals were hunting out of season; and what they shot indicates that someone is getting paid for each scalp - man, woman or child's - dead or alive. Those guys appear to have gone in to kill and they did. Frankly, the whole thing smells to high heaven." J.C. - Montana

Mr. Hoskins: What, in your opinion are the issues in the Weaver case. Nothing is said about issues in the media." - J. T. - South Carolina

ED: The basic fact is that people trespassed onto a man's property with possible intent to kill the owner, his family, and his animals.

One must look at the "intent". Apologists for the marshals will argue that the slain animal was dangerous and one is justified to kill a dangerous animal to protect his life. One must then ask other questions. Were these marshals "innocently" on another's private property?

It is admitted - they were professional gunmen. They came from afar. They trespassed. They came armed with man-killing weapons. They came in secret, disguised and camouflaged, and with concealed identities - identies which are still concealed.

They killed the dog - they killed the dog's owner - the 14 year old child. If events till now were an accident - it appears that they would have stopped right there and tried to make amends - peacefully. But, they again concealed themselves and lay in ambush once more to attempt to kill the owner and his guest - on his own property. Their weapons gave them this right. They were successful - they shot both. When the mother exposed herself with her baby in arms - they shot and killed her. Survivors were still in the cabin. They continued their efforts to kill them. Unable to kill the alerted quarry, they sent a robot armed with a shotgun - using "negotiations by telephone" as bait. This last attempt to ambush was unsuccessful because the besieged did not believe the beseigers.

Witnesses allege that a helicopter was loaded with a fuel container to burn the cabin occupants alive, and only desisted when their scheme was discovered.

Family members were forcably prevented from speaking to the victims, and reporters were prevented from recording their several ambushes. This prevented video and eye- witness testimony from being used against them at a later date. They only desisted their assault when "citizen's arrest" papers were served, throwing the matter into the public arena of the court.

With the other evidence at hand, it appears that the dog, a family pet, was shot because it was there. The attackers subsequent behavior indicates that they shot at anything that moved. These do not appear to be ordinary law enforcement officers.

I believe the case deserves careful investigation. However, if the above observations are true - a careful investigation is exactly what the establishment will try to prevent.

We have heard from the media - after a fashon. We haven't heard from the shooters. Perhaps they had a legitimate reason for their odd behavior. A public hearing before an impartial jury must be convened to determine this.

WEAVER BABY INDICTED? "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Enclosed is an article that I clipped from the Idaho Statesman, Sep 17, 1992. It states that the Weaver 10 month old daughter has been indicted. "Those whom the gods would destroy they first make mad." Indict a 10 month old baby?!!" P. C. - Colorado

INTEGRATION & GOD'S LAW

The Problem Must Be Faced

"Dear Mr. Hoskins: I am pleased to see someone step forward to tackle the subject of race. I'm in somewhat of a quandary however concerning people that have Indian blood . ...

"Before I begin defending all Indians I should tell you that I'm in agreement with most of what you say about them. My basic disagreement is that you seem to group all of us who have any amount of Indian blood. I'm 1/64 Cherokee & Creek Indian. That means I'm one part Indian and 63 parts white. A percentage that I'm more than satisfied with. I would be careful about excluding some of the best MEN in this country. And believe me we're going to need all the help we can get. Not to mention that American Indians were in fact descendants of Manasseh, one of the tribes of Israel.

"My children are bright and inventive. They are honor students and are almost unbeatable in sports. And get this- I've never murdered any one. I have brown hair and green eyes. So am I in yet?

"Well, here's more. I've spent more time and effort than any one else I know trying to get Joe six-pack off his rear. I read my Bible every day 30 minutes. When I pray I know God listens. He has helped me through some very tough times. When he does the impossible for you - it's no fluke.

"Well, I hope I've shed some light on what it's like to be 1/64th Indian. I hope you'll take the time to answer this letter. I took the time to write it.

"Time and again I have stood up for the White race when others stood back and cowered in their boots. Everyone around my business has been robbed but me. Blacks know not to mess with me. I may go down, but they know I'll take them with me. They can see it in my eyes and they leave me alone.

"Many years ago my grandfather (who was part Cherokee and also a member of the Klan) took part in some payback. A Black raped a White woman. The White people didn't trust the courts to enforce the law so they hanged him. The Blacks swore revenge. About 150 gathered at the train station. My grandfather and others got on trucks and in cars and went to the station. It was a blood bath. The Blacks called for help. Six hundred more came in on the train. Few left. I have a picture to prove it happened. So you can see that my family has stood up for White rights, and the Klan didn't seem to mind my grandfather being a small amount Indian. And we already know he did more for Whites than both of us put together.

"So, there it is. So what have you done besides write books? Yours Truly, B. M. - California "

The Problem - Blacked Out

The historical event mentioned in the letter above is blacked out of history books. I remember hearing stories about it. It happened in the '20s at a time when similar events were taking place in many parts of the country. In fact, they were happening all over the world.

The problem he mentions is real - and ancient. What is to be done with those of mixed ancestry? Accept them? Or don't? Is there a "cut-off" degree of acceptability?

What I say is unemportant. What do the scriptures say?

The Law

Starting with the earliest dates, following is the list of scriptures dealing with the integration of the races:

1857 BC "Thou shalt not take a wife ... of the Canaanites ... but thou shall go ... to my kindred, and take a wife." Gen 24:3,4

Abraham, chosen by God because of his faith, sent away even his own children of mixed ancestry:

"The lips of a strange woman drop as a honeycomb ... but her end is bitter as a two-edged sword. Her feet go down to death ... Remove thy way far from her ... lest strangers be filled with thy wealth and thou mourn at the last, when thy flesh and thy body are consumed." Pr 5:3-11

1800 BC "But unto the sons of the concubines, which Abraham had, Abraham gave gifts, and sent them away from Isaac his son." Gen 25:6

The prohibition became even more strict as years passed:

> 1459 BC "If a man (Heb:adam - "man" - blush red) lie with a beast, he shall surely be put to death: and ye shall slay the beast. And if a woman ... lie down thereto, thou shalt kill the woman and the beast." Leviticus 20:15- 16[1]

The reason for these prohibitions was to preserve God's people, Israel,[2] as a creation that could perform the work that God created them to do. To accomplish this, supporting scriptures continue down through the ages:

> 1450 BC: "So shall we be separated, I and all of Thy people, from all the people that are upon the face of the earth." Ex 33:16

> 1450 BC: "I am the Lord your God, which have separated you from other people." Lev 20:24

If strangers entered the land - or if they lived in the land - there were instructions to handle that:

> 1450 BC: (Thou shall) "drive them out before thee. ... They shall not dwell in thy land, lest they make thee sin against me." Ex 23:28,33

If Israel refused - the scriptures revealed the proscribed punishment:

> 1450 BC "But if ye will not ... do all these commandments; ... I

1 "Beast" wears clothing. Jonah 3:8, "Beast", "cries mightily unto God." Jonah 3:8, "Beast" has hands. Exodus 19:13, "Beast" capable of mixing with man. Jer. 31:27, "Beast" keeps the vineyard. Song of Solomon, Chap 1., Jesus called the Syro-Phoenician woman a "dog." Dogs, swine, beasts - words to describe people who eat and breed indiscriminately. Eastern religions claim their followers are either descended from beasts or will be reincarnated as beasts. Hense - "beast". The name they call themselves.

2 Israel: Heb. - "He will rule as God ... also his posterity." Strong's Concordance.

send wild beasts among you which shall rob you of your children." Lev 26:14-35 (interracial marriage)

1450 BC "When the tabernacle is to be pitched ... the stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death. No 1:51[3]

Other scriptures saying the same thing were given to Israel at this time:

"If there is any man in Israel who desires to give his daughter or his sister to any man who is of the seed of the Gentiles, he shall surely die ... for Israel is holy to the lord, and every man that defiles must surely die... And to this law there is no limit of days and no ceasing and no forgiveness ... because he has given of his seed to Moloch ... And thou, Moses, command the children of Israel ... that they shall not give any of their daughters to the Gentiles and that they shall not take any of the daughter of the Gentiles; for this is accursed before the Lord ... And it is disgraceful to Israel to those that give and to those that receive from the Gentiles any daughters, for it is unclean and accursed to Israel; ... for there will be plagues upon plagues, curse upon curse, and all punishment and plagues and curses will come ... and if they blind their eyes to those that commit uncleanness ... then shall the whole people together be punished." Jubilees 30:6-13[4]

1410 BC "Neither shalt thou make marriages with them: thy daughter thou shalt not give unto his son, nor his daughter shalt thou take unto thy son." Deu 7:3

Also, circa 1410 BC, the following scripture was written. Those who would open the sheepfold to the wolves argue that it nullifies the rest of the scriptures that exclude those of mixed-race:

3 Josephus says that all strangers entering the temple in Jerusalem, including Romans, were put to death. Antebellum Virginia attempted to solve the problem by having "outside" entrances to church balconies so slaves could be taught. There were no inside stairs. Strangers in the building at all still caused controversy.

4 JUBILEES: A 1st century Christian commentary on portions of Genesis and the opening chapters of Exodus. It contends that the law existed from eternity. Contains an extensive account of the fall of the angels.

"Thou shalt not abhor an Edomite; for he is thy brother: thou shalt not abhor an Egyptian; because thou wast a stranger in his land. The children that are begotten of them shall enter into the congregation of the Lord in their third generation." Deut 23:7- 8

The Law cannot be nullified by quoting scripture. God does not change.

"For I the Lord (the Word), do not change." Mal 3:6, "The scripture cannot be broken." John 10:35..

To conform to the rest of scripture this passage must be interpreted to mean that "ISRAELITES", and ONLY Israelites, living in Edom and Egypt may rejoin their Israelite brothers, but only in the 3rd generation because they may have "learned their ways."[5]

Also at the same time circa 1410 BC, the following was written. It is important because even at this early time both Egypt and the Edomites were of mixed ancestry:

1410 BC: "A bastard (Heb: mamzêr - mixed breed, mongrel) shall not enter into the congregation of the Lord; even to his tenth generation shall he not enter into the congregation of the Lord (Israel)." De 23:2

Margin note by the reformers in Geneva Bible 1599 state: "This was to cause them to live chastely, that their posterity might not be rejected." The reformers understood the meaning.

5 "Isaac have I loved but Esau have I hated." Romans 9:13; "I loved Jacob, and I hated Esau." Malachi 1:1; "Esau was a designing and deceitful man, one who hunted after the hearts of men and inveigled them ... and he came as far as the field of Seir, the same is Edom. ... And Esau there saw in the land of Seir the daughter of a man of Canaan, and her name was Jehudith ... And Esau took her for a wife." Jasher 29:20-23; The Arab world claims Esau as their father. So do Jews. "Edom is in modern Jewry." Universal Jewish Encyclopedia, 1925 edition, vol 5, p 41.;

At a later date, strangers attempting to follow God's law the best they knew how protested that they were to be cast out. This is of particular interest today since many strangers see the storm coming and wish to attach themselves to Israel to avoid it. This is the story and what God promised them - without changing one prohibition that he had written in the past:

> 690 BC "Neither let the son of the stranger that has joined himself to the Lord speak, saying, 'The Lord hath utterly separated me from his people. ... Even unto them will I give in mine house and within my walls a place and a name better than of sons and of daughters ...
>
> "Also the sons of the stranger that join themselves to the Lord, to serve him, and to love (obey) the name of the Lord,to be his servants ... and hold fast My covenant; even those will I bring to my mountain, and make them joyful in my house of prayer ... for mine house shall be called a house of prayer for all people." Isaiah 56:1-8

The above order from God is to be obeyed - qualified only by the command to "love" God:

> "And this is love, that we walk after his commandments." 2 John 6, "Not everyone shall enter into the kingdom of heaven but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven." Math 7:21. God's will is that "A bastard (mixed-ancestry) shall not enter into the congregation of Israel." De 23:2

The above prohibition applies to all non-Israelites.

The scriptures state that a stranger having great faith will not be turned away. When the Samaritan woman came to be healed, Jesus first said:

> "It is not meet to take the children's bread, and to cast it to dogs."
>
> And she replied: "yet the dogs eat of the crumbs." Matt 15:26-27

Jesus healed her. This healing is the fulfillment and answer to the above prayer of strangers who feel that they will be cast out. Israel will help them, but Israel would also keep their distance from them. He healed the son of the centurion. This is the contact he made with strangers. The law of "love" holds true; "If you love me - obey."

Those who open the sheep-fold to wolves make much of Jesus's instructions "Go into all the world". This verse is used to justify their multi-billion dollar "foreign missions", and their disobedience:[6]

> "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned." Mark 16:15-16

After being taken into captivity, Israel had been scattered into all lands. That's where Israel was when Jesus told his disciples to "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature" - "every creature", meaning every creature OF ISRAEL. Israel was in all the world.

Jesus immediately followed his "Go ye into all the world" with instructions telling his followers exactly whom to see and whom to avoid while on the way:

> "These twelve Jesus sent forth, and commanded them, saying, Go not unto the way of the Gentiles, and unto any city of the Samaritans enter ye not: But go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel." Matt 10:5,6.[7]

---

6 "Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly are ravening wolves. Ye shall know them by their fruits." Math 7:15-16

The word "gentile" used in the above quote means a people other than your own. A Japanese is a gentile to a Chinese. A Jew is a gentile to a Christian.

> "I was sent to the lost sheep of the house of Israel, and to them alone." Matt 15:24 N.E.B.

> "As my Father hath sent me even so I send you. (The Father sent Him to the lost sheep of the house of Israel, Matt 15:24) John 20:21

> "I pray not for the world, but for them which thou hast given me, for they are thine." John 17:9.

Jesus did not pray for the world. Tell that to your prayer group. Watch your own prayer life, and let the world watch out for its own. It generally gets exactly what it has worked for, and now bewails the fact.

> "Give not that which is holy unto the dogs, neither cast ye your pearls before swine, lest they trample them under their feet, and turn again and rend you." Matt. 7:6

This means more than the Word. It means "machine-guns", ships, "metallurgy", and it means "medicine" - the secrets that God released to care and help his own people. In Africa the strangers take machine guns and kill ALL the animals. Indians gratefully accepted the rifle and killed ALL the buffalo. Wolves eat sheep. They aren't interested in what sheep consider "holy". They "want" - and what they want they take. Sheep-hirelings reject the Word and disregard

7 Samaritans had accepted Israel's scriptures from the first. They professed faith in the God of Israel, they had temples and holy places to worship God. But, God had not made them in his image - "man". God made sheep and he made wolves to cull the flock. Samaritans were wolves. A wolf in sheep's clothing is still a wolf. Wolves eat sheep. That's what they do. Jesus forbade his followers to go to wolves. The Word that is God passes through the Samaritan filter and emerges a Samaritan god.

God's plan for the world because the wolves pay them to. Theirs shall be the worse punishment. The wolves pay handsomely. To earn their silver, hirelings lie and insist that the Ethiopian was a stranger and not an Israelite living in Ethiopia. They lie to justify letting more wolves into the sheep-fold.

The "3-Proofs" can separate most wolves from the sheep.[8]

They stand mute while the "Word that is God" is broken, again, again, and again. When their pet-wolf is questioned - they make him a "magic-wolf". They get him to repeat magic words and sprinkle the wolf with water, and "presto" - the wolf is transformed into a "sheep"![9] They are "false priests" in the pay of wolves. "Cursed be he that doeth the work of the Lord deceitfully." Jer 48:10

Based on the above - this was my answer to the letter:

> "Dear B.M.: I'm sorry that you think the Biblical command to separate from other races is a "put-down". It is not meant to be.
> Different groups have different needs. The part-Slavs of central Europe knew that there would be no justice for them except from within themselves - so they formed the Moravians - a group that in many respects

8 Genuine Israelites bear the "3-Proofs Of Israel" "G-I- M". (1) God's name - CHRISTIANS - "They shall put my name upon the children of Israel." Num 6:27 (2) Isaac's name, SONS OF ISAAC - ISAACSONS - SAXONS, "In Isaac shall thy name be called." Romans 9:7, and (3) Adamic descent. "Man" in Strong's Concordance is the Hebrew "Adam". "Adam" means to "blush red". "Show blood in the face." Genuine Israelites can produce all three proofs. "CHRISTIAN"-"SAXON"-"MAN". Counterfeits can't.

9 "Gentiles shall ye take to wife purifying ... with an unlawful purification (baptism)." Testament of Levi 4:17 is far superior than anything Western "established Christianity" has to offer. They have their own society and their own religion. They are entitled to self- determination. Their almost single-handed armed resistance saved the entire West from being swallowed by the Catholic Church. They are deserving of "A greater place than even his sons and his daughters. God rewards ALL those who "love" him.

The Slav-Poles of Poland saved the West from Islam at Vienna. However, the Moravians don't want what the West has and the Poles want their differences. So do most of the other groups of eastern Europe.

Indians of India test higher IQ scores than Western Whites. So what? They are different. Not to recognize differences in people is to chain them with someone else's values. That cannot be allowed.

Western Whites are not the warriors that others are. They are different. We are miserable in another's society. They are miserable in ours. You say you are 1/64th Indian. You talk like a full-blooded Indian. In my experience Indians don't let anyone push them around. You don't. Full-blooded Whites often do. Indians are an admirable people in many respects. We owe your grandfather for doing for our people.

All the races of the world have things to contribute to the well-being of all. But, it is the White race instructed by their Law that makes it possible. Like it or not - with all their many failings - the White race is "just" - more than any other race. If they disappear, through assimilation of other bloodlines, or by being exterminated in wars, the other races of the world will also disappear in time. Your question "Am I in yet?" will not serve your purpose. You may not want "in". The White race that absorbs alien blood tends to revert to the blood lines it unites with. In spite of being only 1/64th Indian, in time - the blood line of your descendants will revert to being Indian - with all its strengths and weaknesses.

On more careful reflection, I believe you will come to the conclusion that God's reward of a "greater place than even his sons and daughters" has a great deal to recommend it. You are his obedient servant so you will wish to "obey". A strong White nation - a nation of adam-man made in His image - and obedient to his will - will protect your interests better than any other.

You may find it wiser to do as your grandfather did - protect the Whites like an endangered species on whose existence your own hangs. It does, you know. If it vanishes - then your only choice will be to select your next protectors from the races about you.

That thought should curl your hair and make your skin crawl. Sincerely, Richard Kelly Hoskins."

The Ruby Ridge Weaver Massacre - Update

The federal government has made no attempt to arrest, reprimand, or rein in its agents gone wild who are accused of murder, assault, trespassing, and the armed invasion of the sovereign state of Idaho. Instead, the charges filed by the government are against the private citizens of Idaho they injured.

Not trusting such people to be other than self-serving, a meeting of America's Christian leaders was held in Colorado at the end of October to interview witnesses and gather and publicize the evidence. The representatives attending the meeting represented a spectrum of Christian denominations showing concern over Washington's "unconcern" at the Weaver murders. A major benifit is the willingness of Christians to put aside differences and come together to protest injustice. A full report will be forth coming later.

Randy Weaver is reported to have retained an attorney to start "unlawful assault" charges against the government.

The "citizen's arrest" served by Col. Bo Gritz has begun its ponderous course through America's legal apparatus. This is new to the scene and it is being discussed.

Two M60 machine-guns were reportedly placed in nests behind their roadblock and in front of the hundreds of unarmed protesters on the road leading to the scene of the Ruby Ridge killings. Behind the same crowd were stationed government snipers. The lives of the peaceful pickets were apparantly at risk in a potentially deadly cross-fire from government assault forces.

People who will shoot a child in the back one day, reflect on the act overnight, and return the next day to coolly shoot the child's mother between the eyes at the rock-throwing distance of 50 feet, a mother holding a baby in her arms, and then persist in their efforts to kill the remaining survivors, are not what one expects of normal law-enforcement officers. If those manning the road block at the foot of the mountain were the same type of cold-blooded killers as those on top of the mountain, then, a bad drug trip, AIDS dementia, a fight with a girl-friend, or being drunk on duty could have resulted in a massacre of unarmed crowds exercising their Constitutional right to protest the killing of women and children.

As far-fetched as it sounds - American citizens may have to be on guard against acts by government agents - acts formerly believed to be "illegal". These acts have now apparently become legal when committed by government agents - agents recognizing no law but themselves.

WEAVER MASSACRE: "Richard: HR, #217, said that in the Weaver Massacre a "Lt. Col." Degan was killed. If Degan was indeed a Lt. Col. in any capacity in the military establishment, then this is a clear violation of the POSSE COMITATUS ACT OF CONGRESS 1878. No military officers can be involved in ANY police action(s) against citizens.

"In the case of WOUNDED KNEE, many Sioux Indians were arrested. The majority of the charges against them had to be dropped because of the violation by the "feds" in using military personal against 'Citizens of the U.S.', thus, violating the POSSE COMITATUS ACT OF CONGRESS.

"About 3 years ago the act was amended to involve Federal/National Guard military officers. They can be included ONLY in some instances dealing with drugs. Degan may have been a Lt. Col. in the National Guard. If he was, I want to remind you that the Guard was never de-federalized since being federalized for Vietnam.

"Again, WHO was the helicopter pilot/co-pilot? Were they military? It may be that as in the case of Wounded Knee the charges will have to be dropped just because military officers assisted federal agents in the shoot-out, even though they were not actively shooting. This was enough to violate the POSSE COMITATUS ACT in the case of Wounded Knee." Pastor James P. Wickstom - Texas BUGGED: "Populist Presidential candidate Col "Bo" Gritz in an interview in an Idaho newspaper said Randy Weaver was an outlaw and a criminal. We have a copy of the newsprint. PEASANT REVOLTS

The Biblical Homestead Ideal

God made his people kings and priests. He decreed that the land be divided and never ever sold. Neither is it to be taxed. Taxed land can never be owned. As kings - men obey the king of kings who guides them, who gave them a part of his kingdom to rule. As priests - to rule under God's law that part of God's kingdom entrusted to them. A refuge, a shelter; kingdoms planned by God in his Holy Scripture. Kingdoms waiting for their kings to take and rule them. This is the Biblical homestead ideal.[1]

Roman Conquests

When Rome made a new conquest, the ownership of the land belonged for five years to the general making the conquest. He extorted all he could in tribute and taxes, and then the conquest (ie. the title to the conquered land - all of it) reverted to Rome - meaning the emperor.

The Roman Civil Service

The extensive Roman conquests involved taxes, tribute, treaties, coinage, armies, recruitment, paymasters, land ownership papers, rents, monopolies, franchises, titles, pensions, and the arbitration, regulation, and governing of the many captured Roman gods. etc.. This was the job of the emperor who owned and was responsible for it all. It was a bit much for one emperor to keep up with, so he created a civil service to do it for him. The civil service ruled for the emperor. It was his representative.

Emperor Constantine became Christian and thought the empire should also - so it did. The emperor's wish was the empire's command, especially the civil service. In the manner of civil servants, they became more Christian than the emperor, real experts, and continued handling the zillion imperial chores which included the continuing regulation and administration of the new state religion which now contained three gods in one instead of the scores of squabbling gods that had formerly driven the service mad with their irritating demands. The names of the empire subdivisions underwent a change to cope with the new religion. "Provinces" were concentrated into "dioceses", and collections formerly called "tribute", "rent", or "tax" might be called a "tithe". Other than a change of terminology, the collections went on as they had before the names were changed. The people weren't consulted. It wasn't voluntary.

In the last days of the empire the emperors came and went in rapid succession. The civil service served each new arrival faithfully, placing in his needy hands the rents, taxes, and tribute wrung from the empire. When the emperors stopped coming, the taxes and rents continued to be collected. But, with no emperor to give them to, and neither soldiers nor emperor to keep law and order, the civil service had to hire protectors so that their task of managing could continue efficiently. After all, that is what a civil service does.

The protectors hired were given the old title of "king". They were princes whose job was to collect the tithes and keep law and order. They were paid with part of their collections from the emperor's holdings.[2]

Of course, this whole system broke countless rules said to be part of this new religion. The most visible broken rule was that it comprised numerous monopolies in one colossal monopoly. "Everything" belonged to a single owner - the church. There were land-monopolies, trade-monopolies, tax-monopolies, manufacturing- monopolies, shipping-monopolies, all sorts of monopolies - and the new Christian religion forbade monopolies.[3] The problem about what the Christian religion allowed or didn't allow was quickly solved. The people didn't know monopolies were forbidden because they hadn't read the Bible. To keep it that way the

2 Actually, Rome "farmed" taxes. It set a figure that it wanted collected and anything wrung from the people above that figure became the king's pay. Any shortfall he had to make up himself. The system was open to abuse and tithe collectors were hated.

3 "Woe unto them that join house to house, that lay field to field, till there be no place, and they may be placed alone in the midst of the earth." Isaiah 5:8

church killed those who read the Bible without authorization. Simple. What people didn't know and couldn't find out wouldn't hurt either them or the church. It was plain to see that the land-monopoly was where the action was, and that land-monopoly was God's will.

Princes Claim the Land-Monopoly

England was a diocese. A king was hired to police the diocese. He appointed knights to help him. A count was appointed to police a county, a baron and his knights watched over a town. Each of these policemen was closely watched by an ecclesiastical snoop. Cathedrals and abbeys were ecclesiastical offices and monasteries housed the hordes of church employees needed to manage the vast church operations and properties. To police the German additions, the pope appointed a "Holy Roman Emperor". He was a "super-king" of that part.

But, big or small, all kings, including the "Holy Roman Emperor", had to come crawling to the pope on their hands and knees to kiss his foot. Kissing somebody's foot used to be considered the pits, it was just one cut above the absolute dregs. It was a public confession the kisser not only knew who the boss was, but confessed to the world that he knew. Everyone then knew that he knew. The pope didn't let the hired help forget for one moment that they were "hired help", that it was the church's land they were hired to police. It did not belong to the kings.

The land titles were ancient. They went back to the time of the empire. Then the emperor WAS the empire and he was "god on earth". Therefore, the pope, representing the vanished emperor's interests, was also god's representative. As double proof, theologians proclaimed the church to be

"Israel". The name "Israel" meant "God's representative" in Hebrew, or "Rule as God."[4] Either way, the pope was looking after the property for God, and it was the pope who placed a crown on the head of each newly-hired king so that he wouldn't forget that the hand that put the crown on could take it off again. The king was "hired help" - and that was all.[5]

If one of the pope's kings were caught "skimming", he was "ex- communicated". That meant that he was going to "hell" and, while waiting to go, nobody could deal with or talk to him. If he refused to repent, the pope would send other kings and their armies after the wayward one. They were paid handsomely for the "overtime". Few kings got away with disobeying the pope.

That didn't stop the more enterprising kings from trying. After all, it was a lot of work going around strong- arming peasants and merchants - collecting rents, tithes, and taxes - just to turn around and give it to the pope. The pope didn't work to collect it. The princes did.

4 The church did not bear the 3-proofs of Israel: (1) God's name - CHRISTIANS - "They shall put my name upon the children of Israel." Num 6:27 (2) Isaac's name, SONS OF ISAAC - ISAACSONS - SAXONS, "In Isaac shall thy name be called." Romans 9:7, and (3) Adamic descent. "Man" in Strong's Concordance is the Hebrew "Adam". "Adam" means to "blush red". "Show blood in the face." Genuine Israelites can produce all three proofs. "CHRISTIAN"-"SAXON"-"MAN". The church couldn't.

5 "Innocent III believed himself to be the representative of God, and as such the supreme possessor of both spiritual and temporal power. He therefore claimed in both spheres the supreme administrative, legislative and judicial authority. The bishops described themselves as holding office 'by grace of the Apostolic See,' for they administered their dioceses as plenipotentiaries of the pope; ... And just as he considered himself entitled to appoint to all ecclesiastical offices, so also he vested the emperor with his empire and kings with their kingdoms. ... he considered himself empowered to annul civil laws. Thus he annulled the Great Charter in 1215 ... also the pope threatened disobedient princes with deposition." E/B, Church History, 14th Ed, #5, p. 682

In the 1300s, the Kingdom of England began to protest mightily about passing the plate and sending the collections to Rome. It ignored the claim that the pope was entitled to act as Israel - as "god on earth". It ignored his claim that the land titles went back into the days of the Roman Empire. The kings wanted to know exactly how the church could prove that the land was theirs - now! Today! How could they prove title?

Proving Title

In Texas, flashing a Spanish land-grant is a giant step to proving land ownership. The king of England asked to see the land-grant. "Traditions" from the Roman civil service wouldn't cut it. Everyone was "Christian" now. The church claiming to be Israel (Heb: "To rule as God") and therefore having the authority to rule wouldn't do either. The Scots in 1320 had protested to the pope that they were Israel. What proof could the church offer now? The King wanted proof that the church still owned the land they claimed they owned.

The church sat the king down and made him read the (Donatio Constantini). This paper was proof positive that emperor Constantine, in gratitude for his conversion by Pope Silvester, gave Pope Silvester and his successors for ever, the spiritual supremacy over other religions, over all matters of faith and worship, and also the temporal domination over Rome, Italy and the provinces, places and civitates of the western regions.[6] There you have it. You want proof?

6 E/B 14th Ed., Vol 7, p. 524 (Donation Of Constantine).

You got proof! In writing, yet!!

It is now universally admitted to be a gross forgery, but then it was regarded as the genuine article both by friends and enemies of the papal claims throughout the middle ages.

In spite of all this, the English still weren't satisified. The authority they were using was something new - The Bible. They introduced a preacher of their own named John Wycliffe. Wycliffe had read the Bible and pointed to the place where it said that monopolies were forbidden, especially land- monopolies, that the land was to be divided and never ever sold.[7] Wycliffe had known this all along, but he couldn't speak out unless he had someone to protect him from church retaliation. The princes of England were glad to protect him. He was talking their language when he told the world that God said that land-monopolies were illegal - illegal for the Church that is.

The princes paid Wycliffe to attend all the conferences they held with the pope's representatives. He was their "expert witness", and they paid him 20 shillings a day for doing it - a royal income in that day. As their in-house ecclesiastic-lawyer he argued their case and they protected him from a Roman church irate that one of their employees had switched sides and had let the cat out of the bag on this land-monopoly thing.[8] In 1366 he "published his Determiatio quaedam de dominio supporting parliament in refusing

7 "Woe unto them that join house to house, that lay field to field, till there be no place, and they may be placed alone in the midst of the earth." Isaiah 5:8, "The land shall not be sold for ever." Lev 25:13

8 "He now publicly proclaimed the doctrine that righteousness is the sole title to dominion and to property, that an unrighteous clergy has no such title, and that the decision as to whether or not the property of the ecclesiatics should be taken away rests with the civil power." E/B, 14th ed, Vol 23, p. 822

the tribute demanded by Pope Urban V.[9] The controversy continued; "As soon as parliament met in the autumn of 1377, Wycliffe was consulted by it as to whether or not it was lawful to allow that treasure to pass out of the country in obedience to the pope's demand."[10] Wycliffe quoted scripture proving that it was unlawful to do so. Wycliffe was indispensable. From being a pope's-churchmanr, he was acting as a Princes'-churchman. He said things that the Roman church burned people for saying - people who didn't have protection. Wycliffe, to gain support for his views then did the unforgivable - he translated Rome's Vulgate Bible into English. This really did it. With an operation manual to guide, the warts on the nose of the Roman Church became visible to all.

While he was at it he might as well be hanged for a sheep as a lamb, so he not only translated the Bible, but wrote books expounding the doctrines he had discovered, things that were eagerly read by reform-minded Catholic priests all over Europe. In rapid succession he wrote:

- De civli dominio. His argument was that the church has no concern with temporal matters; that for the clergy to hold property is sinful, and that it is lawful for statesmen - God's stewards - to take away the goods of a clergy no longer obedient to God.
- Wycliffe next began to advocate that the "king" take possession of the property claimed by Rome, including all the Church-owned monopolies in England. It was sort of a "divine right". The king liked that. Other kings in other countries liked that. Land-monopoly, the church's big prize, was getting within reach. Why should they split the peasants' tithe and the merchants' rents and taxes with the church? England was protected by an English Channel.

10 Ibid. p. 823

- He declared that the doctrine of arbitrary divine decrees of the pope was anathema (papal infallibility). The Bible was supposed to determine right and wrong. A lot of priests liked that one.
- Based on the cornerstone truth that "In the beginning was the Word and the Word was with God and the Word was God" - the laws, statutes and judgments, and that the Pope was violating the Word, he found the Pope to be an antichrist (See vol. ii. of the Sermones. Book iii. of his Opus evangelicum) entitled De Anticristo.) Later reformers picked up on this one. The Pope didn't like being called an "antichrist" anymore than today's antichrist preachers enjoy the same tag.
- Knowing that acorns don't fall far from the oak - he pronounced that all church societies were liable to the same corruption. This put the Roman church on one side and the king and his supporters on the other.
- The argument in his last book Opus evangelicum, proclaimed his insistence on the "sufficiency of Holy Scripture." Today, this argument is accepted by all protestants, and many catholics - in theory. Back then, it was heresy. It put limits on what the Church could do. The church, (and the princes), could either submit to the Word and obey its commandments, or fight the Word, and destroy those who demanded obedience to it. Both chose to give lip service to the first and to follow the latter course.
- It was his discussions from the scripture that brought forth the doctrines of "free-will", "merit", and "predestination". (Calvin later added "grace", and Wycliffe's "merit" proved the salvation. Hard to have one without the other in spite of the thief crucified with Jesus.)

- He instructed many of his followers to go out and teach the people. The day of the itinerant preacher arrived and the Word went directly to the people, and the common people loved them. They rejoiced in the plain and homely doctrine which dwelt chiefly on the simple "law" of the gospel. The third force, those who actually ran the monopoly-machine, the people, now entered the picture.

When the Church came after Wycliffe, he appealed for protection to the king - not the pope - and got it.[11]

The Peasant's Revolt - 1381

While kings and prelates argued over who was to get the land-monopoly with its tithes and rents, the people had been listening and learning that God said that land was not to be a church-monopoly, nor a prince-monopoly, but that it was to be divided among the people and never ever sold. The Bible said that the land was not to be taxed, that the Bible said that God had made the children of Israel "kings and priests" - not the kings, or the Roman Church. Of course, the people's- preachers had no mighty protector to protect them when they wrote books against land-monopolies, usury-monopolies, and about Christian vigilantes. The church or the king could hang them out to dry, so they "whispered". They were so quiet that neither the prince nor the priest knew that they were whispering, or what they were whispering about. Except for an occasional overheard conversation resulting in a smear in the N.Y. Times, they still 11 John Huss later raised Wycliffe's doctrine to the dignity of a national religion. Many of the works attributed to Huss were actually the works of Wycliffe. Huss, Luther and other continental reformers owed Wycliffe much, and the spirit of the English reformer permeated the reformed churches of Europe.

In 1381, Archbishop Sudbury ordered the king to collect a poll tax from every adult. Rich or poor the tax was the same. The poorest family had to provide his three goats. All hell broke loose. The people weren't going to do it. All England burst into flame from coast to coast, from city to city and town to town. Castles and manors were burned. Tax collectors, priests, and lawyers were hunted down and butchered along with proctors (overseers), unjust judges and rulers. A mob numbering seventy thousand gathered and elected Wat Tyler their leader. John Ball, a people's-preacher, was his religious advisor. They marched on London and demanded to be freed from being slaves of the manor. They demanded freedom from taxes, and the tithe, and they demanded the right to rent land at 4-pence an acre rather than being the property of the manor. These peasants were armed with long-bows and most arrived in their manorial militia companies, many of which had fought in the king's wars with France. The week before they were humble serfs. Now, united, they were the most powerful force on the island, and they were armed.

The Londoners were equally oppressed by the church monopolizing manufactures and trade. London's city aldermen opened London's gates and the rural mob joined the city mob and began hunting down unjust churchmen, judges, lawyers, foreigners, and Lombards (bankers). Whole areas were burnt. Reaction to uncontrolled lawlessness was inevitable.

The "Peasant's War" created a rift between Wycliffe and his patrons in high places. The peasants were burning property belonging to the prince as well as that belonging to the church. The king and his followers began to distance themselves.

Wat Tyler and his followers met with the royal party of Richard II, a boy aged 14. Most of the peasants' demands seem modest by today's standards - that they not be treated as villains (manor- slaves), be allowed to rent their land at 4 pence an acre, be able to move away when they liked, relief from and cessation of countless rents, dues, taxes, and tithes.

These demands were granted. Royal letters were written to local governors, and everything was put in a charter. The English love charters. During the night, more ecclesiastics were hunted down and dispatched by peasant bands. The next day when they arrived to meet with the king, Tyler expanded the peasant demands to include the division of the land among the people.

Dividing the church land-monopoly among the kings supporters was the prize the king's party wanted for themselves. But, the king's party was ready. They had negotiated with the peasants only to disarm their suspicions. It was planned that when next they met that s SWAT team composed of the mayor of London and twelve of his supporters would suddenly rush Wat Tyler and cut him down. Everything went as planned. When Tyler got close enough, the assassination party drew concealed weapons and rushed Tyler killing him. The people were left without a spokesman. Thousands of peasants drew their bows and the lives of the king's party hung by a thread, but before the arrows could be loosed, the young king boldly rode forward and said that he would be their leader. The people foolishly believed him.

The king rode back to the safety of the Tower of London and issued orders that loosed his armies on the peasants. The chivalry of England - knights in full armor - went after the peasants slaying indiscriminantly. The king quickly annulled the freedoms he had just granted and hanged the peasants by the hundreds.

Tyler's advisor, the people's-preacher John Ball, when condemned, confessed that he learned his subversive doctrines from Wycliffe. William Courtenay, who succeeded the executed Archbishop Sudbury, the author of the poll-tax that had touched off the revolt, as Archbishop of Canterbury resolved to stamp out the Wycliffe heresy including Wycliffe himself. He called a council of bishops, theologians and canonists at the Blackfriars' Convent. But the king needed Wycliffe, so he remained at large and was unmolested. After all, the king still needed a theological-lawyer to support his claim to the land-monopoly against the Catholic Church. Neither the king nor the Church needed a third claimant to step in - peasants aroused by learning Christian teachings. The prince and church disagreed on almost everything except that. They still do.

Lessons

When Lee marched into Pennsylvania he shot soldiers who looted or burned. LESSON: Northern citizens were not threatened by the South and as a consequence the North was unable to field a volunteer army and was forced to enlist Blacks and go to Europe to hire 200,000 mercenaries. The 14th-century killing of tax collectors, lawyers, judges and even nobles accused of corrupt practices did not frighten the prince or his men and cause a class reaction. LESSON: Class-action reprisals threaten everyone in that class and that class tends to react as a class against the class that is perceived to be the attacker. Foreign kings have instructed today's media to incite entire classes against other classes. The object - a massive class reaction called - "civil- war". This is encouraged by the prince and acquiesced to by the prince's churchmen. The prize is still the same - America's monopolies, including the closely held land-monopoly. LESSON: Churchmen support the church. The prince's-churchmen support the prince. The peoples'-preacher supports the people. Acorns don't fall far from the oak. Wycliffe taught that a preacher who speaks for another is liable to the same corruption. Today, many churchmen claim to speak for the people. They say they know the Word and who they are. Still, most will not offend the king. They collect the peoples' silver, speak for the prince, and save themselves by sending their flocks to the slaughter house. The people can count only the "kings and priests" appointed by God. Those confusing churchmen with Christians preaching the Word will in time pay the penalty for doing so. The prince's churchman provides a one-way ticket to visit the home of Lady Marion. The Biblical homestead ideal will come to pass as promised, as written, and in no other way.

The Peasants Revolt of 1525

Back in Rome the pope had been having money troubles.[12] To raise cash he put entire bishoprics up for sale. A prince with a bag of gold could buy the church's claim and combine the office of bishop with that of prince. A single warrior-prince received double pay in rents, tribute, taxes and tithes and replaced both warrior and a cleric. He appointed his own cronies to double- offices of count-abbot and knight-priest. A fighting monk had much to recommend him. It did simplify the organization. This German church reorganization displaced many knights. An unemployed warrior can become a problem.

In Aug 1522, the knights (the Ritterschaft) who had been fired went after the church and besieged Trier, the city of a prince- archbishop and elector of the empire. The church called for other of its Kings and knights to come to its aid and the unemployed knights were defeated. The year was 1523.

This left a number of trained and still unemployed knights wandering around the countryside looking for jobs. All the while an explosion had been building up among the peasants.

The church did not like for its workers to walk off the job to go elsewhere - so they forbade it. As a consequence, the land assigned the peasants had to be divided with their children, and grandchildren, again and again so that families were actually starving on their assigned acreages.[13] All the while the Catholic Church, the monasteries, and the priests waxed fat on the sweat of the peasants.

Into this explosive mixture was thrust the teachings of Martin Luther. The Peasants' War was precipitated by the Lutheran Revolt. Luther had gotten the backing and protection of the princes by preaching the same things Wycliffe had taught more than a century before. In exchange for their protection to preach, he taught that the princes were entitled to the church lands and the income from them. He also taught that the church was corrupt, which it was. Luther's message was democratic. Its force and directness added fuel to the discontent smoldering for generations alongside anti-clericalism.

Seven years after Luther's attack on the indulgence system,[14] the peasants' revolt broke out. It was sudden. The Standard - a peasant's clog (a wooden shoe) on a pole. In June 1524, encouraged by the successful bid for freedom made by the Swiss, many cities, knights, and even princes came to terms with the insurgents and many joined their ranks. The rebels put forward a religious and social program. A basic demand was that each village be allowed to elect its own pastor who was neither a church-preacher nor a king-preacher. They made another demand - that the church land be divided among the peasants.

Many of the prince-ecclesiastics felt that they would rather lose their church land to rebel peasants than to greedy princes, so, many were agreeable.

> "Amongst the peace-makers being the elector-palatine, the Bishops of Bamberg and Speyer and the Abotts of Fulda and Hersfeld.[15]

They could negotiate, save their heads, and maybe retain some income by being agreeable. Being disagreeable put them in double jeopardy with the covetous Lutheran princes poised to seize their land, and the peasants who already had 14 Sinners could buy a certificate guaranteeing forgiveness for uncommitted sins. It was neat, also profitable.

it.

Much of Europe went up in flames as the peasants wreaked havoc on their ancient oppressors.

"There was much secularization of church property, suppression of monasteries and introduction of the Lutheran service in many churches."[16]

However, this revolt was playing hob with the agreement that Luther had made with Philip of Hess. Philip was a major figure in Germany at that time and he had agreed to protect Luther and his movement in exchange for Philip obtaining the Church's land. The deal became dependent on the suppression of the peasant's revolt.

Luther was now between a rock and a hard place. His teachings had triggered the insurgents. He at first sympathized with them and wrote a pamphlet protesting the harsh measures used against them. But, the threat of losing Philip's protection and being turned over to the tender mercies of the Catholic Church with the consequent wrecking of the whole reformation movement caused him to back up. Rethinking the matter, he found that the peasants' excesses angered him, so he wrote another tract Against the murdering, thieving hordes of Peasants. This latest tract breathed fire and slaughter down on the peasants. It was either that or disaster for his own revolution, more so, since the rebels had in nearly all cases claimed religious sanctions for their movement.[17]

The main revolt was subdued before the end of 1525. It ended in disaster. Outrages had united the princes and when they had the upper hand they wreaked outrages of their own in a ferocious vengeance on the people. The protestant princes had captured the land-monopoly from the church and they meant to keep it.

"A notable event of 1525 was the action of Albert of Hohenzollern, grandmastor of the Teutonic Order who, supported by most of his knights, declared for Luther, secularized the property of the order and made himself the personal ruler of its territory between Poland and the Baltic."[18]

This defection was stunning. The Teutonic Order was a principal warrior priesthood of the Roman Catholic Church. The reformation was under way. To justify their own seizure of Church land - the princes were forced to leave the Word open for the people, and they continued reading it.

Mountain People

Many years ago, while tramping through the mountains of Virginia I met mountaineers who had never been to the big city of Lynchburg, or any other city, for that matter. Many had heard all about cities and chose not to go. They were the remnant who had not been destroyed like their kinsmen in the lowlands after the war. They were gracious and hospitable. Whatever they had was yours.

They had animals, and raised their own food. They made their own clothing with their own wool. They made their own shoes, or traded for them. Peddlers brought nails and salt, altho there used to be an iron furnace 15 miles away, and salt mines were 40 miles down the valley. Some grew tobacco for a money crop. Others trapped. Cottage manufacturers found a ready market in the cities. Some had gone to the city and started businesses and stayed to watch their investments. They returned home when they chose. Often their children returned. Home was where their people were buried.

Among those people there was no fear of losing a job, of starving, of being thrown out on the street. They were the closest things to kings and priests that I have seen. There was the eagle look about them - the "king" look. Not the slack faces of the cities' wage-slaves. They were home. Their home was their kingdom on earth. A Biblical homestead promised by God. Taxes and bank manipulation of international commodity prices have since allowed a new prince to take their lands.

Roman law permitted sodomy, adultery, abortion, usury, and monopoly. Churchmen found nothing wrong in it. Christian law condemns it. Most of today's churchmen covet the name "Christian" but worship Caesar. Caesar's churchmen serve Caesar. "By their acts ye shall know them." Matt 7:20 But, because of the Word we know what God has planned. Some day, in a time chosen ages ago, after all have been freely permitted to make his choice - a single spark - and the tree enriched by the bones of our fathers, will once more grow. "Thy will be done - ON EARTH!"

LETTERS

QUEEN VICTORIA: "Gentlemen: Your comments on the Queen of England, Victoria, and the Boer War cannot go unchallenged. The Queen was not responsible for the war nor the evil of the politicians who planned, conducted and managed this evil act. Her Majesty fought desperately to defy the politicians.

"The citizens of the U.S. are trained from infancy to denounce the Royal family of Britain due to jealousy and the fact that they were unjustly led into a war of rebellion against the Mother Country by rebels and tyrants. The politicians will continue to spread propaganda to clear themselves of their errors. The ignorant citizens will continue to believe any kind of political propaganda to suit their vanity, and will not hesitate to make unjust statements about the innocent Royal family. Do not forget that many Americans were not willing to fight in that war of rebellion. The greatest and the best of your nation fled to Canada and built a new nation under the Royal Standard and King.

"Your nation may be arrogant and aggressive, but you do not own all the world yet. I beg you, do not blame the head of the true Israel Nations for that which she was not responsible." B. D. - Canada

ED: Bravo! Spoken like a true Israelite bearing the proofs of Israel! You sound very much like my mother who was a great fan of the royal family.

However, my family, for one, are done dying for kings - Scottish, Irish, English, German, American, banker, or communist - or whoever falsely claims a right to rule over us. We recognize ONE king to rule over us. The king of kings who made us all "kings and priests" (Rev 1:6). We recognize the sovereignty of those whom God appointed king to rule their own kingdoms when they prove their loyalty to the king of kings by their love[19]. It is by this alone that all are judged.

IF genealogical right alone determines who sits on the British throne, Virginia alone can produce 5,000 who have as much right as the present banker-installed royal family. More right since the Mountbattens have added their blood-line. Canada can too, for that matter.

If Victoria cannot be blamed - who can? (1) She was briefed weekly on the conduct of the South African war. I find no objections made by her to British scorched-earth policies nor their concentration camps - subjects discussed at length in the papers. She was head of the Church of England - the English Pope, if you will. Her silence lent consent just as the silence of today's anti-Christ priests lends their consent to today's Sodom and Gomorrah. What more can be expected if those who lead will not speak for fear of offending? (2) She said nothing about Israel raising a hand against Israel (I Kings 12:24). (3) She found no fault with her own and her church's vast holdings of British land, industry, transportation, and usury banks - a virtual "monopoly". Nor did she speak against others forming monopolies which deprived her "subjects" of their birthright (Isaiah 5:8). (4) She said nothing about "dividing" crown land and church owned land. (Num 26:53-55). (5) She found no fault in crown ownership of "usury banks" that preyed on her own people (Deu 23:20). (6) She certainly found no fault with taxing lands that in time would guarantee that the lands would revert to crown ownership (Matt 17:25-26). (7) I do not find where Victoria protested against enlisting Blacks in the war against the South Africans whom she insisted were "her" own subjects (Deu 17:15). For that matter, in Virginia the British Crown found no fault in arming and leading Indians against women and children on our frontiers and having them sacrificed to "Okee" (see Vigilantes). Also, the "Crown" forbade Virginia's banning the Black slave trade (Jer 2:25).

True, many of our people did refugee to Canada and go back to Britain rather than fight the invading British armies. Several of my ancestors did. Agreed, the Constitution turned out to be no substitute for the Bible. Agreed, the banker-led U.S. is arrogant and oppressive.

But, in America for a brief period there was a Camelot. For a brief time, men were kings and priests ruling their own land by His law. All we need now is for those he made kings and priests to know who they are. From now on - we look to ONE King. We look to what HIS promises.

Chapter 220

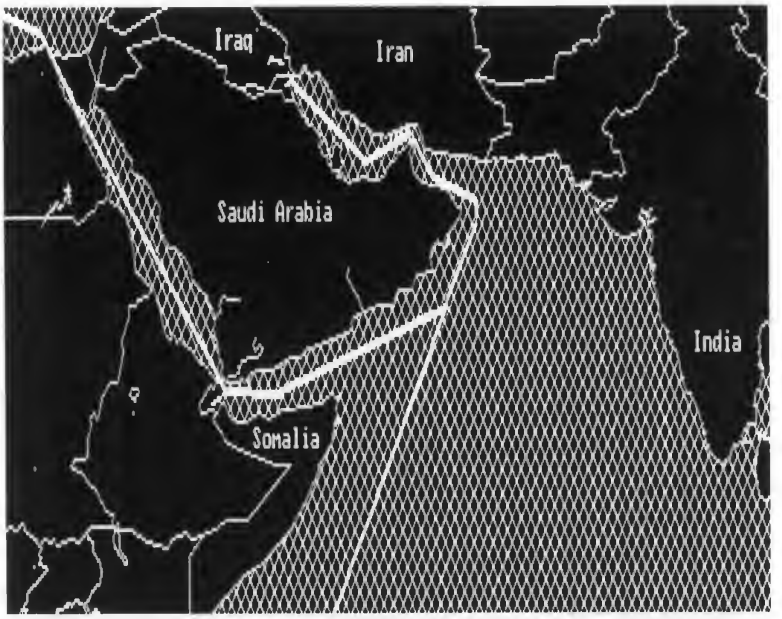
OPERATION ARMAGEDDON

America "Helps" Somalia

"Preliminary evidence of Clinton administration plans for foreign policy suggests that the new president is inclined to let the UN Security Council take over de-facto command of the U.S. military and determine U.S. policy. The plans include the commitment of American troops for service in the UN's standing army. The steps are considered the 'next logical steps' toward a new world order." (American Sentinel, 11/30/92, World News Digest Dec. 92)

"Sweep the floor and open the door!" The invasion of yet another country by the U.S. is presently taking place. It is directed against the most strategically valuable piece of real estate in the world - Somalia.

Somalia, the part of Africa that juts out into the Indian Ocean, looks very much like the horn of a rhinoceros. Hence



Somalia - "The Horn Of Africa"

Somalia dominates both petroleum shipping lanes from the Persian Gulf to Europe and America. It is called the most strategically important piece of real estate in the world.

the name - "Horn of Africa." The excuse for the invasion is humanitarian - to save the starving Somalians. It is legal and logical if the dictates of the UN are legal. Again, there has been no declaration of war.

"Warlords" is the name given the present rulers of Somalia by the media in their continuing incitement of the public to war. Its pictures show soldiers giving food to emaciated blacks. This proves that America is concerned over the welfare of the world's poor and downtrodden. The pictures are better than ten thousand words and prove not only the good intentions of America but also of the UN. The media is also preparing the people for the unpleasantness to come by playing up photos of starving blacks who are starving because of the acts of evil Somalian "warlords."

The evil "warlords' are evil because they attack food convoys going to starving people. The invaders are good because they say that they are there to prevent this.

This media treatment outlaws the "warlords" by pointing out violations of "Christian Law" which permit Christians to chastise Law breakers since Christians are the Lord's "battle-ax." They also furnish the soldiers and pay the bills.

The "outlawing" of an opponent puts him beyond the protection of the Law. These "warlords" may now be treated as common criminals if need be.

The incitement media are showing close-ups of each and every so- called "atrocity" committed by Black on Black. This is done to excuse UN acts that will inevitably result from invading another's country.

The outlawed warlords are also "demonized." Nothing good may be said of them if they are not abjectly "obedient." Carefully ignored amongst the much photographed bags and cases of food off- loaded from mercy ships is yesterday's threat of what would happen if the Communists ever took possession of the "Horn of Africa." It was forever being pounded into the public mind that if the Soviets or their surrogates ever took the strategic Horn of Africa, they would control the oil supplies to Europe, America, and parts of the Far East. If oil shipments were stopped, the countries being deprived of oil would soon revert to the stone age. Modern civilization requires a great deal of energy to maintain itself. Those who don't get it - don't participate.

The white lines on the chart on page one show the route the petroleum tankers take after leaving the Persian Gulf oil fields. The route to the north of Somalia is the route followed by ships enroute to the Suez Canal on their way to Europe. The route lies within 250 miles of Somalia and can easily be cut by air attacks based in Somalia. The line going south past Somalia's east coast is the route taken by tankers larger than 50,000 tons which can't make it through the Suez Canal. This route goes around South Africa and up the west coast of Africa to Europe and America. This route passes within 350 miles of Somalia - easy flying distance.

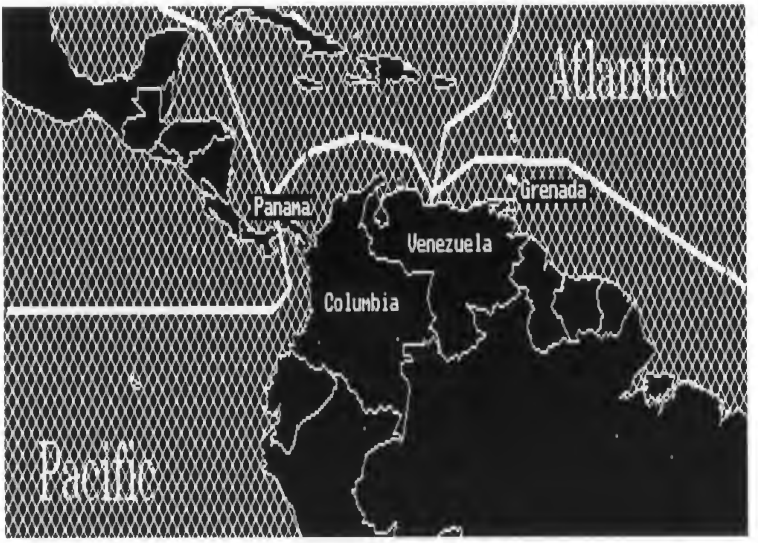
It should be pointed out that Persian Gulf tankers bound for the Orient pass down the coast of India on the other side of the Indian Ocean over 1500 miles away. Its distance makes it relatively immune from the Horn.

Panama

Panama was given the Panama Canal to enable her to obtain a source of income with which to pay her loans from the NY banks. This removed the U.S. presence from the canal zone. Oil from Mexico and Venezuela could pass freely through the Panama Canal enroute to Australia and New Zealand and countries in the Far East.

The NWO wished to put a lock on the canal. First, the leader of Panama was outlawed. President Noriega was discovered to be pushing drugs. For this offense America invaded Panama. The United States law clearly states that if drugs are found in your car, your house, or your country - whatever - it is forfeited.

The U.S. army was sent to make the bust, and, sure enough, they found drugs. Panama's president claimed that he was being framed, that the drugs were planted by the ones making the bust, but the media made light of this. He was spread-eagled, frisked, cuffed, read his rights, and carted off to cool his heels in a Florida slammer to await a Nuremberg trial.



Panama And Grenada

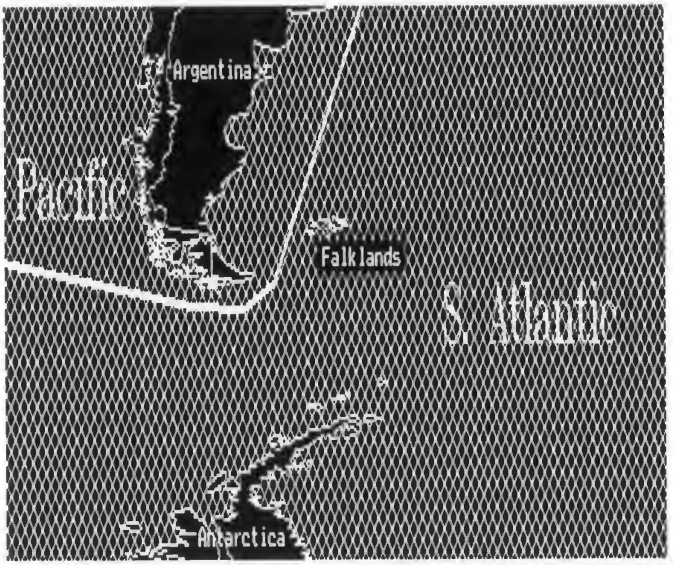
Panama controls petroleum shipping routes from Mexico and Venezuela to the Far East. Grenada sits astride the oil lanes to S. America and on into the S. Pacific.

Presently, the United States Army, an agency of the UN, stands guard on the Panama Canal oil routes to the Far East.

Grenada

Americans were told by the media that Cubans were abusing students in Grenada. Rape was mentioned. The media first reported that Cuban soldiers were responsible, but no Cuban troops were found so it was decided that it must have been the Cuban construction workers who were responsible.

If anyone else except the U.S. had invaded Grenada it might have sent shock waves throughout the international community of nations since Grenada lies across the Venezuelan oil tanker routes to Europe, South America, and the Far East that go around South America. All these mighty ships must pass Grenada. Most oil tankers pass within sight.



The Falklands

The worthless rocks of the Falklands are worth fighting for if they lie astride petroleum shipping lanes.

Grenada, in unfriendly hands, could threaten countries of the West.

Falklands

Britain occupied the Falklands but Argentina claimed this barren real-estate. Its usefulness is that it is a sheep station and a fishing supply base. It is also a potentially strategic military base that in unfriendly hands could stop oil ships enroute to Australia, New Zealand, and the Far East.

An independent Argentina inquired of Britain how she would react if Argentina took possession of the islands. Britain waffled and wouldn't give a straight answer. Argentina took this to be "yes" to go ahead. She went ahead.

Britain's media cried "invasion." Those who throw the first punch are outlawed. With the help of the U.S., Britain retook the Falklands. The media attacks on defeated Argentina caused them to turn on their own government and hold Nuremberg trials. Argentina is now governed by those friendly to the NWO and the British- occupied Falklands still rests astride the oil supertanker routes to the Orient.

South Africa

It is well known that if South Africa is ruled by forces unfriendly to the West that the interests of both America and Europe will be compromised. Besides producing 24 strategic minerals, S. Africa sits astride the oil routes to Europe and America. Knowing this, the U.S. government insists on installing a communist government to rule this region. Is there more to U.S. government actions than has been revealed?

South Africa

The establishment of the United States is very conscious of "rights." It is particularly conscious that the black communists of the ANC in S. Africa have been discriminated against, denied the vote, prevented from ruling the country, and have suffered countless other indignities.

U.S. state department believes that this justifies making the communist ANC the next South African government.

To aid the ANC to suppress possible white counter-revolutionary action, the U.S. has built a new airfield nearby near Molepoloe in Botswana. This new airfield has no possible civilian use but is capable of landing military aircraft. It is only about 160 miles from Johannesburg.[1] Last year U.S. airborne troops joined the Botswana Defense force near the S. African border in joint exercises called Operation Silver Eagle. Destabilized and outlawed S. Africa views these activities with alarm.

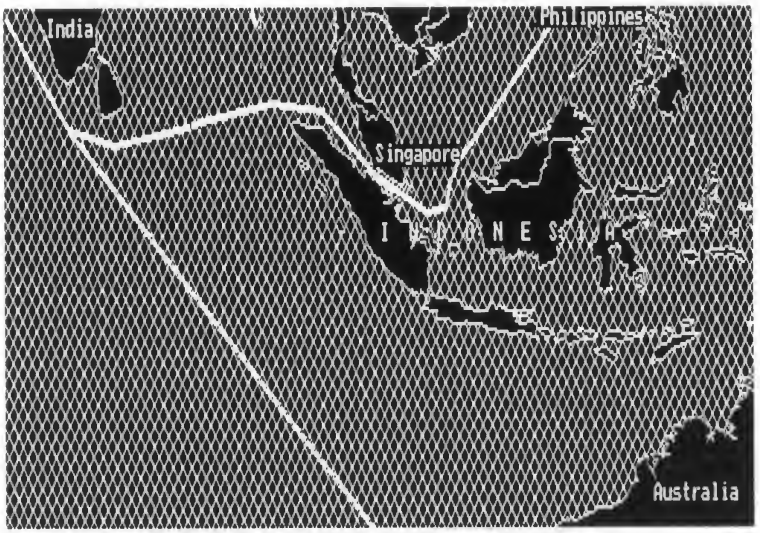
On December 17, 1992, the media announced that 8,000 U.S. marines were landed in nearby Mozambique to help quell disorders in that country. It is believed by knowledgeable observers that if needed to help S. Africa's transition to a peaceful, democratic, non- discriminatory, black-ruled communist republic, the UN will make these American troops available. They can be supported by aircraft flying from the airfield near Molepoloe in Botswana. The location of the newly-landed American troops in Mozambique is noted with a white arrow. They are only some 200 miles from the cities of S. Africa. The location of the airfield in Botswana is also noted with a white arrow.

With so much attention being directed toward ensuring that the ANC is placed in power, one might overlook the fact that Persian Gulf oil super-tankers sailing to Europe and America pass within sight of the South African capes. Besides the 24 strategic minerals produced by S. Africa - the country is another of the strategically placed nations of the world whose occupation by an unfriendly force could severely damage the West. Some military observers have

1 The existence of this airfield is unknown to most Americans, but is front page in S. African alternate-media publications.



Singapore - Fortress of the Far East

Because of its strategic importance, the Japanese in World War II immmediately launched a task force to invade and take the Singapore fortress. The British have now abandoned this fortress and walked away. Does someone know something not common knowledge? Is Singapore any less strategically placed than before?

wondered why the communist ANC is being given a nation that sits astride the critical oil lifeline to Western Europe and America.

Singapore

While militiary forces of the UN are busily occupying the key gateways to the West, the exact opposite is taking place in the Far East. Those bases are being abandoned.

Fortress Singapore was established by the British Empire to guard the trade routes from West to East. It was one of the first objectives of the Japanese in WWII.

Oil from the Mideast goes through the Straits of Malacca on its way to the Far East. The British, however, are no longer there. They gave Singapore its independence and departed. Its population is 87% Chinese. In an emergency it would seem more likely that they would deny petroleum to the Western nations of Australia and New Zealand than they would to China or Japan if difficulties should develop between East and West. Singapore appears to be no threat to the oil routes to the Far East. They would certainly offer no hindrance to task forces leaving the Far East with objectives in the West.

Philippines

The Philippines stand astride the oil shipping lanes to the Far East. For many years the U.S. maintained powerful military bases on these islands to neutralize any possible threats from this region. Now, the U.S. is abandoning its Philippine bases. It will no longer have a base from which to control hostile actions that might emanate from the Orient.

Interesting enough, since the communists seized power in China, the U.S. has done everything possible to open friendly relations with this part of the world. With no bases in the Far East, Oriental fleets can gather in private to do whatever they wish to do.

India

India is strategically located to cut the shipping lanes to the Far East. However, India is virulently anti-Western. In time of war, that country would be more likely to cut the petroleum supplies directed to the Western nations of Australia and New Zealand than other Asian nations. While strategically located, the West no longer occupies bases there.

China

Note the accompanying chart of the Far East on the next page. Fortress Singapore has been abandoned, and America is withdrawing from the Philippines. Indonesia and China are blieved able to supply the Orient with oil in the near future.

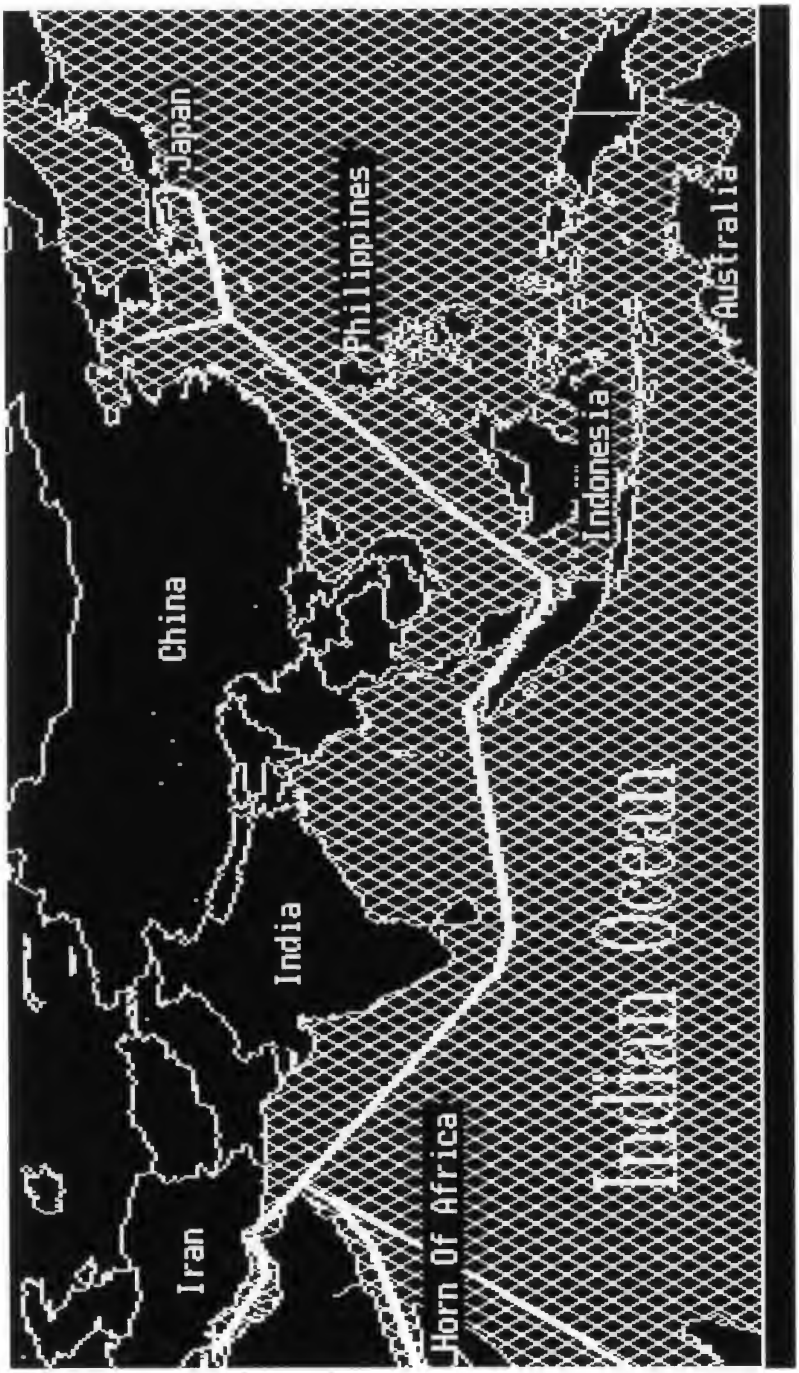
While the U.S. - UN - NWO and British surrogates are seeming anxious to take positions to dominate oil routes to America, Europe and Australia, they seem indifferent to the desirability of keeping bases that would protect the West from an Orient turned hostile. The three old bases are being abandoned - Singapore, Hong Kong - soon to be given to China, and the Philippine bases.

China receives much of its oil from the rapidly developing oil fields in Indonesia, and is rapidly developing its own supply. Their need for Persian Gulf oil is disappearing. In the event of Western disagreements with the Orient, the West has no base in that area from which it could enforce its interests, the Far East is becoming self-sufficent, and the Far East remains as it always has been - hostile.

The Significance

The gateways to the East and West are being occupied by armed forces under the benign control and/or direction of the UN. No such effort is being made to occupy similar strategic positions in the Far East. It might appear to anyone who has taken high- school ROTC 101, that since the gateways to the West are being occupied while the gateways to the East are being abandoned - that the future scene of military action is planned to be in the West - not in the East.

The only enemy that the UN could have in the West are Westerners. Since the governments of Western nations are



Japan
Philippines
China
Indonesia Australia
India
Indian Ocean
Iran
Horn Of Africa

friendly with both the UN and Far Eastern powers there is no possible enemy other than the Western people themselves.

What would happen if somehow the seemingly defenseless hordes of the Far East should turn out to be not so defenseless at all, but merely a part of the world which does things differently? What would happen if her tens of millions of soldiers suddenly, or by sections, piece-meal, picked up her massive stockpiles of weapons and followed the route taken earlier by the Mongols, the Huns, the Turks, the Ottomans, the Seljuks, and the Khazars - across the deserts and steppes to Europe? What would happen if the thousands of ships under foreign registration should appear off California?

There is another question that no one asks: Why have countries like China, Brazil, and the Israeli nation been developed into 3rd world arsenals able to produce sophisticated atomic, hydrogen, and neutron bombs with delivery missile systems, poison gases, bacteriological agents, and all the other weapons of war? Why is nothing being done to disarm them?

While the gates to the West's petroleum routes are being occupied, bases in the Far East abandoned, and the latest war techonology is being forced on the Orient, there is still one more thing that causes a vague anxiety. It is this:

Dog owners know that when the dog's master appears a dog will get up, come over, wag his tail, roll over to be rubbed, and then go back and lie down. The dog goes to his master. The master does not go to the dog.

Non dog owners who watch TV and appreciate football may note the performance of the pro quarterback whom the coach calls out of the game to instruct. The quarterback leaves his fellows and runs to the sidelines, the coach speaks. The quarterback bobs his head up and down showing his understanding, and then runs back to his teammates to tell them the next play. He tells it as if it is his own idea. If it makes a touchdown the quarterback gets the glory - but it was the coachs' play. The unknown team owners to whom no one gives a thought are the ones who really profit.

Note how the presidents from Nixon to Bush all run to China. Even the Russian Yeltson has just come from there. They see some shadowy personage, roll-over, bob their heads up and down, and come home and call a play. A few months later the West does something else strange.

Is there something to the rumor of a comprehensive plan called "Operation Armageddon," a UN plan that would use the West's own armies against their own peoples in an alliance with the forces of the Far East? Is this the reason the West is being destablilized by immigrants, and the media incites to violence?

How could such a massive plan be kept secret from the people? The answer may be more simple than we first imagine. Look at the POW- MIAs! America's establishment leaders protest that they are as pure as the driven snow and know nothing about such a plan. However, these same ones said that they didn't know anything about the POW-MIAs. It was Bush, Kissinger and the others who said that they knew nothing about the missing POWs.

The media slipped and revealed that even Eisenhower and his administration knew of trainloads of American POW's being sent to Siberia, and that they had made the deliberate decision to do nothing about it. This means that all the presidents and all their advisors and ministers and those who worked for them, and all the governments from Eisenhower till now also knew. The intelligence services that first told Eisenhower are the same intelligence services that briefed each administration that followed. They all knew. "Smiling Jimmy" Carter knew. "Glad-hand" Reagan knew. There were thousands who had access to the intelligence briefings, they knew. Kissinger confessed that he knew but there was nothing he could do about it. He had sworn earlier that he did not know. They all knew. They all lied - they lied about not knowing when they knew. They lied and the people believed them. Now the people know about the POW-MIAs. The politicians and the establishment know they know. And still - nothing is being done about them. Why shouldn't the same crowd act in the same way about their involvement in "Operation Armageddon?" They expect the wolf to win and they think that the wolf's is the winning side.

Could This Happen?

Lindsey Williams wrote that while chaplain to the oil workers on the N. Slope in Alaska he learned that vast oil fields had been discovered in addition to the ones being exploited. These others fields were simply capped and left. The oil that could have released America's dependency on Mideast oil was simply hidden.

He theorized at the time that this was done to create future oil shortages and to keep prices high. Perhaps. Perhaps there may have been a deeper reason. Non-development of vast north slope fields keeps the U.S. dependent on Mideast oil. This makes possible a Somalian scenario where the long exposed Mid-East oil routes can be cut at any time, jolting the West to a standstill.

Peoples Of The East

North of China lies the great Gobi Desert. The ancient desert trade route from China to Europe starts in the Gobi and passes on to the Iranian Desert and then on to the Iraqi Desert where it arrives in Europe. It is the route followed by the Huns, Sejuks Turks, Ottoman Turks, Khazar Turks, and Mongols. If cut oil lines bring West to its knees, there is nothing to stop the hordes of China from setting their feet in that well-traveled path. It has been done many times before.

Each of the earlier invaders infiltrated hostile populations into the areas chosen for occupation and conquest. Each first subverted the rulers of the targeted countries. Much of E. Europe fell to the Ottomans without war. The Ottoman Turks just walked in - a family at a time - and then when they were strong enough - they took over.

The Scenario

Who would have thought that Roosevelt would make the Dutch stop shipping oil to the Japanese from the Dutch East Indes, forcing them to attack the U.S. and starting WWII? Who would have thought that Ian Smith of Rhodesia, a war hero, would deliver his country to the enemy to be destroyed after winning the war waged against it? Who would have thought that deKlerk, a man of impeccable credentials, would betray his own South Africa? Who can believe that there are today traitors in the West who would betray the West? If there are such people - how would they go about their treason?

Game Planning

To bring the West to its knees and make it easy prey for a conqueror, one could start by cutting Western oil routes. Economic and social chaos would immediately result. No heat, gas, chemicals, medicine, light, fertilizer, or transportation. Unemployment and economic chaos would be instant. Western nations would likely be embroiled in L.A. style civil wars with hostile immigrants brought in earlier. Civil war between the military loyal to the rulers and those loyal to the people of the West would be likely. The deciding factor would be an army from the East - an army that numbers like grasshoppers.

With variations - this updates the scenario of Our Nordic Race written by Dick Hoskins in 1958.[2]

Conclusion

The River Euphrates is dried up. The strategic outposts and fortresses that stand astride the routes from the East are occupied by mercenaries who will shoot a mother holding a baby. They can be counted on to hold the gates open to the enemy if ordered. The armies of the East can march whenever the signal is given.

Surprised? One shouldn't be. "Operation Armageddon" is in the operation manual. There is no quick fix to this one. There's no place to run. Switzerland no longer offers protection, neither does America, Europe, S. Africa, Australia, or N. Zealand - none offers protection. They all are targeted. All have the identical problems. The King of the Wolves is hidden - he cannot be found. He cannot be made to stop what he is doing.

WEAVER FACT FINDING MEETING

On Oct 23-25, 1992 a meeting was held in Estes Park, Colorado to consider the killing of two members of the Weaver family and the wounding of two others by the Federal Government in The Idaho Ruby Creek Massacre plus other illegalities including trespass, absence of warrants, destruction of private property (the Weaver home and possessions have been completely ruined by the Feds), stalking, and acts of its agents to incite the general populace to riot. The following are partial quotes from the resulting document.

"The Law states that:

> "Ye shall not pollute the land wherein ye are; for blood it defileth the land: and the land cannot be cleansed of the blood that is shed therein, but by the blood of him that shed it." Numbers 35:33-34.

An alert was sent out to Christendom to gather and consider the deed. Elders of many different Christian denominations responded. Committees were appointed, evidence gathered, tentative plans were advanced, and a report produced.[4]

Testimony presented indicates that the federal authorities had plans extending beyond the assault on the Weaver family.

"Reports from the protest lines that existed in Idaho during the Weaver siege indicate that authorities at times were trying to provoke the people into a confrontation. People need to beware of such a ploy. Beware also of any man such as an ex- government man that may be wanting to rally troops for an open armed confrontation. ... "

It was noted that the establishment media branded the Weaver family as "deeply religious," "believers in home schooling," and "devotees of the Christian Identity movement."[5] It was also charged that, "Federal authorities believe Randy Weaver is a white supremacist and a criminal."

It is believed that Weaver, described by those who have met him as being devout, highly intelligent, and knowledgeable, was targeted by an FBI sting operation for Weaver's refusal to act as an informer for them. Fearing government reprisals, Weaver five years ago filed an affidavit with the court that outlined such an eventuality that came to pass.

It was noted that a charge of genocide needs to be brought against the U.S. Government on the floor of the UN. It was 5 Christian Identity believers identify with the Bible, God's Laws, statutes, and judgments (John 1:1). Since the Word that was God was given to Israel only (Ps 147:19-20) they claim descent from Israel, and produce extensive proofs to support their claim. This upsets organized Christian churches and the Jews - both of whom make the same claim of being God's "Israel" (Heb: To rule as God.").

also noted that "media sources and government entities are labeling people such as the Weaver family white separatists or white supremacists. It needs to be determined who is doing this and by what authority and those doing the labeling need to be forced to define such terms and labels."

The report of this newly formed "watch-dog" committee is interesting in that it outlines the most probable courses of action that will help this beleaguered Christian family, all of whom are accused including the 10 month old baby.

The trial of the Ruby Creek survivors is due to commence on Feb. 2. The absence of indictments against the government killers of the Weaver family members and the quick cremation of the bodies of their victims fuels the suspicion that the government does not want the killers tried regardless of their guilt.

Chapter 221

THE ROAD TO WAR

Strategic real estate is being seized and occupied by forces of the UN and their cohorts in the West. Equally strategic real estate is being abandoned in the Far East (See "Operation Armageddon", HR #2203, January 4, 1993). This gives birth to the suspicion that the West has been selected as the scene for the next "police action." The abandonment of Far East strategic real estate points to the mechanizations of the Far East as having given that region victory in Babylon's eternal struggle for supremacy.

The ones "maneuvering for position" are quite visible. The question now is - WHO has the wolf selected as his prey?

The Wolf

The "wolf" and "sheep" concept is basic in Christendom. It is incorporated in their folklore, their literature and in their mind-set. The objectives of the two animals are diametrically opposed. The wolf wishes to eat the sheep. The sheep doesn't wish to be eaten. The wolf either eats the sheep or he doesn't. It's either one way or the other. There is no middle ground.

Sheep look on "strangers" as wolves. A close examination shows them to often act as wolves. They know only their pack leader and his opinion is their opinion. The mere fact that there exists sheep who ignore the wolf's authority to obey an unseen Shepherd- leader is an instant paradox, affront, challenge, and danger to the Alpha-wolf. It is he who is the king-wolf of the strangers. To wolves - all who do not obey their alpha-wolf king - is THE enemy. This concept is necessary for the survival of the wolf- pack.

This simple fact of "wolf-authority" or "Shepherd-authority" is the unresolvable difference between wolves and sheep. When wolves extend their hunting area to include invaded sheepfolds - this "unresolvable difference" becomes a matter of life or death to the captured sheep. The wolves may appoint a subservient sheep as overseer over other sheep. The sheep who insists on obeying his Shepherd is an instant rebel to wolf-authority. No expense is spared to hunt them down and kill them on distant mountain tops as a lesson to others.

It is as hard for sheep to understand this new state of affairs as it is for wolves to not understand it. Wolves and sheep are different. It's the way they are made.

The Shepherd and His Sheep

The Shepherd's plan for an orderly sheepfold is to exclude wolves. Wolves roaming around in sheepfolds cause problems. They eat sheep - that's what wolves do. To survive, sheep try to keep from being eaten - that's what they do. Wolves complain about this sheep attitude. The sheep respond, that in spite of what wolves say, there is not an ounce of anti-Wolfism in an entire flock. They say that if a wolf breaks a bone or is in trouble - who helps? It is the sheep. Sheep help wolves - they just don't want to be eaten while helping. That's all. However reasonable this may seem to sheep, it is considered unreasonable by wolves.

When on occasion sheep tire of the wolves' overly close attention to them and the flock, and drive the wolves from the sheepfold, what do the wolves do? They immediately turn around and try to get back in. Why? That's where the sheep are, and wolves eat sheep. Unless they can enter the sheepfold they can't do what wolves do.

Trashing The Law

The Shepherd commanded his sheep that the land in a sheepfold be divided among his sheep and never ever sold, so that each sheep can have his own little kingdom to rule and be dependent on no- one. That's the way kings are supposed to be. Evil churchmen and evil kings (with wolf help) stole the land and kept it. They forced the poor farmers from their warm comfortable cottages and forced them to huddle together in dirty tenements overrun with rats in crowded cities. To eat they had to work in horrible factories. Mothers and children worked 10 to 18 hours a day. Their bodies were twisted and bent before they turned 20. Their souls were seared. The kings and churchmen who owned the tenements and factories counted their money and praised their god.

The evil churchmen and evil princes offered the people nothing except taxes, hard work, starvation wages, and oppression, but the result was riches for those doing the oppressing. The wolves looked on in envy. They wanted to share what the evil kings and churchmen had stolen, so they stepped in and made an offer that many oppressed sheep couldn't refuse. They offered to share with the sheep. It was more than the evil churchmen and kings offered. To make it official the wolves wrote it all down in a wolf- document called the Communist Manifesto:

Communist Manifesto

The wolves' "Communist Manifesto of 1848" has ten planks. It was the wolves' offer to oppressed sheep to share the loot taken by the evil kings and churchmen from the sheep. All the wolves asked in return was to rule.

1. "Abolition of property (rights) in land and application of all rents (taxes) to public purposes." (Taxed land cannot be owned. A missed payment reveals the true owner. The lender is the true owner.)

2. "A heavy progressive or graduated income tax." (Income tax 1913. Tax-free foundations and the private Federal Reserve are exempt.),

3. "Abolition of all right of inheritance." (Estate tax 1916, the alpha-wolf owns and controls everything. Only temporary "franchises" exist in a wolf-den),

4. "Confiscation of the property of all emigrants (fleeing the system) and rebels." (RICO Act 1970, sedition act 1798, used in 1940 and 1988. Cars, homes, and businesses in which is found marijuana are confiscated today. Entire estates belonging to rebels will be confiscated tomorrow.)

5. "Centralization of credit in the hands of the State, by means of a national bank with State capital and an exclusive monopoly." (Federal Reserve Act 1913, the stock of the FR is owned by the great international wolf-banks),

6. "Centralization of the means of communication and transport in the hands of the State." (Interstate Commerce Commission 1887, Federal Communication Commission Act 1934, Federal Aviation Agency 1938. These agencies set the standards),

7. "Extension of factories and instruments of production owned by the state."

8. "Equal liability of all to labor." (Two income families.)

9. "Combination of agriculture with manufacturing industries." (Bankrupted American farms are combined into giant soviet-type farming operations owned by wolf-corporations who also own manufacturing facilities to process the produce.)

10. "Free education for all children in public schools." (wolf-schools).

The Wolf Howl

The wolves also promised a cherry on top of the communist pie. They promised that as soon as the wolves had taken over from the evil kings and churchmen and had gotten things running properly - they would then turn everything over to the poor abused sheep, who would then have all they needed to live in a paradise on earth.

This sounded great, so many impoverished sheep joined the wolves to take the land monopolies, usury banks, and all the rest from the evil kings and churchmen.

This resulted in the 1848 revolts. When they failed, the wolves tried a new way to get into the sheepfold and enforce their Manifesto. They created the "wolf-howl" that was read by everyone. The wolf-howl told the sheep that everyone, wolves included, should be allowed to vote. After this, the wolf-howl told the sheep which politicians were good and which were bad so they would know for whom to vote. In this way the wolf-howl elected those the wolves wished to be elected. It was that easy. Messy civil wars were reserved for those sheep who would not easily give up their lands and wealth.

Wolfy-sheepism

To suppress the teachings of the Shepherd - the wolves approved a new religion for the sheep called "Wolfy-sheepism." Those sheep selected to be high-visibility, high-profile, wolfy- sheep high priests are permitted to use the wolf-howl. It is their job to indoctrinate the flocks into the glories of the New World Order - one more name for the Communist Manifesto made operational.

Wolfy-sheep priests are forbidden to recite the Shepherd's "Laws, statutes, and judgments." Their sermons are "approved." Wolfy- sheepism is pure "luv." The thing forbidden to be spoken is "If ye love me obey my commandments." John 14:15. They are all also required to tell the flocks that the Shepherd was a wolf - an interesting concept. The standards of anyone who would reject the Shepherd's "Laws, statutes and judgments" to become a wolfy-sheep priest are considered low, judged by the Shepherd's standards. Their wolf-like habits allow them to use the wealth received from the wolf-howl to indulge their appetites in fornication, drunkenness, perversions, and getting rich - a thing forbidden to sheep-priests.[1]

1 "Unto the tribe of Levi Moses gave not any inheritance: the Lord God of Israel was their inheritance." Josh 13:33. "Levi hath no part no inheritance with his brethren: the Lord is his inheritance." Deut. 10:9

The excesses of these wolfy-sheep churchmen have made them and the Shepherd they claim to represent obnoxious to thousands of other sheep. They have become so obnoxious that it has caused great masses of the sheep to turn against what they are told is the true religion of the Shepherd - "wolfy-sheepism."

This is the reason wolfy-sheepism was created. It does what it was created to do. This author is slow. It took him 18 years of attending a wolfy-sheep church to discover what many sheep discover right away.

Managing Sheep

The wolf-howl stoutly maintained that communism should be hated, so the sheep did. Sheep look to the wolf-howl for guidance like they used to look to their Shepherd. While the sheep were running around hating communism and spending their wealth to arm to fight communist aggression - the ten planks of the 1848 Communist Manifesto were being enacted into sheep-statutes by rulers elected by the same wolf-howl. And, while the wolf-howl agitated the sheep to "keep the world free for democracy," free nation after free nation was pushed into the communist maw. Any fair- minded person has to admit that this is nothing if it isn't smooth!

So, while everyone is going around hating communism and the Communist Manifesto - it is now the law of the land. Some sheep have trouble coping with this new addition to the old LAW-of-the-shepherd. If they break the Communist Manifesto to obey the Shepherd's Law, wolf-statutes will put them in jail. It would be laughable if it weren't tragic, and it's all legal.

Wolf Grievance

The Wolf's real grievance is built-in. As mentioned before, some sheep won't do what wolves want them to do. That's it. Legislatures elected by the "wolf-howl" pass hundreds of new laws each year. These new laws outlaw a million more sheep each year. The new growth industry is new, bigger, and better prisons to house law violators. Those outlawed by wolf-statutes are filling the prison population to overflowing. Wolf-courts decree that wolves serve short terms and sheep serve long ones. After all, why should wolves be needlessly punished for doing what wolves do when they can't help it. It's not their fault. It's the ghetto wolf-den environment they are forced live in. The sheep are endlessly told that if sheep are forced to mix with wolves in the sheepfold the wolves would change. Busloads of wolves are sent to sheepfolds, and guess what? The truth now slipping under the paper curtain is that wolves eat sheep! The wolves now say that what is needed is more sheep to go around. That, and a more tolerant sheep attitude.

The Observer

When schoolchildren choose sides they try to sneak one of those "on their side" into the inner sanctums of the "enemy" to learn their "secret plans."

Wolves do the same thing. Every flock has a wolf assigned to it to learn about secret "plans." It's boring work. They have to go to PTAs, country clubs, charity bazaars, and - you name it.

It's wasted effort, because who ever heard of a "secret" that sheep didn't write down on paper, draw up into a formal document, make an original with six copies, and proceed to post on the bulletin board ten minutes after it became a secret. That's what sheep do. The Shepherd made his sheep kings and priests. If sheep haven't thoroughly discussed something, voted on it, and put it down on paper - it's not officially a secret. Furthermore, they aren't going to let anyone tell THEM what to do if they don't want to do it.

The wolf observer sighs and patiently waits. Maybe someday the sheep will have a secret. Just in case, every flock has its in- house wolf assigned to watch - just in case.

Forcing The Choice

Once schoolchildren have formed "their side," they try to make it bigger and better than "their side." They recruit. They tell lies and spread rumors about "their side."

Wolves do it better. The uncommitted sheep is put in a corner and given choices. Each time they say "yes" to a choice they commit themselves more and more. The sheep who had hoped to stand on the sidelines and watch others get bloody noses find themselves being forced to take a stand right out in the middle of the playground before God and everyone. It becomes either one side or the other. One must alienate the wolves - or the Shepherd. Choose God and the wolves will get you. Choose the wolves - and God will get you. Damned if you do - damned if you don't. If the wolf doesn't get mad at you - the Shepherd will. Conditions become decidedly unpleasant.

Wolves have no problem with such choices. They do what the alpha wolf says and the alpha wolf doesn't kill them. That's fair enough. Wolf organizations never have trouble raising money for wolf projects. The alpha wolf suggests the amount that each wolf should give to the tax-exempt charity assigned to him and he pays - the whole amount plus a little extra to show enthusiasm. The alpha wolf's suggestions printed in the wolf-howl aren't "suggestions" - they are what the wolf wants them to think and do. Not so with sheep. Choices that violate the Shepherd's commands causes them to hesitate, and, these simple sheep whom their Shepherd has made kings are notoriously stingy. Sheep have trouble collecting enough money to buy a stamp. That's the way the Shepherd made them. That's why sheep are able to accumulate so much without ripping off other sheep.

To keep the pressure on the sheep to choose the wolf-king over the Shepherd, the wolves keep the demands coming. They demand entry into the sheepfold, they demand sheep to eat, they demand that they be given job preference, they demand that sheep pay them tribute, they demand that sheep-rituals be taken down and theirs be set up in front of city hall. They demand that the Shepherd be banned, they demand heavy progressive sheep taxation, they demand wolf-exemption, they demand that wolf crime be treated leniently and sheep crime treated harshly, they demand an open-gate policy to sheepfolds so fellow wolves won't be discriminated against, they expell sheep from wolf-dens while demanding an open-gate sheepfold policy. The "wolf-howl" demands that wolves be given "freedom" to kill sheep young. They demand that homosexuality Law be abandoned, they demand Shepherd-day violation and desecration. They demand sheep-registration, they demand church-registration, they demand laws against anti-wolfism and sheep-complaint, they demand censorship, they demand, demand, demand.

Wolf demands never end. They aren't meant to. They are made to make the sheep choose. In time, the sheep becomes conditioned to the fact that the only thing that will satisfy the wolf is a sheep's absolute and abject loyalty to the alpha-wolf's will, and disregarding deceptive "lip service," the sheeps' complete rejection of the Shepherd and His Word. Those who pass this test can be trusted. Some are selected as overseers of businesses and factories, some work for the wolf-howl, some become wolfy-sheep priests, and some are promoted by the wolf-howl to become leaders of sheepfolds like Rhodesia, South Africa, Germany, Great Britain, Australia-New Zealand, and the United States.

Those who insist on writing about the Shepherd's Word invite retribution even if they are senior vice-presidents with 33 years' seniority.

The Clout On The Other Side

There comes a point in time when wolf-threats, promises, wolfy- sheep endorsement, hand-outs, and preferential treatment loses its luster. The Shepherd has a staff. This is a good stout stick. It protects the sheep, but when swung as a rod, it hurts. It really hurts bad. The Shepherd has clout.

The wolf is big and bad, his wolf-howl frightens, and his "WDL" that strikes in the night breaking bones, and shooting bullets into the back of heads frightens more, but let's face it - that's just wolf stuff. When did a wolf make a world? create a man? or kill a nation with a plague? The Shepherd has done it all. He has even taken his staff and run the wolf away.

The Shepherd's Plan

Knowledgable sheep know why the Shepherd allows the evil in the land:

"I created man from the invisible and visible ... I appointed him ruler ... to have my wisdom ... I called his name Adam and showed him the two ways ... and I told him 'this is good, and that is bad' that I should learn whether he had love toward me, or hatred, that it be clear which in his race love me." Enoch 30:12- 14

More and more sheep who have secretly hated God are declaring themselves each day. They do this in spite of the 11 curses that God promised he would give them:

"But if ye will not ... do ... these commandments; ... I also will do this unto you;

1 - ye shall sow your seed in vain, for your enemies shall eat it ...

2 - "they that hate you shall reign over you;

3 - "ye shall flee when none pursueth you.

4 - "I will break the pride of your power;

5 - "Your land shall not yield her increase ...

6 - "I will send wild beasts (strangers) among you which shall rob you of your children ... and make you few in number.

7 - "I will bring a sword upon you ...

8 - "I will send the pestilence among you;

9 - "I will ... cast your carcasses upon the carcasses of your idols, and my soul shall abhor you.

10 - "I will make your cities waste.

11 - "And I will bring the land into desolation: ... Then shall the land enjoy her sabbaths, as long as it lieth desolate ..." Lev 26:14-35

The serious punishment will follow after this. It will come when the last sheep has freely made his choice. Then, on that day, the order will be given:

"Awake, O sword, against my shepherd, and against the man that is my fellow, saith the Lord of hosts: smite the shepherd ... and ... in all the land ... two parts therein shall be cut off and die; but the third shall be left therein. And I will bring the third part through the fire ... they shall call on my name ... I will say, It is my people: and they shall say, The Lord is my God." Zech 13:7-9

The above is the fate of the sheep who live with the wolf. For the wolves themselves - more is written:

"Son of man, set your face against China, and against the land of Mongolia, the chief prince of Mesheck and Tubal, and prophesy against him and say ... Behold I am against you, O China, the chief prince of Mesheck and Tubal: I will gather your people together and put a bridle in your jaws and I will bring you forth out of your country, both you and all your army ... Persians, Ethiopians, and Lybians with them ... Gomar and all her army, the house of Togarmah, and the uttermost parts of the north with all their hosts, and many other people who are with you. ...

"Son of man ... say to China, Thus says the Lord God: On that day when my people Israel shall dwell in tranquillity, ... you shall come up against my people Israel, like a cloud to cover the land; it shall be in the latter days, ... and ... the earth shall shake ... and the mountains shall be thrown down and the towers shall fall and every wall shall tumble to the ground. ...

"... I am against you, O China, the ruler and the chief prince of Meshech and Tubal; ... I will send a fire on Mongolia, and on the people who dwell peacefully in the Islands (Japan); ... I will give to China a place there for burial in the land of Israel ... and there they shall bury China and all his army." Ezekiel 38:2-16 - 39:1-11[2]

Conclusion

"Operation Armageddon" has begun. Somolia, the last gate, is being taken by the wolf and his allies. The Falklands, Singapore, The Philippines, Capetown, Gibralter, Grenada and Panama - all the gates of Israel rest in the hands of those who hate us.

Two-thirds of the sheep will join themselves to the wolf. Hooks are being placed in their jaws and they are being dragged to the place where God will fulfill his promise.

Their ancient dream of destroying the remnant of the sheep who will not bow to the alpha-wolf is about to turn to ashes. The ancient promise is soon to be fullfilled.

Watch, O Son of man, Your redemption draws nigh.

When in contact with Blacks and Whites, the Asiatics act as one group. Last week the Blacks and Asiatics had a race riot. VIRGINIA ARCHITECTURE & SEGREGATION: "Dear Dick: Can you explain why the chimneys on the old Virginia houses (late 17th & early 18th- century) are on the end of the houses while in New England they are placed in the center of the house - which appears to be more efficient. Next, the kitchen is detached from the main house and is in a separate building." G. W. - Massachutets

RKH: Q1. Center chimneys: Many Williamsburg homes have center chimneys. These relatively expensive town homes were built by wealthy plantation owners who despised plantation isolation, and had the money and could afford to build to suit their fancy. Most other Virginia plantation homes started as humble half- or quarter-homes - a basement, room, loft, and roof. This was built first with an end-chimney for heat. The plan was for inheriting children to add a hall and the other half of the house when they could afford to do so. That's why most old Virginia homes were built over several generations. They started as half houses, and then developed into full, L-shaped, U-shaped, H- shaped, and stacked houses (rooms in back of front rooms). There could be no way to build a center chimney in a house that wasn't going to be finished for 150 years. End chimneys had to be built as the rooms were completed.

Q2: "Separate kitchens:" The Word teaches "Withdraw from among the Gentiles and do not eat with them." Jubilees 22:17, "If any man ... be a fornicator, or covetous, or an idolater, or a railer, or a drunkard, or an extortioner; with such a one, no not to eat." 1 Cor 5:11. "Aaron and his sons shall eat the flesh of the ram, and the bread that is in the basket, by the door of the tabernacle of the congregation ... but a stranger (Heb: zûwr - racial alien) shall not eat thereof." Ex 29:32-33 There is a well-known tendency among Blacks to do all these prohibited things, so Virginians did not eat with them for 350 years (ie; certain White people were also excluded). It has only been in the last 50 years that they have been forced to do so by the government. Most New England homes had inside kitchens. They did not have the same social problem Virginia had.

MAFIA "BOSS OF BOSSES" ARRESTED: Italian authorities arrested Salvatore Riina and his driver. Both were unarmed and surrendered quietly. Riina was reported as having been in hiding for 23 years. In 1987 he was sentenced by an Italian court to life in prison while in absentia. Riina is said to be responsible for over 50 murders.

RKH: This article ignored the important points. Riina was not in hiding. He merely slipped on another identity and lived openly. He may have kept two or three other identities in reserve. He felt so safe that he had no need to go armed or with bodyguards. He lived this way while running one of the biggest and most profitable Mafia organization in Italy. The Italian government spun their wheels looking for a man who did not exist. The quiet well-dressed gentleman who smiled a greeting to the policeman was overlooked. He was betrayed by a confidante, he wasn't discovered by the police. After his capture it was found that his 23-year- old picture looked nothing at all like the Riina of today.

The article had one thing right - it stated that the Italian national police chief remarked that there would be a bitter struggle to succeed Riina. There will be - if Riiga successor has not already been chosen by the superiors of this "boss of bosses" who are in the top echelons of the banking and political arena.

Chapter 222

HOSTILE TAKEOVERS

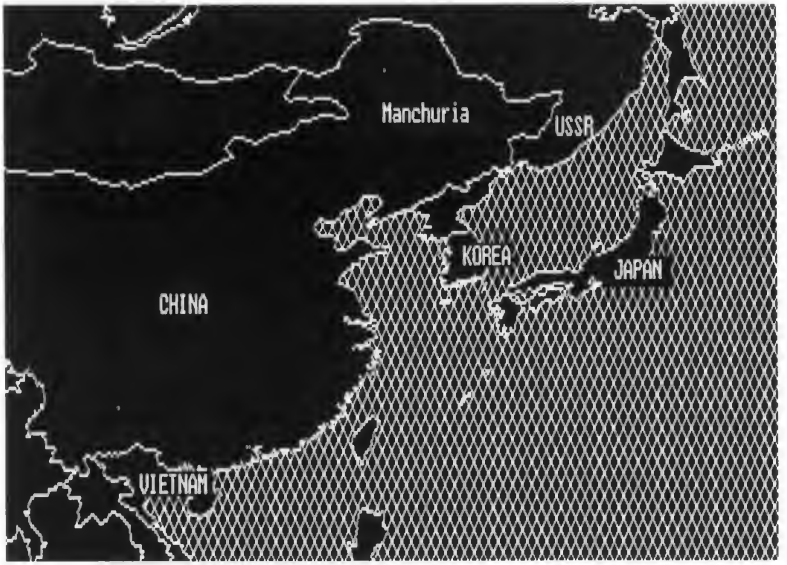
The Individual vs. The Corporation

"Everyone you meet is either a wolf or a sheep."

Sheep produce, create, build, and increase. Wolves take, keep, pull down, rend, devour, and destroy. Sheep live peacefully in sheepfolds. Wolves live in raucous crime-filled dens. Sheep function as individuals, wolves function as members of the pack - they operate in corporations.

Sheep obey their Shepherd. Wolves obey the policy of their pack leader, the alpha wolf. The Shepherd orders his sheep to live in sheepfolds, each an individual king, each ruling his own kingdom (farm), each judging his kingdom under the law of his Shepherd.

In a wolf den, each wolf is an agent of the alpha wolf who is king of the wolf pack, his wish is their law, and all wolves seek a place in a stairstep hierarchy within the pack under



Mysterious China

China has been the terminal of the overland spice trade with India and Europe for more than two thousand years. The wealthiest people in the world live in China. The leaders of the rest of the world beat a path to her door to bow to their rulers. The Westerner who considers planes, tanks, and armies to be a match for a nation forced to use money and diplomacy instead of force is a fool.

his protection. The wolf pack and all it contains is the alpha wolf's - it is his monopoly. The wolf pack is a corporation with the alpha wolf as its principal stockholder. He appoints a chairman of the board who appoints a board of directors who appoints plant managers who appoint foremen. The foremen hire plant security to keep out unwanted visitors and keep down disorders.

Wolves are predators. Sheep are producers. Wolves eat sheep. To eat sheep they must gain entry into sheepfolds. Sheep-history is a diary of wolf-assaults on sheepfolds.

Protection & The Gatekeeper

A wolf must have protection when moving into a new hunting area, or the outraged prey or another more powerful wolf pack may attack him.

He cannot enter a sheepfold with his pack to protect him since this would resemble past invasions and would alarm the sheepfold. He can't even ask the leader of the sheepfold for "protection" so that he can enter and eat sheep. Sheep are tender hearted and giving - but they draw the line at that.

The wolf follows the old time-tested routine. He goes to a frustrated "wanna-be" sheep who yearns to be alpha-king of the sheepfold so that he can rule it like wolves rule their wolf-den- bands, parades, inaugurations, TV, and all. With such a sheep the wolf has much in common. A deal is struck. In exchange for getting the wanna-be elected to govern the sheepfold, he will use his elected position to help the wolf. He will help the wolf get his pack into the sheepfold, and protect the wolf's operation once there. "Wanna-be" wants to be that kind of king so bad that he agrees to run with the wolves.

Getting him elected is simple. The wolves have lots of loot. They hire a front-sheep and give him loot to buy up the quiet "sheep-baa." Corporate-style, they are combined into chains and quickly converted into the "wolf-howl." Once operational, the wolf-howl by-passes the sheep's leader and talks directly to the sheep. The sheep's leader can't communicate with his sheep - the "wolf-howl" drowns him out - or just ignores him. The wolf-howl advises the flock that "Wanna-be" is wonderful, a good christian, a wonderful father, loves babies - and that wanna-be should be their new elected leader. So they elect him. That's it. Simple. A few bucks in the right place and you have taken over a whole sheepfold. Works every time. Wanna-be is now the "sheep's- foreman." A wolf-type king.[1]

Wanna-be owes the wolf. At first, only a few wolves are seen walking the streets. Soon they are all over the place.

Wanna-be's police say that wolf-crime is due to sheep-prejudice. Wanna-be gives them privileges sheep don't get - public housing, government jobs, preferential hiring, etc., all paid for by taxing the sheep. Wanna-be's courts say it's OK. His palace guard - the FBI, CIA, and armed services, are instructed to work closely with wolves and give them the sheep's most up-to-date weapons and secrets. Wanna-be's government says it's in the sheepfolds' interests. Not only are the sheep in the armed services told that wolves are good and sheep are bad, they are taught that they must follow their leaders - even when they shoot mothers holding babies. They are also told that it is OK to "bugger each other" if they want to - a common wolf practice. Wanna-be's wolfy-sheep preachers say that it's OK too. If they don't, they risk losing their tax-exemption.[1]

The sheep-overseer was elected by the wolf-howl and is dependent on them for his job. The wolf is dependent on the overseer, but is free to choose any other sheep-overseer he likes. Most overseers are not like Napoleon, the kind who upsets apple carts. Unless the sheep-overseer wishes to risk being turned out - he must bend over backwards to stay in the wolf's good graces.

The wolf may use sheep statutes to enact currency controls to stop bribery attempts by other wolf-pack competitors. The in-house security can be used against disgruntled sheep who are suspected of not liking wolves and not going along with the New Wolf Order. A new crime is invented to catch wayward sheep - "thought crime." No longer does a sheep have to assault a wolf to be guilty - he just has to think about it. This is called the RICO law. There are any number of sheep in prison who are sentenced for "thinking" about doing something.

Once in the sheepfold, the wolves supervise its conversion into a wolf-den. The sheep who lose their farm- kingdoms are retrained into "corporate-sheep." They act like wolves. These once-free sheep-kings now live in wolf-city. They are corporate sheep living in fear of losing their jobs, their pensions, getting fired, being mugged - and losing what little they have accumulated. To protect themselves, they "speak no evil, see no evil, and hear no evil." Being a bundle of nerves is normal wolf-existence, but it is a living death to sheep.[2] These kind of sheep can now be used as useful tools in "hostile takeovers" of others.

Wolf Need For Hostile Takeovers

Hostile takeovers are wolf operations not understood by sheep. A sheep, having its own small kingdom and possessions, has no need or wish to take that which belongs to another. To do so involves monopoly - a thing forbidden to sheep.

A wolf corporation, on the other hand, is a monopoly by definition. It is organized as a monopoly. It acts as a monopoly. The controlling stockholder treats it as a monopoly. It is insatiable. Its success is measured by its size, its growth, its acquisitions. Merger and takeover is the quick road to success. They provide immediate profit and can show profit on the balance sheet for years in the future. The War Between The States ended in 1865. It wasn't until 1962 that differential freight rates imposed during Reconstruction were dropped. It cost more to ship goods by rail from Richmond to New York than from New York to Richmond. The year 1962 was long after the war ended. The more "negotiations" of this kind, the more favorable contracts, and the more profit. This result of wolf negotiations appalls sheep who don't understand such things. They pay dearly for their lack of understanding.

Sheep - Takeover Cannon Fodders

A calm flock presents problems. On the approach of a wolf, the rams calmly move out shoulder to shoulder and face the wolf. Rams can kill a wolf. However, if the flock can be kept alarmed and milling, the rams don't know where the danger is or where to gather. The milling sheep don't even know what is happening. One or two rams who try to protect wolf-mugged sheep can be easily pulled down. The job of the wolf-howl is to spread rumors, alarms, and disinformation and keep the flock milling around. The sheep must never be allowed to calm down and group together for self protection.

Perpetually alarmed and upset, flocks can be driven by the wolves against either sheepfolds or wolf-dens belonging to competitors. Once an enemy is identified - the rams will fight. First, the selected prey is "outlawed." (Sheep fight only by the Shepherd's rules.[3] An outlaw is an enemy - an "unlawful" enemy.. A way is found to make the selected prey attack something that is "unlawful.". One must always be "attacked" to justify defending oneself and in the process demolishing the foe.

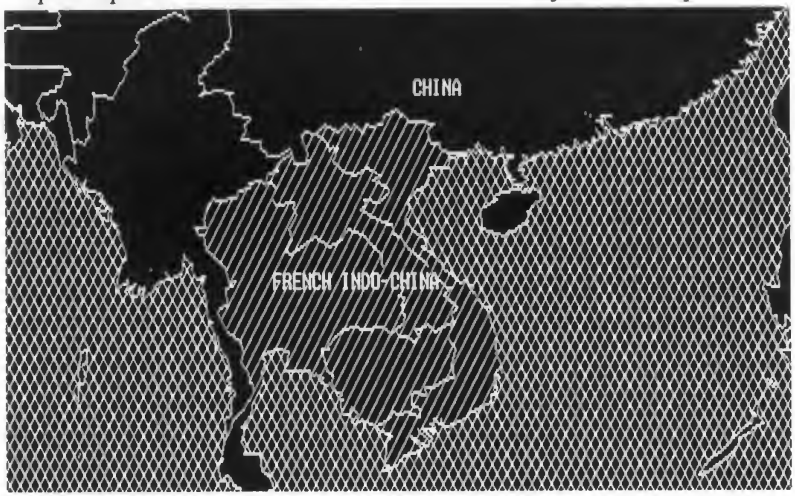
In the takeover war that follows, the sheep are driven into armies to provide cannon fodder; the wolf supervisors furnish both finance and supply. When final victory is won, the sheep get parades, erect monuments to their dead, nurse their grievances, and are kept alarmed and milling around until they are needed again. The wolves squabble over loot gained, the wolf- corporation grows more powerful, and the wolves plan their next raid.

China

In the 19th century, the controlling stockholder of the American corporation sent Admiral Perry to force Japan to open up for "investment." In the crude style of the period,



French Indo-China

France had been in French Indo-China since 1787. It comprised Vietnam (on the sea), Laos (center), Cambodia (South) and Thailand (Siam) - on the west. This danger to China was removed with American help.

3 That's what wolfy-sheep preachers get paid for doing.

he shot his way in. Japan was forced to exchange trade and tribute for Western technology. They learned fast. Japanese-wolves armed with sheep-technology became powerful and invaded Korea to add to their investment portfolio. In 1910, Japan merged the whole country to better digest it. The Japanese corporation was growing.

In the 1930s, Japan began the hostile takeover of Chinese Manchuria. China's plants and management were hopelessly outdated, and so were helpless to stop the takeover, but she had one thing the Japanese did not have. She had several unbelievably wealthy controlling stockholders whose retained reserves were unbelievably huge. An appeal was made to an old business associate, Franklin Delano Roosevelt. The Roosevelt family, and especially the Delanos, owed their wealth to the old "China Trade."[4]

Roosevelt, the American plant manager, responded by cutting the Japanese Netherlands E. Indies oil supply. This stroke, depriving Japan of oil, doomed the Japanese plant to have to shut down. The Japanese plant-manager, Tojo, unskilled in business affairs, sent his plant security to Pearl Harbor to deal with the situation. He suspected that he was being suckered, but the Oriental has this thing about pride - who bows to whom, and who bows the lowest - that sort of thing. After an initial success his plant-police were beat-up. The Japanese corporation had to make all sorts of concessions (like the Southern differential price rate thing) before they were allowed to start up their plant again. Businessmen know that the Japanese Emperor is chairman of the Japanese corporation, but they don't know who the major stockholder is. That's a business secret.

While the Chinese management were meeting with the Americans, British, and Soviets at Tehran, and were congratulating themselves on how smart they were to get the Americans to pull the Japanese off their backs, the Americans were helping to organize a hostile takeover against them. Mao Tse-tung was made standby acting plant manager and given security personnel to protect him until the regular Chinese corporation was cornered and he was needed. His instructions were to just to sit tight until the time was ripe, and then take over. Mao sneaked around in back of Chaing Kai-Shek in what became known as his 6,000 mile "Long March" and positioned himself behind Chaing forcing him to fight on two fronts.

The media told the US people that the US was shipping munitions to supply the anti-communist Nationalist government of Chaing Kai-shek. These munitions were stored in India. What they did not tell was that on orders from Washington these munitions were taken out into the Bay of Bengal and dumped into the sea.[5] Deprived of the promised US support, Chaing Kai- shek lost. Mao's communists took over management, and seized China's retained earnings. A perfect corporate takeover. "An unknown enemy cannot be opposed."

To prevent Chiang's followers from becoming a nuisance, those who didn't escape to Formosa with Chaing Kai-shek were given the choice of placing their necks on railroad tracks and letting trains decapitate them, or receiving a slow death. Most eagerly put their necks on the rail. Along with these - tens of millions of Chinese died and their wealth was confiscated by the victors.

China is too vast to be closely governed. Local warlords have always ruled villages and their family groups. Wealth, trade, and custom have been handed down generation after generation, and everything of value is kept hidden from central governments. Individual Chinese look first to their family groups, then the village, then the local warlord. Mao's communist revolution changed that. Trials, purges, holocausts and indoctrinations were used to break up the villages, scatter families, pry wealth from dead hands, and cause a complete corporate reorganization.

China's ruler now has millions of obedient citizens, loyal followers who have learned their place in the pack pecking order. He speaks - they obey. Their former "village-family-local war lord" allegiance is now his. He is the one who can protect and provide for them. All rewards come from him. No one is beyond his reach.

Behind the scenes, controlling stockholders are highly mobile. To them, all things are temporary, even economic setbacks. "Madam Chaing Kai-shek - nee May Ling Soong, was the daughter of Charles Jones Soong, and sister of T. V. Soong, who in 1943 was the wealthiest man in the world."[6] The Soong's antiquated palace guard, the Nationalist Party, failed in its effort to protect their holdings, but all that is in the past. Formosa has been reorganized to include the latest in defense. Negotiations are now taking place to effect a merger between the "Nationalist" China and "Communist" China. The resulting corporation may well become a world class contender. In any event, Western leaders are beating a path to their door. That fact should tell us enough.

Korea

Korea, long dominated by Chinese investors, in 1860 suffered Russian interests to move in. In 1866, 1867 and 1871, joint French and US expeditions launched punitive raids to retaliate for the killing of missionaries. Those raids also resulted in concessions. Japanese interests moved in and supplanted everyone when they annexed the country in 1910.

In 1950, China's chairman directed that their N. Korea subsidiary take over S. Korea. It was bloody, as Oriental takeovers are. General MacArthur reported to the Russell Committee Hearings, Pt. 1, May 3, 1951, p32, on the progress of the property settlement dispute:

> "The war in Korea has already almost destroyed that nation of 20 million people. I have never seen such devastation. I have seen, I guess, as much blood and disaster as any living man, and it just curdled by stomach ... After I looked at that wreckage and those thousands of women and children and everything, I vomited. ... Once more, I repeat the question: What is the policy in Korea? If you go on indefinitely, you are perpetuating a slaughter such as I have never heard of in the history of mankind."

As landowners were ground up and disappeared in the conflict - millions of acres made available were instantly snapped up. Businesses came up for grabs at bargain prices.

Ancient business contracts were voided wholesale and they too came up for grabs. Today, American industries are moving to Korea and Korean sweatshops manned by coolie labor dump electronics on America and the rest of the West. The new commercial alignment is fully operational and profitable. The N. Korean and Chinese got nothing for their trouble except their dead. They had served their purpose and there are still plenty of orientals to spare.

Col. Prouty says in his book that the decision to go into Korea and Vietnam was made before World War II ended. The U.S. had stockpiled a mountain of military supplies to be used in the Japanese invasion, but Japan surrendered before it took place. The decision was made to send half of this stockpile to Korea and half to Vietnam.

Vietnam

Vietnam was a subsidiary of France. It is part of what was the old French Indo-China. French Indo-China comprised Vietnam, Cambodia, Laos, and Thailand (Siam). It has always been one of the wealthiest operations in the world. French interests had been there since 1787. The US corporation intended to seize those interests for itself.

The Japanese invaded Indo-China, displacing the French. Ho Chi Minh was selected to be management trainee in North Vietnam. Both he and his followers worked for, were trained by, and were supplied by the OSS, the forerunner of the CIA - supposedly so that they could fight the Japanese. "Ho" armies were given half of the mountain of unused American equipment that had been collected for the invasion of Japan. This was done AFTER the Japanese had left and before the French returned. Another corporate raid was in progress.

When the French returned to take up management where they had left off, they were unpleasantly surprised to be confronted with one of the best armed plant-security guerrilla armies in the world.

Vietnam - The Successful Lost War

The war in Vietnam was won by all participants - except the people who fought it. Chinese interests removed French interests. America had an economic boom. The Vietnamese people were added to the NWO, and the CIA got the opium monopoly of the "golden triangle" to enable them to finance a spate of wars,

The French were defeated in May 1954. The French garrison that was surrendered at Dien Bien Phu was mostly German, recruited from former German soldiers at the end of WW II. In Vietnamese captivity they died almost to a man. Oriental takeovers are tough, and, stockholders investing in such risky investments seldom have loyalty to their faceless employees. The displaced French management could care less about the massacre of their plant-security. "They were just Germans." One month later, June 1954, the Americans moved into South Vietnam, right on schedule.

South Vietnam had no history as a separate nation. This part of Vietnam was given a Catholic descendant of the old emperors to be their ruler and was provided with a palace guard organized from local "sects." These "sects" had been followers of a number of local generals who had set up their own operations in S. Vietnam after the Japanese left.

The CIA paid these "generals" handsome bonuses for their early retirement and sent them to the French Riviera to bask in the sun. Their rag-tag "bowl of rice" followers became the South Vietnamese army.

"Free democratic elections" were held. They were supervised by the democratic S. Vietnamese army. Diem received 98% of the vote. Most S. Vietnamese had no idea who was ruling in Saigon and didn't care. They voted 98% for the one they were told to vote for. As a rule, when the U.S. insists on "democratic elections" in wolf-nations having no history of democracy - the vote is almost always something in the neighborhood of 98% in favor. This is the American corporation replacing local management with one of their own choosing.

Ngo Dinh Diem, the new ruler, on orders from his CIA handlers, banned both the remaining French and the local Chinese. The French managers ran the nation's government and business, and the Chinese were the traders whose boats bought rice from the peasants and delivered tools, salt, and other necessary goods in return. The removal of the French closed down the nation's businesses, and with the Chinese gone - their rice boats did not arrive to collect the rice. With no buyers, the rice rotted and those regions deprived of rice and salt fought neighboring villages for food to survive. The new ruler called these outbreaks "communist insurgency."

NWO PsyWar In Action

CIA "Psy-War," aided by the Catholic bishoprics of "That Dien" and "Bui Chu,"[7] in North Vietnam, spread the rumor among the northern Tonkinese Chinese Catholics that they were scheduled for liquidation. Terrorized, they began to stampede. The door to safety was opened for them and they were herded onto CIA-furnished ships, trucks, and planes. The rest were directed to the road overland that led to promised land and food in the south. One million one hundred thousand N. Tonkinese "Catholic" Vietnamese were transported south and dumped in Cochine, the south-western Red River delta areas. There was neither land nor food waiting when they got there, only hostile South Vietnamese peasants short of food and whose way of life was already dislocated by the removal of French managers and Chinese merchants. These new arrivals became bandits to survive and preyed on the South Vietnamese. The papers in the U.S. reported that "Viet Cong insurgency" had flared up all over. "The mass movement of the Tonkinese was done 'To provide the climate, and the fodder for the war in Vietnam.'"[8]

> "The US-advised Diem government began to place many of these Catholics in key offices. Typical .... Dr. Tran Kim Tuyen, a northern Catholic who left Tonkin China in 1954, was made chief of the Office of Political and Social Affairs, the secret government apparatus that had been organized by the CIA to keep tabs on dissenters."[9]

The block system, the kind insisted upon by those who invest in communist countries, was put in operation. This is an "oppressive, omnipresent internal spy organization that uses teachers to gather information from children, wives to tell on husbands, and employers to inform on employees." Thousands of northern Catholics were placed on the payroll and put into positions of responsibility by the CIA and the Diem government. Before long, the northern Catholic immigrants were the ones who had become "friendly" and the "enemy" had become the native southerners.

In Vietnam, it was widely broadcast by CIA Psy-War that the arriving Americans were there to "pacify" South Vietnam. It was reported this way in the American papers. The "pacify" word does not have the same connotation in the Far East that it has in the West. "Pacification" to the Indo-Chinese means that a region is pacified when all the people living there are dead. Vietnam's "Pacification" became an American threat of "life or death." This threat provided the incentive to continue fighting when spirits lagged in the face of overwhelming U.S. armed might.

While the CIA knew exactly what they were doing - the American soldiers arriving to fight "communists" didn't have a clue. They didn't know who the enemy was and no one could tell them. Few of the enemy wore uniforms. Weapons used for village defense were everywhere. In time, everyone who had a gun and didn't have on an ARVN uniform must be "Vietcong" - probably - possibly - maybe? In time, the rule was that if someone shot at you he was definitely an enemy, and if someone ran when you approached, he too was probably "the enemy."

There were still many "enemies" living in the South, enemies who owned property and businesses, enemies that bombings and ordinary warfare failed to dispose of. These were handled differently. The CIA organized the infamous "Phoenix Program" in which 60,000 key Vietnamese were killed in cold blood by American, Korean, Filipino, Taiwanese, and Vietnamese agents - cold-blooded murders of the Ruby Ridge kind.[10]

Vietnam lost millions of her people, freeing up the wealth of the country. This accomplished, the U.S. left. The S. Vietnamese ruler and his palace "sect" guard were abandoned to their fate, and the CIA-trained Ho Chi Minh marched in to take possession and to confiscate everything in sight. The US had been on both sides of everything that had happened.

The Viet escapade had cost 57,000 American dead. The brighter side was that the American economy was given a massive shot in the arm bringing "happy days" for years; China had dangerous enemies removed - the French and the Japanese, and, the investors who backed "Ho" had a field day with their prize of confiscated French properties that are now being "privatized" at the usual bargain-basement prices. "Differential freight rates"- type treaties are still being negotiated. Vietnam will stay in the world's backwaters until they agree to give up an additional pound or two of flesh.

As an extra bonus for those who helped make the Vietnam takeover possible - the CIA fell heir to the heroin drug-monopoly trade of Cambodia, Laos, and Thailand. This booming business furnishes multi-millions at the cost of multi-billions - multi- billions that are desperately needed to fuel other Vietnam-type operations all over the world.

USA Today

Sheepfolds require alternating rulers to fool the sheep into believing that they are still a sheepfold run by sheep; that there is no ruler but their Shepherd. The palace-guard organized to protect the carefully selected rulers is efficient, well paid, and almost an exact copy of the ones operating in practically every other country in the world. Prouty writes, "If the truth were known, the chief of state of most 3rd world countries today - under the rules of the superpower world game - owes his job and his life, day by day, to an elite palace-guard that he can control and, he hopes, trust."

When the alpha-wolf invests, it is in amounts greater than the worth of General Motors, American Telephone, and IBM combined. Most of America's industry of any size has already been bought up. There is only one big prize left - it is the combined holdings of the sheep. One sheep at a time, it would take a hundred years to acquire it all. If all could be lumped together, they could be taken in a few short months. But such corporate takeovers are hostile takeovers. It requires an army - it requires conflict. It requires war.

The example of the orient is one that should not be lost on those interested in corporate finance. The hostile take-over of Vietnam is especially interesting.

In Vietnam, aliens were lured by threats and promises into a strange land without work or shelter. They resorted to banditry to live. The same thing is occurring in all Western nations where small holders of wealth have a massive holding if totaled together. As occurred in Vietnam, some of the imported strangers are hired and added to the palace-guard to rule over increasingly angry property hold-ers. As in Vietnam, the wolf-howl uses PsyWar to incite the strangers against the natives. They are told that the evil Westerners are planning a "pacification" program that will result in a holocaust.

Tainted Western governments now call native Westerners "insurrectionists." They are called "racists, "separatists," "white supemacists," and "bigots" if they protest alien crime, or loss of jobs - all standard PsyWar terminology.

Clinton: Another DeKlerk?

> "The first impression one gets of a ruler and his brains is from seeing the men he has about him." Machiavelli.[11]

The men around our recent media- elected leader represents a spectrum that gives pause to an already nervous flock. Their presence offends the sheep more and more. The scent of wolf is strong. One by one, the Laws that the Shepherd gave as absolute, never to be changed, are being replaced by "wolf-policy." One step at a time the sheep are being pushed into a corner. Closer and closer approach the wolves. More and more come the wolf-demands, demands that the sheep cannot obey without having their own Shepherd kill them. One sheep at a time is seized with panic, abandons his property, and bolts from the corner. One after another the wolf-pack falls on the bolting sheep and tears him to bits. One by one.

The circle draws closer and closer. Will the sheep stand in shock like the S. African sheep are doing - waiting to be eaten? The lies of the wolf-howl keep the flock confused,

Western Sheepfolds Under Attack

The above areas in white are all that are left to the sheep. In 1900, the entire world except part of China was controlled by the West. Now, only Western heartlands are left. Even the heartlands are exhausted by wolf-incited civil wars where sheep have been led against sheep, killing tens of millions. Wolf-bought leaders of Western sheepfolds have thrown the gates open to the wolves of the world. They pour in as the UN plans to use sheep-armies to invade the S. African sheepfold to forceably turn the S. African sheep over to the wolves so that their property can be siezed.

milling, and running back and forth. It forbids the sheep to talk to one another. Will something happen to make the sheep stand still and listen to the Word, the voice of their Shepherd? Will the time come when -on order from the Shepherd - the rams quietly come forward shoulder to shoulder? Or will the sheep close their ears and scatter when the wolves rush in to make them abandon their wealth and flee.

America's new ruler is very un-sheeplike. He has already endorsed abortion and homosexuals. He is a draft-dodger who fled his own country to avoid danger, and was identified as supporting the enemy who were killing his own countrymen - a thing called "treachery" in past ages. He is accused of being a whoremonger, and of siring a mulatto child.

As governor, he was accused of being a notorious liar. So much so that it even offended the wolf-howl - a thing hard to do. The "lie" is most serious because: "A thief is better than a man that is accustomed to lie" Ecclesiasticus 21:25. There is nothing that a liar says that can be believed. The lie is a wolf's trademark.

The wolf-howl pictures him surrounded by "priests." But, his disobedience to the "Word made flesh" speaks louder. Sheep Law demands "If you love me obey my commandments."[12]

The New York Times, on August 13, 1992, p. C1, carried a revealing article by Todd S. Purdum, which states that the president's mother had been married 5 times to 4 husbands, and:

> "At the age of 69, this descendant of Irish farmers and Cherokee Indians has survived ... controversies over the death of two patients in her care, and has seen her younger son, Roger, go to prison for a year and half on drug charges ... ."

It appears that while the tainted DeKlerk is a sheep who runs with wolves, Clinton is a wolf. This presents a problem, because wolves eat sheep.

A wise wolf deserts wolf-policy, and follows the Law of the Shepherd. It is hoped that this leader will be one of those who does this and not follow the traditional leader of his people - "Okee."[13] Time will reveal his master and the sheep's response.

Conclusion

The media-elected "overseer" of the American flock has impeccable credentials - by wolf standards. A loyal palace-guard trained in one hostile-takeover after another stands ready to stage yet another one. As in Vietnam, a ready enemy without food, shelter, or work is being imported by the millions to provide the kindling. A prize worth multi-trillions stands defenseless, ready to be seized - the ultimate prize that Esau has long planned for.

Man, the sheep of God's pasture, was told to rule the world Lawfully and justly. He compromised with evil by tolerating evil. He has seen how the wolf treats his victims in Russia, Germany, South Africa, South Korea, Vietnam, and lately Iraq, and man stood by and allowed it to happen. Is there reason for today's man to expect different treatment?

Paradoxically, the answer is YES!

> "When thou are in tribulation ... even in the latter days, if thou turn to God and shall be obedient ... he will not forsake thee ... nor forget the covenant of thy fathers." Deut 4:30-31

How shall we be obedient? What shall we do that we haven't done?

> "Greater love hath no man than this that a man lay down his life for his friends. Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you, and ordained you, that ye should go and bring forth fruit ...
> These things I command you, that ye love one another." John 15:13-17

God has not forsaken us. He is faithful. He has given us his Law. And, so that we will not forget, he has shown us that sheep who disobey their Shepherd become roasted-mutton on the wolf's table. God gave us the wolf - the lawless, furtive, fleeting, invisible, deceptive wolf to teach us. The wolf cannot exist in a sheepfold that obeys God, much less feed there - unless man is lawless and spreads the table. Lawless man created the problem. The Shepherd's Word stands ready to correct it.

Chapter 223

CORPORATIONS & ESTATES

"Everyone you meet is either a wolf or a sheep."
Wolf & The Sheep

Every government, army, church, or political organization is organized like a sheepfold or a wolf-den.

The shootout at Ruby Ridge and the one in progress in Waco has everything to do with wolves and sheep, corporations and estates. America is witnessing the wolf-den's attempt to stamp out the last remnants of sheep organization.

Corporations Organized Like Wolf-Pack

The Shepherd ordained the self-sufficient Biblical homestead for his sheep.[1] It is there they were told to live. It is 1 Ideally, one should be able to live on his own homestead with the homestead providing every basic need.

the sheep's kingdom. !2 ▒ The king-of- kings who rules the sheep-fold is the Shepherd.

Sheep, free of wolf-domination, live within a sheep-fold and rule their own farm-kingdoms, although they may have business partnerships in nearby trading centers. Wolves live tightly packed together in den-cities. The leader of the sheepfold is the Shepherd. The leader of the wolf-den is the pack leader - the Alpha-wolf prince. The sheepfold lives by the unchanging "Law" of the Shepherd. The wolf-den lives under the constantly-changing "policy" of the Alpha-wolf. Sheepfolds are ruled by Law from the "bottom-up" with every man a king. Wolf-dens are ruled by the alpha-wolf's policy from the top down in a stair-step hierarchy. The sheepfold is composed of "sole ownerships" and "partnerships." The wolf-den is "corporate" in structure and operates under "general policy" outlined in the 10 planks of the 1848 Manifesto.!3▒

The corporation rule in dealing with sheep is; "A sheep does not bite the wolf who feeds him." Sheep who do are shot in the back of the head and burned.!4▒

Corporation

In Britain, "corporations" were a royal monopoly. It used to require an act of parliament for anyone else to incorporate. "Incorporation" limits liability and conceals ownership. The king had much land and many businesses whose titles he wanted concealed from the people. The king was the head of a church that preached that "monopoly" was forbidden[5] by Law. Concealment was better than confrontation. This issue was also of particular importance to the wolf since sheep-law stated that not only was monopoly forbidden, but that sheep are not permitted to deal with wolves,[6] and that wolves are forbidden to rule over sheep.[7]

Modern wolf-corporations are much different from sheep- partnerships and sole ownerships. There is the controlling stockholder (alpha-wolf), and there are the others of the pack who do his bidding. In between the controlling-stockholder and the workers is "management" whom the controlling-stockholder hired to carry out his wishes. They act as enforcers.

Types Of Wolf-Corporations

A wolf-army is organized corporate-style with the corporation providing uniforms, weapons, and pay. Its members are corporation employees. A sheep-army is a militia. The organization of a militia is entirely different.

In Virginia in the 1600s, news of an Indian raid triggered the gathering of "well-armed housekeepers" - all were volunteers. Eight thousand men armed with firearms, swords,

5 "Woe unto them that join house to house, that lay field to field, till there be no place, and they may be placed alone in the midst of the earth." Isaiah 5:8

6 II Cor 6:15- 17, Judges 2:2, Deut 7:2, Pr 6;1,2, Amos 3:3.

7 "Thou mayest not set a stranger (Heb: zûwr - racial alien) over thee, which is not thy brother." Deu 17:15 clothing, blankets, and mounted on their own horses gathered under command of their own elected officers. They were well- trained, having voluntarily gathered to perfect their military skills each month. Since their lives depended on their weapons, they were the best money could buy - state of the art. Virginia had not invested a shilling. The militia WERE the people of Virginia. This was a militia army - organized from the bottom up. The private was a king along with the commander. The verbal contract was the private's obedience to the commander for the time of the emergency only - and then only in military matters.

Anyone whose weapons and equipment were paid for by the royal governor was immediately suspect. He was a hireling. He represented the interest of the wolf.

Nothing's changed. Today's wolf-representatives carry wolf-bought guns and drive wolf-bought cars.

After Virginia's militia thoroughly trounced the Royal Governor's hirelings during Bacon's Rebellion, the attempt was made to replace the militia with regulars and confiscate the militia's guns. That effort was abandoned after a time because there was too much danger from too many Indians and not enough King's men to keep both sheep and red-wolves pacified at the same time.[8]

Militia armies raised by the Continental Congress could seldom stand before the wolf-type armies of the king in open country of wolf-choosing. The attempt to force them to do so almost lost the war.

8 Nevertheless, many who fought with Bacon were hanged and almost all had their estates confiscated (4th Plank - Com. Manifesto). The Hoskins' estate was confiscated at this time and they joined the "little house Virginians."

Britain's magnificent Maj. Ferguson and his top-notch light- infantry, trained in irregular warfare and armed with breechloaders, was shot to pieces by frontier militiamen fighting in the woods at King's Mountain. Militia fighting their own way and refusing to fight wolf-style can be a formidable force. The massive U.S. army in Vietnam never did learn to cope with primitive native tunnel-warfare. Confederate ranger-warfare, sharpshooter battalions, expert engineers, and a "tally" money- system allowed the South's militias to fight 4 long years against overwhelming odds.[9] Five-thousand S. African commandos fought a third of a million British soldiers to a draw. (That's correct - a third of a million!)

The thin grey line of Confederate militia-armies are pictured wearing all sorts of uniforms. Most made their own clothes, made their own shoes, furnished their own armament, and elected their own officers. Except for ammunition and food they were mostly self-sufficient. Most of their supply was provided by their families back home working to supply their needs. Even when made to fight wolf-style, as their general-officers had been trained to do, they almost always beat the hirelings of the massive corporate Union armies - organized from the top down. This scare caused volunteer militia to be banned in America, and the attempt is now being made to confiscate the guns of the "unorganized militia" so they won't be able to come together into organized "neighborhood-watch" militias and present a stumbling block to future wolf plans.[11]

Wolf-Politics In a Sheepfold

Sheep are made kings and priests by their Shepherd. They cannot elect a king to rule them because the King-of-kings - the Shepherd - gave them Saul as an example of what would happen if they did. Men, made kings and priest by the King-of-kings, are to rule themselves. So, for joint-action they elect "project managers." Viking sheep-kings elected a captain for a voyage - but for the voyage only. At voyage end, the captain reverted to being a sheep-king like everyone else. Sheep-kings elect a manager to build a bridge or to govern - but only for a set term - or a set project. He then becomes like other sheep. If he does wrong, the Law specifies punishment, or the next sheep-king manager who is elected will right the wrong done earlier. If the sheep fail to enforce the Law, a "Saul" may rule until the sheep do enforce the Law of the Shepherd.

The sheep-system, run strictly according to the Shepherd's law, banned monopolies. The elected sheep managers did not allow monopolies. The sheep themselves did not allow monopolies. This condition lasted until the wolves found a way around the prohibition. They paid corrupt sheep to authorize "corporations." Corporations often have hidden owners. The corporations with hidden owners bribed managers to allow them to be granted a banking monopoly that practiced banned usury. Using the monopoly- bank money, these corporations bought newspapers. With the owners hidden, the sheep didn't know that those buying the media were turning the media into a wolf-monopoly.[12] They did not know that their familiar sheep-talk had been turned into wolf-talk.

With a media-monopoly, only wolf-loving sheep were granted the needed publicity to be elected. Only "Soviet-style" elections were offered - two candidates - both wolf-chosen by hidden media- owners. "Heads I win - tails you lose." Wolf- selected representatives became rulers of the sheepfold.

Policy In The Plant

As a young man I was a management trainee in a large plant in Richmond. I was given "orientation training"[13] and then shown my job. I knew the plant manager by sight, but not the shadowy "big- brass" who lived in N.Y.. Once a year they sent a representative to inspect. A group of smiling foremen and plant managers escorted the VIP in a dark business suit through the plant.

My job was to supervise a line of machines and keep them running at maximum output. One worker had a definite attitude. He was personally dirty like "Pigpen" in the "Peanuts" comic-strip and spread it around. He started work on a clean machine and left it unbelievably filthy. Workers 12 Not until the 2nd Bank of the U.S. failed was it learned that the majority of the stock was owned in Britain. This is the bank that furnished most of the money that allowed other unknown stockholders to buy up the newspapers and so infuriated Andrew Jackson. The sheep never discovered the names of the owners of the newspaper chains.

13 In wolf- city it's called a "public-school education," in the army "basic- training, in politics "precinct-worker."

from other shifts who took over from him complained. He just stood there smirking - daring me to do something about it. Foolishly, I tried.

I told him to wipe off oil he had dropped on the machine. He knew wolf policy, I didn't. He started wiping, but while wiping he signaled someone. Soon, a puffing, red-faced union representative rushed up wearing his official union face. He raised his arm as a signal and all machines on the whole floor shut down.

Standing in a vacuum of silence, we waited until the shift supervisor could be summoned. When he arrived, the union representative read me, the shift-supervisor, and everyone in hearing the riot act. He related what management had agreed to do. He told the shift manager what the policy was. He told me what I could do and couldn't do. One thing I definitely could not do was to endanger the life and limb of a worker by having him clean a machine while it was running. The shift manager agreed that I had sinned. I agreed that I had sinned. The workers snickered.

I was properly humbled, contrite, and promised never to do it again. The union then gave the OK and the machines started up once more. Policy. I had violated policy. They were right and I was wrong. It was that simple. The entire floor had been shut down for 15 minutes. I was responsible for the down-time of every machine on that floor. Machines that ran day and night and never shut down except for mechanical trouble had been brought to a standstill - for 15 whole minutes - and I was responsible. The production figures that went to New York at the end of that day showed a noticeable drop in production. The phone calls wanted to know whose fault it was? It was the fault of a young management-trainee named Richard Kelly Hoskins, foreman of the 2nd shift plug-making machines.

I asked my superior for a copy of the plant policy that I was supposed to obey. He informed that no such copy existed. It had never existed. It didn't exist! How could someone obey policy if he didn't know what the policy was? I was quietly informed that "everything is policy." There was little in union- management agreements in writing. Then I learned that at all times everyone is violating some policy. The trick was just not to violate the policy being enforced at the moment. The oldtimers laughed and patted me on the shoulder and advised me to never make a decision, keep a low profile, and get an OK for everything I did. I should also try to discover what management wanted, and never ever get involved with anyone who had been called on the carpet.

America's corporate plant is a wolf-den in miniature - from the top down. It is ruled by policy, ever-changing policy, a lawless cruel world, as America is now discovering. A world in which political-reliability is more important than talent and genius. Everything is whim, everything is negotiable. By sheep- standards, there is no loyalty, no honor, no protection. Workers scheme to get another's job. Anyone can be fired at age 55 for no reason. Maximum output is demanded for the lowest cost. People who work for corporate-America develop the defense mechanism of never having an opinion on anything that might be controversial. The only thing they will express an opinion on is the weather, sports, or to agree with the TV announcer. The Corporation demands a slave mentality. Life in the corporate wolf-den reduces men to wage-slaves.

THE ESTATES

Most readers of HR are first, second, and third generation removed from farms. They have been told of a time when people worked hard. Then, women were virtuous and men brave and honorable. It is hard for them to comprehend that in many parts of Europe this very same memory is so old that it has almost been forgotten. Our kinsmen in Europe explain the wolf-system by the concept of "estates" rather than "wolves and sheep."

In days past, society was divided into 3 estates. The 1st estate was the "church," the 2nd estate were the kings and nobles, and the 3rd estate was made up of the rest of the people. The 1st estate were the owners - the church - they owned everything. The outward proof of this wealth was their great cathedrals, by far the biggest structures anywhere.

The 2nd estate was hired by the 1st estate to collect the rents and tithes from the 3rd estate, and to guard the interests of the 1st estate and keep the peace. They were hired "enforcers." They received titles such as "king," "baron," and "knight," and were paid with a cut of the revenues.

Most of the world's wars have resulted from the kings of the 2nd estate having grown so rich and powerful that they felt no need to forward their collections to their employers - the 1st estate. This required the 1st estate to hire other muscle to overthrow the rebel king and replace him with a more reliable king. The Reformation succeeded because the 1st and 2nd estates were at each other throats, allowing the 3rd estate to retrieve its most precious treasure - the Word. The American Revolution succeeded because the tyrannical 1st and 2nd estates of England were weak, and because the American 3rd estate was sent significant aid from the King of France who wished to overthrow Britain. It is one of the very few times in history that a 3rd estate has fought its way to independence. The freedom lasted only a short while, but it was delicious while it did last.

Maintaining 1st Estate Monopoly

A sheep-fold has one class - kings and priests - but still European thinkers call it the 3rd estate. Each one was appointed a kingdom which he is to rule by the Shepherd's Law.

To deprive the sheep of this system requires the violation of their Law. The 1st estate is born when an individual or group takes what another has, in violation of the Law, and keeps it. This is theft. Once the theft starts, it is protected by other Law violations. Lies and murder appear. The simple definition of a "1st estate" may be said to be "those who have or have started a monopoly."

Anyone who will break the Law is a potential recruit to become a 2nd estate enforcer. It takes a liar to tell a serf that God willed him to be a slave instead of a king. It takes a liar to tell honest men that God requires a Bible reader to be burned. It takes a murderer to burn someone for reading the Bible or to coolly shoot a mother with a baby in her arms between the eyes - and say he did it because he was told that she might commit suicide if he didn't. It took a mass murderer to contract with William the Conqueror to invade another's land and replace their ruler with himself, and in the process take freemen and make them serfs. The death of every man who died in these wars lies at the feet of the ones who ordered them to war.

The Monument

The cathedral was the symbol of yesterday's 1st estate, it was the largest building in town. The monument to today's 1st estate success is the marble bank-building - the finest building in downtown USA. Their controlling stockholders rule the world.

The sages agree - the ultimate enemy of Christendom is the one who would war against God by violating his Laws, statutes, and judgments. One need search no farther.

RKH: Beckwith, Zundel, Metzger, David Irving - anyone who could remotely be a rallying point for the American people is being attacked. Anyone who does not connect the attack on these men, the Ruby Ridge and Waco assaults, the suppression of American militia groups, the attempt to confiscate the weapons of America's "unorganized-militia" - with the lack of bomb shelters and anti-missile missiles, the shift of American industry abroad, and the arming and incitement of the wolves - would have difficulty determining day from night.

LETTER FROM AFRICA:

"Dear Mr. Hoskins: Things are very difficult here and if we do not hold on to faith and hope, we will go under. The other side makes a point of it to tell us the 'reform' is irreversible, that we better get used to being under a communist government, and that there is nothing we can do about it. ...

"Thousands of white people lost their jobs and many are still to go. Those left are told how lucky they are and must work longer hours, no pay increases, and more taxes.

"The police stations now have a 70% black force who are openly ANC, while the whites are forbidden to belong to anything..

"Problems have increased a hundred-fold with the immigrants, some from as far away as Uganda. We are armed day and night now and on the alert all the time.

"A disturbing factor is attacks on animals, especially those in the veld which are not dairy herds. Cattle and even calves are mutilated by slashing their lower leg tendons, so that these poor animals can only stand on their knuckles and reach the grass around them, the flesh festers on them and they die starving. We first heard of such cruelty during the Mau Mau period in Kenya. It is part and parcel of savages.

"Most of the large number of whites killed I blame on the political priests who tell their flocks to turn the other cheek and that these blacks are also human and Christian. They really neuter their people to such an extent that they no longer defend themselves.[14]

"The propaganda turned out in the media and movies reminds one of the thing that happened in 1880 and later. WE are the only evil that walks around in this country - the Boer - Afrikaners. I was upset last night but then my husband reminded me that I would do well to remember that if everything was so cut and dried - would they still spend so much time in convincing us?

"Another bit of encouragement was given by an English-speaking architect who is a Christian. He said that during the time when he was in the border war, a company of commandos was on patrol in Botswana and suddenly found themselves surrounded by Cuban soldiers. Things looked black when the speaker started praying and before their eyes a swarm of bees attacked the Cubans and they fled.

"Our prayer must also be that the God of Israel will hear us and deliver us from our enemies. Few of us have arms as good as those the terrorists have, and the little we have they want to take away." Yours faithfully, K. J. - South Africa

FROM WACO: "Dear Richard: Those Davidian people being besieged are looked on here as the most gentle people and good neighbors you ever saw. They are quiet and helpful. The first reports released by the feds say that the ATF attackers were all shot with buckshot - from double-barrel shotguns. Now they are talking about .50 cal. machine guns and high explosives to make themselves look better. They were surprised when they couldn't just walk in and kick the doors down like they were dealing with druggies or someone. That's not to say that after they starve them out they won't display .50 cal. machine guns, tanks, cannon, and anti-aircraft missiles and say they found them inside. If they do - it will be another lie. The fed's haven't told the truth about anything yet." H. D. - Texas SUPPORT: "Dear Richard: I notice that you sympathize with the S. African cause, but not any particular party or leader. Why? - G. M. - South Africa

RKH: None seem to remotely resemble the Paul Kruger-type patriot. DeKlerk of the National Party is conspiring with the ANC and appears to be an outright traitor. The opposition Conservative Party leader, Dr Treurnich, talks, talks, talks, but appears weak-kneed and incompetent. And, the boisterous Terre Blanch, leader of the AWB "commandos," is now being tried by the wolf- front National Party. He was earlier caught in a compromising situation with a woman. Sheep who survive today's wolf-attack will only survive under their master's direction.[15] "The Word made flesh" has appointed each of us kings, and that the leader chosen for the conflict must be the approved kind. The fact that there is a wolf means that there is a gap in the sheepfold fence. A sheep-leader must not only be able to defeat the wolf, he must be able to repair the fence. Banishing the wolf

15 "If ... (they) will not do you justice, lead your army against them, making use of God as your supreme commander, but ordaining a lieutenant under him." Josephus 4:8:41. "Lead an army pure, and of chosen men." Josephus 4,8,41 and leaving the fence unrepaired guarantees another wolf. Leaders who are not obedient to the "Word made flesh" guarantee another wolf-attack tomorrow. In my opinion, an awakened S. Africa will recognize the leader she needs in time to lead them to victory. The "Blood River Compact" is still in force.

DESPOILING CAPTIVES: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I read in your book "Vigilantes of Christendom" that: 'One is not allowed to spoil one's kinsmen when captive, or when killed in battle, because one deals with kinsmen by kinsmen's laws, but one must deal with strangers according to the stranger's own laws because they respect no other. Their law states, 'To the victor belongs the spoil.' Now, on what authority do you make this statement?" Sincerely, S. E. - Washington

RHK: I gave my sources. Under the laws of Israel, soldiers are militia. They volunteer to fight and they furnish everything they carry with them - including weapons, blankets, watches, clothes, and shoes (about $2500 in today's market). To take private property is theft. This rule does not apply to a slave or a mercenary armed and paid by the king. God made his people kings and priests. We live by the Law - the lawless live outside the Law. Josephus had much to say about despoiling the dead. The Southern army tried to keep from despoiling the dead of Northern volunteers in the first part of the war. At that time they furnished their own equipment and it was expensive. There are incidents when paroled prisoners with their possessions including their rifles, marched together with their captors, and waved to each other as their ways parted - one to go home - the other to go to another killing field. Later, the property of mercenaries and draftee-slaves was confiscated, since it was furnished by a king who paid for it with tribute stolen from the people.

BARN BURNERS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: What is the Christian judgment for 'barn burners.' I was taught that in the old days it was the worst thing one could do? Am I right in saying that the burners should be hanged?" T. V. - Massachusetts

RKH: Christian Law is restitution or execution. If it can be restored - one set of rules. If it cannot be restored as in the case of rape, murder, kidnaping, etc. - another. Is it possible to restore a burned barn? Yes.[16] The person should pay. If he cannot pay he is to be reduced to servitude until he works it off. If he runs, he dies. When horse stealing could cause the death of the person thrown on foot - the rule changes. If barn burning could cause the death of the owner - the rule changes. A jury of peers is convened to judge and dispense justice.[17]

SUBMIT TO AUTHORITY: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: The scriptures say "Submit yourself to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake ... for the punishment of evildoers." I Peter 2:13-14. Ordinances are made by man to enforce God's Law. What happens if the authorities don't enforce God's Law? The scriptures say that Jesus did not call on the establishment to drive out the money changers - but did it 16 Restore Ex 22:14 Ox 5/1. Sheep 4/1, If ox or ass is found alive with thief 2/1. Thief steals food - restores 7-fold. Prov. 6:30.

himself. Didn't this make Jesus a vigilante?" - J. H. - Texas RKH: John Calvin is the father of presbyterianism. He had this to say in his Commentaries on Daniel (1561, Lecture 30, on Dan. 6:22

"For earthly princes lay aside their power when they rise up against God, and are unworthy to be reckoned among the number of mankind. We ought, rather, utterly to defy them than to obey them."(GR 41.25)

A footnote in Calvin's book Institutes Of The Christian Religion, page 1519, states: "The position of John Knox is well illustrated in his History of the Reformation in Scotland in the account of his debate with Lethington, 1564, in which Knox cited the Magdeburg Confession ... The Magdeburg (Lutheran) statement affirms the duty of armed resistance to a ruler who violates the law of God."

He elaborates: "I know with what great and present peril this constancy is menaced, because kings bear defiance with the greatest displeasure, whose "wrath is a messenger of death" (Prov 16:14), says Solomon. But since this edict has been proclaimed by the heavenly herald, Peter - "We must obey God rather than men" (Acts 5:29)."

BIGGEST PROBLEM: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: What in your opinion is the biggest problem confronting America?" A. A. - Vermont

RKH: Lack of information. For instance, many people are told that the Mohammedan, the Jew, and the Christian all worship the same God. This, in spite of the scripture that states "In the beginning the word was with God and the word was God." The Koran, the Talmud, and the Bible have little in common - but preachers haven't told people, so they don't know. The nice little pussy-cats that many Judeo-Christians try to rub behind the ears are really lions and tigers. One really ought to know that there is a difference - if he expects to be around very long.

WOLF GOVERNMENT: "Dear Dick; Just finished Wolf and the Sheep. I understand 'wolf-government' for the first time. Everything is held in common for the alpha-wolf to rule at his discretion. He rewards loyalty with 'franchises.' In reality, the alpha wolf continues to own EVERYTHING. Wolves in a sheep-fold will sooner or later convert the sheep-fold into a wolf's-den, including wolf-government - 'communism.' In Africa, all the 'wolf-democracies' have converted into wolf-communist governments. Everything is firmly in control of the alpha-wolf. That's the way wolves and their wolf-packs operate. The wolf-howl can fool the people, but not Mother Nature." C. T. - North Carolina

BUYING T-BILLS: "Hoskins Report: Tell me how to buy T- bills and T-bonds." T. T. - Texas

RKH: The easiest way is to call your stock broker. If you want t- bills without paying a commission - contact your nearest Federal Reserve bank and ask them how to do it. They have a pamphlet that tells you how. T-bonds may require a rapid sale. You may find it best to buy them from your broker. The commission should be modest. Ask.

REMNANT: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I feel that the conclusion of things will find only a very small remnant; the chaff will be removed and the good seed will inherit. Those who have retained the genetic inheritance given them by God, and who have consciously bent the knee to obey, will survive." B. R. - Idaho

RKH: That is what "predestination" is all about. Man was predestined to be sheep. A wolf was predestined to be a wolf. Neither can be anything else. If the wolf strain is there it will come out. If the wolf can persuade sheep to run with wolves - they will be eaten. It's predestined.

Wolves find this gibberish: "He was in the world, and the world was made by him, and the world knew him not. But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name: Which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God." John 1:10-13. This was written for sheep. The switch is either "on" or "off." Sheep obey and survive, or disobey and die. It's predestined. The Shepherd is culling his flock.

WOLF: "Dear Folks: Your book, Wolf & The Sheep, and your articles on wolf and sheep principles are destined to become classics. It is a beautiful way to open peoples' minds to the several thousand years of warfare soon to climax between Jacob and Esau." - O. V. - Illinois

MEDIA INCITEMENT: "Dear Richard: You are right. The Blacks are being agitated into attacking Whites. Spike Lee Jones, the Black movie director will be speaking at Texas A&M soon. "Kwame Ture" just spoke at Baylor University calling for revolution. He used to be known as Stokely Carmichael. Question: How did radicals get our colleges and universities." A. S. - Texas

RKH: Easy. The "controlling stockholder" orders his corporation to make a donation to a college. The college, looking for more, appoints a "corporation-man" to their board of visitors. A five million gift can control a two-hundred million dollar college.

PADLOCKED "Dear Dick: I am very sorry to hear about the padlock on Pete Peters' Church. I know the wolves have been after him for a long time. I pray that he proves to be highly indigestible." P.P. - Texas

RKH: Latest reports say that the key has been returned after everything movable was taken from the church to pay the fine levied against the church to punish them for defeating Colorado's pro-sodomite legislation. The church members are staying on the premises in case they try to carry out the threat to confiscate and auction the church building. Sodomites don't like indigestible Christians.

Chapter 224

CHAIRMAN MAO
&
The Waco Massacre

A person's opinion is a direct result of what has been placed in his databanks. Control the data - and you control the person.

America's Databanks

The government clamped on monopoly control of data concerning their assault on the Waco compound. The only data that went into America's databanks was PsyWar data. All news was tightly censored. Those targeted were denied a voice; reporters were kept 2 miles away; trespassers seeking information were taken into custody; alternate-media reporters were arrested; all news and announcements were channeled through government secret-service spokesmen.

According to the spokesman, the Davidians were "killed accidentally," were "victims of a fire purposely set by their leaders," or committed "mass-suicide." Also, they were believed to have had either "illegal," "unnecessary," or "too many stockpiled guns."

In the 51 days they were under siege, the FBI spokesman found no redeeming virtues in the besieged. They were totally bad; "they cursed," "used 4-letter words," "lied," "were sacreligious claiming to be god," "were insane," "manufactured drugs," "assaulted babies leaving them bleeding," "held children hostage," "sexually assaulted children," "held women hostage," "were suicide-prone," "committed suicide," and - without trial, were pronounced "guilty" by the director of the FBI.

The FBI spokesman and his superiors affirmed that the government- authorized killings were "totally necessary," "good," "benign," "helpful," and "lawful." The actual perpetrators described themselves as "concerned," and "noble." They had "no bad features," had made "no mistakes," and certainly "no bad judgment."

But, Waco is important, but, for reasons other than "PsyWar," "newspeak," and "massacre." It is another milepost down America's misty stream of destiny. It lifts the shade that reveals tomorrow's stark reality.

Basic Differences

There are wolves and there are sheep. There are wolf-people and there are sheep-people. There is a sheepfold and there is a wolf's-den. Sheep are made kings and priests by their Shepherd. They have no superior but the King of Kings. The sheep obey their Shepherd's Law.

Wolves obey their alpha-wolf. Sheep have "Law" - wolves have "policy." Wolves prey on other wolves, and wolves eat sheep. Sheep try to keep from being eaten. This is the world of wolves and sheep.[1]

Government Databanks

"A person is what he reads."

John F. Kennedy required his staff to read Machiavelli's The Prince. This book teaches Princes and their Central Committees how to lie to their subjects.

Col. L. Fletcher Prouty wrote "JFK, The CIA, Vietnam, And The Plot To Assassinate John F. Kennedy." In this book he says that the U.S. military has been ordered to study the writing of Chairman Mao Tse-tung. Again: "A person is what he reads."

You may find out what our government has been studying by obtaining Mao's Little Red Book from your local library. It explains Waco.

China's Wolf-den

China is a nation of wolves. To understand the wolf, one must understand the wolf-den. The wolf-den stands in contrast to a sheepfold.

The sheepfold is composed of "Biblical homesteads," the kingdom given by the Shepherd to his sheep in which each sheep is to be self-sufficient, a king and a priest. The land is never to be sold. Sheep may form partnerships, and joint ventures. They elect temporary project-managers (politicians, ship-captains, or generals) who are hired help. The ultimate power in a sheepfold is the sheep family-unit. This power rapidly vanishes as it rises upward. An intact sheepfold knows no king but their Shepherd - he is their King of kings.

The natural habitat of the wolf is the wolf-den. The wolf-den is structured like a wolf-pack. The alpha-wolf rules supreme and all other wolves stairstep down in authority. Wolves may do as they like, as long as they obey their leader. The alpha-wolf's wish, whim, or policy, is instant wolf-pack law. The wolf-den is ruled like one giant wolf-corporation - a reflection of the wolf-pack itself. There is a hidden controlling- stockholder or "capitalist," whom few have ever seen.[2]

The word "capitalist" is a communist word. It signifies a person's claim to rule is based on wealth. An alpha-wolf capitalist has access to virtually unlimited amounts of money. He hires an agent (king, warlord, president, general, leader) to carry out his wishes.

To aid this executive officer is a Central Committee or "board- of-directors." They may be hand-picked by the "capitalist." If not, the Chief Executive Officer does the picking. Mao was picked as China's CEO. Mao's China is a progression of all that went before.

2 In the communist jargin, the classical "capitalist" is the ultimate alpha-wolf who with his gold gained by usury, monopoly, and tax-tribute, always lurks in the shadows ready and eager to buy agents, assassins, and kings. To the Western world he is a chameleon, ever hidden - but his works are clearly visible. His works can be discovered and delt with - one by one. The longer they remain unchallenged, the harder they are to remove. Eternal vigilance is the price. A secure sheepfold requires that the Watchman make whatever sacrifice is necessary for his people. "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." John 15:13

Wolf-Communism

Communism did not start with Karl Marx. It has existed as long as wolves have existed. The traditional leader of the China wolf- pack was its Emperor. The Emperor appointed his own Central Committee of ministers. All of China stairstepped down in authority.

China is vast. The Emperor and his Central Committee ministers could not effectively oversee everything that was going on. This allowed far-flung areas to form their own little wolf- packs. They were called "clans" - miniature wolf-packs. Most were based on family. They were blood kin. The clan itself owned land. Since the clan leader ("patriarch") was an alpha-wolf, he was also the "landlord" who held 7th and 8th cousins virtual slaves. Some of the clans numbered as many as several hundred thousand. Some a million or more. They operated as independent wolf-packs which existed within the Emperor's greater wolf-pack. The leaders of the larger packs were called "warlords," the smaller ones - "patriarch." China was a conglomerate of a hundred-thousand independent wolf-packs having little in common. The powerful warlords gave only lip-service to the Emperor and the Emperor was afraid of them.

Twentieth Century & Revolution

An alliance of clans overthrew the Emperor. Its spokesman was Sun Yat Sen. He was a usual wolf-spokesman - a communist who called himself something else. He had a powerful brother-in-law, a warlord named Chiang Kai-shek. Both were married to the daughters of Charley Soong - a shadowy international alpha-wolf capitalist who, along with all his family, was educated in the United States and spoke impeccable English. He was the richest man in the world.[3]

Japan invaded China. The leader of China's biggest allied wolf- pack alliance was Chiang Kai-shek. He fought them every step of the way. The shadowy capitalist who backed him brought the U.S. into the war as their ally. FDR's family, the Delanos, had long- standing economic interests in the orient.

China's next largest clan was led by the "Marxist- Leninist- Stalinist communist" - Mao Tse-tung. When Japan was defeated by the U.S., the U.S. double-crossed Chiang Kai-shek and cut off his supplies. Comrade Mao's army was given everything they needed to defeat the Nationalists.

Keep it straight: First the Emperor who ruled as a typical communist potentate, then the Nationalist-communists, and last the Mao-communists. It was the same wolf-pack with different names, different leaders, and different problems.

Mao Cleans House

Mao's communist juggernaut conquered China. Standing at the height of success, Mao was up to his neck in the usual Chinese problems - the same problems his predecessors had had. Mao's Little Red Book, the book studied by our government, states on page 255 that the wolf-pack should operate in the following manner:

3 JFK, Prouty

"We must affirm anew the discipline of the Party, namely:

"1 - the individual is subordinate to the organization;

"2 - the minority is subordinate to the majority;

"3 - the lower level is subordinate to the higher level; and

"4 - the entire membership is subordinate to the Central Committee.

"Whoever violates these articles of discipline disrupts Party unity."

This is standard wolf-talk. Mao, the Chairman of the Central Committee, was describing how he wanted his wolf-pack to operate. His Little Red Book, p. 294, outlines the problems as he saw them, and the problems that he intended to solve:

> "A man in China is usually subjected to the domination of three systems of authority (political authority, clan authority and religious authority) ... for women, in addition to being dominated by these three systems of authority, they are also dominated by the men (the authority of the husband). These four authorities - political, clan, religious and masculine - are the embodiment of the whole feudal-patriarchal ideology and system, and are the four thick ropes binding the Chinese people."[4]

With a little background it is easy to understand what he was talking about. Mao could not govern China for his master as CEO if everything he said had to be approved by tens of thousands of petty alpha-wolves, each of whom rebelled at every turn and who claimed the same power Mao claimed. A powerful wolf-pack can have only one alpha-wolf.

4 "Men and women must receive equal pay for equal work in production. Genuine equality between the sexes can only be realized in the process of the socialist transformation of society as a whole." Little Red Book, Mao, p 97. "Enable every woman who can work to take her place on the labour front, under the principle of equal pay for equal work." LRB, p. 288. Mao is the father of America's "woman's' lib."

Mao's public schools (plank #10 Communist Manifesto) taught a generation of young Chinese the theory of Marxist-Leninism. Educated Mao's way - they were turned loose on China in an operation which Mao called his "Cultural Revolution." This revolution removed clan competition. Clan leaders (landlords) were lined up and shot. Religious leaders were lined up and shot. Millions were transported to other regions to be integrated with strangers to break up kinship unity. Tens of millions died in the cleansing of China. With these obstacles removed, there remained a single leader - Mao. With a single leader - all things are possible.

Mao's Little Red Book on p. 295 explains the reason:

> "The political authority of the landlords is the backbone of all the other systems of authority. With that overturned, the clan authority, the religious authority and the authority of the husband all begin to totter."

Mao set the rule that is slavishly followed by his devotees throughout the world:

> "Before a brand-new social system can be built on the site of the old, the site must be swept clean." Mao's Little Red Book, p. 33[5]

5 America's copy-cat "Operation Clean-Sweep" that resulted in the Sedition Trials was meant to be a similar operation. It failed when the presiding judge rejected the FBI witnesses as being unbelievable.

China Extends Its Shadow - Vietnam

Vietnam was split in two parts. The northern part was ruled by Ho Chi Minh. He was a CIA employee.[6] His army was equipped from the massive unused stockpile of American munitions left over from WWII. The French colonials who returned after WWII found themselves outnumbered, out-gunned, and were quickly vanquished. N. Vietnam became a safe communist "base area" from which raids could be launched throughout Indo-China.

> "When we talk of ... the base area as a factor, we mean that we have an armed people. That is the main reason why the enemy is afraid to approach our base area." Mao's Little Red Book, p. 90

IN. Vietnam's problem was the Catholic Tonkanese Chinese. They were the biggest clan landlords and controlled most of the valuable land in N. Vietnam.

S. Vietnam also had the same problem, but in its case the valuable land was tightly held by thousands of landlord clans who had held the land for centuries and who owned allegiance to no one.

America's CIA solved both problems at one time. CIA PsyWar experts scared the Catholic Tonkanese-Chinese in N. Vietnam by telling them that they were scheduled to be "pacified." In Vietnam, "pacification" means "extermination." The Tonkanese panicked. The CIA arranged transportation for 1,100,000 of these alien people to move to S. Vietnam.

---

6 JFK, Prouty

Vietnam vs. America

VIETNAM: Aliens were transported and dumped onto a native population that had no room for them. They turned to crime and violence to survive. S. Vietnam broke into civil war from one end to the other as natives and invaders fought each other for food.

AMERICA: The unrestricted immigration of aliens into the U.S. is a copy of the Vietnamese plan, which provided the S. Vietnamese with an enemy to fight.

VIETNAM: The CIA chose a leader for S. Vietnam who was descended from the ancient Emperors, but he was a Catholic while most S. Vietnamese were Buddhists. This was a constant irritant to the S. Vietnamese.

AMERICA: The establishment media chose a president for America who is part Cherokee Indian.[7] His brother and sister both have criminal records. His irritating misstatements and anti-Christian positions are resented by the Christian people he was chosen to rule over.[8] This is a replay of what the CIA did to disrupt Vietnam.

VIETNAM: Diem, the S. Vietnamese leader, recruited countless alien N. Vietnamese Tonkanese into his government and army. They abused the S. Vietnamese people they were supposed to help rule. This caused the S. Vietnamese government and its army to become an enemy of the native S. Vietnamese.

7 New York Times, March 13, C1.

8 "He that saith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar and the truth is not in him." I John 2:4, "Thou mayest not set a stranger (Heb: zûwr - racial alien) over thee, which is not thy brother." Deu 17:15

AMERICA: The present American president has recruited over 50% of his top government officials from strangers. The army he commands is heavily recruited from strangers and its commander is a stranger. Many Americans are beginning to look on their own government as the one who persecutes them. This is what happened in Vietnam.

Wolf "Law & Order"

VIETNAM: The U.S. army was sent to Vietnam to "suppress communism" and "restore order." In the process, entire S. Viet villages were leveled and their people moved from clan lands to safe areas where they were integrated with other clans. There was a general confiscation of firearms from S. Vietnam's natives. This prevented them from being able to defend themselves from the Tonkanese in the S. Vietnamese army. Unarmed S. Vietnamese were easier to kill than armed ones.

AMERICA: The forces of the UN stand ready to help "suppress communism" or any outbreak of "terrorism" in America. Farms, each representing an independent "point of resistance" - a "clan" - are being "legally" confiscated wholesale by international usury banks - the "landlord-capitalist" side of wolf-communism. Clan neighborhoods are being broken up and integrated by federal law, and their inhabitants integrated by neighborhood and public schools. A general hue-and-cry is going up from the government to confiscate firearms from Americans. Affirmative hiring is replacing Whites in America's police forces, job forces, and educational system. This is exactly what happened in the Vietnamese-Chinese scenario.

"Base Area" - "Militia"

"Not only must we have a powerful regular army, we must also organize contingents of the people's militia on a big scale." Little Red Book, p. 90.

VIETNAM: N. Vietnam was the "base area" established with the help of the CIA, and was off-limits to attack by American armed forces. This area supplied munitions to keep the war going in the south. S. Vietnamese "militia" guerrilla units set up underground tunnel complexes all over S. Vietnam that the U.S. armed forces was unable to discover or combat. It served as a safe "base-area" for operations against Americans even when placed under American base camps.

AMERICA: Cuba, Israel, China, and Brazil are "base areas" furnishing men and material to America's rebellious and belligerent wolf-packs. They are "off-limits" to reprisals. Inner-city wolf-dens also double as vast safe-zone "base area" arsenals which are largely un-policed. Nightly, highly trained and heavily armed wolves on patrol emerge to wage guerrilla-war, and to murder, rape and rob. The wolf-howl ignores the more than 50,000 sheep-casualties sustained world-wide each day and distracts the sheep's attention with an isolated Rodney-wolf beating. Some point to the "Crips" and the "Bloods" as two of the largest contingents of "the people's militia on a big scale." This hostile build-up of wolf-bands in the midst of America is what happened in Vietnam.

PsyWar

VIETNAM: PsyWar orchestrated by the CIA through Vietnam's media was directed against the native S. Vietnamese whom they wished to make rebellious. The media threatened the S. Vietnamese with "pacification," ie. "extermination." This intensified the peoples' resistance to central authority.

AMERICA: PsyWar in America is geared to do the same thing. The media blame the native Whites for everything. Nothing they do is right, and nothing strangers do is wrong. The media constantly agitate America's wolf-packs to attack Whites. The system that is supposed to dispense justice is blind - to Whites. This forces the victims to protect themselves - an act the media and government brands as "terrorist insurrection!" If the Vietnam experience is duplicated in America, soon, the natives will be the fox to be hunted down and killed, and the strangers, directed by the media, will be the hounds.

VIETNAM: In China, the U.S. denied supplies to Chiang Kai-shek's army. Chiang's army fell - leaving Mao. In S. Vietnam, the U.S. denied the S. Vietnamese army supplies. It fell - leaving Ho's army supreme.

AMERICA: In the U.S. the armament industry is being moved overseas to wolf-nations.

To further incite native America to resist, preferential-hiring practices replace White workers with strangers. Entire capitalist owned American factories are moved to foreign lands to make Americans wage-slaves. Mao's suggestion on p. 9 of his Little Red Book tells why:

> "The ruthless exploitation and political opposition of the peasants by the landlord class forces them into numerous uprisings."

No "ruthless exploitation and political opposition" - no uprising. Could this be the primary reason that America's workers are being laid off and ruthlessly exploited by an artificial tightening of credit by International Banks and competition from "coolie" labor? Without an uprising in the U.S. there is less excuse to "sweep the land clean."

Phoenix Program - the "Finishing Touch

VIETNAM: The CIA, before departing, did its final cleaning of the Vietnamese house with an operation called the "Phoenix Program."

Koreans, Philippinos, Vietnamese, and Americans were recruited into killer-teams whose job it was to liquidate tens of thousands of S. Vietnamese "Landlords" - "clan leaders," "religious," and "political leaders."[9] This put a ribbon on the job. When the Americans left, Vietnam no longer had the problem of countless clan wolf-pack leaders to claim the allegiance of the people and dispute the authority of the alpha-wolf. All blessings and all punishment now unquestionably come from the Vietnam's Central Committee. America had freed one more country from tyranny according to the directions in the Little Red Book. Vietnam was ready to take its place among the liberated nations of the AMERICA: Farmer Kirk was called to his front door, shot down, and left to bleed to death. The nationwide farmers' rally in Kearny, Nebraska, in 1985 to protest the Kirk killing and farm foreclosings was attacked by the media, special interest groups of strangers, and Nebraska religious leaders as nothing else had been attacked in years.

Gordon Kahl,the protester against tax-tribute, was a Christian "separatist." He was shot in the back of the head and burned to death. Bob Mathews was a "separatist" - he was beseiged in a house and burned to death. The Weavers were "separatists," the family was massacred, and the attempt was made to burn them. The Davidians are the latest "separatists" to be burned. Burnt martyrs are getting to be a dime a dozen. To the alpha-wolf, a separatist is the same as a Chinese or a Vietnamese clan-member. He owes his allegiance to God - not the alpha-wolf. His battle cry "It is better to obey God than man" is received as a cry of defiance and rebellion by the wolf-leader. The American Christian "separatist" who obeys his God to "Separate yourselves from among this congregation, that I may consume them in a moment." Num 16:21, will logically be the quarry the wolf will most actively hunt.[11]

The Media Creates A New America

The media has the power to elect presidents, senators and congressmen. The media have the power to send the country to war. The media have the power to cause the LA riots that cost hundreds of millions of dollars in damages. The media have the power to make a sleeze like Rodney King a national hero, while at the same time blacking out the Ruby Creek Massacre. Make no mistake, it knows what it is doing when it condemns the Waco Davidians one day - and condemns the government the next.

It wasn't accident. To set the stage for this change - the media "exposed" the FBI's founder as being a homosexual-sodomite. They gave "eye-witness" accounts of what Hoover looked like dressed up in women's clothes. Coincidence? Hardly.

The new face given the FBI is not the present Director Sessions, whose office is in Washington. For the last two months the FBI spokesman in Waco, the "information officer" has had his face splashed all over TV. It is his face - the hard face, the hard eyes, the one with the unforgiving, strident voice. HIS is the NEW FACE of the FBI.

That sneering mouth and strident voice has daily given "information" about "the compound," formerly the Davidian's "Mt. Carmel Retreat." He, the FBI accuser, accusing the besieged of murder, suicide, pedophilia, adultery, lying, sacrilege, cowardice, planning to blow up the FBI, hiding behind children, hiding behind women, truce breaker, brutality, bestiality - outrageous things.

The media praised his every attack with "amens" - all in unison. He would accuse the Davidians of something, and the media would reply, "Lawd - Ain't it awful." He would tell something else and the media would wail, "awful, awful."

Then, the Davidians were all dead. In an instant, the media "Plan #2" goes into action. It is now the FBI that is "awful." Every story that the FBI had told with "amens" from the media was now re-examined, exposed - . What gives? The Davidians are "awful" one day, and, with no more information to go on than they formerly had, the media now declare that the government is "awful" for their part in "this dreadful, dreadful business."

The ultimate horror story being told is that the FBI used tanks to punch holes in the "Mt. Carmel Retreat" and then inserted nerve gas along with an incendiary mixture. As the nerve-gas reached the besieged they lost control of their muscles and dropped where they were standing - all over the complex. In a conscious state and unable to move they awaited the flames to be incinerated by the fire. This is what is supposed to be the reason that there were so few survivors.

The part that doesn't need confirmation is that the flames instantly belched out of the windows as the tanks backed away. This was visible on video.[12]

Summary

Let us make matters crystal clear.

In the writer's opinion, the media is setting the government against the people and the people against the government - just as was done in Vietnam. Blacks are being incited against Whites and Whites against Blacks. The object - CIVIL WAR!

Why? Who gains by war and blood-shed? Mao tells us:

> "Before a brand-new social system can be built on the site of the old, the site must be swept clean." LRB, p. 33.

From the grave, Chairman Mao loosed the wolves. His devoted followers are leading them on. A thing once set in motion is difficult to be deflected. It is the culmination of the ages - it must be either the Wolf or the Sheep, Jacob or Esau. It is a thing that will have to be seen through to the end.

Everyone's choice is simple, there are only two; the Sodomites or the Saints - Heaven or hell. There will be no second choice, and no second chance. What the establishment did in China and Vietnam - they will try to do here. The Mao mentality never changes.

12 The president clarified the lesson made by the Waco holocaust when he commented, "People will now be deterred from joining cults by what they have seen." His definition of an American "cult" will doubtless be the same as Mao's definition of a "Chinese clan." Supporters of Thomas Jefferson's policies could be considered a "cult."

MEETING GORBACHEV

Gorbachev came to Poplar Forest, Thomas Jefferson's other home, to speak at his 250th birthday celebration. It was an attempt to reconcile East and West. I sat 15 feet from where he spoke and could hear every word clearly.iGorbachev;meeting

The affair went off as one would have expected it to. Gorbachev was expected at 5:30 and arrived at 6:15. He was expected to use the long single lane entrance to the mansion that went through field and wood to arrive at the front entrance where a welcoming party waited. Instead, his cavalcade, arriving from Charlottesville, used the back service entrance, blocking the cars of the guests arriving by the private drive, a single lane road. It caused the most colossal traffic jam one can imagine until the Russian cars could be moved .[13]

Gorbachev is a little above medium height and has a nice face. His head tends to round at the hat-brim in the slavic manner, and his tattoo-like birthmark on his head is as distinctive as his pictures make it out to be. He wore a dark blue business suit in today's Russian manner. The guests wore black tie.

He is a good speaker even when speaking through an interpreter, who was a bald headed type with a Bolshevik mustache. He spoke of Thomas Jefferson, "who showed the world the way to democracy." He then spoke of the book that he was writing - "a book to make me and my decisions look better than they really were," which brought a laugh.

13 I was later told by an "expert" on Russia, that to establish precedence; "Russian leaders give instructions, they don't obey them - just to prove that they don't have to."

He next chided "timid investors" who overlook Russia as the world's new "land of opportunity," and the need for "economic cooperation." He went on to say that Russia's present desperate need for money should not have to wait on Russian disarmament, "a matter that will necessarily take considerable time."

It was a good talk and he was given a standing ovation.

Thomas Jefferson needs no help to stand alone after today's illuminaries have departed, and, if I were a wagering man I'd bet that he would have said "amen" to Kipling's, "East is east and west is west and never the twain ..."

LETTERS

Dear Richard: I need your help. My son Yorie was sent to prison following a shoot-out between my husband, Gordon Kahl, and US Marshals in Medina, ND in Feb 1983. This incident stemmed from a dispute between Gordon and the IRS. Yorie was finally granted a parole hearing in early December 1992. From the tone of the hearing, he had good reason to believe that he would in fact be granted parole.

In late December, only days before he expected a decision from the parole board, he was charged with violating prison rules by concealing a knife in his cell. My son may be opinionated, but he's not crazy! He demanded that the knife be examined for his fingerprints and his demand was refused by prison officials.

After a hearing, he was found guilty of rules violation solely on the testimony of the one guard who allegedly "found" the knife. Yorie has been denied parole AND placed in 24 hour solitary confinement where he sits to this day. I have good reason to believe he will be re-located to a maximum security prison in Colorado to spend the rest of his life in solitary confinement. Animals receive better treatment!

I retained a lawyer to investigate this matter. He agreed to work for half his normal fee. In addition, there will be investigator's fees and other legal expenses which will have to be paid. Any litigation with the federal government will be time consuming and costly.

Yorie and I have no money. The government took all that Gordon had and shot our N. Dakota farm home to pieces before killing Gordon down in Arkansas. If there is ANY other way I would not be writing you, I simply need help for my son. He loved his father and stood by him.

Donations are NOT a tax exempt contribution. They simply help me to help Yorie in this latest effort of the government to destroy my family for refusing to obey man rather than God. Sincerely, Joan Kahl Britton WACO: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I just heard of the monstrous murder of 86 people in the Koresh compound - a burnt offering sacrifice to the devil. The siege was apparently prolonged in the attempt to spark a rebellion by white Christians. If they had, they would have been shot down by the ready and waiting Federals. This would then have been used as an excuse to attack Christians nationwide. The other half - the attempt to topple the World Trade Center would have taken 50,000 lives. Both operations failed so other things will be done toward the same end. The cover story is that Koresh and company committed suicide. They committed suicide like Gorden Kahl committed suicide and their bodies were burned to conceal the evidence. It's hypocrisy, that's what. If the feds want unregistered, illegal firearms, and criminals who use them all the time to commit murder, rape, and robbery - come here to NY City! They are all over the place. Those guys in Texas didn't hurt anyone. If the policemen who arrested Rodney King are guilty of using excessive force, what can one say of the federal murderers in the Waco and Weaver cases? I'm sure more persecution is on the way." S. MD on AIDS: "Dear Richard: For your information there are a couple of Mexican MD's who report that AIDS can be spread by mosquitoes. If they can carry a protozoa (malaria) why not a virus? I challenge doubters with this test: A physician working at the construction of the Panama Canal figured that the mosquitoes carried yellow fever. His discovery was ridiculed. He went into a closed room with a yellow fever patient and 12 mosquitoes. Within a week the mosquitoes had transferred the disease from the infected patient to him. Let the AIDS doubters go into a room with an AIDS infected patient and 12 mosquitoes. If the doubter gets AIDS - case proven!" MD - Georgia

Trade-Religions Sell "Indulgences"

All religions have two basic creeds.

Christianity has two basic creeds. The first is THE WORD - God's Laws, statutes, and judgments. The second is "TRADE-CHRISTIANITY." "Trade-christianity" sells "indulgences" to permit merchants to violate God's" Laws, Statutes, and Judgments." Indulgence-sellers are called "baal-priests" by the faithful.[1]

"Trade-christianity" actively censors the 70% of the Bible dealing with government which might hinder the merchant paymaster and his trade. "Trade-priests" do what they are paid to do, and Christians despise them for it.

1 In former years an "indulgence" was a written document sold by the Roman Catholic Church to permit the purchaser to sin at some point in the future. Today's "indulgences" work the same way. First, merchant-courts determine that The Word hindering trade is illegal. Religious endorsement is needed to avoid danger from an irate God and his followers. To "bless" things cursed by The Word is the reason "trade- christianity" was created and financed by the international- merchant community. "Indulgences" are purchased with "tax- exemption," substantial donations, immunity from harassment, and media access.

Trade Religion In Virginia

Before the Revolution, almost everyone in Virginia was Episcopalian - "Church of England." The king was its head. He appointed bishops and they appointed ministers. There were Presbyterian and Baptist dissenters, but their lives were hard. Very hard. One of my grandfathers preached to his congregation from the barred window of the jail at Bowling Green. A grandmother who married a Baptist preacher was disinherited and her name stricken from the family Bible.

Dissenter Beliefs

Dissenters read the 70% of the Bible that deals with government and discovered that they were being deprived of specific basic rights promised them by their God. The king's own Episcopalian priests said that only the king was entitled to these rights. Dissenters quoted the Bible and insisted that Christ was their only king, that the King of England had stolen their "God-given rights" and made monopolies for himself - that taxes were wrong, and that black slavery was evil - that neither the Blacks nor the Indians should even be allowed in Virginia. The king's church insisted that the king had the right to do as he liked.

Dissenter beliefs reflected The Word as taught by John Calvin and John Knox. The king's Episcopal Church doctrine reflected the business needs of the king. The king's Episcopal Church enforced the king's own private "state-religion" on the people of Britain and America. It was a

"trade-religion" different only in detail from the one we have today that goes by many different names.[2]

At the outbreak of the Revolution, the king called his priests back to England. America's grand churches had no preachers and stood empty. Gradually they were filled by dissenting congregations who taught - The Word - which included the 70% of the Bible that deals with government. This God-revealed knowledge made America's government and method of transacting business different from the rest of Christendom.

Gods & Religions

- Gods protect their peoples with laws that may not be violated.
- Trade-religions are invented by merchants who want to do business in violation of the laws of gods.
- Their natural enemy is the god they defy. The defied god curses the defiant.
- Those who insist on following the banned god are hunted down and persecuted to facilitate trade.

"MAO & "Trade-Communism"

Chinese have only one word for foreigners - "foreign-devil." A foreigner has always been a "foreign-devil." That's it. China's hodgepodge of religions agreed on one thing - a "foreign-devil" was bad.

2 Surviving "Church of England" churches in Virginia dating from colonial times are mostly fine large brick buildings, built with tax-free grants and donations. Dissenter churches were small and poor. State-priests were well fed and prosperous. Dissenter teachers were often hungry. Episcopal priests were often noted for their over-indulgence in food and drink. They winked at each other's peccadilloes and those of their parishioners. Dissenters were zealous and puritanical. Episcopal priests were usually devoid of Biblical knowledge. Dissenter teachers were by comparison - walking Biblical encyclopedias. Little has changed.

Mao shot China's priests, and converted the Chinese into "communists."

Communists are "comrades." "Comrades" get along with "comrades." A "foreign-devil" is a comrade - if he is a socialist. Chinese no longer greet foreign trade-representatives with the abrasive "Greetings, foreign devil." This sort of talk has inhibited trade in the past. Communism has changed the Chinese world outlook. "Communism" is China's new "trade-religion." A nation's "trade-religion" is designed to get along with other people's "trade-religions." That's why they were created. China is now open for business - for the first time in her long history. All she needed was a little missionary work by Chairman Mao. Any Chinese who does not agree is shot. Communist China has prepared herself to enter the 21st century. "Good morning, Comrade." "Bless you, my son."

"Islam" vs. "Trade-Islam"

I was a stock broker for 33 years. One stock I bought for my customers was a small well managed oil-drilling equipment maker. It paid a good dividend, had no debt, and fluctuated between $8 and $15. It was very predictable and very profitable when bought low and sold high.

At that time the Arabs had a great deal of oil money. They offered this company a contract to furnish oil-drilling equipment. A dispute arose which was taken before an Islamic court. This court imposed such a severe fine on the American company that the company had to be turned over to the Arab customers to satisfy the judgment. This story is not unique.

Islam Adopts "Trade-Religion"

Abusive conduct, such as that above, was prevented in the Near East until a few years ago. The U.S. government would send a squadron of ships to the offending nation. After shooting up a few cities and sinking a few ships the offending nation would see the error of its ways and correct its courts, its people, and their god. Their king would command that his courts treat American foreigners like Westerners would like to be treated - in order to do business.

Regardless of what Mohammed and the Koran demanded; regardless of what the mullahs preached on street corners - Western "justice" was incorporated into "Islam," changing it into "trade-Islam" enforced by the state - a "state-religion" that international merchants needed to do business in that part of the world. Without it the land of Mohammed would get no radios, TVs, autos, or oil-drilling equipment. Westerners, from their viewpoint, called it enlightened "gunboat-diplomacy." Islamic teachers of the old Islamic religion called the changes "heresy."

In this manner, a hated "trade-Islam" was created for muslims and placed above the Koran, the bedrock of the muslims' true religion. It was enforced by the police power of the state. This enabled Islam to profit from Western trade and technology. This in turn allowed Islam to enter the 20th century.

Islam has TWO religions: A trade-Islam enforced by the state, and "Islam" of the Prophet. The first was the religion created for those who deal with the international merchants. The other is the suppressed religion of the Arabic peoples. The two war for the soul of Islam.

The "enlightened" President Nasser of Egypt supported "trade- Islam" to bring Egypt into the 20th century. He was shot by followers of the "Islam of the Koran."

Islamic fundamentalists won an election in Algeria. They were kept from taking power by politicians enforcing Algeria's "trade- Islam." Trade-Islam and "Islam of the Koran" war with each other.

Islamic Fundamentalists Are Winning

On May 11, 1993, the News & Daily Advance, Lynchburg, carried a squib buried on p. A3, whose headlines stated: "Egypt Pardons Americans Jailed On Religious Charges." The squib went on, "President Hosni Mubarak pardoned three Americans accused of promoting Christianity among Muslims ... Mubarak apparently acted under pressure from the U.S. The government has refused to discuss the case."

This short article reveals five things. First, the "trade-Islam" of Egypt is being gradually replaced by the "Islam of Mohammed." Second, the practice of Islam has filtered into the upper levels of government where state-power jailed practitioners of "trade- Christianity." They were then released to make Arabs acceptable business partners to Westerners. Fourth, it required intervention by the U.S. government to secure the release of the accused. And fifth and last - to conceal the seriousness of the matter from Christians, the international merchant's-media buried the news in a two inch squib on page A3.

Conquered Christians' "Trade-Religion"

Traditionally, Christians who have been conquered and forced to live under Islamic rule must drastically change the practice of their religion. They must obey their new masters, emigrate, or die. If they choose to stay where they are, they must obey the requirements of their new masters. The following is how Christians who fell under the rule of Islam changed their Christianity into a "trade-religion" to try to stay alive. The record is contained in a document called The Covenant Of 'Umar written by a "Christian" leader who protested that he was doing all that his Arab conquerors required of him so that he would be allowed to live, eat, and transact business. It reads as follows:

The Covenant Of 'Umar

"When thou camest into our land we asked of thee safety for our lives and the people of our religion, and we imposed these terms on ourselves; not to build in Damascus and its environs church, convent, chapel, monk's hermitage, not to repair what is dilapidated of our churches nor any of them that are in Muslim quarters; not to withhold our churches from Muslims stopping there by night or day; to open their doors to the traveler and wayfarer; not to shelter there nor in our houses a spy, not to hide one who is a traitor to the Muslims; to beat the nakus only gently in our churches, not to display a cross on them, not to raise our voices in prayer or chanting in our churches, not to carry in procession a cross or our book, not to take out Easter or Palm Sunday processions; not to raise our voices over our dead, not to show fires with them in the markets of the Muslims, nor bring our funerals near them; not to sell wine nor parade idolatry in companies of Muslims; not to entice a Muslim to our religion nor invite him to it; not to keep slaves who have been the property of Muslims; not to prevent any relative from entering Islam if he wish it; to keep our religion where we are; not to resemble the Muslims in wearing the kalansuwa (a tall cap), the turban, shoes, nor in the parting of the > hair, nor in their way of riding; not to use their language nor be called by their names; to cut the hair in front and divide our forelocks; to tie the zunnar round our waist; not to engrave Arabic on our seals; not to ride on saddles; not to keep arms nor put them in our houses nor wear swords; to honor Muslims in their gatherings, to guide them on the road, to stand up in public meetings when they wish it; not to make our houses higher than theirs; not to teach our children the Koran; not to be partners with a Muslim except in business; to entertain every Muslim traveler in our customary style and feed him in it three days. We will not abuse a Muslim, and he who strikes a Muslim has forfeited his rights."[3]

A form of the above covenant is now being put into force in the West by the merchants who rule it. Except for a few key words and phrases used to make trade-priests appear beliveable - today's "trade- christianity" would be unrecognizable to the reformers John Calvin and John Knox.

Koran Study Restricted

Note particularly that in the above the study of the Koran was forbidden to Christians.

There are many things in the Koran that are "inconvenient" for conquered peoples to learn about their conquerors. One thing that could cause a conquered people to revolt is that in the Koran's Book of Repentance there are 16 directives to kill Christians - 9, 5, 12, 14, 20, 24, 29, 36, 41, 44,

3 The Caliphs & Their Non-Muslim Subjects, A. S. Tritton, Frank Cass & Co, 67 Great Russell Street, London, WC1 1970

73, 81, 86, 88, 111, and 123.[5] A Christian learning this might flee in panic and thereby disrupt trade. There are many other restrictions. In other words, there is nothing a conquered people can do to truly satisfy Islam other than deny their own god and convert to Islam. The screws will tighten until those conquered by Islam convert or die. The exceptions are a few distorted and twisted simi-acceptable "trade-religions" that remain in those lands, and even after making all these concessions their lives are hard.[6]

When "Islam of the Prophet," emerges supreme over the "trade- Islam" of the merchants, Islam's commerce with the rest of the world will grind to a halt, as it did before. Trade will be replaced with conflict, as it did before. The choice will be between "conflict," "armed neutrality," or "bribes" to pay muslim rulers to suppress "Islam of the Koran" in favor of a docile "trade-Islam."

Trade-religions result from the needs of merchants, and in the long run satisfy only the merchants and their employees who profit at the expense of their fellows.

All Religions Conceal Their Secrets

Poker players will not let other players see their hands. Competing religions will not allow other religions to learn their secrets.

Islam hides its religion from strangers. It tries to see its

5 The Koran is availabe from Va. Pub. Co., PO Box 997, Lynchburg, VA. 24505. $5.95 plus $3 ph.

6 This is the reason for the command; "They shall not dwell in thy land, lest they make thee sin against me. I Ki 4:21,24. If unable to prevent that; "Come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord." 2 Cor 6:17 opponent's hand while hiding its own. Releasing the three Americans satisfied the requirements of "trade-Islam" but violated the Koran. It was done to satisfy trade agreements. The release does not represent true Islam. Islam of the Prophet trades with "the infidel" only until it is able to "take."

Jews Restrict Study Of Talmud

Jews and Christians do the same The Jewish Talmud instructs its followers on how to handle those who would learn its secrets:

(1) "Kill the gentile who studies the Torah." Talmud (Exh. 60). (2) "A Goi who pries into the Law is guilty of death." (Sanh 59a, Pranaitis, p. 77).

Trade-religions don't want their trading partners to learn about the secrets of their "true religion." All religions contain things they do not want those with whom they trade to know about. The Talmud has its share:

(1) "If a Jew is able to deceive them (idolaters) by pretending he is a worshiper of the stars (their religion), he may do so." Iore Dea (157,2. Hagah) (Vilna edition of 1873). (2) "How to interpret the word 'robbery'. A goy is forbidden to steal, rob or take women slaves, etc. from a goy or a Jew. But a Jew is NOT forbidden to do all this to a goy." Tosefta, Abada Zara VIII, 5., (3) "A Jew may rob a goy - that is, he may cheat him in a bill, if unlikely to be perceived by him." Schulchan ARUCH, Choszen Hamiszpat 28, Art. 3 and 4., (4) "On the house of the goy one looks on as on the fold of cattle." Tosefta, Erubin VII, 1., (5) "All property of other nations belongs to the Jewish nation, which consequently is entitled to seize upon it *without any scruples. An orthodox Jew is not bound to observe principles of morality towards people of other tribes. He may act contrary to morality, if profitable to himself or to Jews in general." (6) "A Jew should and must make a false oath when the goyim (Gentiles) asks if our books contain anything against them." Schulchan Aruch, Choszan Hamisz*pat 348. Szaaloth Uts-zabot, the Book of Jore Dia 17.

To a non-Jew, this "Talmudism" or Zionism[7] can be scary. However, most Jews aren't Zionists. They practice a "trade-religion" called Judaism. In thirty-three years as a stock broker I personally never knew a Jew to break a verbal business contract once he agreed to it. That is "trade-judaism." Others may have had different experiences based on the beliefs of the individual Jew.

Talmudism, or political-Zionists, enforcing the Talmud as their "law of the land," gradually end all business relationships with strangers. Talmudism is selfish. It demands, takes, and abuses. It makes slaves of all whom it encounters. Like Islam, no concessions are enough. "Palestine" shows what a world ruled by Zionists is like. Like Islam, it must conceal itself to avoid unfavorable reactions. Christianity is no different.[9]

7 ZIONISM: Zionism believes in a Jewish Palestine "ingathering" to speed the coming of Moshiach (their messiah), due in the Hebrew year 6000 (mid 23rd century). Jewish holy books declare: "When the Messiah comes, every Jew will have 288 slaves." Simeon Haddarsen, fol. 56-D. And; "As soon as the King Messiah will declare Himself, He will ... start a merciless war on non-Jews and ... slay them in masses ... He will say to the Jews: 'I am the King Messiah for whom you have been waiting. Take the silver and the gold from the goyim.'" Josiah 60,6, Rabbi Abarbanel to Daniel 7, 13. Still, some Zionists claim to be atheists.

Christian Restrictions

Christianity is more restrictive than all other religions - including Islam and Zionism - which is why it is the most censored religion in the world. It has to be censored if international- merchants are to do business within its realm. They find uncensored Christianity to be unbearably narrow, exclusive, and restrictive. They must bind The Word and insist that "The Law is done away" - to do business.

The Word forbids monopoly (Isaiah 5:8) - monopoly in land, newspapers, money, banking, and food. It allows usury when practiced against a stranger and denies it when practiced against a Christian (Deut 23:20). It makes usury a capital crime (Ezek 18:13). It demands that media false witnesses be punished - some with capital punishment (Deut 19:16-21). It forbids taxes (Matt 17:25-26). It forbids jail terms of more than 7 years (Deut 15:12-15) - longer terms than 7 years are classified as "kidnaping" and kidnaping is a capital crime (Ex 21:2). It forbids jail terms for murder (Num. 35:29-30). It calls sodomy a capital crime (Lev 20:13); it forbids strangers from entering a church (No 1:51); it absolutely forbids a stranger from preaching (Ex 30:25-33); it forbids foreclosure of family farms (Lev 25:13- 28); it forbids trade with strangers (Pr. 6:1); it forbids

9 "Thou shalt make ... an oil of holy ointment ... And ... whosoever putteth any of it upon a stranger (Heb: zûwr - racial alien), shall even be cut off from his people (killed)." Ex 30:25-33, "Give not that which is holy unto the dogs, neither cast ye your pearls before swine, lest they trample them under their feet, and turn again and rend you." Matt 7:6, "Thou shall no stranger eat of the holy thing." Lev 22:10

them to live in the land (I Ki 4:21); it requires evangelizing kinsmen (Mark 16:15- 16); and forbids evangelizing strangers (Matt 10:5,6); it forbids interracial marriages (Deut 7:3); it demands divorce from strangers (Neh 13:3); and it identifies its own with the 3-proofs of Israel.[10]

Such are the rules that prevent proscribed merchants from practicing their trade in the West. To trade they must first secure "indulgences" that bless what The Word curses.

Rome's Christian Problem

Rome had this problem. The Roman Emperor WAS the "international- merchant" - he had confiscated everyone else. He had a monopoly on everything - banks, businesses, land - everything! The people held business franchises, rented from him, worked for him, or were his slaves.

The Christian religion, "The Word made flesh," spread through the Roman Empire. People obeyed The Word. They demanded their God-given rights. They fought the emperor's monopoly - taxes, slavery, usury-banking, etc. It hurt business. Persecution could not stamp it out.

Rome's Solution - A State Religion

This abrasive religion had to be changed if the Emperor was to transact business-as-usual. The emperor's name was

10 3-PROOFS OF ISRAEL: (1) God's name - CHRISTIANS - "They shall put my name upon the children of Israel." Num 6:27 (2) Isaac's name, SONS OF ISAAC - ISAACSONS - SAXONS, "In Isaac shall thy name be called." Romans 9:7, and (3) Adamic descent. "Man" in Strong's Concordance is the Hebrew "Adam." "Adam" means to "blush red." "Show blood in the face." Genuine Israelites can produce all three proofs. "CHRISTIAN"-"SAXON"-"MAN."

Constantine. He was the murderer of his own wife and eldest son. Unable to subdue Christianity, he adopted it and became its head. He made it the "official religion of the Empire." This new "trade- religion" was his creation. He appointed its officials and told it what it could and could not do. The 70% of the scriptures dealing with government was suppressed. It is not surprising that Constantine's censored "trade-christianity" gave its blessing to everything that Constantine wanted to do.

Christians who continued to follow The Word were branded "heretics" and "enemies of the state." The two religions - The Word, and Constantines' "trade-christianity" have been at war ever since.

Ban The Book

To keep The Word from again spreading and obstructing trade, the people who read the Bible were killed. For centuries Western peoples submitted to "church-blessed crime" because "trade-christianity" censored The Word and the people didn't know better. Every-so-often individual Catholic priests would realize that the church was not giving the people their rights and would tell them. The church leaders would find out and kill them all. Constantine's monopoly remained intact.

Overthrowing The Trade Religion

The King of England wrestled the wealth of the Catholic Church into his own hands and made himself its head. He was now god's representative on earth. He continued to do all the things that were forbidden. To protect his monopoly he burned those who read The Word.

Those he persecuted fled to Geneva. Once there, people like John Calvin, John Knox, and others of their kind translated the Bible into English. To protect his monopoly the king banned this Bible from Britain.

In spite of the ban, the Bible was smuggled in and everyone read it. Readers peeked into corners hidden for more than a thousand years - corners illuminated by the margin comments of the leading lights of the Protestant Reformation.

The king's authority, his "trade-christianity" religion, was being dismantled by people who read "The Word. Readers saw that the readers themselves were "kings and priests," since "Jesus Christ ... hath made us kings and priests" Rev 1:5,6. The reader was perfectly capable of understanding. The scriptures took on an entirely new meaning. The banned 70% that deals with government was common knowledge for the first time in 2,000 years.

Britain read The Word, and believed The Word, and rose up and overthrew the king. Judges were appointed who used The Word as the law of the land.

Removing THE WORD

The international merchants were shut out. They could no longer use the king as their agent if the people had done away with the king. It was impossible for them to transact business under The Word, so, they financed an English counter-reformation led by a turncoat who reinstated "trade-christianity" under his "protectorate." Following him, a replacement king was financed to retain the same agreeable "trade-christianity." (There is no limit to applicants for the job of "king.") The Geneva Bible was banned and the KJ Bible introduced. The king was again head of the church and his priests again obediently blacked out the 70% of the Bible dealing with government.

It worked. The Reformation died - choked in blood. The international merchants had won once more. BUT, the truth was loose in the land. There were still those who refused to follow the pied pipers who cheerfully stonewalled The Word for a price.

Trade-religions - Do's & Don'ts

Following World War II, the international merchants vowed to open up the entire world to their trade. Certain adjustments needed to be made in the Far East, the Near East, and in Christendom.

The Far Eastern trade obstacle was the ancient beliefs protecting China. Mao fixed that. The Near East problem of Islam is currently being handled by the American army aided by bribed puppet Islamic-leaders.

The Western nemesis of world trade is The Word. It too is scheduled to be tamed along with trouble-making zealots, if any. As with the other religions, Western Christianity is challenged with a "trade-religion" whose job it is to change the merchants' "curse" into a "blessing."

Co-operative churchmen are given tax-exemption and a chance at the jackpot - "media access" - the royal road to riches and fame. These priests have been helped by being given ALL the publicity while The Word was blacked out. The people of the West have been given the impression that there is only one religion - the one promoted by the media - "trade-christianity."

What Trade Priests May Do

This past Sunday this writer flicked through the TV stations to listen to the televangelists. The speakers were good. Most of the sermons were good. All were instructive. They were entitled: "Anointing of the Holy Spirit," "Salvation," "Talk about the Word Of God," "'He Is With You," "Get to Know Him," "Helping the Disadvantaged," "Keeping the Love of Jesus Alive," "Tithing," "Prophesy," "Revelations," "The Secret of Forgiving," "The Evil of Sarcasm," "Forgiveness," "Grace," and "Pride."

In their sermonettes these churchmen complained about the removal of the Bible and prayer from schools, the banning of religious displays, and crime in the schools and in the streets. They also felt sorry for the Somalians, the Vietnamese boat people, and the people of the "inner-city." They criticized the "New Age Movement," the occult, pornography, homosexuality, and abortion. They opposed lawlessness, and encouraged obedience to government edicts.

But, they did not say what he Word required to combat this evil in the land. Cities are burning, murder, rape, and kidnapping are rampant. What is the solution? What is the cure for riots? murder? rape? kidnapping? These preachers didn't say what the The Word requires. Not one word. Why?

What Trade Priests May Not Do

It deals with government. "Trade-priests" MAY NOT infringe on the 70% of the Bible that deals with government. This area is "off- limits" and is the sole prerogative of the international- merchants - so that they themselves can protect their business interests.

This means that the "Laws, statutes, and judgments" of The Word dealing with the regulation, taxing, punishment, and governing of the people - this 70% of the Bible - may not be trespassed upon by ministers - if they expect to be paid by these same merchants.

The "trade priests" may proclaim that they are for "love" and against "sin." But, they may not define either by quoting scripture.[11] To do so would be to call upon The Word, and that is forbidden. They most definitely MAY NOT define The Word itself; "In the beginning was the WORD, and the word was with God, and the WORD was God." John 1:1. Neither may they define "Jesus" as being "The Word made flesh." He must be defined as the "god of luv" - a nice fellow with long blond hair who can "come into your heart." That's harmless enough.

Churchmen are not allowed to quote the "Ten Commandments." When is the last time you heard a preacher recite the "10- Commandments?" In condemning "murder," they may not state the punishment for murder (Num. 35:29-30;). In speaking against sodomy they may not state the Biblical punishment.[12] Neither may they object to prison terms of more than seven years - which is kidnaping,[13] and slavery, a crime worse than theft, or the punishment that is to be inflicted for the violation of this law (Ex 21:16). "Trade-priests" may never, never, blaspheme against the international merchants by using THE LAW of The Word to condemn their acts. That would be calling upon the God of the Christians.

11 "If ye love me obey my commandments." John 14:15, "Sin is the transgression of the law." 1 John 3:4

12 "If a man lie with mankind, as he lieth with a woman ... they shall surely be put to death." Lev 20:13

13 "If thy brother ... be sold unto thee and serve 6 years; then in the seventh year thou shalt let him go free." Deut 15:12-15

In short - most of today's "churchmen" present "half the story."[14] They preach a trade-religion and remove the "teeth" for a price. They refuse to pronounce the punishments contained in the The Word and its "Laws, statues, and judgments." Some attempt to win supporters by decrying some of the latest abominations being practiced. Some may even believe, as did Knox and Calvin, that Saxons are the lineal descendants of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. The more theatrical jump up and down and storm against evil and proclaim righteouness! But, if they do not reveal the "rights" denied to the people that are revealed in the censored scriptures, the 70% of the Bible that deals with the rules of government of Christendom, those preachers deny "The Word made flesh." Whosoever denies "The Word made flesh," the scripture brands an "anti-Christ."[15]

Trade-religions vs. Trade-religions

Trade-christianity gets along famously with other trade-religions. Trade-communism, trade-islam, trade-judaism, and trade-christianity delight in the company of each other - their trading partners. Trade-religions are flexible and broadminded. Their priests have nothing but the best. They operate out of flashy and expensive churches, mosques, and temples. They flaunt glorious rituals and stand for little considered controversial. They serve their god - "trade."

14 The handout pamphlet Censored Bible Teachings is available from Va Pub Co, PO Box 997, Lynchburg, VA 24505, 100/$10.

15 "Deceivers ... who confess not that Jesus Christ ("The Word made flesh") is come in the flesh. This is a deceiver and an anti-christ." 2 John 7

Religious Conflict Heralds A New Day

The Word has all sorts of problems with Zionism. Militant Zionism and Islam have all sorts of problems with The Word. Each is mutually exclusive. In addition to having problems with each other, each has monumental problems with their own competing "trade-religions."

Trade-religions of all types are destructive of the peoples over whom they exercise power. The injured and abused seek safety by returning to the teachings of their old god - teachings that promise safety.

This guarantees the fulfillment of the prophesy:

> "They will each turn to his own people, and each one will flee to his own land." Isaiah 13:14-16

This is happening in Russia. It is happening in Yugoslavia. It will happen in America and the rest of the West. When that day comes - woe unto the false shepherds - the teachers of "half a god."

In Christendom, you are the reason the land has not been divided so that "kings" may come into their kingdoms. You are the reason there are no jobs, that men live in a crime-ridden country. You cause our men to be loaded into cattle-boats and sent to foreign lands to fight people with whom we have no quarrel. You are the reason our women are raped, our children disappear forever, and our cities are burned. You cause racial conflict. You hide from us the rights promised us by our God.

When the day comes when "each one will flee to his own land", you will find no one who wants you. Should you escape the fire you have set, and the teeth of the wolf you have loosed, you will surely answer to The Word. You will pay the penalty required of the false witness.[16]

It's time to confront preachers to find out if they preach the censored 70% of The Word that deals with government - or not. If not - why not? Whose payroll is he on? Who is his master? Make him stand on the rooftop and proclaim The Word - or tell the world that he is taking the merchant's silver to procalim "trade-christianity" and bless what God has cursed. His choice will determine his future as written in The Word.

WEAVER TRIAL: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: The Ruby Creek Massacre trial is being held now in Boise, Idaho. There have been only three reporters in the court room - AP, the Spokane paper, and a local one. Everyone here is talking about the trial, but the papers say little. I hear it is being completely blacked out elsewhere. Local TV reports 'The FBI has apologized' for 'Withholding Evidence,' 'Staging Evidence,' and 'Losing evidence.' They are being made to look really bad." R. W. - Idaho

NOTE: A caller informed me that nine out of ten charges against the defendants have been dismissed, leaving only the charge of "murder." The judge is angry with the FBI for concealing a witness. That witness is a captain in the Idaho State Police, and the first at the murder scene. He is expected to testify that the feds shot first. Self-defense! Reports say that the government is looking B-A-D! Real bad! - which is why the trial is being blacked-out nationwide.

16 False Witness . Deut 19:16-21

WEAVER TRIAL: "Judge Edward Lodge today said that 75% of the witnesses called by the prosecution were favorable to the defense." Spokesman Review, B1, May 19, 1993.

BLEEDING TO DEATH: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Your analogy of sheep and wolves is certainly accurate. It appears to me that the wolves' plan is not to butcher the sheep, but to bleed them to death through taxes and tribute." B. J. - Colorado

---

MAO: "Dear Dick: I was in Shanghai the day Mao's gang moved in! We escaped to Okinawa!! It was a close thing." L. W. - MI

IRATE: "Mr. Hoskins: Your "Peasant Revolts" #219 was anti-Christian diatribe of twisted facts.I'm sorry that you are so bigotted against Christianity." D. C. - Texas

RKH: "Bigot" means "by-God." Religion is big business - the biggest. It attracts bad apples. I am much against the sellers of indulgences - not anti-Christian, and certainly not anti-"by-God."

NEW VISION: "Dear Dick; I was recruited into the Communist party at the age of nineteen and was told that we would most likely be martyrs in our fight against the evils of capitalism, to help people losing their jobs and homes. We were not told that we were risking our lives to seize property to give it to the wolf to manage. We thought we were heroes. We were TAUGHT we were fighting to rid the world of the exploiters.

"The Great Message has been garbled in this century. The garblers run the show like master puppeteers. Today's degeneracy will cause the ship to sink - for there IS a limit.

"The 'sheep' are, I believe, in the making. A truly new breed - born to reflect the Great Shepherd! If 'churchmen' had done their jobs, the Capitalists and the Communist Party would never have had an opening to spew their poison. Today they have merged and are one. The day of the Wolf is closing - he and his bands must make haste. And - they are convinced, at this point - ANYTHING GOES!" N.I. - New York MILITIA: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: You've mentioned "militias" before, but still, the large number of military schools you have in Virginia and throughout the South indicate a warlike people." C. I. - New Hampshire

RKH: Not necessarily. Since the earliest days all men in Virginia from the age 16 to 60 have been considered members of the unorganized militia. It was left up to them to organize themselves into units. Neither the state nor the national government had a part in it. If the local unorganized militia chose to organize, they elected their own officers and furnished their own weapons and equipment.

This could be quite expensive. If it were an artillery unit - they bought their own cannon. Their names were on no roll in Richmond and they owed allegiance to each other only. The governor was their commander - only IF they agreed to obey his orders. He couldn't send them to "Desert Storm" - they wouldn't go - and there was nothing he could do about it.

They trained themselves - weekly at first and then monthly. To be elected to be an "officer" by one's own peers was a high honor. To deserve the honor fathers sent their sons to "military schools" to train them to be militiamen. Just as future artillery men were sent to special schools in Philadelphia. Southern military schools were "militia schools." By in large, the South's militia was far better trained and armed than the national army of the United States. During the War, its best single officer - Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest was a militiaman. So was Wade Hampton. It can be argued that officers trained at West Point kept the South from winning the war.

Kings use national armies to become tyrants. If they are to be kept from being tyrannical - the Militia must do it. To remove this threat and suppress the states - the U.S. government has branded militias to be "private armies." One of the reasons given for the search warrant used in the Waco Massacre was that the Davidians comprised a "private-army" (militia).

Virginia's black governor "re-organized" Virginia's militia. HE appointed its officers and HE is its commander. It is HIS private army. It is "militia" in name only.

With the exception of local "neighborhood-watches" Virginia's unorganized-militia has been intimidated to NOT become organized. The central government is exerting every effort to seize its weapons. The FBI has instructed local police departments to register local "neighborhood-watches" to keep tabs on their activities. This is what happens in a police state which has reached advanced stages. "Whoever has the guns make the laws. The Militia is Dead - Long live the King."

Chapter 226

THE STORM & THE UNFORGIVABLE SIN

Long ago, in the days when camels carried their precious cargoes over the spice routes - the spice- merchants divided the world among themselves.[1]

Each spice-merchant then created franchises within his allotted territory and hired kings to manage them. Each franchised king raised his own personal banner to mark off

1 "Spice-merchants" sit quietly behind the world's events. For centuries, trains of 10,000 camels left China for Baghdad loaded with spices. They returned with gold and trade goods. The capture of a single camel would have made a man wealthy for life. The caravan owners were mega-merchants who bought and sold princes. They allow no book to be written about them. They have no armies - they buy countries and use their armies. The mountain of gold accumulated for thousands of years is theirs, and they use it to open and close doors. They buy and sell slaves who are told that "right is wrong" and "slavery is freedom." The perpetual problem with the Law of the Christian God is solved by the "Balak Plan" - or "extermination" - one or the other.

"his country" from the franchise of another. He built castles and garrisoned them with soldiers to keep and police what he had been assigned. Each king had to guarantee that the merchant's goods would be safely transported and delivered to their destination and that the slaves that came with the king's franchise did their allotted work. Each king was permitted to keep a percentage of the take as his income. The job of king was "the good life" and so it had many applicants. Each applicant bid against other applicants, each making all sorts of concessions to get the job.

On occasion, the people of the land, tired of being slaves, listened to their ancient god and demanded rights that had been taken from them by the king and his spice-merchant employer. Such revolts were expected reoccurring events and so preparations had been made to deal with them.

"Trade-priests" were the first line of defense. It was their job to bless that which the gods cursed. They were paid to say that the king and his employer were right and the people were wrong. This blessing of the priests was meant to keep the slaves happy and less likely to object to their slavery.[2]

The Desirable Wolf-State

The ideal wolf state is one in which the spice-merchant rules supreme, his franchised kings are themselves obedient,

2 LAW: In Christendom, a slave is any "man" who is held to a job beyond the 7 years allowed. (1) "And if thy brother, a Hebrew man, or a Hebrew woman, be sold unto thee, and serve thee six years; then in the seventh year thou shalt let him go free. .. thou shalt not let him go away empty: Thou shalt furnish him liberally out of thy flock, and out of thy floor." Deut 15:12-14 (2) "At the end of every seven years thou shalt make a release ... of a foreigner (Heb: nokriy - foreign, non-relative) thou mayest exact it again: but that which is thine with thy brother thine hand shall release." Deut 15:1-3 At the end of his indenture he is to be taken in as a partner, or set up in business, according to the terms of the indenture. Any other arrangement is slavery.

and they in turn rule their slaves with a firm hand. The slaves, "the ultimate renewable resource," are content with their lot. The entire system is consecrated by a holy state-approved priesthood hired for that purpose. It teaches the slaves that only godless traitors and malcontents dare to oppose their masters.

The Undesirable Wolf-State

An undesirable state is one in which slaves learn the teachings of their ancient god and try to live by them. This knowledge causes periodic slave rebellions as former slaves throw off their chains. Past rebellions have always proved to be transitory, but while they are in force, they shut out the spice-merchant, topple his kings, and banish his priests. The slave who slips his collar and tastes freedom is dangerous, and can never be trusted to be contented again. He must be killed.

Islam In Revolt

Followers of Islam have again learned the teachings of Mohammed. These teachings have caused them to fight the foreign spice- merchant, his kings, and his highly paid priests.

In January 1992, Algeria held an election. The "Salvation Front's" fundamentalists were elected to replace the current government. The merchant-approved government refused to step down. Instead, they banned and outlawed their opposition.

Western kings, likewise franchise-holders of the world's spice- merchants, instantly took the side of Algeria's ruling government. Islam's "Salvation Front" fundamentalists, denied the ballot box's peaceful change, and denied Western help, commenced guerrilla warfare to win by force what could not be won by votes.

Interpol - Suppresses Islam's Revolt

The Algerian government courts that refused to honor the election on May 26th sentenced 38 "Salvation Front" fundamentalists to death for exploding a bomb that killed nine people in an Algiers airport.

Immediately, Interpol, the police force of the international spice-merchants, came to Algeria's aid. They combed Europe to round up Islamic "dissidents." In Germany they arrested Rabah Kebir, "Salvation Front's" spokesman, and Oussama Madani, son of the jailed leader, Abbasi Madani, and six others. Germany, France and Belgium have all taken steps to aid the Algerian government in its effort to stifle Islamic religious revolt, a revolt that has thus far taken more than 800 lives.

Interpol's help is additionally credited with suppressing a June 12 "Salvation Front" meeting scheduled to be held by exiles in Europe. In America, the FBI is cooperating with Interpol's efforts by rounding-up Islamic fundamentalists on charges of - "terrorism," "suspected terrorism," "contact with," or "possibly knowing a terrorist." The FBI "press-releases" are warmed over "Ruby-Creek-Waco" releases with only the names changed. The "evidence" the FBI has accumulated is mostly the charge that the Islamics are "plotting," "planning," "talking about," or "thinking about" acts of "terrorism." While they are emmeshed in Western courts the Islamic revolt against their merchant overlords comes to a halt. It's not like it hasn't been done before.

Christendom's 3rd Reformation

THE WORD, the "laws, statutes and judgments," were almost entirely suppressed or subverted in the Roman Empire when Jesus Christ, the "Word made flesh," returned with THE WORD and reformed his people's beliefs.

The fruits of this 1st Reformation were subverted and suppressed by Constantine and his organized church. About 1500 years after Christ, other reformers brought THE WORD to light and men learned that God expected them to cast off the rule of both spice- merchants and their King Sauls who ruled them. They did what THE WORD required. This condition lasted for about 150 years before THE WORD was again suppressed.

NOW, starting about ten years ago, believers again began to call on THE WORD so that they might be saved from those who would destroy them, and those who had ears to hear listened. The 3rd Reformation began. Men again were calling on "THE WORD which was God."

To stamp out this fire and suppress THE WORD, the kings have again begun to use force.[3] The target is not only those who call on THE WORD, but any person who is not a slave. This includes any person who rebels at working more than 7-years for a master,[4] or one who is self-employed, or independently wealthy, or is self-sufficient - such as a debt-free farmer or merchant; or a religious group holding views not politically correct; or those who believe that their god condemns taxes, homosexuality, and child-murder; or anyone who "calls upon the name of God.[5] Any of these people may become potential rallying points for political action against the establishment, and are potentially as much danger to the international spice-merchants in Christendom as the "Salvation Front" is in Islam.

3 "The enemy is eager to destroy all that call upon the Lord. For he knoweth that upon the day that Israel shall repent, the kingdom of the enemy shall be brought to an end." Book Of Dan 2:16-17.

4 After 7 years an employee tends to acquire a slave mentality and a slave attitude that stays with him for the rest of his life.

Arthur Kirk spoke against the chains of debt and was shot down.[6] Bob Matthews said that the struggle was for the preservation of our children, and was shot down (Ezra 10:2). Gordon Kahl said that taxes were illegal, and was shot down.[7] The Weavers of Ruby Creek refused to work for the king's police. As an object lesson to others, an army was sent to subdue their rebellion. The Waco Massacre was another object lesson to rebels. Clinton said "I hope very much that others who will be tempted to join cults and become involved with people like David Koresh will be deterred by the horrible scenes they have seen over the last seven weeks." The things being done in Christendom are the same things that are being done to Mohammedans in Algeria and Egypt. Waco and Ruby Ridge serve the same purpose as Mao's extermination of Buddhist priests and others who refused to bless that which their heathen gods cursed.

5 "His name is called THE WORD of God." Rev 19:13

6 LAW: (1) Be not thou one of them that strike hands, or of them that are suretics for debts." Prov. 22:26 (2) "At the end of every 7 years thou shalt make a release...Every creditor that lendeth aught unto his neighbor (Heb: 7453 reya; friendly associate) shall release it; he shall not exact it of his neighbor." Dc 15:1-3

7 LAW: "Of whom do the kings of the earth take custom or tributc? of their own children, or of strangers? Peter saith unto him, Of strangers." (Gr: allotrios - foreign, not akin.) ... Then arc the children free." Matt 17:25- 26. A taxed man can never become a king because he cannot own a kingdom. A missed tax payment determines the true owner.

Anyone, who for any reason may be suspected of becoming an impediment to world trade, the spice-merchants will find obnoxious. Such rebels are therefore ipso facto "enemies of the state," and as such may expect the treatment that is historically administered to "enemies of the state."

Christian Enemies

The greatest enemies of the 1st Reformation were the "scribes" - the judges, lawyers, and politicians who worked for the establishment's king, and, the "pharisees" who blessed their work.

The greatest enemy of the 2nd Reformation were the same "scribes" - judges, lawyers, and politicians of Israel, and the "pharisees" who again blessed their blasphemy.

The greatest enemy of today's 3nd Reformation are the same "scribes" - the judges, lawyers, and politicians - and the "pharisees" who bless their transgressions, the transgressions that Jesus cursed.

The international spice-merchant is amoral. To him there is no "right," no "wrong." There is only profit. He feeds because the people allow him to feed. He buys access into sheepfolds because gate-keepers take his gifts. God made the wolf for a reason. He made wolves to do what wolves do. The wolf did not open the gates. There was a willing gatekeeper who did that. The wolf does not preach lies from the pulpit in the name of God. There is a greedy trade-priest who eagerly grasps the bribe to bless that which God curses.[8]

8 "I created man ... and I told him 'this is good, and that is bad' that ... it be clear which in his race love me." Enoch 30:12-14

Word of Advice

It is known that wolves are paranoid and psychotic. They are unpredictable. They can be vicious. If they feel threatened as a species - they then tend to gather into packs for protection and fight. Other times they remain scattered - and raid the sheep. But, that is what wolves do.

I say this in all seriousness - if the wolf attacks - protect yourself. That, and no more. Even wolves understand self-defense. Its part of life. Your task today is not wolf- hunting, it is to take THE WORD into all the world to every creature of Israel. Let "THE WORD" reason with Israel.[9] To protect his interests, the international-merchant always attempts to keep the sheep off balance. A sheep vs sheep war will do nicely. If that is not possible, a wolf vs sheep confrontation is arranged. The last is natural and easy to provoke. Wolves eat sheep - that's what they do. Everyone knows that. But, how did the wolves get into the sheepfold? Who let them in? THAT is the important question. The lies of the greedy, soul-dead, false-shepherds must be exposed, or the sheep fold will become a permanent wolf-den - lost forever.

SIGNS IN THE HEAVENS

The ancients watched unusual bird flights and storms. Prior to last year I had never seen more than 6 or 8 robins at once. Last year I saw tens of thousands. Before, I had

---

9 John Knox and John Calvin refused to accept the church's claim to be Israel, and in their margin notes in their Geneva Bible refused to refer to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob as "their fathers" and give to another the birthright which belonged to them. They called them "OUR fathers." They knew. This is why Amos 3:1-2 makes sense; "O children of Israel ... You only have I known of all the families of the earth." And, "I was sent to the lost sheep of the house of Israel and to them alone." Matt 15:24 never seen more than a dozen buzzards at once. Last year I saw hundreds - even thousands.

Lynchburg has few bad storms. In June Lynchburg had a bad storm. In the late afternoon it suddenly got dark, the winds blew with hurricane force and for about 25 minutes Lynchburg was lashed by savage winds. Rain fell in sheets accompanied by a torrent of hail. The house shuddered, branches flew through the air, the lights flickered and went out. As quickly as it started - it stopped.

I was aghast at the damage. Two hundred year old poplars and oaks were ruined. The streets were filled with trees, branches, and debris.

Supper By Candlelight

I left home to find something to eat. The houses and businesses were dark along the way. The restaurant I was going to was closed and the employees were leaving. "No electricity!" A half dozen other restaurants were the same. No power, no lights. All were closed.

At the junction of "221" and the "By-pass," the traffic light was out. Post storm "rush-hour" in little Lynchburg was unbelievable. It took 40 minutes to get through that one intersection. Cars were backed up for miles. They moved at a snail's pace. A policeman in plainclothes was trying to direct traffic without a flashlight. No horns blew. People don't blow horns in Lynchburg. It's impolite. It's still mostly a sheep-town.[10] girl stood just inside the door to tell would-be shoppers that the electric door wouldn't open, there were no lights inside, and the cash registers didn't work. The electric pumps wouldn't pump gas at the gas station.

Next day Lynchburg was still shut down. Few businesses bothered to open. No lights, computers, or cash registers. Hospitals were on emergency power. Elevators didn't work. Few business establishments had emergency power. Some telephones worked, but Lynchburg was shut down and stayed shut-down for a full day and a half. Some places were down for 4 days. People didn't bother to go to work.

Suppose

If losing electricity caused Lynchburg that much trouble - what would happen if the city were deprived of electricity on purpose? Cities are very vulnerable. Europe had this problem in WWII. Planes dropped electric cables across power lines to short them and the cities went black.

Supermarkets are supposed to contain only a three day supply of food. Suppose the tractor trailers supplying them stopped coming because the cities that dispatched them had lost their power? Suppose that at the end of a week the food supplies in Lynchburg, Charlottesville, Roanoke, Richmond, Norfolk, Alexandria, and Washington, DC were consumed and not replenished. Suppose Tampa, Mobile, New Orleans, Charleston, Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York - all lacked power. No power, no food, people streaming back and forth frantically searching for something to eat - until they ran out of gas. There's little food in the countryside. Most of the old farms are no longer planted. Almost 50% of America's foodstuffs are imported.

Under these conditions, in 30 days a substantial proportion of the population of the eastern United States could become displaced and starve, or kill each other fighting for the dwindling supplies of food. If such crisis conditions were to last two months, many survivors of the first 30 days might also die. This is not Europe or the Orient where everyone has a private food supply somewhere, and where they plant a vegetable garden in every available spot - "just in case."

Could someone shut off America's electricity and cause such things to happen? Remember Desert Storm? Remember the US missiles directed at Iraqi electric generating plants? Those missiles released a spider-like web of metallic threads that floated down on the stations. Electricity produces magnetic fields. Magnetic fields attracted these webs which shorted the plant. Later startup attempts attracted other parts of the scattered web, shorting it again and again. Six months after the "war" many of the electric generating plants were still being short circuited.

Would anyone want to do this to the US? You bet! If occupying vacant land is the object - it would help. Let's remember, all the communist and former communist countries of the world have announced that they have deep bomb shelters, huge emergency food stockpiles, and anti-missile defenses. Even little Cuba has them. The kings of the West have denied these three items to the people they rule. Why?

Governments aren't people - they are organizations. They have no souls. They don't question right or wrong - they carry out the directives of their masters. People wonder if it is accident that FBI spokesmen disregard the truth so often. Could it be that their words are spoken to create distrust? That they are spoken to incite anyone who will be incited?

Most military men I've served with in the past are honorable men. But, I've met the other kind, the kind that flourish where there is no Law. They will shoot into buildings containing women and children, gas them, burn them, or shoot a nursing mother in the face and then name their base camp after her. We are told that the federals at Ruby Ridge actually named their camp - "Camp Vicki," after the dead mother. Some say it was done as a dare to her horrified neighbors to try to do something about it. Is it true that the ATF men at Waco gave a "high five" when they saw the Mt. Carmel fire and laughingly remarked about the "Texas barbecue?" If so, it was insensitive. If it was "psywar" public management - the American public should know that too.

Signs From The Storm

I was raised in Lynchburg's First Baptist Church. It is an old church with a steeple 264 feet high - the tallest in this part of the country. It's a symbol of Lynchburg. A lot of good people have gone to that church over the years. My mother taught Sunday School there for more than 50 years. But, there are other things. When I went there it had a stained glass picture of Christ knocking on the door of someone's heart - in violation of the 2nd Commandment forbidding images. The interior and the cushions were a gift of a banking family. The treasurer of the church was the president of a local bank. That bank also held the church mortgage.[11]

11 (1) "Hath given forth upon usury, and hath taken increase ... he shall surely die." Ezek 18:13. (2) "Thou shalt not bring the hire of an whore, or the price of a dog, into the house of the Lord thy God." Deut: 23:18>

Some of the preachers that pastored that church in the past were among the greats of the land. There were the other kind, too. My mother said that these were just young and had a lot to learn. Some of these said that the law was done away, inferring that people could go out and do as they liked, and the people allowed them to do it.[12] These men knew better but they still said it, and the people still allowed it. This caused both to commit the unforgivable sin.[13] These preachers chose not to obey because the God's truth offended them. The people chose not to obey because they did not want to cause a scene. Now, half a century later, only two dozen or so sit in that vast sanctuary built for more than a thousand. God sent his storm and took the great steeple of Lynchburg's landmark, turned it like a spear and drove it into the heart of the sanctuary.

Six blocks up the street is the black Court Street Baptist Church. It is the symbol of "black revolt" in town. This is where anti-White hate-rallies have been held for years. As a teenager I used to huddle on the back bench and listen in disbelief to the things they said about us. We, the accursed whites at the church down the street, who had given our offerings that Sunday to help that black church meet a need. I wanted to see who these people were. I found out. The street was blocked off. The steeple lay on the ground.

Driving to the Confederate Cemetery, I saw great oaks

13 LAW: The unforgivable sin: "Now if thou closeth thy mouth and thy nostrils against the winds of heaven and sayest, 'The air is as poison to me, I will not breathe it,' behold thou perishest. ... If he shall say knowing in his heart ... 'I will call good evil, and the Holy Spirit I will call unholy: then lo, his spirit dieth within him, and he can no more enter into the life of God.' ... (or say) 'Lo, the truth is not pleasing to me, ... it is hateful, therefore I will call it evil.'" Philochristus 13:20-21 crushing scores of stones. The speaker's podium and cupola that stood there also lay crushed.

These gallant men had died by the tens of thousands to defend their people and their country. But they had come to their nation's defense too late. Too long they had tolerated usury banks in New York. They had allowed them to poliferate throughout the land. "What they do in New York doesn't affect us here." They let a mad dog named John Brown run wild in Kansas killing innocent people. "Kansas is Kansas. This is Virginia." It was not their concern - it didn't affect them. These men were dead because their fathers allowed strangers to remain in the land. They demanded that their purchase price be returned before they would free the blacks and send them back to their own country - and they died for their omissions. They died for tolerating evil in the land - the usury, the strangers, and for tolerating the false-witness of the pulpit and the media.

Lynchburg's storm was called "an act of God." It dealt with the symbols of Lynchburg.

Where The Storm Did Not Fall

The News & Advance of Lynchburg, the paper that earlier ran a front page story attacking the editor and his book Vigilantes Of Christendom, "The story of the Phineas Priesthood," on May 16, 1993, ran an upbeat front page story on a homosexual couple.

According to the article, the Rev. Allen Harris is a Disciples of Christ minister. He was ordained at a Park Avenue Christian Church in some town somewhere, where he is an associate minister. The Rev. Craig Hoffman is also an ordained United Church of Christ minister. He works with HIV- positive drug users. They have matching wedding bands and live together in Harris's parsonage. This couple was held up as an example of partners for life - people who must be accepted.

The Revs. David and Kaye Edwards, pastor and associate pastor of First Christian Church on Rivermont Avenue invited this couple to speak to their congregation because they "would like the church to be openly affirming of Christians who are gay and lesbian."[14]

Challenged for taking this stand Rev. David Edwards is alleged to have answered, "Times have changed since the Bible was written,"[15] and that these people are our brothers[16] whom Christ loved.[17] ... What's wrong is hatred and intolerance."[18]

Reaction Of The Church Community

Thus far, besides a couple of irate letters which have passed Lynchburg's newspaper curtain, no denomination, church, or church congregation in Lynchburg has broken fellowship with the congregation of this churches. Did anyone really expect them to?

14 "If a man lie with mankind, as he lieth with a woman, both of them have committed an abomination ... their blood shall be upon them." Lev 20:13

15 (1) "For I the Lord, do not change." Mal 3:6, (2) "The scripture cannot be broken." John 10:35.

16 "Whosoever shall do the will of my Father which is in heaven, the same is my brother." Matt 12:50.

17 "If ye love me obey my commandments." John 14:15

18 "Shouldest thou help the ungodly, and love them that hate the Lord? therefore is wrath upon thee from before the Lord." II Chron 19:2

Reaction of "An Act Of God"

The storm hit scarce two weeks later. The Rivermont First Christian Church was not touched. Does God not see? Or, does THE WORD have some special reward planned for those who some say commit the "unpardonable sin:"

> "Lo, the truth is not pleasing to me ... it is hateful, therefore I will call it evil." Philochristus 13:20-21

Those who have difficulty accepting the verdict of THE WORD will also have difficulty accepting the fact that THE WORD is now loose in the land. HE has passed into the bloodstream of his people and the elect among them are being transformed into his image.

Perhaps that is why God sometimes uses natural signs like birds and storms to speak to the natural man who can hear in no other way. If this is true - Smile, Lynchburg! You have attracted God's attention and he is speaking to you.

RUBY RIDGE MASSACRE AND WACO

Blacked out in America, Idaho's "Ruby Ridge Massacre" trial is front page in the American NW. Like the earlier Fort Smith Sedition Trial, the FBI has again been caught telling one falsehood after another. To many observers, the FBI antics have reached the point where everything they or say seems suspect. At the trial, even the establishment media, ofttimes strangers to truth themselves, were seen nudging each other when another FBI witness took the stand to testify to something that appeared farfetched. The judge in fact stated that 75% of the prosecutions witnesses were "actually witnesses for the defense." This is hard to imagine.

The pictures of the child shot in the back by federal agents and the story of the mother holding her baby in her arms when she was shot in the face by the Japanese-American leader of the government assault team had the jury in tears.

The story that has come out in the trial and embellished with a little establishment "jargon" is this: A boy and his mother were shot down in cold blood on orders from the current "warlord" who occupies the White House "compound." His government first outlawed an innocent family by issuing a summons dated AFTER the date on which the actual hearing was scheduled. The targeted victims did not show because their summons stated that they were not supposed to show until a month later. Because they did not appear - they were outlawed. Refusing to submit to a 5 year jail sentence for "non- appearance," a sentence to be handed down by same the people who sent them the doctored summons, they were then hunted down and shot by the United States government. This whole thing was aided and abetted by misleading stories issued by the media. Following the mass deaths at Waco, the suspicion has grown among a number of people that the Weaver case was never meant to come to trial, that it was supposed to end like the Kirk, Kahl, and Matthews cases.

As the trial progressed, the Federal charges were demolished one by one until the last charge was reached - murder. It was then learned that the FBI had been hiding a key witness for three weeks. It was the captain of the Idaho State Police. He took the stand and testified that the federals fired first. The court was stunned. The truth was out. The marshals incited the family to resist, fired first, and then accused the victims of murder, while it was actually the other way around. The Ruby Ridge affair may have uncovered what may be called a pattern of government "protest-control" - since similar things have happened in the past. The government's case appeared to lay in shambles. The defense was so confident that they chose not to even present a defense.

The case was then turned over to the jury. Surprisingly, there appears to be dissension among the jury. After 13 days of deliberations, the foreman of the jury had what appeared to be a heart attack and was replaced by a standby juror. At present, we are waiting for their verdict. This is an important case which may have far reaching implications.

TURNING THE SCREW

WACO: Former Congressman Ron Paul's newsletter reviews the Waco Assassination Theory. According to this theory - while the FBI tanks seen on TV held the viewer's attention, a death squad stormed the church property from the rear out of view of TV cameras. This assassination squad murdered Koresh, his top followers, and set fire to destroy evidence. A bullet hole was found in Koresh's forehead. People don't kill themselves in this manner, but it is where an assassin would aim. Koresh's top assistant was shot in the back of the head - another execution type shot. The pathologist doing the autopsy called Koresh's wound not typical of suicide. Paul then states, "A top official of the FBI told the press, the Davidians had to be cleaned out because they were "thumbing their nose at law enforcement." In Paul's opinion, "The government's actions also suggest hostility to people who take religion seriously." He concludes his summary with Clinton's statement, "I hope very much that others who will be tempted to join cults and become involved with people like David Koresh will be deterred by the horrible scenes they have seen ...'" Survival Report, Cong. Ron Paul, Houston, TX 77058

INDULGENCES & BIGOT: "Mr. Hoskins: "Indulgences - right to sin in the future - that is a lie. Don't get your info from an enemy or a competitor. Also, 'bigot' means 'obstinately and blindly attached to some creed, opinion, practice, or ritual according to 1828 Websters.'" P. D. - Texas

RKH: (1) E/B 14th ed, #12, p275, article "Indulgence," quotes Thomas Gascoigne in 1450 as saying "Sinners say nowadays 'I care not how many or how great sins I commit before God, for I shall easily and quickly get plenary remission of any guilt and penalty whatsoever by absolution and indulgence granted to me from the Pope, whose writing and grant I have bought for 4d or 6d ... ." Regardless of the stated intent of "indulgences" - the result was unfortunate. (2) You are correct as regards current usage of "bigot." But, it was not always so. The E/B 11th ED, #3 p923 states that "ne se, bi god" came from the words used by Rollo, duke of the Normans, in refusing to kiss the foot of Charles III in the 12th century. One who did something "by God," stated that they did it "by God." In time such people were called "by-Goders,"or "bigots."

Lastly, history proves that the words and works of "preachers" and "teachers" must be constantly compared with THE WORD. The greater and richer the organization, the greater the folly. NO confidence at all can be placed in church organizations over a longer term. They collect and administer too much wealth - they have to be watched every minute. Watchers must be set to watch watchers. Churches and church organizations are not supposed to be a substitute for YOUR responsibility. There is no way around it - God appointed YOU a king and a priest - YOU are responsible. YOU must search THE WORD for truth. The truth you find must pass back through the filter of THE WORD. Your actions will then be judged by others who are equally kings and priests to make sure that you do not "self-serve." Everyone who says that they speak for God must be suspected of having hidden agendas. Uncritical acceptance of anyone who claims to speak as Israel can result in Law violation, blasphemy, and "St. Bartholowmew Day Massacres." YOU as a king and a priest will be held accountable for omission or commission. That's why YOU were appointed. It's YOU. YOU!

IMMIGRATION & AIDS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: What is the reason that those who run the government want AIDS infected blacks and orientals brought to this country?" G. R. - New Jersey

RKH: It's odd, but the CIA and the Catholic Church collaborated to terrify the Catholic Tonkanese Chinese living in North Vietnam to move to South Vietnam where they were looked upon as hated alien invaders. They provided the raw material for a civil war.

PRISON STRIFE: "Mr Hoskins: There is turmoil here in prison. They are beginning to blow out all over. The racial enmity being shown was prophesied as a sign of our time (Isa 13:14-15, Matt 24:9). There are three groups: White, Black, and Hispanic. They do not mix. Marxist propaganda used to incite outside society has the same effect on prisoners inside. But, there is something more, a subtle underlying fear. It's almost as if the strangers realize that 'the center cannot hold.' If the 'center cannot hold' then there are no more 'civil rights.' Their fear is almost tangible." B. M. - Missouri TALLIES: "Dear Dick: Your book, War Cycles / Peace Cycles" reminded me of a game we played in Missouri during the depression. It was called "get a tally." One child was designated the "'leg man." His object was to catch someone who didn't have a tally. One was issued a tally when he made one full revolution around the house without getting caught. The leg man had to keep running until he collared someone who didn't have a tally. The one caught became the new "leg-man." It must be an old old game. Thanks for reminding me." M. H. - Missouri

Chapter 227

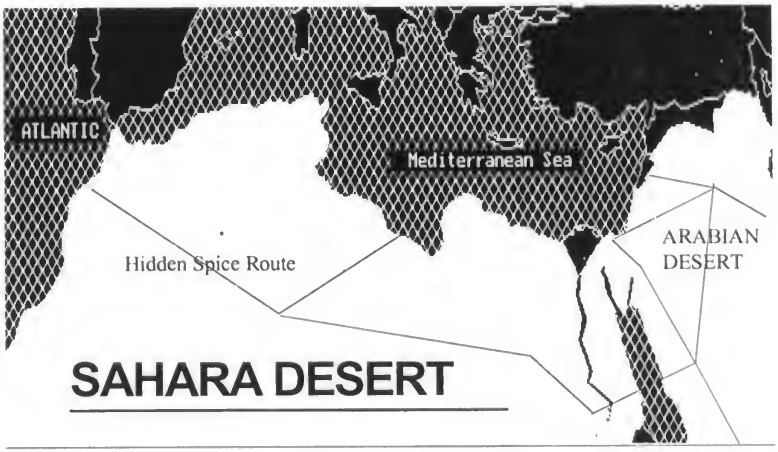
ARAB-TURK INVASIONS

Roman Shops

When the Vandals invaded Rome they discovered warehouses loaded with spices, silks, and expensive goods from the Far East.

Romans had only a vague idea of where these costly goods had come from. It was a trade secret. All they knew was that they had come from somewhere on the other side of the the deserts beyond the borders of the Roman Empire. Those who did know didn't talk.

The thing that everyone understood was that a pound of pepper was worth a pound of gold. The spice trade delivered coveted goods, and bags and chests of gold and silver were returned in payment. Rome was drained of its gold and silver. Someone on the other side of the desert collected it. At the last, Rome had no gold and was forced to adopt the



Secret Spice Routes

Long hidden from Western eyes, the spice routes carried billions of dollars worth of goods. Thousands of camels would reach terminal cities, pay a fee, and pass on to their destination. No one stopped them - Christian, Mohammedan, or Jew. Seizing camels was roundly condemned; the taking of a ship - "piracy." Unseen, the spice merchant ruled the world through his agents. His caravans proceeded quietly - protected by the king and blessed by the priest.

barter system. The spice merchants in the Far East owned the world's supply of gold. That gold allowed the spice merchants to buy anything that gold will buy - priests, kings, armies - anything!

Basic Geography - Deserts

There are four major deserts that run from the Atlantic in the west to the Pacific in the Far East. The Sahara runs the width of North Africa, then next, the Arabian Desert. Then, on the Iraq- Iran Deserts, and last - the Gobi Desert to the north of China. An "arab" could slip into the Sahara Desert within sight of the Atlantic Ocean in N. Africa and could emerge in China without having been seen by anyone who was not like himself.

Individuals, groups, caravans, armies, and entire nations have disappeared into the deserts, and have followed this route in whole or part secure from the observation of Westerners. Westerners are always surprised at what emerges from these mysterious deserts.

The Desert Caravans

Camel caravans were massive, expensive affairs. In an age where the capture of a single camel would make an Arab rich for life - a train of 5,000 animals was ordinary, and 20,000, frequent. The goods had to be warehoused until shipping time and food had to be provided for both man and beast. Drivers and armed guards had to be arranged, and a paymaster had to pay "protection-money" to local rulers for safe conduct and protection. Insurance agreements had to be arranged to guard against pilfering and the occasional caravan raid that captured a few camels. Messengers had to be dispatched ahead advising outlets that trade goods were on the way. Schedules had to be met. Marshaling yards had to be ready to receive the thousands of camels and drivers, and then the goods had to divided and new trains created to take the goods to their ultimate destinations. The details were endless - but worth it. The desert route hid its treasures from prying eyes and that alone provided relatively safe travel.

Local rulers were paid to protect caravans. Part of the "trade agreement" between merchant and king was that the local ruler had to make good anything looted from the train while it was under his protection. This encouraged extra vigilance. All who profited from the spice trade had a vested interest in protecting it. They still do.

Marshaling Yards & Terminals

There were major marshaling yards - great trade centers such as Baghdad, Damascus, and Mecca. The city of Jerusalem was another - a fact of geography that helped launch the crusades. From these extensive marshaling yards smaller trains were re-routed to the seaports of Aden, Alexandria, Hifa, Beirut, and Istanbul.

Marco Polo was the first to return to the West with fabulous stories of the spice routes and Cathay. No one believed him. It has only been in relatively recent years as the route has been superseded by ocean routes that the knowledge of the "silk-route" has become public. This forbidden desert roadway is the historical super highway of the wandereing Turk.

Part #1: God MUST Bless Trade

Strongly-held religious beliefs can stop trade, and have often done so.[1] When this happens the offending religion has to be "sanitized" before trade can take place. It is most often the Christian religion that causes the trouble because it is "exclusive"[2] while all others are "inclusive." As a rule,

1 (1) "If thou has stricken thy hand with a stranger (Heb: 2114 racial alien), thou art snared with the words of thy mouth." Pr. 6:1, (2) "They shall not dwell in thy land, lest they make thee sin against me." I Ki 4:21 traders could not care less about "Christianity," but before they can trade with its people it must be proclaimed far and wide by the religious leaders that "Christianity" has been "reformed," "updated," made "New Testament," that it is NO LONGER EXCLUSIVE - that it is open to everyone - especially the trader. Otherwise - the trader cannot trade!

Priests must be found to guarantee that God blesses trade with strangers FIRST - before trade can take place. Gold in the right quarters can secure such guarantees. It can guarantee that even strangers and non-adamites are advanced to the very pinnacle of God's church.[3] Such leaders can then piously sanctify that which God curses.[4]

With the Church's new and profitable discovery that "God blesses trade with strangers" - the trade that God had formerly cursed - the wolf was free to safely hunt within the sheepfold.

Immigration & Integration - Religious Matters

The "immigration" of this horde of strangers into a country is half the job - half! If the local population refuses to help them, feed them, speak to them, or trade with them - "integrate" with them - "immigration" alone is useless. These foreigners will sit on the side of the road and have rocks thrown at them by the local population while they starve.

3 (1) "A bastard (Heb: mamzêr - mixed breed, mongrel) shall not enter into the congregation of Israel." De 23:2, (2) "The stranger (Heb: zûwr - racial alien) that cometh nigh (the tabernacle) shall be put to death." No 18:7

4 1130AD - Benedictus Christianus (Pierleoni) Jewish Banker of Rome had a son Leo Petrus Leonis, d.1128, who was elected Pope (Anacletus II) 1130. His niece became wife of Roger I of Sicily, the most powerful ruler in the Mediterranean at the time, and known for having influential Islamic-Turks as advisors in his court.

Foreign trade representatives must be "accepted" by the local population to transact business. Traders, their represenatives, and their families after immigrating into the land, must be allowed to "eat" with their trading partners.[5] They must be allowed to trade.[6] Intermarriage must be encouraged because if strangers are allowed to intermarry - all other benefits follow.[7] "Integration" is essential. Only the priest can make that lawful.

Agents of the spice trade use their gold to provide a soap box and high visibility to priests who will speak in favor of the stranger. They are made rich by loudly proclaiming that God wants "IMMIGRATION" AND "INTEGRATION." These priests must state in no uncertain terms that "immigration" and "integration" are "God's will" - that they are "lawful" and "desirable" - that they are GOOD! And, that opposition to them is "unlawful" and "undesirable" - and BAD! This prevents the wolf and his pack from suddenly being set upon by irate sheep protesting "blasphemy." A handful of gold properly spent can prevent multi-billions from being lost to wild-eyed fanatics rushing about shouting "We must obey God rather than men." Acts 5:29

Part #2 - King Protector

Getting God on one's side effectively muzzles the populace. Next, agreements must be made with local rulers to protect and guarantee the shipment of goods. Payments for this service to the local ruler are an accepted part of the cost of doing business. Kings have been paid by merchants for this service for a long time.[8]

5 "If any man ... be ... an idolater ... or an extortioner; with such a one, no not to eat." 1 Cor 5:11

6 "Thou shall make no covenant with them." Deut 7:2

7 "Thou shalt not take a wife ... of the Canaanites ... but thou shall go ... to my kindred, and take a wife." Gen 24:3,4

During the crusades, instances were known where hostilities between Christian and Mohammedan armies ceased while the camel train of the spice merchants plodded through a Saracen army besieging a Christian seaport city, and through the open gates into the city. The Saracen guards left the train at the gates and Christian guards took over to escort the caravan down to the docks. There the precious goods were off-loaded onto waiting Christian ships. The Christian ships set sail and passed through blockading Saracen men-of-war on their way to their final destinations in Christendom. Both Saracens and Christians lived up to their agreements and protected the shipments. The goods were safe. The truce then expired and Saracens and Christians returned to killing each other. Both Saracen and Christian rulers were equally in the pay of the spice merchants. War takes a backseat to trade.

Naming The Desert Peoples

Few people actually "live" in the desert. This means that the people who furnished most of the desert travelers live on the rim of these deserts. Western claim to territorial jurisdiction has forced these desert people to "name" the bounds of the territory in which they presently reside - an 8 "Solomon ... had ... of the traffic of the spice merchants, and of all the kings of Arabia." I Ki 10:14- 15 (950 BC).

alien concept to populations that live on the move.[9] An incomplete list consists of Morocco, Algeria, Libya, Egypt, Palestine, Jordan, Saudi Arabia, Turkey, Iraq, Iran, Afghanistan, Turkeman, Kazakh, Uzbek, Pakistan, India, Tadzhik, Kirghiz, and Mongolia.

Periodically, vast migrations of these people take place. Entire nations fold their tents and vanish into the desert to emerge months later, hundreds, even thousands of miles away, to the astonishment of nearby peoples. The nation most often targeted for invasion was China because of its wealth. China kept armies permanently posted on the frontier and built a wall to keep these desert invaders out. It didn't.

These invaders of China were basically all the same people. The Bible named them "Arabs."[10] The Chinese named them differently. Each group of invaders were identified by their invasion, the name by which they go by today. Those of the "Hun" invasion are called "Huns." There are also Seljuks, Ottomans, Khazars, and Mongols, to name only a few. The same people, different invasions, different names. The name "Turk" appears most frequently as part of the name of Seljuk- Turk, Ottoman-Turk, Turkaman, Uzbek-Turk, Khazar-Turk, etc. If these desert people were to go by a single name - a universal name - perhaps "Turk" would be that name.

10 "And Ishmael and his sons and the sons of Keturah and their sons went together and dwelt from Pharmon (Pharan) to the entrance of Babylon ... toward the east opposite the desert. And these mingled with each other, and their name was called Arabs and Ishmaelites." Jubilees 20:10

Mohammed

In Mecca lived an ambitious person named "Mohammed." He said that he was Allah's spokesman. Mecca was the marshaling yard for spice caravans arriving from all over the world. Mohammed and his followers were driven from Mecca. He and his followers fled north to Medena, a city sitting astride the spice route from Mecca to Baghdad, the route to Alexandria, and the one to the Far East. Soundly ensconced in his new city, Mohammed forbade spice caravans to pass. For almost a year hundreds of thousands of camels sat idle consuming enormous amounts of forage. Caravans backed up all the way to China. Armies were sent to dislodge him. Medina had water - the armies in the desert didn't. They failed.

At last, the great spice merchants had had enough of the squabbling. The word was sent to the rulers of Mecca to make whatever concessions were needed to start the caravans moving again. Mohammed's demands were simple enough. He demanded that he be accepted as the prophet of Allah, and, that he rule both Mecca and Medena. This was agreed. With the combined armies of Mecca and Medena, Mohammed quickly conquered the Christian Arabs, Jewish Arabs, and Anamist Arabs living throughout the rest of Arabia. They were all converted to Mohammad's "Islam," and Mohammed became the most powerful person in the Near East. Under his rule "Islam" exploded in all directions.

Arab-Hun Invasions

Many years before Mohammed, a group of "Arabs" invaded China and were named "Huns." They vanished back into the deserts and emerged near the Black Sea where the E. German "Goths" lived. They were defeated in France, and their powerful leader Attila was killed by Ildico in 453. Ildico was the daughter of a German prince on whom Attila forced an adulterous marriage.[11] The Huns then retreated to Hungary (#9 on the above chart) where they still live. At the time of Attila a large number of them had converted to a "trade- christianity." It made it easier to do business. Later, when the Islamic invasions came, many converted to Islam. Today, most are again "christians."

During the Hungarian revolt against the Soviets, hundreds of these Hungarian "refugees" swarmed into Virginia. I worked at the Virginia Unemployment Commission and interviewed many of them. Most were dark skinned shifty-eyed types, not at all like their newspaper and magazine pictures. I was surprised at their appearance and their reluctance to do farm work. They would take a farm job and "disappear" two weeks later. I had no realistic idea of what a "Hun" was.

Arab Invasions

The "Arabs" in Arabia, inflamed by the teachings of Mohammed, invaded the Near East (1), Egypt (2), and proceeded to crash through the defenses of the Byzantine Empire right up to the gates of Constantinople itself. In the process they annexed the province of what is now "Turkey," killing or subjugating its adamite population (3).[12] The fortifications of Constantinople held back Islam - for the

(1) Arabs poured out of Arabia into the Near East. (2) They next invaded Egypt. (3) Then they crashed through the defenses of the Byzentine Empire and annexed what is now Turkey. (4) Failing to take Constantinople the changed direction and poured across N. Africa, (5) and invaded Spain. (6) Failing in their effort to invade France, (6) they invaded Sicily (7) and S. Italy. (8) The Arabs, now called "Turks", overwhelmed Constantinople and drove into Europe proper, (9) where they were aided by the Huns of Hungary (early Arab invaders) in their attack on Austria.

(10) Additional invaders - Seljuk-Turks, (11), Ottoman Turks (12) and Mongols added numbers at various times. The most recent and most sucessful is the Khazar-Turk invasion (14) which subdued Russia and smashed a German revolt. It is under their auspices that Turks are flooding Italy, France, Germany, Britain, Scandinavia, America, S. Africa, and Australia - in a massive - and thus far uncontested continuation of the Crusades.

time being.

Next, the Arabs swept across North Africa (4), again conquering or killing its considerable adamite population, and crossed over into Spain (5) where they drove the "Visi-goths" into the mountains of the northwest. They ruled Spain for almost 1000 years before the Goths emerged from the mountains and drove them back to N. Africa, leaving many still living in the land. This remnant converted from Islam to Catholicism and were called "Morescos" by the adamite-Goths. Great numbers of Moresco descendants live in Spain today. Some of the invading Arabs converted to Judaism. These also converted to Catholism. They were called "Maranos." The descendants of both are usually easy to identify since they look like their ancestors, the Arab/Turks, and still speak Spanish with a Saracen accent.

These Morescos and Maranos, good Catholics but undesirable in Spain, were encouraged to migrate to Spain's overseas colonies. Many joined the armies of the Conquistadors who invaded and settled South and Central America. The Arab/Turk is well represented in the bloodstream of today's Hispanic peoples. They no longer follow Islam or Judaism, but are good Catholics. "Hispanic-Turks" would be a better name for them. It's important to know that Turks profess all sorts of religious beliefs, but first - they are TURKS! It explains a lot.

Arab invaders next crossed the Mediterranean Sea and conquered Sicily (6). From Sicily they invaded southern Italy (7). Both Islamic Sicilians and Southern Italians converted to Catholicism. Their descendents still speak Italian with Saracen accents, and most look like their Saracen ancestors - "Sicilian" and "Italian-Turks." One cannot tell them apart from Turks living in other lands.

Turk Invasions of Turkish Lands

After the initial Arab conquest subsided, a new invasion of Turkish peoples flooded the Near East. These new invaders were called Seljuk-Turks (10). They were the same people as the people already living in the Near East, but having a different name. They quickly adopted Islam and the Arabic language, and merged in with the local population and became indistinguishable from them. Next:

Ottoman Turks

On the heels of the Seljuk-Turks came the Ottoman-Turk invasion (11). Same people - different name. They too learned Arabic adding many of their own Turkic words. They also adopted the Islamic religion and became almost indistinguishable from those they conquered. The Ottoman-Seljuk-Arab "Turks" completed the conquest of Constantinople and stormed into Europe where they populated Albania, Bulgaria (occupied by Bulgars), and left Turk enclaves in what is now Yugoslavia. Many of these invaders switched to "trade-christianity." The Ottoman Empire lasted until WWI, and it is presently in the process of forming into something else under different leadership.

Ottoman Strategy Of Conquest

When the situation permitted, the Ottoman-Turks avoided direct assaults on lands they wished to occupy. They would infiltrate a family at a time until the population was largely Turk, and then the entire country would fall to the Turks by default. When they could, the Ottomans followed the custom of their kinsmen, the Huns and the Mongols, and used the armies of the peoples they conquered, rather than use their own.

Mongols

The Mongols were kinsmen of the Turks. They conquered both China and India, and occupied the Near East for a time (12). Some stayed and were absorbed. Some were driven away. They practiced all different religions - with sanitized "christianity" predominating. They were strong on "christianity" because they thought the crusaders would win. The crusaders' defeat caused them to switch to Islam instead.[13] They ruled in the Russias to the north. The Rus-Slav alliance fought these invaders for hundreds of years until they were finally defeated. First called "Mongols," they were later called "Tartars," and lastly, lumped with others practicing Islam, they were called "Turks." In 1917, a Khazar-Turk alliance with the Slavs overthrew the Russ-Slav ruling alliance. The Khazar-Turks secured rule over what had formerly been the entire Russian Empire - a vast land area.

Khazar Turks

The Khazar Turks settled on the lower Russian Rivers in the 7th Century. They were tax-collectors for the Mongols and much hated by the Slavs. The Academic American Encyclopedia has this to say about them.

> "Khazars (kah'-zars) "The Khazars, a Turkic people ... dominated substantial parts of S. Russia during much of the 7th through 10th centuries. During the 8th century the Khazar aristocracy and the kagan (king) were converted to Judaism. ... and for 4 centuries thereafter this Jewish empire held the balance of power between the Christian Byzantine Empire and the Muslim Caliphate. ... The Khazars controlled many of the trade routes to the Orient; some of the Radhanites (Jewish merchants from Gaul), for example, were accustomed to crossing the Khazar empire while traveling to and from China and India. ... In 965, Svyatoslav I, Duke of Kiev, decisively defeated the Khazar army. ... new waves of Turkic invaders overran the remains of the Khazar state."[14]

The Khazar-Turks, defeated in battle and fleeing Ottoman-Turk and Russian-Slav rule, fled into Europe seeking refuge. The arrival of these numerous strangers attracted the attention of the Catholic Church, who virtually enslaved them for its own use. Their adopted religion, Judaism, allowed them to do what the WORD forbade Christians to do - "usury banking." By using these Khazar-Turks the Church could accrue the benefits of usury without incurring its curse.[15] In Spain, Britain, and the U.S., economic interests caused many to convert to "trade-christianity."

The Turks' Dream

Aided by Catholic Church toleration, Khazar-Turks became and are today the world's leading factor in banking. They have also become the leading factor in media and trade. Where Ottoman-Turks were once the undisputed leaders - the Khazars have now assumed leadership. Originally desert nomads, they moved to S. Russia and Poland. From there they established enclaves in London, New York, San Francisco, Odessa, Johannesburg, and Palestine. In Palestine the Khazar-Turks are presently embroiled in territorial and religious disputes with Palestinian Ottoman-Turks. This is an ongoing thing among Turks over which only Westerners seem to become upset. The ally of the Islamic- Palestinians is Islamic Iraq. Iraq is being manhandled by the "Christian" armies of tributary Western states in true Turk style.

Turk control of the world's religious establishments which bless international trade is absolute. No priest, mullah, or rabbi may appear on Turk media who does not proclaim that "immigration" and "integration" of the ruling Turks (and others selected by them) - is god's will.

Regardless of who emerges as leader - the thousand year old objective of the Turkish crusades remains - the conquest of Europe. Europe is being flooded "Ottoman-style" with Turks from Morocco, Libya, Egypt, and Iran - one family at a time. Even the remote lands in the very north - Norway, Sweden, and Scotland receive their share. To bolster their numbers - blacks, Indians, and "children of the East" (orientals) are recruited and imported. The Turk-owned media refers to the invaders as "poor abused refugees."

In America, the invasion of Mideast-Turks is swelled by Hispanic- Turks, plus ancillary blacks, and "children of the East." The exact same situation exists in S. Africa, Australia, and New Zealand - the other Western lands.

The present invasion has gone further, conquered more, and inflicted more casualties on Christendom than all the other invasions combined. But, the Turk does what he does only because the priest blesses his acts and stands holding the door for him.[16] The Turk is not to be blamed for doing what Turks do.

Her priests have violated my law, ... they have put no difference between the holy and the profane, neither have they showed difference between the unclean and the clean ... and I am profaned among them. Her princes are like wolves ravening the prey." Ezek 22:23- 27

The Teachers

Strangers cannot trade if God will not allow it. The one who allows it is the one who blesses that which God curses. He is God's enemy.[17] The false priest must declare the wolf to be an "honorary sheep" before the wolf may enter the sheepfold to eat sheep. It is the Lawless priest, the serpent[18] whom God placed in high dignity - to instruct us - his true priests.[19] God wants MEN. He doesn't want pansies, sodomites, sleazes, liars, and scam artists. To keep those he selected from becoming such, he gives them daily examples of what he does NOT want, and prominently displays them on TV for the schooling of his own.

One stands in the pulpit and rails against sodomites - but is careful not to reveal the penalty for fear of losing the Turk's gold.[20] The next rails against government debt - but sells bonds to his flock and makes usurers of them.[21] Another cries over the awful Communist Chinese suppression of "christians" and a stranger stands in the pulpit beside him.[22]

The "WORD made flesh" has graciously given us these, and countless other examples, so that we can learn and teach our brothers to see the Lawlessness that is bringing the curse of God on the nation. There is no better way! Understand what the Turk does, but don't blame him for being what he is. He is a hunter. He does what God put him here to do. The scribes and pharisees, on the other hand, are the ultimate examples of evil. God made them and gave them the job of being false-teachers. They have committed the unforgivable sin punishable by death.[23]

Knowing not to murder, they condone it. Knowing not to kidnap - they bless it. These scribes and pharisees are damned by God - to them Law and Lawlessness are the same. They are not "ignorant," they know what they do. On them, prayer is wasted.[24] We see and pity, and cannot help. They are the living dead, and are kept here on display by God as living examples of evil. "Because thou has done this, thou art cursed above all ... and dust ("Dust: Heb: aw-fawr'; - "clay," "mud," rubbish." Strong's Concordance) shall thou eat all the days of thy life." Gen 3:14. In these serpants the spirit is gone and "rubbish" is their mouths.

God in his wisdom has provided the wolf, the snake, and the anti-christ to teach his children. They are wonderful teachers - we are good students. We must care for what God

The man who KNOWINGLY breaks God's Law - the violation of which is punishable by death - such as premeditated-murder, kidnaping, or rape - he has committed the "unforgivable sin." For sin against the Holy Spirit there is no hope, no redemption, and no forgiveness. As "false- witnesses" they incur the penality due false-witnesses; *"If a false witness rise up ... to testify ... that which is wrong ... RUSSIA REGULATES RELIGION: The Russian parliament is ready to pass restrictions on imported religion. The "trade- religion" of Russia is the "Orthodox Church." It served first the Tzars, next, the Communist Party, and now it serves the present government. "If you don't obey the government you go to hell - after you first get what you deserve." Anything the current government says or does is "great." It is "sanitized religion" in its purist form and staffed with government agents. Russian rulers must regulate new religions to see that they stay within set limits. There is nothing worse for tyrants than an unregulated god running loose spreading unfounded rumors, making claims, and demanding rights. The Orthodox Church was organized 1700 years ago to prevent that.

Chapter 228

SADDUCEES

The Scriptures speak at length of Israelites, Edomites, Jews, Pharisees, and Sadducees. Today's preachers plead stupidity. This is their excuse for preaching "positive thinking" in place of the WORD. They say nothing about SADDUCEES. Mention of the ongoing war of the Sadducee against their ancient enemy - the WORD - never passes their lips. If it did, their listeners would tar and feather them.

Israel Into Captivity

"Sadducees" are mentioned for the first time when King Hyracanus conquered the Idumeans. The Idumeans (Edomites) were descendants of Esau and a daughter of a Canaanite. The Idumeans were doubly cursed by God. Once by descent from Esau[1], and also by descent from Cain.[2] The curse placed on Cain and his descendants was "'Be trembling and quaking.' Then Cain trembled and became terrified; and through this sign did God make him an example before all the creation." I Adam & Eve 74:24- 25. To this day the sign of Cain is FEAR. Their fear is that someone is trying to catch and kill them. They see Indians in every forest and behind every tree. It is the sign placed on them by God.

Strong's Concordance), set thy face against mount Seir (mount Seir - pertaining to Edom - sons of Esau, those who occupied the land of Judah after the nation of Judah was taken into captivity) ... and say ... I am against thee ... because thou hast ... shed the blood of the children of Israel." Ezek 35:2-5. (Ezek 35:9-10), (Ezek 36:4-6)

They even build monuments to commemorate their fear. "Everyone" is suspect. Even the neighbor across the street.[3] Every day they uncover a new conspiracy and plot to do them in. It is not anything they can help. God identifies them "through this sign."[4]

The conquest of Esau-Edom (Idumea) took place after Israel was taken captive into Babylon, and before the time of Christ.

Israel had acted badly. God sent the Babylonians and Assyrians to beat some sense into them. Assyria conquered Israel, and took millions captive and moved them to the region northeast of Palestine, just south of the Caucasus Mountains in what is now Eastern Turkey. This was about 700 B.C. (See Chart #1 on p.2.)

> *"The 10 tribes ... whom Salmanasar the King of Assyria led away captive ... took this counsel among themselves, that they would leave the multitude of the heathen, and go forth into a further country, where never mankind dwelt, that they might there keep their statutes, which they never kept in their own land. And they entered into Euphrates by the narrow passages of the river.... For through that country there was a great way to go, namely of a year and a half, and the same region is called Arsareth." 4 Cain appears when there is a Law violation to feed on. He is God's "red flag" that sin is in the land. He is conspicuous. Without Cain's help, the poisonous Sadducee would remain hidden. Cain is God's servant. As God's servant he is protected by God. "And the Lord said ... whosoever slayeth Cain, vengeance shall be taken on him sevenfold. And the Lord set a mark on Cain, lest any finding him should kill him." Gen 4:14-15. Every Canaanite has a Sadducee agent who has opened the door for him. Locate the Sadducee by finding the Canaanite. Protect yourself if the Canaanite bites, but - leave Cain alone. Don't believe the Sadducee when he says he hates Cain - while taking his gold. Cain can not live in the land without the Sadducee doorkeeper. God's enemy is the Sadducee. He leads the sheep to Cain. When the Sadducee repents and obeys Christ - Cain will leave - or starve. Only then.

Hyrcanus Conquests 134 - 104 BC:

The Israelites returned from Babylonian captivity to rebuild the temple. They complained about Edomites in Judea (Esau's Descendants mixed with Cananites). Centuries later King Hycanus invaded Idumea (1) and forced the acursed Idumeans to accept the WORD - a violation of the Law. From this time there are two kinds of Jews - "Judean-Israelites" from Judea, and "Idumean-Jew" from Idumea who were proclaimed "Jews" by Hyrcanus. 2: Hyrcanus invaded Samaria, peopled with Arabs brought in 600 years before to replace Israelites taken into captivity. Palestine was a sandwich affair: 3: Galilee-Israelite, Samaria-Arab, Judean-Israelite, and Essau-Isumea whose influence over the whole land through the Herod kings subverted everything the WORD stood for. This required Christ himself to set matters right.

The "narrow passages" spoken of are the shallow head-waters of the Euphrates near the northern border of Assyria-Babylona. Traveling only 8 miles a day, a minimum of 4000 miles might be covered in a year and a half - a distance covering Europe and Asia. American settlers crossed the North American continent in 150 years. The Israelites could be expected to go many times that distance in the 700 years before Christ.

The rest of Judah was conquered later and taken to Babylon. 50,000 returned to rebuild their destroyed temple. When they got back to Jerusalem they found much of Judea was occupied by Idumean squatters. They asked the king of

Babylon to write them a letter to vacate.[5]

The Edomites had long been cursed by God (see footnote #1), and they were a mixed people.[6]

Sadducees

John Hyrcanus, king and high- priest of the reconstituted Judea, invaded Idomea and conquered them. The WORD prohibited transacting business with Edomites or allowing them in the land.[7] But, Hyrcanus insisted. He needed them to work the land he had just conquered, pay taxes, and furnish recruits for his army. In any event, he was the leading priest, in fact, High Priest as well as king. The people had allowed the king to become too strong and were unable to prevent him from violating the WORD. He forgot that the King of Kings watched.[8] This type of conduct had caused Moses to include the "booke of this Law" in the Ark of the 8 To protect his people against the snares of "the priest," "organized religion," and the local "ministerial association," God had Moses make "the Levites" put God's Law in the Ark of the Covenant so that everyone would know when the Levites were lawless: "Take the booke of this Law, and put ye it in the side of the Arke of the covenant of the Lord your God, that it may be there for a witness () against thee. Covenant - so that "kings" appointed by God (footnote #17) could constantly compare the treacherous acts of priests and rulers with the WORD of God.

Hyrcanus professed to be a Pharisee, which at that time meant that the WORD must be obeyed exactly. The WORD forbade Hyrcanus from doing what he wanted to do, so he abandoned the Pharisees and joined the "Sadducees" sect. The Sadducees believed that one should prudently give "lip service" to the WORD, but, that if and when the WORD conflicted with the unLawful edicts of the king - obey the king. "Sadduceeism" permits one to do that which is forbidden by God.[9] "The king" protests that it his "divine right" to rule as he likes.

Four Philosophies

Josephus said that there were four philosophies among the Jews - Sadducee, Pharisee, Essens, and Zealots. Each had its own beliefs. According to Josephus:

> "The Pharisees regard observance of their doctrine and commandments as of most importance, and they believe that souls have power to survive death and receive rewards or punishments."

The Pharisees of the early period may be compared to Scottish Presbyterians or "hard-shell" Baptists of yesteryear. They were strict and looked to the WORD down until the time of Hyrcanus (about 100 B.C.). Some, like Josephus, kept the WORD on through the destruction of Judea in the Roman War.

9 "Hyrcanus went over to the party of the Sadducecs, that is, by embracing their doctrines ... added to the written law, and made of equal authority with it ... ." Antiquities fn 13:11:5

"The Sadducees teach that the soul dies along with the body, and they observe no tradition apart from the [kings] laws. Whenever they assume office, however, they submit to the formulas of the Pharisees (lip service), because the masses would not tolerate them otherwise.[10]

"The Essenes believe in the immortality of the soul and strive for righteousness, but they use a different ritual ... and so are barred from the temple sanctuary. ... this sect holds their property in common, and do not bring wives or slaves into the community, but live off by themselves.[11] ... they are also extraordinarily interested in ancient writings. So strictly do they observe the Sabbath that they will not even defecate on that day.

The Essenes believed everything the Pharisees believed, plus "something else." The "something else" depended on the sect of Essene being discussed. America has a hundred such groups today.

"[The Zealots'] ... have an overwhelming desire for liberty with the conviction that God alone is their leader. They will easily endure any sort of pain or death so long as they do not have to call man their master.[12] These, then, are the philosophies among the Jews." Jewish Antiquities, Roman Judea A 18:1:WII,117. The West has many groups of Christian "Zealots." There were scores of such groups just before the American Revolution. The "original" KKK formed after the War was one of many such groups. There are presently several score of the same kind. "The Order" is perhaps the best known.

Sadducees - Their Beginnings

The Sadducean sect is believed to have come into being when Palestine was occupied by Greek and Syrian invaders. These foreign rulers passed statutes that violated the WORD, and punished those who disobeyed with confiscations, dismemberment, and even by frying some in great frying pans.[13] To avoid the displeasure of "the king," some Judean-Israelites became "Sadducees" and supported whatever the king demanded, even when it meant disobeying the WORD and incurring the wrath of the Pharisees and Zealots. This "anti- God choice" denied them "heaven," so they went all the way and denied the "existence" of heaven. Most Sadducees were rich people, or people trying to become rich, who traded with the stranger. They still are.[14] The Maccabean Wars against the alien invaders forced the people to choose either to obey the WORD, or to obey the unLawful decrees of the king - hence the constant struggle between the "Pharisees" and the "Sadducees."

When Hyrcanus became a Sadducee the political and religious leadership of Judea passed into the hands of that sect until just before the War with Rome that resulted in the destruction of the Temple. The Sadducees presided over a "state-religion," which gave lip service to Pharisee beliefs, but which introduced heresy after heresy into Israel (see footnote #9). Even the Pharisees became corrupt by accepting Sadducean decrees which became known as "oral traditions."

Transforming Edomites Into Jews

"Hyrcanus ... subdued all the Idumeans; and permitted them to stay in that country, if they would circumcise their genitals, and make use of the laws of the Jews ... at which time ... they were hereafter no other than Jews." Antiquities 13:9:1.[15] "The (Israelite) Jews are such by nature, and from the beginning, whilst the Idumeans were not Jews from the beginning, but Phoenicians and Syrians; but being afterwards subdued by the Jews and compelled to be circumcised and to unite into one nation, and be subject to the same laws, they were called Jews." Josephus, "Antiquities;" 13:19:1 foot-note "Ammonius:" Krugal Pub, MI 1981 [16]

Before the time of Hyrcanus, the word "Jew" referred to the Israelites of Judea who had come back to rebuild the temple. The Samaritans tried to join with them, but were rebuffed. Even the strangers who accompanied them from Babylon had been discarded. When Hyrcanus turned Edomites into "Jews" he did a revolutionary thing - a thing that brought chaos and destruction to the nation of Judea.

15 Sadducee priests do this today. They bless what God has cursed, they say that wolves are sheep. They then combine accursed Edomites with blessed Israelite-Christians into a mixed flock and say that "Jews are God's Chosen people," as if Edomites and Israelites are the same. This is just what Hyrcanus did. Which Judeans are "God's chosen people?" The Edomite-Judeans? or the Israelite-Judeans? God himself denies that both are.

16 This is where the great controversy comes from. While Hyrcanus proclaimed both "Jews," - who is a blessed Israelite-Jew? and who is a cursed Edomite-Jew? Jesus side-steps the argument, but answers the question, by calling himself "Son- of-Man." If false priests had not concealed such basic knowledge down through the ages, "Son-of-man" would be sufficient.

This let the wolf into the sheepfold in violation of the Law of the Shepherd. To survive in the sheepfold (which is a forbidden zone to wolves) the wolves must have friendly gatekeepers to sponsor them and false shepherds to protect them from the sheep. Hyrcanus was their man. To survive, wolves MUST always deny that the WORD forbids their presence, and they must also have someone convince nearby sheep that the WORD does not forbid wolves. Wolves are Sadducees by nature.

Once in the sheepfold it was only a question of time before an Edomite ruled the entire mixed flock. Herod, the Edomite king who killed the Israelite children, was an anti-Israelite Edomite. Ruling as king, his views and opinions permeated everything. His spies were everywhere. He had his own "Herodian Party" composed of Sadducees. Jesus spoke of them, "I know the blasphemy of them which say they are Jews, and are not..." Rev. 2:9 King Herod, of the cursed Edomite/Cannonite line, built the Temple in which Israelites worshiped. Herod helped shape their beliefs. The wolves ruled Judea (see footnote #12). Even the formerly Law- abiding Pharisees became corrupted as they were forced to accept Sadducee rulings. Matters were bad by the time of Jesus. The "WORD made flesh" came to save his people - Israel - who were truly "lost." "I was sent to the lost sheep of the house of Israel, and to them alone." Matt 15:24 N.E.B.. This fulfilled the scripture, "For thou art not sent ... but to the house of Israel." EZ 3:5

Jesus - The First Reformation

Jesus brought the WORD to the people created by the WORD - the WORD that had been forgotten. This began "The First Reformation."

Three centuries later, Emperor Constantine, the murderer of his wife and eldest son, discovered that the WORD brought by Jesus, undermined his monopolistic rule. He organized the "Christian religion" and placed himself at its head. Waving crosses, sprinkling holy water, and chanting prayers, he gave lip service to the WORD and executed those who disobeyed his statutes. The Sadducee was alive and well (see foot-note #8).

The WORD survived countless evil Sadducee rulers. James VI of Scotland swore to uphold the WORD, the Laws, Statutes and Judgments of God. He renounced the crown's monopolies of money, trade, and land. When offered the crown of Britain, he quickly renounced the Covenant. The WORD was replaced by his own decrees.

Oliver Cromwell gave lip service to the WORD. A holy man who prayed much, he fought for the Covenanters. When in power - he fought against the Covenanters he had earlier fought for. He refused to divide the land. He taxed the people, and permitted usurers and strangers to enter the country. "The divine right of kings" meant that kings can do anything they want to do. It still means that - to Sadducees.

Charles II made no pretense of obeying the WORD. He directed that Covenanters be hunted down in the forests and glens and be given the choice of saying "God save the king," or having their brains blown out. Thousands chose to die rather than disobey the WORD. Only to the "King of kings" would they say "God save the KING!" This is always treason to the Sadducees in whatever age. The "faithful" believed themselves to be kings appointed by the King of Kings[17] - and to the WORD only would they pledge obedience.

They were imprisoned wholesale and shipped off to America - where their descendants still refused to say "God save the king." The king's appointed Sadducee-priests were conspicuous by their lack of spiritual support and help in the cause of freedom. When the shooting started between the colonists and king, they gathered their wealth, tucked tail, and ran home to their master where their great numbers made them "inconvenient" to have around. What they did then they have done many times since. The occasional exception proves the rule.

The 2nd Reformation

John Calvin, a Catholic priest, saw the evils of Sadduceeism. Seeing that the people were deprived of a Bible to guide their steps, he and others like him wrote one. Seeing unLawful decrees of evil kings and churchmen held high as if they were the words of God, he encouraged the faithful to obey the WORD only:

> "I know with what great and present peril this constancy (to obey God) is menaced, because kings bear defiance with the greatest displeasure, whose "wrath is a messenger of death" (Prov 16:14), says Solomon. But since this edict has been proclaimed by the heavenly herald, Peter - "We must obey God rather than men" (Acts 5:29) - let us comfort ourselves with the thought that we are rendering that obedience which the Lord requires when we suffer anything rather than turn aside from piety. And that our courage may not grow faint, Paul pricks at us with another goad: That we have been redeemed by Christ at so great a price as our redemption cost him, so that we should not enslave ourselves to the wicked desires of men - much less be subject to their impiety (ICor. 7:23). GOD BE PRAISED."[18]

17 "Jesus Christ ... hath made us kings and priests unto God." Rev 1:5,6

After a brief 150 years, the Sadducees again subdued the unauthorized use of the WORD and the sheepfold has again been overrun by wolves. As promised - the world teeters on the edge of chaos.

Today Under Modern Sadducees

Before the spice merchant can trade, or before wolves can enter the sheepfold, a false shepherd must be found to persuade the sheep that wolves have god's permission to roam the sheepfold. No trade may take place until this is done. The magic of the Sadducee is indispensable.

"Holy men" are hired by the spice merchants to give god's blessings the spice merchant needs to transact business. When conflict arises between God and the state - the Sadducee sides with the king against God. So do those in the Sadducean party. Sadducee priests give lip service to the WORD - but almost NEVER quote the Law with its statutes and judgments. To do so might conflict with the interests and decrees of their master - the one who directly pays them or gives them tax exemption.

Of The King, By the King, & For The King

This "loyalty" is seen in all jobs and professions that are associated with and uphold the king's decrees - they are paid by the king either directly or indirectly - such jobs as government employees, judges, lawyers, police, usury bankers, teachers, prison guards, professional soldiers, etc. Without the state ruling as king, most would be unemployed. Those who obey and enforce the king's statutes every day tend to become like the statutes - like Caesar - even before God. Sadduceeism can be an occupational hazard.

The socialist state requires absolute obedience to its scientific approach to Marxism - if Marxism is to work. Conflicting laws of inferior political ententes must be suppressed (Panama, Granada, Somolia, Virginia, Nevada, Belgium, Egypt, S. Africa, Australia, etc.) as well as conflicting supernatural laws (ie Islam, and the WORD). This is the reason for the crusade by the king's courts to suppress the WORD. There cannot be two sets of regulations in a socialist state.

To implement the rule of the state, the king appoints judges who find that the Laws contained in the WORD are unlawful. When you take a grievance against the king to the king's court to be decided by the king's judge according to the king's law, the lawyer you hired has already sworn to uphold the king's law to get his license. He is addressed as "an officer of the (king's) court." Your fate will be decided by the king's agent arguing the king's law with your lawyer who is an officer of the king's court. This is done before the king's judge, under the king's law. The Laws of the WORD of God be damned. It is the "divine right of kings."

To those loyal, the king allows his gate keepers to fleece the flock. He allows them perks received by no one else. Without willing gate keepers the king's rule would collapse (see foot- note #15). Without the king the king's supporters would starve.

The Two Claims

Sadducee priests receive millions yearly in perks to convince the sheep of two things - (1) that "Jesus Christ was a Jew." That "Jews are God's chosen people." AND, the people who call themselves Jews today are "God's chosen people" and should be accorded special privileges. And, (2) - Sheep MUST "integrate" with wolves as commanded by the king - the false shepherd of the sheepfold.

These "Jews," whom the Sadducee priests insist that "god chose," inconsistantly claim descent from Esau-Edom.[19] Can these Jews be believed when they claim to be of Esau-Edom? Can the Sadducee priest be believed when they imply that they aren't? Who is lying? One cannot be both an Israelite-Judean and a Edomite- Judean at one and the same time. Which "Judean" or "Jew" are they? To establish "truth" the Sadducee priests never call for the "Three Proofs."[20]

The other Sadducean argument that the sheep should integrate with the wolves needs no comment. Wolves eat sheep - that's what they do. But, before they can eat sheep, the Sadducees must first open the gate for them so they can enter into the sheepfold.[21]

"Adam" means to "blush red". "Show blood in the face." Genuine Israelites can produce all three proofs. "CHRISTIAN"-"SAXON"-"MAN".

Vicki - Beginning Of The 3rd Reformation

There are Christians who heed the WORD, who obey the command "Come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord." 2 Cor 6:17, because "Thou didst separate them from all the people of the world to be thine inheritance." 1 Ki 8:51, and "Separate yourselves from the people of the land." Ezra 10:11. This "separatism" commanded by God, a basic Christian command, is now being treated as a crime by the state. One cannot have a "One World," or a "New World Order" if people separate themselves.

One who did as God commanded was a mother named Vicki. She and her family came out from among them and lived on Ruby Ridge. This family had separated themselves. An assassin, a "child of the east" was sent by the king to kill this wayward subject of the King of Kings.

One morning, as she stood in the doorway nursing her nine month daughter, this hired assassin took careful aim and blew her brains out. The blood of Vicki Weaver spilled on the altar of Sadduceeism - "lip service to the WORD - obedience to the king." This event started "the 3rd Reformation."

Others were slain before Vicki, and many have been slain since, but this was the first "Christian mother" with a baby in her arms to be sacrificed on the altar of Sadduceeism for obeying God's Law.

God the WORD will force all of his people to choose. The choices appear many - "Christianity," "Sadducees," "Essens," or "Zealots." But actually there are but two - the Law of Christ or the unlawful decrees of the "the king" - the "Christian," or, the "Sadducee."

One will seek to flee the approaching danger by becoming a Sadducee - giving lip service to God while obeying the anti- christ, or he will, like his Master and millions before - offer his blood by obeying the WORD which is God. The choice of one is heaven, the other - hell.

SAXONS/ISRAEL: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Could you provide me with a reference for the statement that Knox and Calvin believed that Saxons are the lineal descendants of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob." M. J. - Oregon

ED: In writing the Geneva Bible, the reformers - John Calvin, John Knox, and the rest - did not use the impersonal "their," "his," "your" in referring to the patriarchs of the Bible as they would have done if they were referring to someone else's ancestors, but instead used the personal "OUR," such as in "OUR fathers. Example: "At sundry times and in divers manners God spake in the old time to OUR fathers by the Prophets: in these last days he had spoken to US by his Sonne." Heb 1:1 This usage of "OUR" and "US" (my emphasis) refers to the reformers. They were obviously speaking of themselves. It also refers to YOU. This is particularly evident in the "margin notes." The name "Israel" means - "God's representative" - one holding God's "power of attorney." It is important to know WHO has been entrusted with this responsibility. The question of "WHO is Israel" is absolutely basic because "the Word IS God," (John 1:1) and "the Word was given to Israel only" (Ps 147:19- 20. The answer must be resolved correctly or Christendom falls.

ACLU: - Poisonous Fruit. The ACLU's discriminatory intolerance is a matter of record. Recently, they have sought to: * Halt the singing of Christmas carols like 'Silent Night' and 'Away in a Manger' in public facilities; * Deny the Tax-exempt status of all churches - yet maintain it for themselves as well as for various occult groups; * Disallow prayer - not just in the public school classrooms - but in locker rooms, sports arenas, graduation exercises, and legislative assemblies; * Terminate all military and prison chaplains; * Deny Christian school children access to publicly funded services; & Eliminate nativity scenes, crosses, and other Christian symbols from public property; * Repeal all 'blue law' statutes; * Prohibit voluntary Bible reading in public schools - even during free time or after classes; * Remove In God We Trust from our coins; * Deny accreditation to science departments at Bible-believing Christian universities; * Prevent the posting of the Ten Commandments in classrooms; * Terminate all voucher programs and tuition tax credits; * Prohibit census questions about an individual's religious affiliation; * Purge the words "under God," from the Pledge of Allegiance. ACLU "helps," and in "helping" they learn all about those they "help." This is help?

DAY OF REST: "Mr. Hoskins: Do you advocate keeping the sabbath?" S. D. - Louisiana

RKH: Answer - Yes, but, "Sunday rest" until we are free. Then, whatever we do must be done together. Why? A scientist named Beck tried to explain to me how much more power a man, group, or a community has when energy waves are allowed to subside the 7th day and be reactivated the next day - rather than working through. The same force did not develop if half rested one day and half the next. Whatever is done must be done together. The object is "rest." "Day" was made for the man and not man for the day. I personally would prefer the scriptural day. But, ANY day, "together," until THE day.

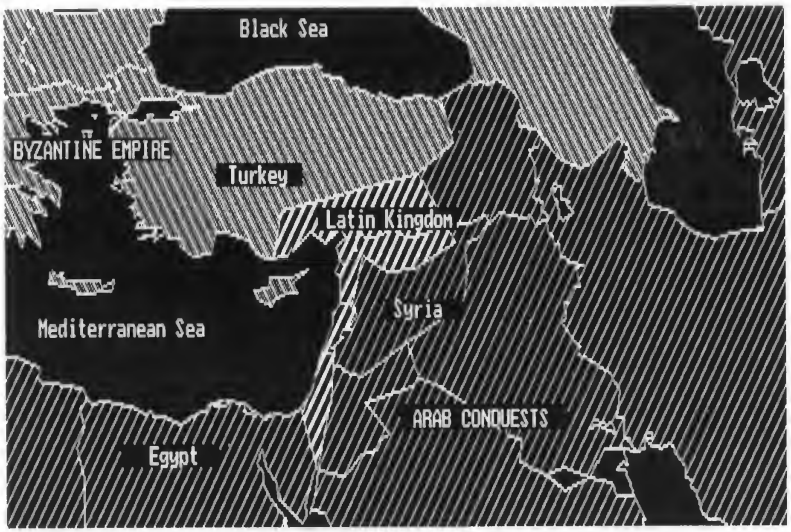
Chapter 229

ARABS & JEWS MAKE PEACE!

"Peace in our time!" "Israel, PLO sign peace accord!" "Rabin, Arafat join hands at White House."

The Arab Invasion

Rome was the greatest empire in the world. Its capitol was Rome. Emperor Constantine built a new city between the Black Sea and the Mediterranean Sea and gave it his name - Constantinople. Profiting from the trade with Russia, the Mideast and Africa, this new trading center became the wealthy capitol of the Eastern half of the Roman Empire consisting of Greece, Southern Russia, Turkey, Palestine, Egypt, and much of North Africa. It was far more profitable and powerful than the Western half of the Roman Empire whose capitol was Rome.



LATIN KINGDOM OF THE CRUSADERS

The furtherest limits of Crusader's Latin Kingdom, c. 1128. After conquering Turkey the Crusaders were forced to give it up to Constanople because of earlier agreements between the Catholic Pope and the Emperior of Constanople, who was also head of the Eastern Orthodox Church.

With the passage of time, the population of Greece, Macedonia, and Southern Russia changed as a peaceful migration of Slavic immigrants settled vacant land in Macedonia and Greece. The empire of Constantinople gradually became predominately Slavic. Even the royal family changed as marriages were made with some of the more powerful Slavic and Turkish rulers of their eastern and northeastern neighbors. In the Roman manner, Constantinople's emperor was also its religious head. He led what is now known as the Eastern Orthodox Church. It had became a state religion - the church of the Slavs. It still is.

Then, out of the forbidding deserts of Arabia came mounted invaders. These fierce warriors quickly conquered Palestine, Syria, Egypt, North Africa, and then Turkey. All that was left of the vast territories of Constantinople's empire was the city of Constantinople, Greece, some land in Southern Russia, and a beachhead in Turkey. The land that was lost had produced bountiful rents and tithes to the church. It was a disaster.

Constantinople's religious and temporal emperor saw that he could not regain the lost portion of his empire by himself, so he humbled himself and begged his western counterpart, the Roman Pope, to come to his aid. The actual arrangements between these two holy men were secret, and not confided to those who were to do the actual fighting.

The Crusades

The Catholic Pope of Rome not only ruled the Catholic world - he OWNED the Catholic world. He went to France preaching a Crusade to his noble tenants. His noble rulers held their land in fief to him, and managed it FOR him. As landlord and owner, he explained that he expected them to take their tenants, vassals, and knights, and at their own expense go to far away Palestine to fight an alien people whom they did not know - or he would fire them and hire someone else to manage his fiefs. Their reward would be vast rich manors, counties, towns and cities that they would conquer and rule, and the vast treasure taken from the infidel.

The story that was told to their future widows and orphans was that their men were going on a "holy mission" to free the tomb of Jesus from the grip of the Infidel and if they met an "untimely end" in the process, they would have a free pass straight to heaven. This came directly from God's earthly representative.

This was a persuasive argument. Tens of thousands volunteered. The battle cry, "God Wills It!" rose from the misty valleys of Europe as yeomen went home and put new strings on their bows, knights and squires gathered their seven man battle teams, barons gathered their companies and regiments, earls formed up their divisions, and kings led their armies and began a holy march, each man with a distinctive cross sewn on his tunic, and banners flying over all.

Secret Weapons

These "volunteers" had two secret weapons that gave them success. The first - technological superiority. The knights were almost completely encased in mail, and, their martial training was superior to anything the Arabs had ever encountered. A handful of crusaders, almost invulnerable to the blows of their enemies, were often more than a match for many times their number of Arab opponents.

Second - they were united - in cause and organization. By Western standards, the usual chaos reigned, but by eastern standards where every man's hand is perpetually against his brother, the Crusaders were seen as the fingers of an invincible mailed fist.[1]

Constantinople & The Crusaders

The approach of "friendly" but massive Crusader armies caused apprehension at Constantinople. They shut the gates of the city and manned the walls when they saw the flash of steel on armor in the distance. They did all they could to get the Crusader armies away from Constantinople and over the 1 "Organization" dictated by the WORD, and God's "inventions" given his people for defense, are the two weapons that have protected Westerners down through the centuries. Absence of the WORD to direct, and sale of God-given weapon-ideas to strangers to be used in time against them causes the destruction of God's people.

Bosphrus waterway into Turkey as fast as they could, and, they weren't overly polite in the process. The Crusaders thought of themselves as "fighters for God" - unpaid "liberators." The Slavic Empire of Constantinople thought of them as hired mercenaries.

There were other irritations. The Crusaders were "Catholic- Christian," the people of Constantinople were "Orthodox- Christian." Most Crusaders were Nordic-Westerners - the Eastern Empire was mostly Slav. Most Crusaders spoke French - the empire spoke Greek. There was ample room for misunderstanding. The Crusaders felt that they had a savage Arab enemy in front, and a treacherous Orthodox "christian" enemy behind them. At least they had learned that much.

Conquest Of Jerusalem

Before the Crusaders arrived, the Mideast had just suffered another invasion - this time by the Seljuk Turks. The former political governments had been shattered. Every city and town was essentially on its own, and had become the headquarters of a local emir who warred for supremacy against his neighbors. There was conflict all over the Mideast too as it fought to determine who was to rule the whole. The entire area was a seething cauldron - everyone fought, schemed, plotted, and warred against his neighbor. The Crusade marched into this pandemonium.

The local village or city finding itself directly in the path of the Crusader advance saw the Crusaders as an unstoppable steamroller. Many made desperate efforts to come to terms with them, but often found them hardheaded and obstinate. Most simply fled. A few fought. There was no help forthcoming from other Arabs. The Crusader advance ponderously crawled its way across Turkey, occupied this vast region, and flowed on down into Palestine.

It was then that they were confronted with a nasty surprise. The vast land of Turkey that they had just conquered was not to be there's. Their holy leader, the Catholic Pope, had promised reconquered Turkey to Constantinople as part of their private arrangement. The mutiny of the entire army was narrowly avoided by calling on the Crusaders' religious zeal and by promising them that anything else they conquered was theirs - almost everything - that is. All final decisions of any importance still had to receive the pope's consent.[2]

Jerusalem was a major terminal for the spice trade from the Orient. Its walls were strong. The Arab defenders felt confident that they could withstand any assault. They were quickly disillusioned. The Crusaders went over the walls like a tidal wave, stormed Jerusalem, and put its population to the sword. Orthodox priests were driven from the holy churches and Catholic priests were installed. From this time the substantial gifts given by the hordes of Christians on their "required pilgrimages" went directly into the coffers of Rome instead of Constantinople. The "protection money" paid by the caravans from the Orient went to those providing the protection. The church first, so that it would bless the trade so that it could take place, then the Crusader kings who

2 "Jesus Christ ... hath made us kings and priests unto God and his Father." Rev 1:5,6. Anyone other than "the WORD made flesh" ruling over man will misrule man. Man is not permitted to delegate his job of "king" and "priest" to another. God appointed the individual man and the individual man alone to rule. Unscriptural kings and priests doomed the Crusades from the start. The WORD requires armies of "volunteers" - only. The Church "drafted" men for the Crusades to take back Church lands. It was anything but a "volunteer" undertaking. Injustice abounded.

guarded the trade cursed by God but blessed by his own religious leader.[3]

Settlers

The newly conquered rich but arid Holy Land needed the same thing that hell needs - some water and a few good men. Water came from God, but the new Crusader Latin Kingdom also required substantial numbers of Christian settlers from the West in order to remain strong. "Disobedience" kept this from happening. The Pope claimed the conquered land.[4] Fully nine-tenths of the Crusaders, who wanted to stay, fight, and send for their families to join them, were forced to return to Europe for lack of land to settle on and live. This turned away hundreds of thousands of potential settlers. This foolish disobedience to the WORD was a major disaster to this massive Church effort.

Arab Warfare - Against Fools

The priests "selected by God" abdicated their exalted stations and allowed self-proclaimed frauds to lead thousands astray - because "god said so." Peter the Hermit led a Crusade made up of children and women, protected by a few knights. He said that God told him that the purity of the youth and the women would conquer all. The Arabs lay in wait and a cloud of arrows darkened the sun and fell on the few hundred knights who were marching without armor in the scorching hot weather, and slew them. The boys and women were made captive and were sold in Arab slave markets to satisfy bizarre Turkish sexual appetites.

Another Crusader army came to a fork on the the road to Palestine. One followed the path taken by an earlier Christian army. The other lead to Arab treasure cities - their guide said. They took his word and followed the latter road that led into the desert. The entire army died of thirst.

The wiles of Turks made them masters at making the small Christian armies become still smaller by persuading them to split up. They then attacked the small isolated segments with overwhelming strength. Often they were successful. But even when they failed it was better to face a small Christian force than one that was intact.

Arab Warfare - Disinformation

The Arab-Turks worked with "Orthodox-christians" to spread rumors among the Crusaders. One such rumor told of a nearby town full of treasure. A flying column was sent to seize it. The town fell with no resistance, but they found no treasure. Immediately a great Arab army appeared outside the city and cut off their retreat. The treasure story had led the Crusader force into a trap. The city had no source of water and now the attackers were besieged. In a week they staggered out to fight their way to water. Every man died.

Crusaders knew everything that happened within their line of sight. Often they were ignorant of important events just over the hills a few miles away. The Turks used carrier pigeons. Every act of the Crusaders from Alexandria to Constantinople was known to them within hours. Nothing has changed.

Arab Warfare - Balak Plan

As the Crusaders consolidated their conquests, and Western settlers were turned away, Arab refugees were allowed to return to the cities and towns they had vacated. Initially they were submissive, but then became unruly as they became more familiar with Christian ways. Many Christian rulers found that their dusky subjects accepted them quicker if they married a local girl.[5] The offspring of these unions were Turks - not Christian.[6] These "christian" offspring were christian in name only. They were actually an alien nation being created in the midst of the Christian nation. They plotted, schemed, and back-stabbed with the best of them.[7]

Arab Warfare - Mixed Alliances

As the Crusaders settled into their new conquests, many put aside their swords and made offensive/defensive treaties with nearby Turkish emirs.[8] When a local war broke out, the histories tell us of battles being fought with the right wing of one army containing Turks under their crescent banners, their center composed of Crusaders under their flags with crosses, and the left wing formed from another allied Turkish force. Their enemy would be another mixed army composed of Turks and Christians. Christians killed Christians.[9] The descendants of the Crusaders had adapted to the ways of the infidel and had become like them. Their Christian comrades tolerated this insult to God. Not only was the Crusade not "sanctified," but the men of pure and holy vision had also become corrupted. They too were un-sanctified.[10]

Many of the offspring were no longer in the image of their God, so the God of their fathers once more raised up a champion to destroy his disobedient creation.[11]

God Destroys His Creation

A young ruler came to power in Egypt. A son of Islam. He was devout, savvy, and generous - something seldom seen in the Mideast. When he died, hardly a handful of silver remained in his treasury, he had given the rest to the needy. He was also gracious, kind, and forgiving - to friend and foe alike. His name was Saladin.

He was true to Allah while Christian rulers were untrue to the WORD. Saladin forgave many Turks who had been his enemies and accepted them as his friends. He freed Christian prisoners who were poor without requiring them to pay ransoms, rather than enslave them. His counterpart, Richard the Lionhearted of England, insulted his God by offering his sister to Saladin's brother for a wife. Richard's sister, a better woman than Richard was a man, sailed away in a rage. It was Richard who decided one day to kill his Islamic captives, and he did.[12] Saladin responded in kind.

Saladin was quick-witted - and hard when he needed to be. In time, one by one his opponents came before him, and by one means or another, ancient enemies were made to take his hand. The Latin Kingdom of the Crusaders was then confronted with a united Islam - Turks and Arabs, brothers in Allah - united against the "infidel" Crusaders. Saladin led the Islamic tidal wave. The new wave of advancing Turks in their rear - the Mongol invaders from the steppes - saw that Islam was to be the winner, and they switched from their christian religion to that of Islam.

The Crusaders fought desperately - but to no avail. Their own God had determined to destroy them. One by one their cities and possessions were crushed. Many asked for mercy from Saladin and received it in "the name of Allah, the compassionate." Others fell to deception. Even Krak, the iron fortress that withstood countless assaults, fell when its defenders were deceived by a faked message ordering them to evacuate their castle.

12 Man (Heb: Adam) is to rule justly.

Conclusion

God is to be feared. The WORD tells us to "Fear God and keep his commandments." God said that he will destroy a faithless and disobedient creation - and he will. He has done it before, he will do it again. Already he has brought disease, hurricanes, floods, and strangers to eat out our substance and steal our children. If Israel continues disobedient - God will raise up a champion to bring the sword as he raised up Nebuchadnezzar and Saladin. He said he would do it - and he will.

Today - the newspapers proclaim that Ottoman-Turk converts to Islam are shaking hands with Khazar-Turk converts to Judaism. Christendom would be advised to use the time left to Sanctify itself. The last time Turks shook hands and made peace among themselves - Christendom paid with a river of blood.

Chapter 230

SOUTH AFRICA

The present attempt to integrate South Africa is diametrically opposed to the imperium of "separation" now running full flood over the world. The various races in the Soviet Union are separating, the Baltic is separating, China has driven Westerners from her shores. Black Africa has done the same, and is also separating her own Black races into their component parts. America's inner cities are being turned into independent Black nations as Black on White guerrilla war goes into high gear and drives away the Westerners who built the cities and who once lived there.

While non-Westerners are forcing Westerners from their lands, they are also forcing non-Westerners into Western lands. Westerners are beginning to suspect that the double standard is a well thought out plan to destroy the Western enclaves and the Westerners who live there.

Virginia's Footsteps

In many ways, South Africa's ordeal appears to be like Virginia's. Virginia was the victim of a devastating war, just as South Africa was. Before the war Virginia was self-sufficient. Her plantation system produced almost everything her people needed and her vast surplus was sold elsewhere which made her people rich. What the plantation didn't produce or make was obtained by trading with the next plantation, or the closest village trading center which stocked or made the speciality items needed.

Virginia had no army. Everyone from the age 16-60 was a militiaman. If called upon to repel an invader, Virginia had 75,000 militiamen available instantly - armed and trained at their own expense. Many of her officers had paid their own way to attend the Virginia Military Institute to learn to become efficient warriors. Militia artillerymen paid for their own cannon. One six-gun Virginia battery was counted as superior to two four-gun federal batteries.

The war was waged to destroy Virginia. It destroyed her farm system, her ability to produce, and her people's independence. She was no longer self-sufficient. Her people were taxed and forced to mortgage their farms to get money to pay the taxes. They had to import things formerly produced. Virginia, the "slave state," was reduced to abject slavery.

International bankers devised a scheme to keep Virginia from escaping from them - back into their former free independent farm system. Political and economic war was waged on her farm-system to ensure that she would remain a perpetual slave.

The Media Whip

Most Southern newspapers that were captured in the war found new owners. The owners were individuals and corporations owned by banks. More and more newspapers were bought. Historic little Culpeper had two newspapers - The Star, and The Exponent. They fought each other tooth and nail, always supporting opposing candidates. If there was scandal or dirt - it was aired. If the newspaper lied - the injured party often challanged the editor to a duel. Editors never have liked being made responsible for what they write.

Corporations controlled by banks subsidized these newspapers by advertising in them. This advertising furnished all the income establishment newspapers needed. Subsidized in this manner, these newspapers could make money even if they had to give their papers away. Making a subscriber pay money for a paper was icing on the cake. The Star and Exponent tried to compete with the establishment papers, but couldn't. They merged to cut costs. They still couldn't compete and were forced to sell to a newspaper chain. Now, the free voice of the Star-Exponent is the standard "establishment voice." The paper prints the same propaganda on the same day that the paper in California does. It prints whatever it is told to print.

The Media Rules Virginia

Establishment papers pick the politicians their owners want elected and publicize their names so that everyone will recognize them. They deny publicity to politicians they don't want elected. In essence - the media elects Virginia's political leaders. The politicians elected are beholden to those who elect them - the media owners. Increasingly, the media selections are of the lower sort who can't stay out of mischief. When their moral failing threatens a voter revolt - they are replaced by another media selection - a selection that often smells just as bad.

Virginia's DeKlerk

To lead Virginia's fight against the second invasion of her territory, (this time to take over her schools) the media promoted "fire breathing J. Lindsay Almond, a warrior of the old school." He was elected governor by a landslide. I worked for him.

When he became governor he negotiated Virginia's schools into the hands of the Feds. They rewarded him by making him a federal judge when his term as governor expired.

Governor Almond's surrender was an act greatly approved by the media which saw "prudence and wisdom" in his actions. After all, "we must obey the law of the land" - a law handed down by a Supreme Court appointed by a media-elected puppet-president.[1]

Virginia didn't understand what had happened. She didn't understand that Virginians were now "ruled." Their politicians were no longer THEIR politicians. They did not represent them. Virginians had no say in their political destiny. The election ritual now was only a media event - a spectacle. Those selected by the media were elected every time and they represented the forces who owned the media.

This same condition exists in every Western nation.

South Africa's Ordeal

The history of the White people of S. Africa may have prepared them to refuse to follow Virginia's course. The consequences of forced integration will be too drastic. In America, "integration" involves a guerrilla war of Black on White involving murder, robbery, rape and general lawlessness. These guerrilla acts are unfortunate, regrettable, and one feels sorry for the victims, but there is no target to retaliate against - the attackers strike and run. One can still reach the supermarket and the drugstore without undue risk.

1 I was a young officer in the Richmond Light Infantry Blues regiment. We were waiting by our phones for a "call-up" call, and many were waiting outside the armory to be let in to get our weapons and join our battalions. When it became clear that we had been betrayed, some of the men cried. Virginia was humiliated. Once again the courageous response to turn back evil lost to a guerrilla war with its pin-prick stategy of gradualism, bribery, and inaction.

The S. African "integration" problem is not the same. There is already risk while going to the grocery and drugstores. With Blacks running things, there will be 50 times more danger than now. Black African politics is a study in extremes. It involves loser elimination. The history of Africa shows that when Whites choose "integration" vs "separation" - the result is "obliteration." This is the history of Whites living under Black rule in Africa - just like Haiti.

Separatism vs. Integration

The present imperium of South African Black tribes is "separation." Black tribes are being separated from other black tribes - forceably. Tribal members who belong to the SA police or who cooperate with other hostile tribes are put to death in a horrible manner if caught. The separation of Black from Black is almost complete.

White separation is also occuring - both politically and racially. Whites are separated into "integrationists" and "separatists." The process is almost complete. They are also being separated from Blacks - even long-time friends and servants of the family. Many Blacks are afraid of being seen with Whites. Whites are beginning to be afraid of being seen with Blacks. Both wonder what their "separatist" kinsmen will do to them if matters turn nasty.

The line is being drawn across all of Africa for both Black and White. One is - "separatist," or "integrationist." There is no third choice.[2]

Newsletters

Among the S. African newsletters I receive, certain formerly hard nose "right-wing" periodicals are not so "separatist." They are re-thinking their way into the enemies' camp as "integration day" approaches. They are going into "survival mode," a mode to meet Black ruler approval. These former "stalwart White leaders" whose battle cry was "never surrender!" and "follow me!" are burning bridges leading back to their comrades. The true "separatist" editors are more separatist than ever before. It's becoming either one way or the other. No third choice.

Religion

Organized religion, in the past the traditional supporter of the ruling political party (whoever it may be), is being forced to choose between "integration" and "separation" as Blacks storm White churches and machine gun and hand grenade their congregations. If the "integrationists" can no longer defend the churches, why support integration? That leaves only "separatists" to defend them. "To have friends one must be friendly." Time is running out for organized religion. There is no third choice.[3]

2 (1) "Come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord." 2 Cor 6:17. (2) "For thou didst separate them from all the people of the world to be thine inheritance." 1 Ki 8:51. (3) "Now it came to pass, when they had heard the law, that they separated from Israel all the mixed multitudes." Neh 13:3. (4) "Separate yourselves from the people of the land, and from the strange wives." Ezra 10:11

Politics

The media-elected National Party has passed beyond the pale. The White nation suffers because of them. The political opposition, the Conservative Party, is composed of the same media-elected types that didn't make the National Party. Neither party represents the people as much as they do the media that elected them.

The Generals

The media, finding that both the National and Conservative Party are losing control of the Whites, boosted a third group, "The Generals." These generals had been appointed to their position by the establishment. To appease the radical communist Mandella, they were later retired.

Now, the media has brought them back "center-stage" in a committee to act as White leaders and spokesmen. It is no surprise that these same leaders who had earlier been appointed by the establishment, show a distressing tendency to "negotiate" with the common enemy.

This leaves the well-armed and boisterous S. African militia called the AWP. They boast that they are capable of putting 75,000 men in the field - instantly. They are also showing a distressing tendency to avoid politics and follow the "negotiations."[4] The leader of the AWP is a man who was caught in a compromising situation with a woman. Covenanters don't like to see that in their leader.

Then there is Jaap Marais (pronounced "Yap" Mo ré)

3 During the 1622 Indian war in Virginia - the Indians loved to skin White integrationist priests - first!

4 Make no league with the inhabitants of this land." Judges 2:2

who waits in the wings with his little party. He is authoritarian, dogmatic, and will not join others or compromise. And, he has the reputation of having been right all along about S. Africa's problems while others have been wrong. If he can stay alive - Jaap Marais and his little party of "no compromise" may hold the key to South Africa's political future.

History

History reminds us that S. Africa was founded and ruled by the West India Company. This company was strictly "spice-trade" establishment, with all that implies. It was they who introduced slaves and ran the slave monopoly. It was their successor whose English governor tried to destroy the independent farm system of the Boers, issued the infamous "Ordinance #50," and drove them from their farms and into the hostile interior.[5] It was the descendants of this group who launched a war of extermination against the Boers and burned almost every one of their farms to the ground to destroy the independent farmer, put them into debt, and seize S. Africa's gold mines. It is they who have had a finger in every political pie. It is they who are orchestrating today's chaos.

The E. India Company never went away, it only took new names and new forms. They have long looked after their interests. They are ever present. Their media selected DeKlerk and others of his ilk to grease the way for their money-making mining and manufacturing schemes.

5 See Hoskins, Vigilantes Of Christendom, p. 294, Va Pub Co, PO Box 997, Lynchburg, VA 24505, $18/copy

The alien-controlled media has plunged the country into chaos. The election process failed long before the demand for "one man - one vote." Media-selected politicians are puppets for the media owners. They have turned the country over to chaos of Black rule. The salvation of S. Africa must come from their Western people themselves - not from media-selected politicians of the right, left, or middle of the road. All media-selected politicians are suspect. The system of leader selection by the media will have to stop if any Western nation is to survive.

Problem 1

By the time political "negotiations"[6] transfer the Whites to Black control, the White South African nation will have either agreed to this transfer - or they won't.

If they decline and fighting commences - their visible enemy will be the establishment media, Mandella and his Xhosas, Slovo and his communist ANC, the White renegade National Party, and the international establishment esconsed there. They will be backed by the armed might of foreign nations such as the U.S., China, and Near East Arab nations - all who hope to profit from the demise of the White man in S. Africa. This appears to be an irresistible force.

White South Africans have for allies their ancient enemies - the Zulu nation - and God.

The feeling among many Whites is that the "The Blood River Covenant" that gave the Afrikaner people to God, will prevail, and that God will again bring them through victo-

6 "Thou shall make no covenant with them ... For they will turn away thy son from following me, that they may serve other gods." Deut 7:2,4

rious.[7]

Problem #2

I believe that the "Covenanters" will win this stage. However, victory and defeat of Mandela's Xhosas will lead to the next problem: the Zulus and their allies. Never before have Zulus been content with two separate governments in one land. If they decide to contest White S. Africa - aid will be abundantly available from the silk trade to arm them.

Problem #3

The ultimate battle will be against the establishment itself, once the puppets are removed. This is the establishment that owns the media, banks, transportation, communications, and energy. They must be deprived of their power and banished. This will not be easy since they have the world's armies ready to march at their command. A different form of warfare must be devised to fight that war.

Solution

It would appear that the Biblical solution will be the only lasting solution - the "scriptural farm." God created man and appointed him to rule as kings and priests.[8] He directed that 7 On the morning of Dec 16, 1838, following 7 days of prayer and fasting, 460-odd Afrikaner men with their women and children successfully fought off the repeated onslaughts of 30,000 Zulus killing 12,000 of them without a single casualty on the Afrikaner side. The Zulu warriors complained that what decided the battle against them was not the Boers shooting from between the wheels of the wagons, but the Boers shooting from the white cloud hovering above the laager all day.

8 "Jesus Christ ... hath made us kings & priests unto God and his Father." Rev 1:5,6

the land be divided and never ever sold.[10] If never ever sold - the stranger will have no place to gain a foothold.[11]

Ideally the self-sufficient farm produces everything that the individual family needs. With few needs - the independent self- sufficient farm will be left alone. If an invader wishes only slaves - this is why God established the militia.

Two Unresolved Problems

In time, two problem areas essential to the completely self- sufficient farm will be resolved - "communications" and "energy." Doubtless, God in his time will give us the inventions needed.[12]

If we need nothing - the establishment cannot sell to us, bribe us, control us. Our God forbids us to buy from them[13] and has given each of us a self-sufficient kingdom so that we will not have to. The stranger will not be able to live among us because there is no room for him - the land cannot be sold forever. The land cannot be stripped from us by tax sales because taxes are forbidden.[14]

10 (1) "The land shall be divided for an inheritance ... according to ... their fathers they shall inherit ..." Num 26:53- 55. (2) "The land shall not be sold for ever: for the land is mine." Lev 25:23

11 (1) "They shall not dwell in thy land, lest they make thee sin against me." I Ki 4:21,24 (2) "They ... were mingled among the heathen and learned their works. Ps. 106:35- 36

12 (1) "The Lord possessed me (wisdom) in the beginning." Prov 8:22 (2) "I (wisdom) find out knowledge of witty inventions." Pr 8:12. (3) "Give not that which is holy unto the dogs ... lest they ... turn again and rend you." Matt 7:6

13 "If thou has stricken thy hand with a stranger (Heb: zûwr - racial alien), thou art snared." Pr. 6:1

14 "Of whom do the kings of the earth take custom or tribute? of their own children, or of strangers? Peter saith unto him, Of strangers." (Gr: allotrios - foreign, not akin.) ... Then are the children free." Matt 17:25-26. If strangers have to move elsewhere to survive - there will be no wolves in the sheepfold to kill, rob, and rape because they cannot find anything to eat.

This is what "separatism" means - a nation under God, ruled by the WORD, separate - each man and his family in his own kingdom ruling as king and priest.

The chaos in S. Africa may force God's people living there to cease following frail and fallible "man" and follow the WORD who made him. That will be the key that ushers in the day for which we have waited for so long.

"Thy kingdom come ... on earth."

LETTERS

BELGIAN CONGO: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I was in the Belgian Congo when the Blacks took over violently. They could not wait for the date set by the Belgians and went completely berserk, drunk, killing all Whites including missionaries, nuns, anyone who was White. It was a living hell. I got out by the skin of my teeth. I do not want that to happen to my family still living in S. Africa. When I telephoned my only sister, my brother-in-law said "Please send us bullets." S. - Mexico

---

LEST YE LEARN THEIR WAYS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: We've sent two of our daughters out of the state. A third, our 14 year old was seduced by a 24 year old Mexican and is now expecting. A TV program persuaded her to do this folly. We intend to put the baby up for adoption with a Mexican family in obedience to the WORD: "Therefore let us make a covenant (an agreement) with our God to put away all the wives, and such as are born of them, according to the counsel (advice) of my Lord, and of those that tremble (are deeply impressed) at the commandment of our God; and let it be done according to the law." Ezra 10:3 A. B. -

New Mexico

TEN FOR ELEVEN: "Dear Richard: I read in War Cycles/Peace Cycles about $10 for $11, but it was never clear to me what it meant.[15] One day I was sitting taking it easy when it hit me and everything became as clear as a bell. Everything becomes clear when you understand it. The depressing thing is that our leaders and patriot groups do nothing about it. Surely they must know what is going on with our money system." U. E. - Pennsylvania

JEW NOR GREEK: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: Integrationists constantly use the following quote: "There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus." Galations 3:28. Does this not put the official stamp of approval on racial interbreeding?" C. H. - North Carolina

RKH: Not at all. The job of the anti-Christ is to confuse, twist, and deceive. Scripture supports scripture. Scripture used to negate scripture is scripture being used in a false manner. The scripture states "A bastard (Heb: mamzêr - mixed breed, mongrel) shall not enter into the congregation of the Lord (Israel)." De 23:2. Therefore, "There is neither Jew nor Greek" (Israel was scattered into all nations - "Jew" or "Greek" are nationalities - some may be of Israel - others not.), "there is neither bond nor free" (this is talking about condition of freedom, in jail or out, slave or free), "there is neither male nor female", (this deals with gender and has nothing to do with racial interbreeding); "for all are one in Jesus Christ."

This is a true quote. Anti-Christ integrationists try to use it to confuse, twist, and deceive. It cannot stand scrutiny. Scripture supports scripture. Scripture cannot be used to negate scripture. The margin note by the reformers in Geneva Bible of 1599 next to "No Bastard shall enter the congregation of Israel" states: "This was to cause them to live chastely, that their posteritie might not be rejected."

BLACK BIBLE: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: USA Today, Aug 6, 1993 p. 13A carries an article about the introduction of a Black Bible. In it Jesus, Moses, and Biblical characters are portrayed as being Black. Why?" G. R. - Arkansas

RKH: Blacks aren't stupid, they can read. Educated Blacks know that the Hebrew word for man is "Adam," and that "adam" means to "blush red." Blacks have long called the white man's version of Christianity based on the Bible "A white man's religion." This "Black Bible" is just one more step in divorcing their god from our God - THE WORD of Israel. "There are many nations ... all are his, and over all has he appointed spirits to rule ... but over Israel ... he alone is their ruler." Jubilees 15:23. It would be interesting to learn what the high priest of today's Sadducees, Billy Graham, has to say about it.[16]

FRICTION BETWEEN PROTESTANT & CATHOLIC CHURCH: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: What was the big theological argument between the Protestants and the Catholic Church?" A. M. - Maryland RKH: 1) The primacy of the Pope (instead of every man a king and a priest). 2) The mass (God in a wafer, the belief in eating God's literal blood and flesh.) 3) The invocation of saints (instead of direct prayer to God). 4) The meritoriousness of human works (instead of grace). 5) Fasts (as God's requirement). 6) Pilgrimages (to gain merit). 7) Celibacy (vs. "fruitful"). 8) Purgatory (for redemption after death). Protestantism considers these things as being unscriptural traditions of men. Creeds Of Christendom, Schaff, Vol 3, p. 364, Harper & Bros, NY, 1877.

UN COMMAND: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: What's wrong with having the US army under UN command as long as the objective is 'humanitarian'." D. R. - Kansas RKH: "Thou mayest not set a stranger (Heb: zûwr - racial alien) over thee, which is not thy brother." Deu 17:15 We not only have had a stranger for our army's commander, but now the entire US army in Somalia is commanded by a stranger. God's curse is on the nation which allows this.

Man

NEGRO MAN: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: I heard that you gave an explanation why the term "Negro man" was never used in Colonial Days? Please give it again." A. R. - Mass.

RKH: The term "Negro man" or "black man" caused raised eyebrows. Our great-grandfathers were often educated people who spoke and understood Latin, Hebrew, and Greek. "Negro" is another word for "black." The Hebrew word for "man" is "adam." "Adam" means to "blush red" - a white man. To call someone a "white man" is to call someone a "white-white." To call someone a "black man" is to call him a "black-white." This is why the words "chap," "fellow," "boy" (blacks object to "boy" today), "guy," or "uncle," were invented. Almost any name will do, but not "white-man" (white- white), "negro-man" (black- white), or "black-man," (black- white)." It's amusing to watch our enemies misuse these terms. Most educated Blacks use "human beings." They are better educated than today's "liberals."

Invasion

JOINING HANDS: "Dear Mr. Hoskins: The #229 Hoskins Report observation that the Khazar Turks had joined hands with the Arab Turks is important. Ezekiael 38 prophesied that those of God, (descended from Japheth but now mixed among the non-Adamic Turko/Mongolian Khazars), Persia (now Iran), Ethiopia (once the southern border of Egypt and occupied by the peoples of Cush - son of Ham), Put (once the Libyan region west of Egypt), Gomer (descended from Japheth and now mingled with Turko/Mongolian Khazars), Bethtogarmah (Togarmah descended from Japheth and mixed with Turko/Mongolian Khazars) would be summoned in the latter years and come like a storm to cover the land of true Israel, and that they would devise an evil plan and say, "I will go up against the land of unwalled villages, to those who are at rest and living securely, without walls, bars or gates to capture a spoil and seize plunder." And didn't Ezekiel prophesy that Israel in her naivete would say, "have you come to take a spoil, to plunder us?"

"Our Celto-Saxon nations world-wide are experiencing the take- over of our commerce, our land, our homes by the Pakis, the Indians of India, the Japanese, the Syrians, the Lebanese, the Khazar Jews, the Koreans, the Vietnamese, the Iranians, the Egyptians, the Saudis, ad infinitum ad nauseum. They are taking their plunder, and we naively say, "Are you really here to take a spoil, to plunder us?"

"Ezekiel indicates that these Turko/Mongolian people will realize the bounty that is available in these lands of sleeping Celto- Saxons and will come with a 'great assembly and a mighty army.' This may mean military might in order to finish the take-over, but if you look around at the 'warfare' (as it is termed by the Japanese) that is being waged against American business and property, you can see that we have already been attacked, and we are losing. And, as you say, all in accordance with the consequences of Deuteronomy 28 when God's Covenant People do not follow His Law.

"The rest of Ezekiel 38 and 39 tells how it all turns out." M. J. - Oregon
